THE following pacers are known to be in this State and may be seen in the races this fall: Almont Patchen, 2:15; Allanah, 2:18; Charley C., 2:18½; Silkwood, 2:18½; Hattie F., 2:18½; Tom Ryder, 2:19; Belle Button, 2:19¾; Lilly C., 2:20½; Dr. Swift, 2:20; Howard St. Clair, 2:23; George N., 2:22½; Hummer, 2:18½. Some of these may be disabled or one retired to the stud, but the owners who are looking around to see what pacers they will have to meet this year in the California Circuit will have a pretty good guide to follow by remembering the above list.

ONE of the most promising two-year-olds in Santa Clara is the bay colt Hillsdale 13,601, by Antinous 4778 out of Nettie Nutwood, by Nutwood 600; second dam by Vick's Ethan Allen Jr., 2903; third dam by Williamson's Belmont. On the mile track at the Agnew Stock Farm he has shown his ability to join the ranks of the other famous youngsters that represent that fashionable Electioneer–Nutwood cross. If nothing happens he will be among the fastest this year. Individually the colt is a good-looker and a perfect type of a fast trotter. He is pure-gaited and level-headed; these attributes, in conjunction with his speed, have prompted a number of horsemen to ask Mr. Agnew to set a price on him.

THE Corbitt string, says a Terre Haute writer, is simply a corker. The horses and colts comprising it grow upon one each time he sees them. No string was ever got together that shows such grandly-developed individuals. At first glance their muscular development seems almost a deformity, but as the lines of the swelling muscles are followed out they melt into each other with a symmetrical result that stands for all that is powerful and sustaining. As to whether they can march or not, all is yet a sealed book beyond hearsay and the records, as they have only been jogged on the road. The string is in perfect health, not even a cough in the lot. Mr. Goldsmith is in perfect health, the climate doing him much good. Mr. Rogers will stay with him for awhile, but it is expected that he will return home some time in June to prepare a string for the California circuit.

THE Chester Cup was won by the four-year-old bay colt Dare Devil, by Robert the Devil, out of Flora McIvor, by Prince Charlie. Silver Spur was second and Tableau Vivant third. The race is a handicap for seven hundred sovereigns, added to a sweepstakes of twenty sovereigns each, ten forfeit, for three year-olds and upward; the second to receive one hundred sovereigns and the third fifty sovereigns out of the stakes, over the Old Cup Course, nearly two miles and a quarter. Dare Devil was formerly the property of Mr. Tom Jennings Jr., and last year won the Drakelow Stakes at Derby, in April the Stand Plate at Manchester, and the Craven Stakes at Epsom in May. Before his next victory Dare Devil became the property of Mr. Charles Perkins, and in his colors won the Northumberland Autumn Plate at Newcastle and the Great Tom Stakes at Cardiff.

PETER BRANDOW, the well-known trainer and driver, has a much happier smile for everyone than usual. On inquiring the cause it was learned that his bay mare Foxy V., by Meredith 1368, foaled a black filly by Sir Roderic last week at Dan Frasier's farm, near Petaluma. This filly is very well-bred when one comes to examine it closely. Sir Roderic was by Dictator out of Prospect Maid, 2:23¼, by George Wilkes 519; second dam Neilson, by Mambrino Pilot 29. Foxy V. is by Meredith 1368 out of Lavinia, by Lusby; second dam Black Bess, by Blodgett's Waterloo. Meredith is by Kearsage 192 out of Sister by Volunteer 55. Kearsage is by Volunteer 55 out of Clara (dam of Dictator and Dexter), by American Star 14. Lusby is by Ericsson 130 out of a daughter of imp. Hooton. Mr. Brandow is going to breed the mare to Frasier's Secretary this year, and the first thing he knows he will be starting a stock farm.

A TELEGRAPHIC dispatch from New York, dated June 1st, says: The new race track on Staten Island is to be built on the lower bay beach, about four miles from St. George, and will be very accessible by railroad. The grand stand is to be 600 feet long, with ample entrances and passageways. The betting ring, bars and refreshment rooms are to be on the grounds, opening directly on the lawn. The track is to be one and three-eighths miles in circumference with a three-quarter-mile straightaway down the homestretch. By building the grand stand at an angle with the homestretch instead of parallel to it the horses can be plainly visible from the start to the finish, and the double finish, rendered necessary by the diagonal chute, and which has been so unsatisfactory, will not therefore be required. The track will be a perfect oval, the back and homestretches being each seven-sixteenths of a mile long, while round each turn will be one-quarter. In addition to the grand stand, the second stand around the lower turn will seat 10,000. The paddock, kitchen and stables are to be arranged according to the most approved plans. The presidency will be offered to Sir Roderick Cameron, who lives on Staten Island, the original owner and importer of the famous Leamington. Erastus Wiman is most prominent in the scheme.

Denver Races.

SECOND DAY—MONDAY, MAY 30TH.

DENVER, COL., May 30, 1892.

To-day was an unusual disagreeable one for Colorado, especially at this season of the year. During the morning there was a cold north wind, with lowering clouds, and it commenced raining upon the second race and continued throughout the evening. Notwithstanding the bad weather the attendance was large (fully 3,500) and the racing was good, if sharp contests make good racing.

To-day Col. Jack Chinn, of Kentucky, was in the judges' stand.

SUMMARY.

First race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards; the winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $2,500 to carry weights for age; if for less, one pound allowed for each $100 to $1,500; then two pounds allowed for each $100 to $1,000. One mile and a sixteenth.

Sympathetic's Last, h h, 6, Fairplay—Sympathetic, 116.....Weaver	1
Orrick, ch h, 4, Joquito—Simeron Girl, 106.....Young	2
Montana, b c, 4, Storey—Uga, 126.....Hart	3
Honshell, ch c, 3, 106	0
Gov. Adams, b h, 5, 121	0

Time, 1:52¾.

The horses were sent away after a few false starts. Sympathetic's Last soon went to the front and was never headed, winning by two lengths from Orrick, who was half a neck in front of Montana.

Second race—The Pacific Coast Stakes, for two-year-olds (foals of 1890); $10 entrance to accompany the nomination, $25 additional to start; $1,000 added, of which $200 to second and $100 to third; winners of a sweepstakes to carry 3 pounds; of two or more, 5 pounds extra; maidens allowed 5 pounds. Four and a half furlongs. 36 entries.

Hermitage, b c, 2, Friar Tuck—Mistake, 113 pounds.....Warren	1
Charmion, ch f, 2, Tyrant—Unite, 115 pounds.....Henessey	2
Investigator, b c, 2, Fairplay—unknown.....Jones	3
Phœbe Ann, b f, 2, 110 pounds	0
Senator Walcott, b c, 113 pounds	0
Ghost Dance, b a, 115 pounds	0
Eunice, b f, 110 pounds	0

Time, 0:57.

Betting—Charmion 3 to 2; Phœbe Anne, 3 to 1; Hermitage, 5 to 1; Senator Walcott, 6 to 1; Investigator, 6 to 1; Ghost Dance, 10 to 1; Eunice, 10 to 1.

After several false starts the flag went down to a fairly good start. Charmion soon went to the front, Eunice second and Senator Walcott third, and the others close up. After going an eighth all were well bunched, Charmion still in the lead. It was raining so hard now that neither colors or horses could be distinguished. Charmion showed two lengths in front half way down the stretch. At the seven-eighths pole Friar Tuck's son, Hermitage, under whip and spur, came out of the ruck, and at every stride gained on the leader; within fifty yards of the wire he was on even terms with Charmion, and from there on he gained inch by inch, until he passed under the wire a neck ahead of Charmion, who was a half a length of Investigator.

SUMMARY.

Third race.—Purse $500, of which $70 to second and $30 to third. For three year olds and upwards. Horses that have started this season and have not won, allowed five pounds; maidens, if three years old, allowed ten pounds; if older, twenty pounds. One mile and seventy yards.

Brookwood, ch c, 4, King Alfonso—Springbranch, 122 pounds	1
Acclaim, b m, 3, Three Cheers—Rosita, 117 pounds	2

Time, 1:52.

Betting—1 to 2 Acclaim, 8 to 5 Rockwood.

This race had five entries, but Lew Donglas, Top Gallant and Idaho Chief were scratched, leaving only Brookwood and Acclaim to face the starter. It was raining quite hard and the horses were sent away on even terms. Brookwood soon took the lead and was never headed, winning by two open lengths and pulling up.

SUMMARY.

Fourth race—Free handicap, purse $400, of which $80 to the second and $25 to the third; entrance $10 each if not declared out. Entries close at 4 o'clock the evening preceding the first day. Weights, usual time Saturday, May 28th; declarations the same day. Five furlongs.

Charlie Wilson, ch c, 3, Buck Walton—unknown, 105 pounds.....Nixon	1
Henry T., b c, 4, Duke of Kent—Jennie, 100 pounds.....Dodd	2
Pingal, b g, 6, Duke of Magenta—Perfection, 95 pounds.....Taylor	3
Ethel Fortine, ch f, 3, 95 pounds	0
The Jew, ch g, a, 112 pounds	0
King Faro, or g, 5, 100 pounds	0
Raceland Jr. gr g, a, 95 pounds	0
Jimmie B., b h, a, 105 pounds	0

Time, 1:02.

Charlie Wilson took the lead soon after the drop of the flag, with the others close up and well bunched. On rounding into the homestretch he was leading by four lengths, and galloped on a winner easily by three lengths in front of Henry T., who was a neck in front of Pingal.

Betting—2 to 1 Charlie Wilson, 3 to 1 The Jew, 5 to 1 Henry T. and 10 to 1 the others.

SUMMARY.

Fifth race, purse $400, of which $50 to the second and $25 to the third. For all ages, the winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $800 to carry weight for age; if for less, three pounds allowed for each $100 down to $100. One mile.

John Winfield, b h, 4, John W. Norton—Retribute, 104 pounds.....Jones	1
Bob Lythe, ch c, 3, Onondaga—Annie R., 97 pounds.....Taylor	2
Minora, ch m, 5, General Custer—Emma Charles, 106 pounds.....Young	3
Pearl, ch f, 4, 108 pounds	0
Yazoo, ch c, 4, 104 pounds	0

Time, 1:52.

The horses were sent away in the rain after little delay, Bob Lythe going to the front with a rush, the others in a bunch at his heels. At the quarter Lythe had increased his lead to four lengths; at the half the others had closed up to within two lengths, and on rounding the turn it was hard to distinguish one from another on account of the rain, but when all were into the homestretch Bob Lythe, with his blaze face, was still in front, and down they came, all whipping, and just at the seven-eighths pole John Winfield commenced to forge ahead, and in a few strides passed the leader and won by a throat-latch from Bob Lythe, who was half a length in front of Minora.

Entries Close at Spokane.

This is the last opportunity we have to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the Spokane Fair and Agricultural Association, entries for which close next Monday, June 6th. The purses are large, the track unequalled in the Northwest, the city of Spokane ranks high among the great cities of the Pacific Northwest, its citizens are lovers of good racing and believe in seeing that everyone who comes there is well treated. Read the advertisement, make your entries and also arrangements to go to the summer meeting, which commences July 4th.

Winter Racing in California.

Everything points to a winter race meeting in California. From the East comes news of the appointment by a wealthy syndicate of Jack Chinn, of Harrodsburg, Ky., who is to select a site for a race track in this State whereon racing can be conducted during the winter months. Mr. Chinn is a most popular turfman, and a square one, too. He for many years was associated with George Morgan, of Minnesota, and these men have owned many famous horses in their day. In Leonatus they had a world-beater.

If Mr. Chinn is connected with the racing organization that conducts a winter meeting in this vicinity the public can rest assured that it will get a fair deal, for he would not be a party to any shady transaction or allow any crooked work to be done when he was near by without the offenders getting immediate punishment for their misdeeds. Let us hope that some man as square as Chinn will be at the helm, at any rate.

The flocking of the Guttenberg robbers to our shores would be a public calamity, but a squarely-conducted meeting means a world of good to California. Rightly managed, the affair could be made to pay handsomely, and soon the State would be made the wintering point for hosts of high-bred horses. Here they can escape the cruel blasts of the blizzard king and the freezing air of the East, with its train of pneumonia and other lung affections. And hay and grains of all kinds are so cheap here, too, that, once we can bring out a number of horses from the other side of the Rockies, the owners will see at once the many benefits to be derived, and not think for a moment of spending the winter in any State but California.

But one thing is certain, also, and that is—the racing must be good if financial success is to be attained. A horde of New Jersey bandits can not expect to bring a brigade of "dogs" to this coast and see fools enough going to the "robs" to make the "racing" remunerative to the management. The robber barons in years agone had quite a long inning on this Coast, and the public retaliated in no uncertain fashion—by not going out to the race courses to be robbed in broad daylight. They preferred to be sand-bagged in the cool of the evening.

In a few days we expect to hear something of the winter racing proposition that will be interesting in the extreme to lovers of thoroughbreds in California, and in the meantime our only hope is that the right men will be found in the right place.

Salvation and Damnation.

"I wouldn't trust him further than I would a quarter-horse man," is an old saying, showing that this class of horsemen were considered about the lowest work of the devil. Yet, at the present rate, the day is not far distant when we will have plenty of quarter races at our meetings. It takes a man with considerable intelligence to properly condition a horse to go two or three miles at top speed; little sense to train a galloper to run a quarter of a mile.

Associations will be forced to increase the distances in their races—that is, unless they care for an audience made up of little else than trainers, rubbers and jockeys. Cater to the public, and trust the horsemen to work out their own salvation. Rest assured the horsemen will get along well and soon learn to train a horse to run more than three-quarters of a mile at top speed. Soon he will take an interest in his work of conditioning, and the increase of the distance in races will act as a tonic on the morality of the running turf. The no-accounts will be weeded out and the man with sprinting "skates" will hie himself to the woods of obscurity, where he and his horses by every right belong. Stop the ceaseless slaughter of innocent, yealy two-year-olds, officials of racing associations, and turn your thoughts toward other things than the offering of the bodies of equine infants on the sacrificial shrine of Mammon. Try to improve the race of thoroughbreds, not to lower it in the scale of stamina and gameness. What manner of man is he that would rather see a pack of cavorting two-year-olds in a dash of half a mile than four-year-olds run two miles? Surely such a person's taste is vitiated. A three-year-old that can run a mile and a half well nowadays is considered indeed wonderful, but such was not the case twenty years ago. In that time tracks have been greatly improved in every respect—made safer and "faster." Therefore there ought rightly to be at least two three-year-olds able to run a mile and a half at this time to one of that age twenty years ago. In place of this, there were three times as many three-year-olds running a mile and a half and further in 1872 as at the present time. The officials of racing associations have it in their power to make or mar the running turf, to see a grand type of thoroughbred gracing our tracks or a breed of horses that can not run over three-quarters of a mile ere they hoist their signals of distress. Have the distances longer all around and the two-year-old races few and far between, and your pocket-books will fatten and your praises will be sung by legions that are almost strangers to race courses throughout the land at this time.

Getting Ready.

At last the associations in the bay counties have awakened from their reverie and show some evidence of life. For years they have been in a torpid condition, but the spark of progressiveness that was almost extinguished in them has been kindled anew by the torch of competition, and henceforth everything will be done by them to attract the people to their respective places.

Since the Baden race-track project claimed the attention of horsemen in a ta-ra-boom-de-ray way, and for a few short weeks kept people busy talking about its great advantages, the members of the Golden Gate Fair Association, who saw that perhaps there might be something more than a Baden boom in the project, bestirred themselves quite lively, and when an astute business man came forward and leased the track for a term of ten years they were happy and thought that sooner or later the principal racing on this Coast would take place there. Mr. Wright, the lessee, has completely changed the appearance of the old tumble-down rookeries there, and has a force of men beautifying the place in a most commendaway. The advantages of its soil, climate and surroundings are too well known to need any elucidation here.

The young men of Alameda who are interested in trotting horses leased the old Treat track at Melrose lately, and have a force of carpenters, painters and laborers working hard to put it in order. This is an excellent race course also, and will make a splendid training ground. Many fast ones will be trained on its springy soil, and a series of trotting and running events are already hinted at among the enthusiastic horsemen who have taken shares of stock in this enterprise.

The members of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association have learned a valuable lesson, and one which we hope will be lasting. They have seen the people take a greater interest in good racing than they ever dreamed them capable of doing. They have seen how readily the public appreciates any innovation that will make their visit to the races a pleasant one. The employment of a professional starter and the rapidity with which large fields of horses were sent off on their journeys around the course because of this man's presence was something the public liked, and they were satisfied a visit to the track was worthy of repetition. The system which pervaded the meeting was highly praised, consequently large numbers of applicants for membership were voted upon at every meeting and the roll of membership was greatly increased.

The directors of this association have recently secured the Bay District Course, at a monthly rental of $250. It would be impossible to get the lease for a number of years, but if the Board of Supervisors do not make it another "fat snap" to assess all the directors whenever their funds are growing short, the prospects for having the Bay District track the most popular one of all are very flattering. It is to be regretted that no improvemects of a lasting nature will be made there, but of one thing horsemen may be certain—the business tact of the directors will never allow the "improvements" to get much worse than they are at present, and as it is impossible to lease this course for a term of years, there is every reason to believe that while the directors are utilizing it, they will be looking for a suitable place to build a race course with improvements which will be creditable to this State.

The various cities and towns in this portion of California, as well as the large number of stock farms, have their race tracks all prepared for the work of exercising the trotters and pacers that will appear on the tracks this fall. The most prominent of our drivers being in the East, there will be a large number of trainers and drivers to make their debut behind colts and fillies they have been getting in condition for the securing of money and fame.

We shall see strings of horses from all the leading stock farms this year, and more horses will get in the list to the credit of California than ever was known or dreamed of since the birth of trotting in this State.

DON'T put off until to-morrow what you should do to-day. One point that the trotting associations cannot afford to defer until the opening day of the meeting is the selection of a strict and competent judge. Secure the best man obtainable for that most thankless position, pay him well for his work, and let all the world know on whose head rests the vexatious crown of responsibility. Make out a list of good men and study well the capabilities of each and every one, instead of waiting until the bell rings for the first race, when a choice must be made from a host of Colonels, Majors, Judges and Doctors, who often know as much of the rules govering a trotting race as a Digger Indian does of the artistic merits of Wagner music. The destination of thousands of dollars rests upon the quickness of a judge in discovering a job in a race or upon his knowledge of the rules governing such events. In the words of a modern philosopher, "A bad decision keepeth away crowds, and a poor judge is the noblest work of Satan."

Make the Meetings Popular.

"Nothing draws the majority of people to places of amusement like novelties," was the remark made by a famous showman many years ago when he stood looking at the crowds of people moving toward the fields where the advertised gigantic buffalo hunt was to take place. The directors of the various fairs in this state are well aware of the magnetic power of novel attractions and by summing up the amounts received at the gate on the days when they were given they have learned that the attractions paid well.

The secretaries and directors are looking around for attractions outside of the trotting and running horse events. By the secretaries showing the proper amount of enterprise and introducing events that will prove interesting it may not be necessary to seek the æronaut's services to draw large crowds. There can be two and three mile running events, two mile trotting races and double team races, besides the equestrian tournaments. A mixed programme is what the people desire and to the above may be added a race for "top road wagons, owners to drive." Under this head the Horseman very sensibly remarks:

"Trotting and fair associations can add greatly to the popularity of trotting by giving liberal purses or prizes for different classes of races 'to top road wagons, owners to drive.'

"It has been the general custom to give small purses or prizes.

"If it is worth doing at all it is worth doing liberally and well.

"In the majority of instances, heretofore, owners have been allowed to substitute some amateur driver in his stead; in many cases to substitute a professional driver.

"Many years of experience has taught associations that this option has worked injuriously, because the amateur so chosen will generally be the best horseman in the neighborhood (in many cases a reinsman superior to the average professional driver), and the professional driver frightens owners who would drive their own horses, and they decline to enter or start their roadsters.

"It is claimed that many men owning fast road horses will not enter and compete if forced to drive their own horses.

"The reason for this is the one given above.

"The injustice of such an option is apparent.

"Try the experiment, letting it be fully and fairly understood that owners must drive.

"It will educate owners to drive, give them confidence and create local competition."

THE latest advices from the East regarding the thoroughbreds that left directly after the Blood Horse meeting must be very gratifying to every one in this State who looks with pride on the fleet-footed youngsters that are bred and raised here. On the arrival of all California horses in the east the horsemen and turf writers acknowledge that for appearance our horses are far stronger and hardier-looking than those that are raised there. These representatives of what this climate can do are far better advertisements for California than all the tracts, treatises and pamphlets ever issued.

The eastern horsemen are pleased with the their appearance when they arrive and as the races are called they see that the horses are not only good-lookers but they are weight-carrying racehorses that are proving to be winners. The value of the Australian crosses that come right to these shores is acting as a revelation to the horse breeders of the east. It will only be a question of a few years until a market will be found for these importations, and owners of large stock farms everywhere will come to attend the sales that will take place here every winter. The tracks, and improvements that will be made thereon for the exhibition and sale of fine horses, will receive attention in the future and inducements will be offered farmers to raise thoroughbreds to sell.

The dawning of an era of prosperity is here and with the enterprise and industry now being displayed by the associations throughout the state every breeder and owner of thoroughbred and trotting horses should feel encouraged. The different stables of trotters that are now on the way to the east to go "down the circuits" are a class that we can be proud of. The Wilkes, Sidneys and Directors are worthy of being considered California standard bearers.

A YEARLING filly by Palo Alto, 2:08¾, out of Elsie, by Gen. Benton; second dam, Elaine, 2:20 (dam of the one-time yearling champion, Norlaine, 2:31¼), has already shown an eighth in 19 seconds at Palo Alto, and will be worked with a view to beating the yearling record.

G. Valensin's String.

On the magnificent car "Valensin" that leaves Pleasanton to-day there will be sent the first lot of Sidneys to race on the Eastern circuits. Mr. James Dustin and attendants will accompany them, and as they are all in excellent condition it is hoped they will arrive at their destination not much the worse for the trip.

The two-year-olds that will attract the attention of all horsemen, and in fact every one who has read of them, are Frou Frou, 2:25¼, and Fausta, 2:22¾, the fastest yearling trotter and pacer respectively in the world. If it is possible to get a match race up for either of them it is Mr. Valensin's intention to do so. Red Sid, another two-year-old, that will attract attention and prove a valuable member is the finely-formed bay colt by Sidney, 2:19¾, out of Florence Wilkes by Red Wilkes 1749; second dam by Curtis Hambletonian 539; third dam by Pilot Jr. 12. He is a trotter and one that will elicit words of commendation from all who see him move.

The list of Sidney "baby" trotters is headed by the chestnut colt Oddfellow, out of Miss V., by Valensin 12049; second dam Lightfoot, 2:35, by Flaxtail. He will bear up the banner of this farm with ease, for he is largely engaged throughout the East.

Faustissima (sister to Faustino, 2:14¾, and Fausta, 2:22¾, the champion pacer) is out of Faustina, by Crown Point, 2:24 (sire of Valensin, 2:23); second dam Dell Foster, by A. W. Richmond; third dam by George M. Patchen Jr. 31.

Sans Souci (sister to Sidney Rose, 2:29½), is out of Miss Roy, by Buccaneer 2656; second dam Ella Roy, the dam of Allen Roy, 2:17¼, and Sanders, 2:29½.

Sidmont is out of Fern Leaf (dam of Gold Leaf, 2:11¼; Shamrock, 2:25; Ivy, 2:31¾ and Thistle, 2:19½), by Flaxtail.

All these youngsters are largely entered in stake and purse races. They will go to Council Bluffs, thence to Chicago, where Faustino, 2:14¾, will be picked up, then to Terre Haute, where they will be quartered until August 25th. After that date the string will go through the Western-Southern Circuit, winding up the season at Columbia, Tenn.

Difference in Jacks.

Less perhaps is known of the different breeds of jacks than any other character of live stock. This may be said to be true even in those sections in which they are best known, while in many sections of our country absolutely nothing is known of them. They simply know that a donkey is a donkey and that is the end of it. Now we conceive it to be of the utmost importance that breeders especially, should make themselves familiar with all the different breeds because there is a vast difference between them, not only in appearance and color, but also in their value as adapted to our country. If a man wants a buggy horse he will hardly buy a Percheron. And if he wants to raise the best animal for beef he will scarcely invest in the Jersey. There is also a great difference in jacks as adapted to the use of man. We find the jack the first animal domesticated by man for the purpose of bearing his burdens and transporting him in tedious marches and travels. We find him mentioned with respect in Genesis. That he was carefully reared and bred by King David. That he is the only one of the lower animals of which we have record to whom was given the divine power of speech, which he seemed to have used with moderation and discretion in a short conversation with Balaam. That on him alone was conferred the undying honor of conveying our Saviour into the proud city of Jerusalem. The wayward son of David (Absalom, the Boulanger of the Jews), rode upon a mule beneath the ill-fated branch that caught his falling locks.

Besides these distinguished honors, we find that in other countries and climes they possess distinguished characteristics unknown to our own domestic ass. That in the mountain fastnesses of Arabia they are said to be so fleet of foot that no horse can overtake them even in a country where the horses are described as being as fleet as the wind. He was also used in ancient times, the same as he is to-day, for the propagation of mules. History informs us that soon after the close of the Revolutionary war, the King of Spain presented Gen. George Washington a Spanish jack and jennet. General Lafayette, after his return to France, also presented him with a fine jack, which was bred to the Spanish jennet, and produced the famous jack Compound, which sired some mules that were sold after Washington's death for upwards of $200 each. This gave rise to considerable interest in the rearing of mules, not only in Virginia but in Kentucky and Tennessee, and other States soon fell into line. Perhaps the credit is due to the Hon. Henry Clay, of Kentucky, for introducing the Spanish jack into that State. These fine imported jacks soon made the blue grass region famous for the superior mules sired by these imported jacks. Mules were one of the greatest staples of Kentucky before the war.

Doble and Mace Looked Glum.

"The most exciting trotting race I have ever seen—although I have seen better races—was the free-for-all trot at Cleveland in August, 1876," said Henry F. Webb, of Cynthiana, Ky., to a Free Press reporter in Detroit one day last week, "when the stallion Smuggler beat the queen of the trotting turf, Goldsmith Maid. The Maid had been going up and down the country, beating every horse that came her way, and you can just depend that it occasioned no end of excitement when her colors were lowered. Smuggler was a converted pacer, a big, powerful and very fast horse, but a mighty uncertain one, and was driven by Charles Marvin, who has since had charge of Leland Stanford's stables. Goldsmith Maid was of course driven by Budd Doble. Judge Fullerton and another horse whose name I have forgotten, were in the race, but as they cut no figure in the contest it doesn't matter about them. There was an immense crowd present to see the flyers go; the weather was beautiful and the horses all appeared to be in perfect condition. At the end of the fourth heat the race stood Smuggler two heats, Goldsmith Maid two heats, and I assure you the crowd was at a fever heat. Can it be possible that the Maid is going to be beaten? was heard on every side, and the 'talent' the smart chaps that can always guess a winner (as they say), were at their wit's end. Between the fourth and fifth heat I noticed Doble and Mace in earnest conversation aud I could but wonder what sort of a scheme was on foot. A short time afterwards I found out. Well, when the horses were called out for the final and decisive heat, every one held his breath for they knew that they were about to witness a terrific struggle between the mare that had won so many races and a rival who had demonstrated that he could go like an unchained thunderbolt. When Doble drove around from the stable past the grand stand he tried to look smilingly confident as he doffed his hat in acknowledgement of the applause that greeted him, but his face looked drawn and pale, and it was apparent that he was nervous and anxious. Marvin's face was full of grim determination and his horse seemed to snuff victory afar off, so widely distended were his quivering nostrils. After the horses got the word to "go" Smuggler, the Maid and Judge Fullerton kept pretty well together for the first half mile, but after that Marvin and Doble began to urge their animals a little. Just as they turned into the homestretch Marvin let Smuggler out, but a long drawn out "O-h!" went up from 5,000 throats as it was seen that Doble and Mace had pocketed Smuggler between their horses. But, sir, Marvin was equal to the emergency. He lifted Smuggler right out of the pocket, and then how he did send him down the stretch! It really seemed as though the brawny animal was flying through the air, so tremendous were his strides as he thundered under the wire a clean winner, while the homely old Maid came close at his heels, trying her utmost to win, Doble's whip cutting her dripping flanks at every stride she made, Smuggler won the race and was bedecked with flowers. Budd and Mace looked glum, and the crowd yelled itself hoarse with joy, for the queen had been defeated, the king had taken her place.

Windgalls.

Windgalls, or bursal swelling immediately above the fetlock joints, are still called windgalls in memory of the old belief that they were filled with air. In other positions they are designated by their proper names, bursal swelling or enlarged bursæ; and in all positions they are identical as to their pathology. They all consist of distended synovial sacs filled with joint oil (synovia), with serous fluid which is effused from the inflamed capillaries of the synobial fringes or membranes, as they are not quite correctly called. Treatment of bursal enlargements is only considered necessary under certain circumstances. Generally speaking, they do not cause lameness, excepting when there is inflammation present, or they attain such proportions as to obstruct the motions of joints or the movements of tendons. In all cases bursal enlargements are unsightly, and it is an object with the owner of the horse to get rid of them, or reduce them as much as possible. For this purpose nothing is so effectual as pressure by means of an elastic bandage or a truss; and at the present time instrument makers are equal to the emergency and can construct an apparatus to suit each case. From its position the hock joint is the most difficult to deal with, but trusses have been made for applying regulated and continuous pressure both to the seat of bog or blood spavin and thoroughpin. The fetlock joints of the fore or hind legs are conveniently situated for the use of elastic bandages, which can be so adjusted as to press on the windgalls with any degree of force which may be necessary. Other means of treatment are to be found in the different forms of counter-irritation—setons, blisters and firing. Either remedy must be used, according to circumstances, when the mechanical plan of treatment is considered too troublesome or too difficult to be worth trying. An effective method in old and severe cases is that of passing a seton under the skin over the enlargement, taking care not to wound the sac, and leaving the seton in for some weeks. Then, when the wounds have healed and the inflammation has subsided, further counter-irritation may be applied in the form of a blister or the firing iron. This plan of cure is rightly deemed severe, and should only be adopted in special cases which had resisted milder remedies.

Worth Remembering.

The treatment of colts when weaned has been a more or less perplexing question to all breeders. The common practice is where there is room enough to separate the youngsters as much as possible, thinking to lessen or minimize thereby the chances of their getting hurt. Major B. G. Thomas, whose knowledge of horses and their treatment is, at least up to the average of horsemen, gives his opinion upon the subject highly favorable to congregating the colts in one large lot, with plenty of range. His experience, he says, is that when a colt is in a lot by himself he is constantly fretting and trying to get to his neighbor. If the fence is not tight he risks his head by putting it through between the rails. Otherwise, he climbs upon the top rail, in all cases running the chances of being disabled. To obviate this, Major Thomas put two together. Then he found that when the colts became fat they would spend much time in play. Lean colts never play. In this play they frequently met with accidents. He then experimented with three in the same lot. He discovered that when two played, the third generally interfered and put a stop to it. Seeing that three worked well he tried five, and the result was so satisfactory in minimizing the chances of accident, that he concluded it would be best to let them all run together, separating only the colts from the fillies. He has never had any reason to regret this course. He has thirty-five or forty yearlings at "Timberland," on the Lemmons' Mill road, and they are allowed to run in this way; all the fillies in one large lot and the colts in another. At this time, when the disposition of the young stock on the farm is a matter of some consequence, the opinion of so experienced a man as Major Thomas may be of some interest to the younger breeders. His plan, besides being reasonable and feasible, has the recommendation of economy in the matter of fencing.—Exchange.

Heat Betting.

The day is now past
When a horse that is fast
Can be laid up a heat or two,
While the "touts" so tough
Make money enough
To board them the season through.

To lay up a heat,
Or get wonderfully beat,
Was easy in days Lang Syne,
But the driver to-day
Who makes such a play
Will meet with expulsion or fine.

This may not be wise
In every man's eyes,
And many appear to doubt it.
If heat betting as well
Had been knocked to ——, well,
The turf would be better without it. —D. D. D

Death of Walker S. Hobart.

Walker S. Hobart, the famous financier and lover of fast horses, died last Thursday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock of heart failure at his residence, corner of Van Ness avenue and Washington street. Mr. Hobart was a self-made man in every respect, and no man was more beloved than he by those who knew him well. The deceased was born in Rutland, Vermont, in 1840, and came to California in 1858 like many another poor young man—searching for fortune in the bowels of Mother Earth. His first real venture was at French Corral, in placer mining, and later he went on the Comstock, then in its infancy as a mining country, and from prospecting on his own account, unsuccessfully, he went to work pushing an ore-car in the Gould & Curry and later in the Chollar mines, the wages at the time for car-pushers being $4 per day. The nucleus of the fortune of $8,000,000, which it is estimated his estate is worth, was made on a lease which he obtained from the Chollar mine granting him the privilege of extracting ore on a royalty. Mr. Hobart came to San Francisco, interested capitalists in his enterprise, and cleared $250,000 on the deal.

One of his earliest enterprises was the Virginia and Gold Hill Water Company, a corporation which he formed and in which he owned a two-thirds interest. This company supplies the cities of Virginia, Nev., and Gold Hill with water, and it has practically a monopoly of all the streams thereabouts in Nevada. Besides owning many shares in the Hale & Norcross Mining and Milling Company Mr. Hobart possessed large interests in several other Nevada mines. In fact, there is scarcely a corporation of any importance in that State in which he did not own shares. He was a partner with Flood, Mackay and O'Brien in quite a number of the bonanza firm's largest transactions. In California Mr. Hobart owned the controlling interest in a number of gold mines, the most important of which are the Plymouth Consolidated, Springfield, Utica, Angels and Eureka mines, and had a large interest in the celebrated Fremont grant of Mariposa county, this State. The firm of Haywards & Hobart is too well known for any recapitulation of their operations to be necessary. Suffice it to say that there is hardly a mining or milling corporation in Nevada or California in which the firm is not interested. As a holder of real estate Mr. Hobart collected rents from a dozen large business blocks in this city. He owned the Postal Telegraph building, on Market street; an interest in the Center Market property, on the corner of Grant avenue and Sutter street; the old San Francisco Stock Exchange building, on Montgomery street, and a number of other valuable properties, including his residence. His real estate alone, it is estimated, is worth nearly $3,000,000.

Mr. Hobart from early childhood was always a lover of horses, and whenever his business would allow him a little leisure he took great pleasure in riding and driving. About three years ago he purchased the old homestead called the Whipple Stock Farm, a tract of land some 560 acres in extent adjoining the town of San Mateo, and forthwith purchased Stamboul, 2:11, from L. J. Rose for $50,000 as the premier stallion. He sent Samuel Gamble to Kentucky to purchase broodmares, and the collection of royally-bred ones he secured are, unequalled so far as pedigree, individuality and fame are concerned, by any stock farm in the State. Every week Mr. Hobart would visit the place and took great interest in the improvements that were being made for the reception and care of this band of matrons. He was unsparing in the expenditure of money, and at a great expense built a beautiful race track, on which Mr. Richard Havey handled a number of the Stamboul yearlings last year, and to the owner showed some youngsters that surpassed anything that he had ever dreamed of. Mr. Hobart was one of the kindest of men, whose deeds of charity were unheralded. Since the death of his estimable wife a few months ago he never recovered from the shock and quietly and bravely waited for the summons which would call him home. The deseased leaves a son (Walter) and two daughters, one of whom is the wife of A. J. Rose.

Monowai in the Macdonough Stable.

Notwithstanding the statements made regarding Monowai being sold to Philip Dwyer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., we have just been reliably informed that W. O'B. Macdonough, the young San Francisco millionaire, secured the great two-year-old son of imp. Midlothian and Eliza. Monowai, instead of being on his way to the City of Churches, is at present on Rancho del Paso, and Californians will doubtless again see him gallop past the wire winner of many a good race. The price paid for the great colt is known only to those interested—John Mackey, the Donathans and W. O'B. Macdonough—but it is safe to say that $15,000 is not far from the figure realized by his sale.

A Great Broodmare.

Though several broodmares outrank the California stud matron Marion in the number of winners they have thrown it is safe to say in the average quality of her offspring the stud book, at least, in America have as yet to record her equal. Several years ago the compiler put togther a table showing her then wonderful stud achievements, but since that date other foals of this remarkable broodmare have scored such phenomenal records as to make that compilation irrevalent matter now.

Marion was bred by J. C. Simpson, now of Oakland, but then residing at Chicago, Ill., and was foaled in 1871, which now makes her twenty-one years old. A bay in color, she claims for a sire Malcolm, a fine race horse, a son of Bonnie Scotland, the dead premier of Belle Meade, out of Lady Lancaster, the dam of Regent and Ontario, the latter in turn being the dam of the lamented McWhirter, McHenry, McCreary (sire of the dam of the Missouri Whirlwind, Virge d'Or) and Rancocas, of Guttenburg fame. Marion's dam Maggie Mitchell, by imp. Yorkshire, was out of Charmer, by imp. Glencoe, the dam of the last named being the famous Betsey Malone, by Stockholder. Though the peeigree is a short one running back only three more crosses, those crosses are of the blood royal of other days, Betsy Malone's grandam being a daughter of imp. Diomed, the winner of the first Derby decided on Epsom Downs. Her turf career by no means indicated a brilliant career in the stud outside of her pedigree accomodations, as she appeared in public but twice, both times when a two-year-old. These two performances were run off at Dexter Park, Chicago, in 1873, and in one she finished third, the other first, her victory being a half-mile dash in which she defeated Mary Rowett, her sole opponent.

From Mr. Simpson's hands she passed to Theo. Winters, El Arroyo Stud, California, for a very limited consideration, and in the stud of that breeder she has since remained. She was bred to the unbeaten racehorse Norfolk in 1876, and in 1877 she dropped a bay filly, which was sold into Oregon and never ran. Her foal of 1878 proved Duke of Norfolk, while since she has foaled in rapid succession Duchess of Norfolk, Prince of Norfolk, King of Norfolk, Vera, Emperor of Norfolk, The Czar, El Rio Rey, Rey del Rey and Yo Tambien. Of this collection Vera died at two years old when just beginning to show high form, while all the others proved winners, and several of them were sensational performers. El Rio Rey and The Czar were never beaten, while the Emperor of Norfolk was also of the unbeaten class whenever in condition, he being so meritorious as a performer that Isaac Murphy, the famous jockey, considers him the greatest racehorse on which he ever had a mount. Yo Tambien, her youngest turf performer, was unquestionably as good as any two-year-old filly that raced in the West last year. With the exception of Yo Tambien all the above-mentioned cracks were sons and daughters of Norfolk, and when close figures are considered such a horse as El Rio Rey should prove a most wonderful sire. Unbeaten in a sensational turf career, all accomplished when a two-year-old, by an unbeaten sire, he in turn by Lexington, the wonder of the breeding world, then comes in the sire line Boston, Timoleon and Sir Archy, all the best performers of their day, and last of all imp. Diomed, in the right of descent he is truly a king. It is probable, however, that his get will not appear on the turf until 1894, as he covered no mares in his three-year-old form. The Santa Anita Stable of Mr. E. S. Baldwin will, however, come East this year with the following two-year-olds by Emperor of Norfolk, the first of the get of that mighty performer: Bay colt, dam Experiment; chestnut filly, dam Aritta; bay filly, dam Paola; chestnut colt, dam Savannah.

The only son of Marion yet to be represented on the turf by their get is the Duke of Norfolk, who is the sire of that very speedy and successful performer, Longshot, and Prince of Norfolk (sire of Prince's First, Stella and that good colt Lyceum). The remarkable success of Marion in the stud is a sticker to sticklers for long blood lines and a warning that science and usage do not always win in breeding, luck playing an important part. The individual animal has no little to do with his or her success and sometimes beats the better-bred one out of sight in final results. The trotting standard as it reads to-day bars Miss Russell, Ned, Green Mountain Maid and Minnehaha, from its ranks without their produce, still their fame has filled the trotting world, and like Marion in thoroughbred annals are those which will last for all time. The noted authority—the late Ben Bruce—came to the conclusion after years of experience that breeding by pedigree and performance could be gotten down to such a science that either a thoroughbred or trotting horse could make a mark within a required limit, but he held to the opinion that a sensational horse, like a great man, was liable to bob up from any source or any locality. The records bear out the opinion of this sage as is illustrated so strongly by the deeds in the paddock accomplished by Marion. It is true that breeding can be carried on more of a certainity where the quality makes it desirable for like to beget like, but there is no denying that great race horses and trotters show up from sources least expected to produce them.

The table below gives the record made on the turf by Marion's produce, the number of times they have faced the starter's flag, the races captured and the amount of money won in stakes and purses:

Year Foaled	Name.	Sts.	Times 1st	2d.	3d.	Unp.	Amount Won.
1886	Emperor of Norfolk	29	21	2	4	2	$73,730
1887	El Rio Rey	7	7	0	0	0	17,335

A New Trotting Race.

The managers of the trotting races to be given at Waverly on Decoration Day has been solicitated to give what is known in the New England States and the State of New York as a peg race. Several gentlemen visiting different county fairs in New York State last fall found a peg race was one of its principal features. It is a bona fide race, and exceedingly amusing as well as interesting. The race is made to wagons, and each driver has to hitch his horse to the wagon on the track and start. The wagons are brought in and backed over against the fence on the same side with the judges' stand, with the shafts pointing toward the center of the track.

The horses are taken to the other side of the track, each one directly opposite the vehicle to which he is to go. The harness is removed, all but the bridle, and hung upon the fence. The driver stands by the side of his horse, with his left hand holding the bridle and facing toward the stand. When the word go is given the horses must be harnessed to the wagons and driven a half-mile. The horse winning two heats gets the first money. There must be no mistake in harnessing and hitching the horse. No hooks are allowed. All the straps must be buckled, and, in fact, the horse hitched to the wagon just as he would be in ordinary road driving, or he is disqualified. If five entries can be procured at an entrance fee of $3 each a purse race will be given for a peg race at Waverly in connection with the other races on Decoration Day.—Newark Sunday Call.

Off for the Northwest.

The first string of trotters that ever left Southern California for a campaign in the states left Los Angeles on Decoration day. The string is from Wiseburn, and includes five game and aristocratically bred trotters. Ed. Connolly, the skillful young trainer and conditioner, goes in charge. The Wiseburn trotters are headed for Salt Lake, where they will take part in the meeting which begins in that city on June 11th. At the conclusion of the Salt Lake meeting the horses will be campaigned through the Montana circuit. The string is made up as follows:

Glendine, 2:20, by Judge Salisbury, dam Tempest, by Sultan.

Emin Bey, 4, by Guy Wilkes, dam Tempest, by Sultan.

Adelaide McGreger, 3, by Robert McGregor, dam Adelaide, by Milwaukee.

Bonny June, 3, by Simmons, dam by George Wilkes.

Adelaide Simmons, 2, by Simmons, dam Adelaide, by Milwaukee.

Glendine will compete in the 2:20 and free-for-all classes. His feet are all right this year, and he is as sound as a dollar. He is a race horse and can be relied upon to uphold the prestige of Southern California. Emin Bey will make his debut. He is bred on the same lines as Regal Wilkes and others of the best trotters raised by Corbitt at his San Mateo ranch.

Adelaide McGregor should develop into one of the sensational three-year-old fillies of the year. Her breeding is ultra fashionable, and last year as a two-year-old she could have trotted in 2:25. As it was she entered the 2:30 test in a race.

Bonny June is another slashing good filly, but not quite as speedy as Adelaide McGregor.

Adelaide Simmons gives every promise of turning out a fast two-year-old. Her dam is a producer, and Simmons stands high as a sire of early speed. Gossiper is by Simmons, and every horseman knows that Durfee's stallion is a little wonder. The Wiseburn string will get a big slice of the money hung up.—Los Angeles Herald.

The Bay District Track.

On the return of President H. I. Thornton, of the Blood Horse Association, from Fresno last Wednesday he was interviewed relative to his organization's plans, and said:

"Our association has secured the Bay District track and the whole of the outlying stables and buildings from the owners, not for any settled or definite time, but upon an agreement which can be terminated by a reasonable notice on either side. The rumors and the terms originally insisted upon by the owners have all melted away and assume the settled shape of the simplest of tenancies. The association will immediately set about putting the track into the best possible condition. The fences will all be heightened, strengthened and whitewashed. The grand stands, which are of solid material, will be put into thorough repair and all the seats and internal walls well painted.

"Those external portions with which people do not come into personal contact will be whitewashed, but every other portion will be painted. The stables will be made thoroughly neat and comfortable. We shall erect a covered place for the bookmakers and move them right away from the front of the stand. New entrances will be made, convenient for the passengers of both car lines. We are justified in going to this expenditure because, although our actual tenancy does not guarantee any specified term, we have received strong and satisfactory assurances that we shall not be disturbed for a long time. We shall hold forth special inducements to trainers to train their strings at the track all the year round, and when there is no regular racing we shall be disposed to entertain offers for all suitable outdoor entertainments to take place thereon." This is a move in the right direction, and the association must be congratulated on the success of their negotiations.

VETERINARY.

Conducted by Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., F. E. V. M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R. V. C., Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

F. L. D., Chico.—In regard to the colt, I consider him much better, but not entirely relieved, his belch is not so frequent and not so sour. I am very anxious about him. He has some nice engagements for this year, also for 93 and 94. He will be one year old the 2nd of next month. Answer—Get those powders renewed, and if one more set of them does not prove sufficient give him still another course of them. Then please let us know the result.

D. B., Guadalupe, Santa Barbara.—I have a two-year-old colt that has not got good use of his hind parts; he reels from one side to the other when walking, if he tries to turn around quick he will fall down, has been that way (we've months, has always run in pasture, is in good order, feels good, tries to run and play with other colts. I can find no soreness on his back, or legs. he has never shown signs of sickness except when sucking the mare, he had distemper very bad, broke on his throat and even on his shoulder; he got over that in a little while and was all right till a year old. Now if you can tell me what is the matter and what to do for him you will greatly oblige. Answer. I do not think that those symptoms are the results of distemper, but rather point to injury to the spine. Treatment is not likely to prove very successful but you may try the following: Potassium iodide, two ounces; powdered nux vomica, half an ounce; mix and divide into twenty four powders. Give one of these powders morning and evening in a mash. Rub a little soap liniment well into the back along the lumbar vertebra, along the backbone over the kidneys daily, and communicate with us as to the result, in two weeks. Do not let him run or jump any if possible to prevent it, but he may have some walking exercise daily.

D. L., Bakersfield.—Will you please tell me through your veterinary columns what to do for warts on a yearling's nose. Answer—If they be narrow at the base, tie a horse hair from the tail, or a silk thread, around each wart, tightening it a little each day until it drops off. Or some nitrate of silver applied daily, each time removing the dry outside surface of the wart before applying it, will soon make them disappear if they be small.

It is of pecuniary interest to every horseman to aid in the introduction of Judge Buckingham's new book, "Turk 2," the Horseman's Hand-Book, for the reason that it educates the masses in all that pertains to the race course and speed trials, teaches them the technical terms of the turf, and how to mark and read a score card correctly, and must thus increase the attendance and interest in races. THE DAM OF DEXTER.

Jonathan Hawkins, Her Breeder, Talks About the Famous Mare and Her Family.

The present breeding era in the trotting world has been often called of late, and not inaptly, that of the brood mare. While the maternal line has long been considered of perhaps the first importance in thoroughbred pedigrees, it is only in the last decade that a family of producing dams has come to be regarded as a positive necessity in the pedigree of a trotting stallion, and nowadays the best credentials that a young and untried horse can be possessed of are a dam and grandam which occupy prominent places in the list of great broodmares in the Year Book. The blood that breeds on in the maternal line from one generation to another, until it becomes recognized as a positive element by itself, is rightly gauged as of the utmost worth, and the great broodmare table is one of perhaps more interest and value than scarce any other. As time lapses and the breeding interest increases and centralizes, it is, as must naturally be the case, becoming largely increased in numbers; but to whatever proportions it may attain there are a select few of its members, the names of which grow brighter as the years come and go, as the mothers of great families—as mares which it is counted a distinction and a merit uncommon to trace to, however remotely. And of these few essentially great stud-mothers the name of none stands out in bolder relief than that of American Star's daughter Clara, the dam of Dexter and Dictator, respectively among the superlatively great of the trotting turf and stud, for so long as the history of the American trotter may endure will the name of Dexter remain synonymous with all that is great as a race horse, while that of Dictator will stand as representing a sire pre-eminent among a family of wonderful ones. Jonathan Hawkins, of New York, who, in conjunction with his father Jonas, bred and owned the famous mare during her entire career, was lately in Chicago, and during the course of a call upon the Review talked very entertaining concerning her and her family.

Speaking of the McKinstry mare, her dam, Mr. Hawkins said: "She was a very handsome mare, a brown, about 15.3 hands, with four white feet, and weighing say 1,050 or 1,100 pounds, of very fine disposition and a great deal of intelligence. She was a trotter—not very fast, for in her day there was no fast trotting—and was not considered anything out of the ordinary. Her breeding was unknown and could never be traced. She produced six foals, of which Clara, by American Star (the best trotting stallion of his day in our locality), was the first, and the fifth Shark, by Hambletonian. He was quite a trotter and took a record of 2:30¼ in harness and 2:27¾ under the saddle. All her foals were distinguished by their markings. Clara had three white feet; her second foal, by a son of Long Island Black Hawk, was a chestnut with three white feet; the third had a blazed face, white eyes and four white feet; the fourth, by Cassius M. Clay, had a blaze and four white feet; Shark had four white feet, as had her sixth and last foal, by Magnolia, son of American Star, while it also had a blazed face and a white spot on the belly.

"Clara was, as I have said, the first foal of her dam, and was bred by my father. She was a black, about 15.1 hands, and a natural trotter. My brother drove her a mile over the Stony Ford track to skeleton wagon in 2:53, and although never trainer, she could trot almost as fast as Shark. She was very trappy-gaited, but had a bold, determined action, and was a whirlwind in a brush—there was nothing in our locality that could speed with her. She was of the most perfect disposition imaginable, very intelligent and had a great deal of resolution. She was foaled in 1848, and Dexter, her first foal, May 5, 1858.

"Dexter was bred by my father and myself, and was by Hambletonian. For awhile there was a story that he was by Harry Clay, and we used to get letters by the score about it, but there was not a particle of truth in it—not the least in the world; it was owing, I presume, to his markings. The first I ever heard about it was the time that Dexter trotter his time race under saddle, ridden by John Murphy. George B. Alley came to me after the race. 'Why,' he says, 'John, they say Dexter is a Clay.' I said: 'He is a good enough one if he is.' The following winter there was a story circulated around the country by one Doty that Clara had been bred to Harry Clay. He (Doty) was interested in the Clays, but he never made an affidavit to it, but allowed his name to be used in some way or another by some parties interested. He never gave any reasons at all. There were no reasons given; it was simply circulated because Dexter was marked so similarly to the Clays. There were lots of people who were willing to believe it, and, of course, it made lots of trouble.

"There could have been no possible opportunity for Clara to have been bred to Harry Clay. She was never in anyone's possession but ours, and we never bred anything to Harry Clay. The season before Dexter was foaled she was bred twice to Hambletonian; my father took her to the horse once and I, myself, the second time.

"Dexter was foaled on the old homestead and we kept him until he was four years old, when we sold him to George B. Alley for $400—a large price for those days. The circumstances of the sale were as follows: In the spring of 1862 James Jack bought Shark of us, he being then able to trot in 2:40 without any training, and at the time saw Dexter, and believing (as he was by Hambletonian, out of a half-sister to Shark) that he would be fast, he brought Mr. Alley up to see him. Dexter was, even then, a phenomenal trotter; in the field with a lot of horses he could always be seen in the lead. However, he had never been harnessed but five times, and that in double harness, and he was still as wild as a hawk. Well, he could not show any gait in harness, so I turned him out in the road, where he showed to good advantage. Mr. Alley told me afterward that he had never seen a horse trot as fast in harness as Dexter did in the road that day. He wanted to know if I could hitch him up and I said yes. They were on their way to Goshen and Mr. Alley rode with me. When he got out of the wagon he said he would give me $350 for the colt. I had asked him $500. I thought to myself if I could not get more I would take $400 for him. The next day Col. Felter came back and brought a check for $400 for the colt and I delivered him at his place in Orange county.

"Another story concerning Dexter which once was current—that his identity had been partially lost and that he was found working in a dump cart—is also devoid of all truth, as he was never for a moment lost sight of. Mr. Alley sent him over to Flushing, to John Mingo, who was considered one of the best colt-handlers of that day to be broken. He found he had his hands full, for Dexter was a pretty tough colt to break. I had previously driven him five or six times, but no one else had their hands on him, and when he found himself among strangers he didn't remember that he had ever been broken. As a five-year-old he was sent to Hiram Woodruff who pronounced him a trotter. He soon after gave him a trial in 2:40 and latter drove him a mile in 2:31¼. I have an idea that he showed as good as 2:30 that season. There was never the least possible chance for the loss of identity nor the interruption of his speed development, as from this time on his history is well known to all horsemen.

"The winter that he was five years old Mr. Alley came up to the farm to buy his sister, Lady Dexter (since the dam of the great young California sire, Dexter Prince). I knew nothing about what Dexter was doing at this time, and I said to Mr. Alley: "My opinion is that if nothing has happened him and he gets properly developed, he will trot as fast as any horse has ever trotted.' He would not believe, however, that any horse could ever beat Flora Temple, 2:19¾. But he bought the sister and gave me $500 for her. She was a bay with four white feet, a very speedy natural trotter, and would have been fast if trained.

"Dictator I bred personally. He is a very dark brown, and unlike most of the family, has no white markings save the off hind pastern. As a colt he was a phenomenal trotter, and in the lot could never be scared from a trot when beside his dam. I think that he had as much natural speed as Dexter. When he was eleven months old I sold him to Harrison Durkee, who left him on the farm until he was two years and a half old. He was then sent to Alden Goldsmith at Washingtonville, who broke him, and from there he went to Mr. Durkee's farm at Flushing. I am not positive, but believe that he trotted a mile for him better than 2:30."

Mr. Hawkins also related some interesting reminiscences concerning Harry Clay and Hambletonian. The first named he described as a strong, powerful black horse 15.3 hands high, with white face and four white feet, from which markings may be attributed the story concerning the paternity of Dexter.

"Hambletonian," said Mr. Hawkins, "I knew from the time he was a four-year-old until his death, there never being a year during that period in which I did not see him a dozen or more times, and I remember him well. He has been called a coarse horse, but he was not, aside from his head, which might be considered so, as his nose was a little on the Roman order, but not markedly so, while his ear was also rather large. But his legs were very clean and showed quality. Schreiber's photograph of him is a very good likeness. In temperament he was possessed of a will of his own, but was not vicious, and there was nothing heavy or sluggish about him. He was a bold, fearless actor, with good knee and hock action. He was neither very long-gaited nor especially trappy, but about medium. Concerning his speed, all that I know is that the report was that he had trotted in a race on Long Island in 2:34. I never saw him speeded, but recollect seeing him driven at the Orange County Fair by Mr. Rysdyk when he was an old horse—I think he was twenty at the time.

"My father took the McKinsry mare to Hambletonian at the time Shark was bred; when he returned he told me that Hambletonian was the finest four-year-old horse he had ever seen, and although he had to pay $25 for the service fee, which was five dollars more than he had ever paid before, yet having seen the horse he could not go away without using him. The result of the union was Shark. When Dexter was bred we reasoned that if we could get a horse of Shark's speed and individuality from Hambletonian and a mare of unknown breeding, herself not only so fine a mare as her daughter Clara, that if we bred the latter to him we would get a world-beater. Dexter was not an accident—we bred him with the expectation of getting a good one, and he surpassed our expectations."

Morgans, Morrills and Lamberts.

The evidence shows that the breed of horses called Morrills trace on their sire's side to the original Morgan horse, the "Justin Morgan." Yet so many crosses of other blood have they inherited that it has obliterated or blotted out, as it were all trace of the Morgan blood, as the Morrills are in all their characteristics an entirely different breed of horses from the Morgans, as much as are the Hambletonians and Clays. The genuine Morgans in all their characteristics show their Arabian origin. First in their size, averaging 14½ hands, and weighing about 950 pounds. They have the fine, handsome forms and heads of the Arabian, their dishing faces and their great bone and substance, with their intelligent and affectionate natures, life, spirits and endurance. The short bodies of the Morgans give them a short stride and a step not fast for a mile, yet will their short, easy gait carry them a greater distance in a day, or several of them, than can the long, striding gaits of the fast ones carry them. The color of the Morgans, is mostly bays or chestnuts. The color black Mr. Linsley states is rarely found, except in the Black Hawk family, and they often have a star and one or two white feet. They have short, thick ears, showing a great constitution, and they have very full manes and tails, the hair in the tail not as long as in the Messengers, Clays and Morrills. The Morgans have one very desirable quality that all horses should possess—they are easily caught in the pasture. If you don't go to them they will come to you. They seem to have a curiosity to know who you are or what you have. Old Morrill, the founder of the family that takes his name, was a black horse 16 hands high, and weighed at times over 1,300 pounds. He had a Roman nose (no Arabian or genuine Morgan horse ever had a Roman nose), a long ear, a very heavy crest, which some of his descendants inherited (the Hutchinson Morrill), a very light mane and a rat tail, though the hair in it was long. Old Morrill was awkward in his movements and inclined to stumble. His length of body gave him length of stride, so he could trot in about 2:50, which was considered quite fast in his day, and where he was, yet his gait was not an easy one; this with his cold blood made him a very unreliable horse in a race. The characteristics af Old Morrill his descendants have largely inherited. Many have improved as to the amount of hair in their manes and tails and as to speed. They are kind horses in the harness, but they don't have the affectionate nature of the Morgans, as they don't want to be handled or made much of, and are not very easily caught in the pasture. Many of the Clay horses have something of an affectionate nature, which indicates they may have inherited a Morgan cross, and it may have come from Lady Surry, the dam of Henry Clay, the founder of the Clay family of horses. She was at first called a pacing mare from Canada. It was first said Henry Clay's dam was the Canadian pacing mare Lady Surry. It has been learned that she was bred and raised in the town of Surry, N. H., hence the name, and it is believed her sire was a Morgan horse, and it is from this Morgan horse that the Clays inherit their affectionate nature, says Allen W. Thompson in an exchange.

Daniel Lambert traces on his sire's side to the Justin Morgan, and is therefore called a Morgan, as are his descendants. They show the Morgan in their looks, style, action, and yet Lambert and many of his descendants lacked or lack the bone and substance of the Morgans, and they have a much larger stride, which give them great speed by far over the genuine Morgans. This they inherited in part from Flying Morgan's dam. She was by Bishop's Hambletonian, son of Messenger, and Ethan inherited her color, marks, shape and speed, through his sire, Flying Morgan. The Lamberts inherited their speed in part from Ethan's dam; she was a fast, long-striding gray mare; and in part, too, from Daniel Lambert's dam, Fanny Cook, by old Abdallah. Many of the Lamberts incline to kick, or it is said of them they are light behind. This comes from Abdallah through his daughter Fanny Cook, as the Morgans proper show no such disposition.

In 1868 the Vermont State Fair was held at Burlington. The first premium for the best stock horse was $100. This and the honor of having it made it very desirable. The contest lay between the Morgan horse Daniel Lambert, kept at Shoreham, in charge of Mr. Harris, and the Morrill or Morgan horse Woodstock, owned and kept by Frederick Billings of Woodstock. Woodstock at this time had a record of 2:40, made in a race that he won, and he had shown a trial at the Windsor County Fair at Woodstock in 2:33, a half in 1:14. He was a coal black without a white hair, mane light, but a very full tail, 15¼ hands high, and weighed over 1,100 pounds. He was a compact, well-made horse, showing nothing of the coarseness of some of the Morrills. He would be called a noble-looking horse, and a stranger to him would not think or expect so compact and blocky a horse could have the great speed that he did. He was well represented by his sons and daughters, and they had good size, color, and all could beat three minutes. A stranger to the horses, and a judge of horses, would have said on seeing Lambert and his stock, and Woodstock and his stock, that Woodstock was the better horse, he having so much better size, bone and substance, and being so with his stock. There can be no doubt but that Woodstock could have beaten Lambert at this time in a race. Woodstock's driver now claims that he did beat Lambert in two trials, mile heats, but as no one else remembers it—all say that they did not trot the trials—it must have been that he had it in his mind so strong that he could beat Lambert that after awhile he began to think, believe and tell that he did. One of the judges was Mr. Harris. This was very unfair. Another was a Universalist minister that admitted that his mind was made up beforehand in favor of Lambert, and they gave Lambert the first and Woodstock the second. Time has proved that Lambert was by far the most prepotent horse as to transmitting speed, and that the award of the judges was right, but many could not see it so at the time.

Working Horses for Speed.

HART, Mich., April 26, 1892.—J. W. MERCER, Independence, Iowa: I have a five-year-old mare that, as a three-year-old, with three weeks' imperfect handling, showed me a full mile in 2:50½. I am about to start her again. What rate of speed ought she to show for an eight before increasing the distance, and how shall I proceed with her? C. K. W.

A three-year-old that has shown 2:50½ with three weeks' indifferent handling is quite a promising individual. The object now is to develop speed without danger of injury, the details of which must be governed very largely by the individual. As a general method the following is proper: On bringing your mare onto the track, jog her around the track the right way, brushing her up to about two-thirds speed the last thirty or forty rods, carrying her well past the wire. Pull her up, turn around, walk her back the reverse way of the track about an eighth of a mile, then start her up and jog back to the quarter pole. Now turn around, start upon a slow jog, gradually increasing her speed till the eighth pole is reached, from which carry her along at a good clip on past the wire as before. Now look at your timer and note the time for the eighth while your mare is walking back. Repeat this several times, observing that each time aggregates about three-quarters of a mile. That four times, as described, makes about three miles; with the turn around the track on coming out, if a mile track, will make four miles, which is quite enough for a comparatively green horse if she can speed as I suppose she can by the statement in your letter regarding her work in her three-year-old form. When she can make the eighth in 19 or 20 seconds, increase the distance gradually to a quarter, starting your timer at the quarter pole and splitting on the eighth. This method subserves a two-fold purpose—develops speed and teaches her to come to the wire at her best clip, a very important quality in a race horse. After working in this manner for thirty or forty days, according to circumstances, condition of your mare and speed attained, which should be an eighth in 17½ or 18½ seconds (and it is useless to expect her to go a fast mile until she can go an eighth as indicated), the distance may be gradually increased until she is given the quarter at nearly her best clip, saving her best effort for the finish; that is, by going back three-eighths or more before turning.

She should now be worked on the basis of the quarter and eighth until she acquires a rate of speed several seconds faster than that at which she is expected to carry the mile up. For example: If you want her to trot a mile in 2:40, she should be able to show a quarter in from 38½ to 38½ seconds, which gives her a margin of 7 to 6 seconds to go on. If you expect her to trot a mile in 2:30, she should be able to show a quarter in from 35 to 35½ seconds, which allows her a margin of from 10 to 9 seconds to the mile.

These are to be construed as general directions to be varied in accordance with a variety of conditions that may exist or arise. J. W. MERCER, in Clark's Horse Review.

INDEPENDENCE, Iowa, May 2, 1892.

IT OFTEN happens that a half-starved colt becomes a great and useful horse. It is not because he went through the starvation process, however, but became so in spite of it. Many a puny child becomes a strong man, but no credit is due the parents who deprive the child of proper nourishment. "But we cannot afford to feed so high," says the farmer. Then you cannot afford to raise colts at all. Better raise a few good ones and give them good care and sell them for good prices than to fill your barn with pot-bellied little scrubs.

A Famous Race.

Talk about modern horse races! Well, they are "not in it" with one that took place as far back as 1823. With the reader's indulgence I will give some particulars concerning it:

For some time previous to the interesting historical event about to be described Eclipse had been considered, especially among Northern sporting men, as the best horse of his class in the United States. Eclipse was bred by Nathaniel Coles, of Long Island, and came of celebrated stock. His English namesake was the sire of 162 capital racers. Long Island Eclipse was a beautiful light chestnut with an off white hind foot, a peculiar star-shaped mark on his forehead, and stood about 15½ hands high.

While attending the match race late in the autumn of 1822, at Washington, between Eclipse and Sir Charles, certain New York gentlemen, including Cornelius Van Ranst, the owner of Eclipse, offered to run the latter the succeeding spring on the Long Island course for $20,000 a side, against any horse in the United States or elsewhere, and gave the Southern gentlemen challenged from that time to the time of starting to select their horse. Moreover, the Southern turfmen, who would not acknowledge that a better horse than Eclipse could not be found, were accorded the option of not naming their horse until the day of the race. This challenge was accepted, $3000 being agreed upon as the forfeit to be paid in case of withdrawal.

The proposed race at once became the talk of all the sporting clubs in the country. Never before in American annals, if since, was such a general interest awakened in an equine contest, and the fact that the Southerners were not to name their competing horse until the day of the race served to pique the curiosity of those who otherwise would have paid little attention to it. Elaborate as had been the preparations among the hotel-keepers and others to accommodate expected guests, they proved wholly inadequate. A fortnight before the races occurred, which were announced for May 26th, 27th and 28, 1823, visitors by the hundreds began to pour into the city. They came in stage-coaches and by water, and in all sorts of private conveyances, for there were no railroads then; and they came from nearly every State in the Union. Many days were consumed in the journey to New York by those residing in remote points. The newspapers of the time predicted that in the great match-race there would be "the greatest show of blood, bottom and speed ever witnessed in the country." Some of the early arrivals voiced their fear that by some trick or accident the race would not come off. But in its issue of May 21st one metropolitan paper published this intimation: "Strong doubts have been entertained all along until within a few days whether the great match between Eclipse and 'any horse that could be produced on a given day' would take place, or whether the forfeit money ($3,000) would be abandoned, and there the business would end."

In the meantime several celebrated Southern horses, including Henry, Childers and Betsy Richards, with their owners and backers, passed through New York en route to the Union race-course near Jamaica, Long Island, where the races were to occur, and their appearance in such "good season" set public expectation all agog. William Niblo, the Delmonico of his time and the builder of Niblo's Garden, had charge of the large restaurant near the Union race-track. The Evening Post of May 24, made this quaint announcement: "Immediately after the termination of the match race between Eclipse and his antagonist on Tuesday next W. N. (William Niblo) will dispatch a rider on a fleet horse with the result, which will be made known by displaying a white flag from the top of the Bank Coffee House if Eclipse should be victorious. If his opponent should win the race then a red flag will be raised to denote the fact. By this arrangement the result will be known in the city about forty minutes after the race is run. Should the race not take place the United States flag will be displayed to indicate that result."

On May 26th the races on the Long Island course commenced with a sweepstakes for three-year-olds, carrying 90 pounds, mile heats. On May 27th the day opened fair and almost cloudless and remained pleasant. The great concourse of spectators began to assemble as early as 8 o'clock. Fifty thousand, some records put it 60,000, people were surrounding the track before noon. On the preceding Saturday the stakes had been deposited, $20,000 by the Southern gentlemen in the Branch Bank, and the same amount by the New Yorkers in the North River Bank. As either party was entitled to an election to withdraw the stakes on paying the other a forfeit of $3,000, many people considered it by no means settled that the race would certainly be run, especially after the rumor became current that a dispute existed respecting both weight and age. At that period, by the rules of the Jockey Club, the weights carried on the Northern courses were considerably greater than on the Southern. But all doubts were set at rest by the assurance, officially made, that Henry was to run against Eclipse. Tremendous cheers greeted the announcement. After the race it somehow leaked out that the Southerners had intended to run Betsy Richards, but the latter was discovered to be somewhat lame on the morning of the race, and consequently Henry, bred and owned by William R. Johnson, of Petersburg, Va., was substituted. At that time Henry was four years old and Eclipse was nine. Immediately after the announcement that Henry was to run a large amount of Southern money in private bets were placed on him, while the sporting men of the North are said to have backed Eclipse to the extent of $250,000. A reputable authority has estimated that over $300,000 changed hands over the result of the race.

At 1 o'clock Henry and Eclipse were led on the track, and a vociferous sally of cheers from the assembled thousands greeted their appearance. Ten minutes later both horses set off in magnificent style at the tap of the drum. Henry, ridden by a lad named Curtis, taking the lead, held it throughout the first heat, coming in half a length ahead. The time of running the first heat was 7:40. Bets were offered 3 to 1 against Eclipse after the first heat. In the interval a famous rider by the name of Purdy succeeded the jockey, William Crafts, who had ridden Eclipse, although it was close running, in 7:49. The third heat was also won by Eclipse in 8:24. The total time of performing the twelve miles was twenty-three minutes and fifty seconds, averaging a fraction over a mile to every two minutes for the whole time. For the same distance this record excelled all previous ones at that date.

The judges were General Ridgeley, of Baltimore, who acted as umpire; Colonel Allen, of Philadelphia, and Captain Cox, of Washington. At the finish victorious Eclipse was led off the field, followed by an immense cavalcade of gentlemen on horseback, to the popular air of "See the Conquering Hero Comes." In the lofty words of a New York journal: "Thus ended the greatest race that was ever run in this country, and the result has shown that the challenge may again be fearlessly repeated—Long Island Eclipse against the world."

The Association for the Encouragement of the Breed of Fine Horses and their invited guests soon after the great match-race dined in their pavilion, so-called, in front of the race-course. It was in all respects a lavish, highly enjoyable and thoroughly appreciated banquet and as well "a feast of reason and flow of soul," at the post-prandial observances demonstrated. The following were the toasts responded to upon than festive occasion:

By the President of the association, Judge Van Ness—Eclipse, still the best courser of the day.

R. Emmet—Henry, the best four-year-old horse in the country.

General Barnum—Our opponents of the South; gentlemen in prosperity and adversity.

John Stevens—The better health of William R. Johnson, the trainer of a four-year-old to run a four-mile heat in 7:40.

Mr. Field—The spirit and emulation and liberality and management of our rivals of the North.

Mr. Kuhn—The New York Association.

Commodore Rogers—Eclipse and his dam; neither improvable by foreign crosses.

A. Hosack—Southern pluck and Northern bottom.

Mr. Wycke, of Virginia—The State of New York, unrivaled in her population and in her enterprise for internal improvement; so far victorious on the course.

General Coles—Since we good friends have met here, let us drink success to the turf, the only means of promoting the breed of fine horses.

I. S. Hone—Present perfection and future promise.

> Let others praise the rising sun;
> We worship that whose course is run.

Mr. Van Ranst—The turf; may it continue to have its zealous votaries.

Mr. Purdy—Eclipse, too fast for the speedy and too strong for the stout.

Volunteer—The State of Virginia; ambitious of being distinguished in all things useful to our common country.

Captain Ridgeley—The conqueror and the conquered; neither need praise.

P. R. Livingston—The ladies who have honored the day, their offspring, the defenders of the soil, the protectors of the turf.

S. Price—The President, Judge Van Ness; while our institution is supported by the judiciary it cannot fail of success.

The ladies dined in a separate part of the pavilion, and, as one account has it, "retired at an early hour." It is also said that many women, in default of better accommodations, slept that night on the race-course.

As to weights, Eclipse carried 126 pounds; Henry, 103. Although losers to a large amount, the Southern turfmen, headed by Colonel Johnson, the owner of Henry, before leaving the track challenged Cornelius Van Ranst and J. C. Stevens to match them in a race for $50,000 a side or $100,000 stakes, to be run on the Washington course the succeeding autumn. Mr. Van Ranst had already resolved that if Eclipse won he would never allow him to run again, but would keep him solely for the purpose of benefiting the country with his stock. And so the Southerner's challenge was declined—not from any want of confidence in the superiority of Eclipse, but from a sense that his well-earned reputation should not be exposed to even the hazard of diminution or accident—and still another reason for the declination was expressed thus: "Never, for any consideration, to risk the life or reputation of the noble horse whose generous and almost incredible exertions have gained for the North so signal a victory and for himself such never-fading renown."

After the race the greatest excitement prevailed. Naturally there was more rejoicing than wailing, for the majority of the spectators had hoped to see Eclipse win the day. In every conceivable kind of vehicle, and in some that were merely apologies for vehicles, the great throng returned to New York, which was simply overflowing with humanity. Some of the "men folks" made a night of it on hot toddy and apple-jack, and others sat up late to discuss the great event of the day and its collateral incidents.

On the third and last day of the races two heats were run between Betsy Richards and Cock of the Rock, the former horse, which subsequently made a better record, winning. The Southern turfmen won all three of the purse races, amounting to $1,900, but this was a poor compensation to their zeal when they considered the defeat of Henry. Since that time, however, the South has fully redeemed herself in the line of fast-going horses and unsurpassed thoroughbreds. The coming horse that shall beat all records for speed, once for all, in my opinion will be a product of the West or of the New South.—Leon Mead in The Horseman.

Virginia and the Trotting Horse of America.

Among domestic animals the only two essentially American and republican products are the trotting horse and the Poland China (or McGee) hog.

These products of American thought and breeding are both pre-eminent in their utility over all other families or types of the natural order to which they respectively belong.

Both are composite animals, made up by the thoughtful and judicious combination of already established breeds found to possess some of the qualities, or physical characteristics, desired in the new creation of the breeders' art, and the type established and made a distinct and "self-reproducing" breed by the interbreeding with each other of the successful results of the experimental combinations.

As a result of the expenditure of money, time and thought—hard to estimate—the "Trotting-Horse Breeders of America," an army of men possessed of as much "grey brain matter" as any equal number of men engaged in a single pursuit in our broad land, have evolved the fast trotting horse of America—an animal hitherto unapproached in any country of the globe, and for which every land must look to America.

That Virginia, the pioneer in the introduction of the thoroughbred (the first and highest type of horse introduced to America from the mother country) and foremost in the production of racers up to the date of the war between the States, should be the last, or among the very last, to recognize the superlative usefulness, quality and money value of the American horse, shows her deplorably unprogressive, not to say un-American.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, who has "touched," in his writings, almost every subject in the field of literature, and of whom it may be said, as of Goldsmith, "he has touched nothing that he has not adorned," in commenting (in the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, written, I think, about 1857) upon our loss of the Goodwood Cup, for which America had an entry: "Horse-racing is not a republican institution; horse-trotting is. Only very rich persons can keep race horses, and everybody knows they are kept merely as gambling implements." * * * "The racer is incidently useful, but essentially something to be bet upon, as much as the thimble-rigger's 'little joker.' The trotter is essentially and daily useful, and only incidentally a tool for sporting men. What better reason do you want for the fact that the racer is most cultivated and reaches his greatest perfection in England, and that the trotting horses of America beat the world?"

Kentucky, "Virginia's lovely daughter," inheriting from her mother her love for the horse and for out-door sports, followed in her footsteps, and at the close of the war led all the States in the number and quality of her thoroughbred racers.

Up to this point Kentuckians had not shaken off a sort of hereditary contempt for any equine less patrician in his ancestry than the English thoroughbred; but here the new blood, and capacity to take hold of new ideas, and to keep pace with the march of progress, asserted itself in Kentucky. She recognized the fact that the republican institution, the trotter, held the key to the situation. She imported the most deeply trotting-bred stallions, and when she had not highly-bred trotting brood mares she bred her thoroughbreds to these trotting stallions, using her pacing blood as a mordant to hold this running and trotting blood together. She imported from every other section of the United States both mares and additional trotting-bred stallions, until she placed herself in the forefront of progressive trotting-horse breeding-States, adding to her wealth untold millions and making Lexington the Mecca of horsemen.

One of the best-informed horsemen in Kentucky, a breeder of both thoroughbreds and trotting horses, some two years ago expressed the opinion that there were one hundred dollars invested in that State in trotters to one dollar in runners—thoroughbreds.

In speaking of what Kentucky got from Virginia of love for the horse, do I use the word inherited in its legitimate sense? I hope not. Nemo haeres est virentis. And I hope this loved old Commonwealth is not dead; but she is taking an unaccountably long nap!

She has not awaked to the fact that other States are accumulating millions from an industry for which she is better adapted by nature than they; and while she is asleep and growing nothing but the "moss" on the "backs" of her somnolent citizens, who rouse only long enough to "cuss the Yankees for stealin' their niggers," and straightway turn over and go to sleep again, other more progressive States, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico, are adding to the wealth and fame of their country by breeding a truly American horse, individuals of which breed have sold for $75,000, $105,000, $125,000, etc., beside still larger sums refused for animals held above price, and of which three hundred and thirty-seven of all ages, sexes and conditions of soundness and unsoundness, consigned to a single sale from all sections of the country, and with no guarantee, recently realized an average between $1,200 and $1,300, and that the most fashionable trotting-bred stallions serve at figures ranging from $500 to $2,500—the books of such horses as Nutwood, $1,000; Axtell, $1,000; Allerton, $1,000, and many others filling so far in advance of their seasons as to elicit offers of $300 and $400 bonus to parties having mares booked to them rather than wait to another year; and the intensely trotting bred three-year-old Arion (with a record of 2:10¾ as a two-year-old) commanding, at $2,500, the pick of the mares of the country, Mr. C. W. Williams booking ten mares to him at that figure!

Yet Virginia prefers to breed street-car horses, worth $75 to $100 at maturity, and that ten years after electricity has wiped out the market for that class of horses by taking their job! and may God save the Commonwealth!!

Some enterprising Virginians have purchased and brought into the State horses of the most approved trotting lineage. A few men, mainly those who have happened to go outside of Virginia, and have heard of "this new-fangled kind of a horse," that, they say, "trots fast and don't run," breed to them; but most of the old Virginians, particularly of the portion of the State east of the Blue Ridge Mountains, say: "Why, I can breed any mare to a thoroughbred cheaper than to your horse, and you say your hoss ain't thoroughbred."

To most of them the existence of the animal, whose production is, in money value, "the greatest single interest in America," "not excepting the railroads, the mineral, or any other single interest" (I quote from the speech of a railroad magnate at a breeders' meeting in Chicago) is unknown.

If you speak to an old Virginian horseman about Maud S., 2:08¾, he will say: "Yes, her grandam by old Boston—traces right back to old Diomed—the horse that won the first English Derby." Being a polite man and Virginia-bred yourself you can't ask him if he won it in a trot! or having had her speed otherwise accounted for by a man older than yourself, you don't like even to suggest that her sire was intensely trotting bred.

You mention Palo Alto, 2:08¾, and are met by: "His dam by Planet, owned by Colonel Boswell, of 'Bulfield.' She traces right back to imp. Trustee"—ignoring the Hambletonian, double Clay and double Bellfounder in the sire.

But when you come to speak of Arion, 2:10¾ at two years; of Allerton, 2:09¼; of Nancy Hanks, 2:09; of Axtell, 2:12 at three years, they never heard of them. "Ain't any of 'em thoroughbred, are they?" "I read the Free Lance and the Dispatch, and I sometimes see Colonel Bruce's paper, but I never saw anything from a Virginia writer in any of them about any good horses that were not pretty near thoroughbred."

Virginia had Diomed and the mightiest racers of his line through Sir Archy and his descendants. Revenue, the great son of imp. Trustee, gave us a Planet, an Orion, an Exchequer and an Engineer, besides many lesser lights; and Virginians of the old school imagined, and still imagine, that by a combination of such blood elements they could breed the highest type of trotter and the acme of trotting speed. Yet to this day there has not been a 2:30 trotter produced by any combination of this blood unaided by recognized trotting or pacing crosses.—Foxhall A. Daingerfield in Southern Planter.

ATHLETICS.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

FIXTURES FOR THE FUTURE.

June 18th.—Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, annual all-event gymnastic tournament, at the Olympic Club grounds.

July 4th.—Scottish Thistle Club, annual games, at Shell Mound Park, Berkeley, Cal.

July 4th.—California Division League of American Wheelmen, annual race-meet, under the auspices of the Bay City Wheelm n and Capital City Wheelmen, at Sacramento, Cal.

SUMMARY.

During the past week several of our Pacific Coast amateur athletes and wheelmen have proven themselves to be truly wonderful performers, both on the path and in the field. On Decoration Day several of the athletic as well as bicycle records were smashed all to pieces and in the future our Eastern brethren will have their hands full in keeping ahead of California and Oregon. The young student athletes from Berkeley are now at liberty to waft their war cry on the breeze, for after struggling for years without avail they succeeded at last in proving themselves to be the boss athletes of the Pacific Coast. A summary of the different sporting events that were decided during the past week or so will be found below.

ATHLETIC SPORTS IN GENERAL.

The twenty-sixth annual field-day of the Caledonian Club was successfully held at Shell Mound Park, Berkeley, Cal., on Saturday last. The following is a summary of the most important events, with a list of the winners and the prizes they received:

Putting heavy stone—First prize, $10; second, $7; third, $5. First, D. R. Campbell, 35:10½; second, Thomas Carroll, 34:8; third, J. H. Cunningham, 33:8.

Putting light stone—First prize, $7; second, $5; third, $3. First, D. R. Campbell, 44:8; second, Thomas Carroll, 43; third, James Cunningham, 42:7.

Race for men (twice around the track)—First prize, $7; second, $5; third, $3. First, James Smith; second, William Finnie; third, L. MacCormick.

Throwing heavy hammer—First prize, $10; second, $7; third, $5. First, W. A. Anderson, 95 feet 11 inches; second, Thomas Carroll, 90 feet 11 inches; third, William Morgan, 84 feet 6 inches.

Throwing light hammer (for competitors whose record is 90 feet and over)--First prize, $7; second, $5; third, $3. First, W. A. Anderson, 109 feet 10 inches; second, W. R. McLean, 104 feet 4 inches; third, Thomas Carroll, 101 feet 3 inches.

Handicap race for men, fifty yards and over (once around the track)—First prize, gold medal donated by Philo Jacoby; second, $7; third, $5. First, Angus McDonald; second, John D. Ross; third, John M. Duncan.

Vaulting with pole—First prize, $7; second, $5; third, $3. First, W. Finnie and Bert Abner, tie; second, James Sexmith.

Race for members of the Caledonian Club of San Francisco (five times around the track). First, Frank Turrell; second, James Sexmith; third, J. McKinnon.

The young students of the Leland Stanford Jr. University, held their initial out-door athletic meeting at their athletic grounds, at Palo Alto last Saturday afternoon and many very creditable records were made during the progress of the games. H. R. Timn, who won the mile walk in 7 minutes and 33 and one-quarter seconds, would certainly have won second place in that event at the championship games providing his gait is square. The winners of the shot event and running broad jump would also have taken championship medals. The results of the games were as follows:

Maiden 100 yards dash—Won by C. C. Adams, '95 in 10¼ seconds, C. A. Fernald, '95 second.

Mile walk—R. H. Trimm, '93, first, in 7:33¼. G. F. Bancroft, second.

One hundred and twenty yards hurdle race--Won by A. H. Barnhisel, 5 minutes 13 4-5 seconds, W. D. Elsmore second.

One hundred yard dash—Won by C. C. Adams, 10½ seconds, C. A. Fernald second.

Four hundred and forty yards run—Won by R. Maynard in 55 seconds, A. E. Dickey second.

Two hundred and twenty yards hurdle race—Won by J. R. Whittemore in 29¼ seconds, A. Lewis Jr. second.

Half-mile run--Won by H. R. Trimm in 2 minutes 16½ seconds, E. S. Pillsbury second.

Two hundred and twenty yards' run—Won by G. Calhoun in 23 4-5 seconds, W. E. Stewart second.

One mile relay race, four men in each class, between '93 and '95—Won by class of '93 in 3 minutes 55½ seconds.

Running high jump—S. Calhoun, 5 feet ½ inch, J. R. Whittemore second.

Standing hop, step and jump—A. Lewis Jr., 30 feet ½ inch.

Running hop, step and jump—S. Calhoun, 41 feet 11¼ inches, H. J. Hidden second.

Standing broad jump—C. C. Adams, 9 feet 10¾ inches, W. L. Brown second.

Throwing league ball—C. C. Adams, 345 feet 7 inches; E. L. Rich, 322 feet 4 inches.

Pole vault—E. W. Crane, 9 feet 3 inches; J. W. McCrum second.

Putting sixteen-pound shot—C. C. Adams, 34 feet 2½ seconds; J. R. Whittemore second.

Running broad jump—C. C. Adams, 20 feet 8¼ inches; J. R. Whittemore, 20 feet 6 inches)

Throwing sixteen-pound hammer—C. C. Adams, 71 feet 7 inches; P. M. Downing second.

The annual championship boxing tournament of the Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, was held in the Olympic Club gymnasium on Thurs lay evening, May 26th. In all there were but twenty-two entries, and with the exception of a few men, the contestants did not make a very brilliant showing as far as science was concerned. The event of the evening was decidedly the heavy-weight contest between Billy Kenealy and Jack Kitchen. The friends of the former were fully satisfied that their man would win the first medal, and their expectations came very near being realized. Kenealy has lots of science, and he is a very hard hitter; besides he is dead game, but he has one great fault and that is he gets rattled when the pace gets hot. Had he been cooler and kept his wits about him when he fought Choynski at the Golden Gate Club some few yerrs ago, he certainly would have won his battle, for he had his man fairly at his mercy. In the first round of his last battle with Kitchen he made a very fine showing, and if he had been more of a ring general the chances are that the young Acme boxer would have found more trouble in keeping away from the hard bunches of the Olympian. The members present were greatly disappointed when they found that Dooley and Green could not be brought together. Dooley claims that he hurt his hand in his bout with Gilbert, but a good many thought he was a little bit shy about meeting Green.

The following is the summary of the tournament:

Bantams—F. Skuce, S. F. A. C., 115, beat J. Sullivan, unattached, 113; Joseph Kenny, S. F. A. C., 114½, beat W. Spellman, O. C., 114; H. Rubenstein, S. A. C., 109, beat Jerry Sullivan, Rubenstein beat Kenny; Rubenstein beat Skuce.

Feather-weights—W. Daly, S. F. A. C., 121, beat J. Strehl, 124, unattached.

Light-weights—W. H. Dooley, S. F. A. C., 133½, beat Frank Gilbert, unattached, 133½; George F. Green, O. C., won by default of Dooley.

Welter-weights—M. Greggains, S. F. A. C., 143½, beat J. Feulon, S. F. A. C., 143½, S. Vicini, O. C., 142½, beat W. F. Creamer, unattached, 144½; Vicini won, as Greggains injured his hand and could not box.

Middle-weight—John Kelly, S. F. A. C., 156, beat D. Kemp, 146½, unattached.

Heavy-weights—J. Kitchen, Jr., Acme Club, beat W. J. Kenealey, O. C.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department MUST be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, as proof of good faith. Write the question distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Postively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

To Reader, Ukiah, Cal.—Nothing definite is known of the breeding of St. Clair 16,675, and we find no trace of Sally Burns.

Could you or any of the readers of your valuable paper give me the present address of Mr. Phil Gheardy, formerly of Oakland, Cal.?

Can any of our readers give us the breeding of the St. Clair (bred by John Houghton, of Sacramento, or near there), sired by old St. Clair? His dam was Sally Burns, who trotted many fast races in her day.

Can any one give us the correct pedigree of Kentucky Maid, said to be by Skenandoah out of Lady Crim, pedigree not traced? This Kentucky Maid was said to have been bred to Washington (sire of Laura M., 2:27; Fred Ackerman (pacer, 2:23), in 1885.

D. H., Fresno, Cal.—Did Mitchell ever knock Sullivan down in the prize ring in Philadelphia? How many times did Sullivan and Mitchell meet in the United States? Did Mitchell knock Sullivan down at Madison Square Garden, New York, United States, or did he knock Sullivan down at any time or any place in the United States? How many times did Sullivan and Mitchell meet? Answer—Mitchell knocked Sullivan down in Madison Square Garden, New York City, but never in Philadelphia. Only once did Mitchell knock Sullivan down in his life, and that was as stated above. Sullivan was infuriated at that time, and Captain Williams stopped the fight. Sullivan and Mitchell met twice—in New York, under Queensberry rules; near Cannes, France, under London prize ring rules, and neither fight was finished.

C. F. N., Petaluma, Cal.—Who bred Schultz's St. Clair, Deitz's St. Clair and Roberts' St. Clair, and what are their dams, if known? Answer.—Roberts' St Clair, numbered 16 675 on the register, passed through the hands of Presley Dunlap, Nathaniel Boyce, Philip Roberts and John M. Duncan to John E. Miller, who owned him until he was burned up in his stable at Sacramento in August, 1864. Deitz's St. Clair was a son of St. Clair 16,675. Schultz's St. Clair we know nothing of, neither is anything definite known of the breeding of St. Clair 16,675, or of the dam of Deitz's St. Clair. We find, however, another St. Clair on page 397, volume 2, American Trotting Register, that came to C. lifornia. The record reads: St. Clair, gr h. foaled about 1853; got by Stockbridge Chief, son of Vermont Black Hawk, dam Lady Dawson; taken from Boston to Stockbridge and claimed to be a Maine Messenger; bred by Mr. Dorr, Pittsfield, Mass.; owned by F. Patton; sold and taken to California."

F. M. P., Spokane Falls, Wash.—Please furnish me any information in your "Answers to Correspondents" to the following: I have a mare about eleven years old. She was brought to Walla Walla, Wash., at two years old from California by John A. Cardinell. Her breeding was given by him as by Joe Daniels out of Mamie Hall, by Norfolk. Can you help me establish her breeding so she can be registered, if she is not already? Who owned Mamie Hall at that time? She is a bay mare with black points and has been owned by Samuel Hutchinson until last spring. He got her of Mr. Churchill. She won a two-year-old race at Walla Walla. Answer—In volume 4, on page 327, we find Mamie Hall, bay mare, foaled 1866, bred by John D. Winters, owned by Daniel Murphy, California, by Norfolk, dam Mamie, by Belmont (Williamson's); second dam Maria Downing (dam of Owen Dale and Don Victor), by American Eclipse, etc. Following are the foals of Mamie Hall up so 1883: 1876, b c by Hubbard; 1877, b f Molly H. (a winner), by Wildidle; 1878, b f Beauty, by imp. Hercules; 1879, not bred; 1880, br f by Lodi; 1881, ch f by Elmo (trotter); 1882, ——, by son of George Mr. Patchen Jr. (trotter); 1883, ——, by Bob Wooding. Daniel Murphy owned the mare eleven years ago, but his exact address is not given in the stud book. You will see that she was not given to Bruce as ever being bred to Joe Daniels. Elmo was owned by Henry Seale, of Mayfield, Cal.; Lodi, by Nathan Coombs, of Napa, Cal.

Napa Colt Stake Races.

D. L. HACKETT, Secretary.

The Trotting and Pacing Standards.

The trotting standard as adopted provides these rules to secure admisson to registration. When an animal meets the requirements of admission and is duly registered it shall be accepted as a standard-bred trotting animal. These standards went into effect April 6, 1892:

First—Any trotting stallion that has a record of 2:30 or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:35 trotting, or better, or provided his sire or dam is already a standard trotting animal.

Second—Any mare or gelding that has a trotting record of 2:30 or better.

Third—Any horse that is the sire of two trotters with records of 2:30 or better.

Fourth—Any horse that is the sire of one trotter with a record of 2:30 or better, provided he has any of the following additional qualifications: A trotting record of 2:30 or better, or is the sire of two other animals with trotting records of 2:35, or has a sire or dam that is already a standard trotting animal.

Fifth—Any mare that has produced a trotter with a record of 2:30.

Sixth—The progeny of a standard trotting horse, when out of a standard trotting mare.

Seventh—The female progeny of a standard trotting horse, when out of a mare by a standard trotting horse.

Eighth—The female progeny of a standard trotting horse, when out of a mare whose dam is a standard trotting mare.

Ninth—Any mare that has a trotting record of 2:35 or better, whose sire or dam is a standard trotting animal.

This is the new pacing standard: First, any pacing stallion that has a record of 2:25, or any horse that is the sire of two pacers with records of 2:25. Fourth, any horse that is the sire of one pacer with the record of 2:25 or better, provided he has either of the following additional qualifications:

First—Pacing record, 2:30 or better.

Second—Is sire of two other animals with pacing records of 2:30.

Third—Has a sire or dam that is already a standard pacing animal.

Fifth—Any mare that has produced a pacer with a record of 2:25 or better.

Sixth—The progeny of a standard pacing horse when out of a standard pacing mare.

Seventh—The female progeny of a standard pacing horse when out of a mare whose dam is a standard pacing mare.

Ninth—Any mare that has a pacing record of 2:30 or better whose sire or dam is a standard pacing animal.

Tenth—The progeny of a standard trotting horse out of a standard pacing mare, or of a standard pacing horse out of a standard trotting mare.

Hereafter performances against time to receive recognition must be trotted or paced at regular races, and must be on the programme with no less than two regular events.

SECOND PAYMENTS.

How to Judge a Horse.

The following scale for judging horses at fairs has been adopted by the Maine State Agricultural Society:

Dr. P. M. Twitchell made a clear distinction between the draft form and the speed and action form, and has given the varying points in these particulars clear definition. The total number of points is 100, and is divided as below noted:

Eyes—Prominent, clear, intelligent and expressive	4
Head—Wide apart between the eyes, ear well apart, of fair size, and indicating energy, clean-cut jowl, large delicate nostrils, well-rounded lower jaw, and fine, firm lips	7
Neck—Symmetrical in length and proportions, graceful and clean-cut at throttle	5
Shoulders—Fat and oblique for drivers, well-rounded and straight for draft, strong at base and well finished at withers	3
Chest—Deep, full and prominent, good width	3
Forearm—Well-formed, strong and muscular	3
Barrel—For drivers, deep and well-rounded, with long, springy ribs; round, with short ribs for draft, deep through the loins; back short and strong	3
Coupling—Smooth, strong and extending well forward over the point of the hips	5
Quarters—Symmetrical, not too sloping, well rounded and muscular	4
Tail—Long, full, bone straight, well-set and fine in quality	2
Stifles and Gaskins—Muscular, with good length of bone between joints for drivers, and short for draft	4
Hock—Sound, strong, without too great an angle, free from meatiness	7
Knees—Neither sprung or calf-kneed, broad, straight and strong	6
Cannons—Flat, broad, smooth, fine quality, yet with abundant substance	3
Pasterns—Muscular, good length, sound, and for drivers at an angle of 45 degrees; for draft shorter and stronger	3
Feet—Medium height, round, free from contracted heels, of good material, with full elastic frog	8
Color—Solid bay or seal brown the standard	4
Size—Fifteen two to sixteen hands and well proportioned the ideal standard	6
Coat—Glossy, fine and short	2
Substance	4
Symmetry	4
Action—Easy, elastic, pure, straight and even	6
Style—Position of horse when standing and carriage when in motion	4
Total structure	100

The Right and the Wrong Kind of Trainers.

There are two kinds of trainers—the one that works the horses and the one that works the owners, although we are led to believe that the ranks of the former are increasing, while the latter are diminishing to a degree that augurs well for the trotting horse business.

The conscientious trainer who carefully handles the horses entrusted to his care, deals fairly and honestly with his patrons and uses his best endeavors to bring out all the qualities the horse may possess, is not only engaged in a worthy pursuit, but has the satisfaction of knowing that he has given value received for his earnings, and such a man amply earns every dollar he may obtain. He has given his best thoughts and his best labors in exchange for pay.

Now, when you have found such a man, you may give him your full confidence and leave the matter of details to him. Do not dictate to him. Do not cause him to feel that you know more about training than he does. This is his trade or profession, and if he is the man you thought him to be he will take pride in performing his work in a conscientious and professional manner, and while ever ready to accept suggestions from any source he naturally feels that he alone is to be the guiding spirit. Such a man while closely contending for his own rights will not overlook those of the owner. He is the man who is working the horses for the owner.

But now we come to the man who is working the owner for his horses, and we find a very different person. Here we have the fellow who (to use an old expression), "looks very wise and talks doubtful." He criticises all competitors and their methods. He is willing to make contract with owners to put their horses in the list or no pay. He is willing to promise almost anything to get control of a certain horse, then when he has him in his stable the "fun" for the owner begins. Why, we have known a trainer to have a horse in his hands for over three months in the training season without ever hitching him to a sulky, nor did he himself ever drive this horse to exceed five times during the three months, but entrusted him to a stable-boy to "jog" around each day for exercise, hitched to a heavy cart, and yet this man was collecting, of the unfortunate owner, full pay for his personal services which the owner supposed he had received, until too late to be of benefit.

It was then that the owner discovered that he had been grossly deceived. He had paid out good money for bad training, or, to be plain, no training at all. His horse came back to him without having improved in any respect. He knew nothing about trotting to his best efforts, for the reason he had never been asked to extend himself, and yet the trainer demanded a high rate for his services and pronounced the horse "no good." Now how could he know this horse was no good; never having tried him, could he expect an animal to learn that which he had never been taught? Could he expect the owner to "come down" with the money and receive nothing in return? This was one of the trainers who spent more time "working" the owner than he working the horse, but, we are pleased to say, we believe there are few of this kind. We are glad to know that the majority of the trainers of to-day are conscientious and honorable men, dealing with their patrons in a business-like way, asking a fair remuneration for their services, and giving their services in return.

A trainer's life at best is a hard one. The mental and physical strain he may undergo is scarcely appreciated by the general public, and we have at all times a warm corner in our hearts for the honest, painstaking and gentlemanly trotting horse driver who works the horse for the owner. But for the other fellows who spend the greater portion of their time laying plans to work the owners we have nothing in common, and have no desire for their friendship.—American Horse Monthly.

The Swigert Mares.

The old mare Calamus, that was bred in Wisconsin and made a record of 2:24¼ as far back as 1880, recently foaled a filly, by the New York stallion El Mahdi that is by Onward and out of the Mambrino Patchen mare which produced Guy Wilkes. Calamus is what they call "Racine-bred" in Wisconsin, being by Swigert and out of a mate by Richards' Bellfounder, says the Breeder's Gazette. Swigert mares are pretty valuable goods in these days, as one of them produced Vic H., a grand race mare that trotted to a record of 2:15, last season, while another is responsible for Addie Hayes, that after raising a colt went out last fall and took a record of 2:19¼ in a race at Lexington, where she beat a good field. A Swigert mare is also the dam of the pacer Don Angus 2:18½, and with nine of his daughters in the list of producing broodmares it is small wonder that the blood of the old horse should, in the female line, be eagerly sought for by men who have prepotent stallions of the Hambletonian family.

The Richards' Bellfounder mare which produced Calamus also brought a full brother to her in the stallion Bob Swigert, whose record of 2:30 was acquired last season. Although Alexander's Norman, the sire of Swigert, was a horse of unquestioned potency both in the production of speed in the first and second generations as shown by his daughters Lulu, 2:15, May Queen, 2:30, and the further fact that four of his sons have sired thirty-eight trotters and pacers, it is principally through his daughters that he will live in trotting annals as a progenitor of speed, twelve mares by him having produced sixteen trotters, and four of his daughters being in the great brood mare list with two trotters apiece to their credit; while still another daughter, the fleet but rattle-headed Lula, produced when bred to George Wilkes a filly that afterward became the dam of the Electioneer stallion Advertiser, record 2:16 as a three-year-old, and for whom, according to a recent Washington dispatch, Senator Stanford refused a cash offer of $150,000, the largest amount of money ever known to have been placed in the balance against a flesh and blood horse.

Harold is not a horse which fills the eye. He is neither rangy nor symmetrical. He is rather of the clumpy, bunched-up type which was the fashion several years ago. But that he is a great sire when properly crossed, no one can question for a moment. He does not stamp his image upon his colts. He breeds back—he gives them the form of some of his ancestors. He is owned at Woodburn. His sire was Rysdyk's Hambletonian, son of Abdallah, and his dam was Enchantress, daughter of Abdallah. The two great performers from his loins were Maud S. and Noontide.

The number of horses in the United States is estimated at 15,493,140. They are valued at $65.01 a head, making them worth $1,007,593,636.

Mr. Doble Looks Backward.

We published some matter pertaining to Budd Doble driving Patchen, and the Gazette of Terre Haute interviewed that skillful teamster on the subject, which brought out the following:

"Well, if you had asked me if I had ever driven George M. Patchen Jr., I would have said, No! But that story brings it all back, and it all happened just as it is told. I remember Billy Hendrickson very well. I was living at Mount Holly then, where my father had a track. I drove a few horses about that time, although I couldn't reach the sulky stirrups and had to put my feet on the cross bar." Mr. Doble went on to tell of a race he had won a short time before the above in which he had the laugh on his paternal ancestor to a great extent. Some one had brought a stallion to town to race with some local trotter. It was important in maintaining his large service fee of $15 that he should win, and Mr. Doble Sr. was expected to drive him. It happened that the match offered was a little too strong, and the owner of the stallian and Mr. Doble slipped off for a little walk, thinking that if the race was called before they got back it would be declared off. They left the juvenile Budd leading the stallion about. The race was called. Budd looked around for his father, and not knowing the scheme, thought it was his duty and a smart thing to drive that stallion, so he did and won the race! He didn't mention what his father had to say when he showed up.

Mr. Doble was asked if he had made many races in the saddle, and replied that he had ridden Rockingham, Butler, Geo. M. Patchen, Lucy and Dexter, though he could not do such work now. It was severe and a great strain. He had to train and condition himself for each race. After a race the air seemed full of bugs, and he was completely exhausted. He had to carry fifteen pounds of lead and an eleven-pound saddle to make up the 140 pounds weight required. Said Mr. Doble, "I rode to saddle the great George M. Patchen in his last two-mile race, against Butler, who was ridden by Dan Mace. I recall an amusing incident of this race, which was very close, in which the veteran trainer, Tallman, figured. In the last mile of the last heat Patchen and Butler were even, going tiptoe, neck and neck. I felt that I was beaten if I didn't do something, and commenced to take Patchen back for three lengths. It was easy to do, for he was very tired. Then I tapped him with the whip, but he didn't answer to it, but, I kept on and gained on Mace who let down on Butler's head and drew it up, again and again, but I passed him on the homestretch with my whip getting red hot and as I came under the wire Tallman's hat went up. He never found it again, and he said: "When I saw you give Patchen the first lick, I said 'Oh, Doble!' and when you hit him again I scrouched a little and said, 'Oh, Doble!' and every time you hit him I squatted lower till I found myself sitting on the ground still saying, 'Oh, Doble!'"

Experiments have been made by the German departmental veterinary surgeons, Peter and Felish, with the mallein or glanders lymph of Her Preusse. Both experimentalists are of the opinion that when horses affected with the glanders are vaccinated it causes a reaction and rising of the temperature which, as a rule, would not take place in a healthy animal. Out of ten horses vaccinated and showing these symptoms only one was found to be free from the disease. It may be detected within ten hours from the time of vaccination.

The Best Representatives of the Great Almont Family in California,

ALCONA 730.

Sire of ALCONA JR., record 2:24; FLORA BELLE, record 2:24; CLAY DUKE, record 2:29; PRINCE WARWICK, trial 2:18; ALMONITION, 3-year-old trial 2:22.

Grandsire of SILAS SKINNER, record 2:17; DEL REY, record 2:29; MARK MEDIUM, record 2:24.

"LACONA" made a 2-year-old race record of 2:42¼, with 17 days track work. Every one of the above descendants of ALCONA were trained by different men, in different parts of the country, and all made their records in races over regulation tracks. ALCONA is 14 years old and has already two producing sons and a producing daughter. TERMS, $75 FOR THE SEASON.

GRANDISSIMO 14,995. RECORD, 2:27 3-4. (FULL BROTHER TO GRANDEE, THREE-YEAR-OLD RECORD, 2:23¾.)
Sired by La Grande 2868, dam Norma, by Arthurton 365; grandam Nourmahal, full sister to A. W. Richmond 1687.
GRANDISSIMO got his first work last season better than 3 minutes November 11, 1891. Was worked out four times and trotted to a record of 2:27¾ in a race Thanksgiving Day at Napa, finishing the last quarter in 36 seconds. Fifteen days training,—certainly a remarkable showing. I expect him to get a low mark next season. His colts are fine lookers and natural trotters. He will be bred to a limited number of mares at the low price of $50 FOR THE SEASON.

ALCONEER 15120. (FULL BROTHER TO ALCONA JR., 2:24, SIRE OF SILAS SKINNER, 2:17.) Sired by ALCONA 733, dam Madonna (dam of Alcona Jr., 2:24, Del Rey, 2:29), by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22); grandam by Joe Downing 710.
ALCONEER is a handsome, good-sized horse, and a natural trotter. With two months training last fall as a 3-year-old he trotted a mile in 2:41; last quarter in 37½ seconds. TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON.

CADUCAS 10,840. Sired by ALMONT MEDIUM 2133, record 2:28½, dam Amelia T. (full sister to Prince Warwick, trial 2:18), by Alcona 730; grandam by Almont Mambrino 761; g g d by Delmonico 110; g g g d by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22. CADUCAS is a handsome individual, and will make a trotter. His pedigree is all one could desire. He will be bred to a few mares at the low price of $25 FOR THE SEASON.

KING WHIPPLETON (Standard). PRIVATE STALLION.
Sired by WHIPPLETON 1883, dam Kate Chapman, by Naubuc 504; grandam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31 g g d by Ethan Allen 2903.

The season to commence February 1st. ALCONA'S season to close September 1st. GRANDISSIMO, ALCONEER and CADUCAS' season to close July 1st, as I expect to trot them during the circuit. Mares can be shipped by rail from any part of the State direct to St. Helena or by boat to Napa City, where they will be looked after. The very best of pasturage at $4 per month; hay and grain $8 per month for mares if necessary. Mares kept same as my own at $60 per year. Mares not proving with foal can be returned the following season free. Should any of my stallions die or be sold, mares will be returnable to any of my other stallions by paying difference in service, if any. For further particulars, address

CONDITIONS.

Entry blanks can be obtained from the Secretary. Each entry must plainly state name, age, color and sex of horse, name of sire and dam, and name of owner. The colors of rider or driver must also be given with the entry. Owner should not overlook this last item; it is a very useful piece of information for the public. Under no circumstances will any conditional entries be received. No added money will be given for a walk-over.

Two and one-half per cent. of purse must accompany all nominations, and all persons will be held for the entrance fee of 10 per cent.

All purses will be divided into three moneys: 70, 20 and 10 per cent.

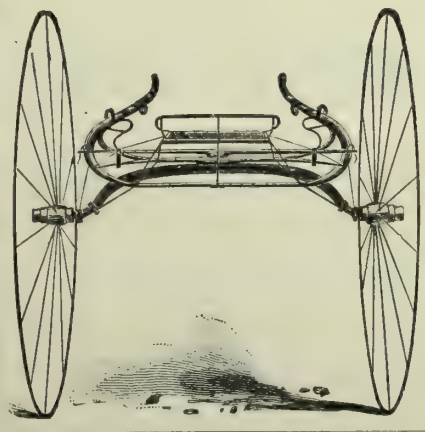
A horse distancing the field only entitled to first money.

The rules of the National Trotting Association will govern these races. The Association reserves the right to alter, amend or postpone any or all of these races should the board of directors in their judgment and for cause deem it expedient so to do. Parties intending to be present at any of these meetings, and desiring stalls for their horses, are requested to write the Secretary in advance, stating what horses they have and what stalls they are likely to require.

In the event of any race not filling, if the Association deems proper to start the race, they reserve the right to withhold from the purse the entry of the missing horse or horses. In all races five or more are required to enter and three to start. In all races where not otherwise specified the entrance is 10 per cent.

Entries close with the Secretary, John A. Todd, Spokane, Wash., June 6, 1892 6, p. m.

Ehtries must state plainly colors of rider or driver. Horses will postively not be allowed to start unless the colors are worn.



The Secretary will take pleasure in replying to any and all communications with reference to transportation, track facilities and any other desired information.

A FEW FACTS.

The attention of the horsemen of the West is respectfully called to the following facts: Our track is conceded by all to be the fastest and safest in the West, and holds the trotting record, also the fastest stallion record for the North Pacific Coast. Our city to-day is the liveliest in the Pacific Northwest. Our people are hospitable and progressive and turn out en masse to the sport of Kings. If you want to get your horse acclimated before entering the Montana Circuit there is abundant opportunity in this program. If you want to sell, this is a good market for a good individual. It will pay you to spend a week with us.

ABDOL 17,716.

RECORD, 2:28.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¾ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:27½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by any one who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18½ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

YOUNG STOCK FOR SALE.

Visitors welcome any day.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

(Sire of Silky 2:26, Anna Belle 2:27½, Oaknut 2:24¼, Dot 2:29½.)

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2:18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood has a record of 2:18¾ in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

BOSWELL, JR.

Will stand at the same place at the low price of $50 the season,

BOSWELL JR., sired by Boswell (a son of Almont 33), dam Nellie B., by Kirtley's Patchen; grandam Sophie (grandam of Nancy Hanks, 2:09), by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; great grandam by Parker's Brown Pilot. This stallion Boswell was purchased by King Kalakaua from Gen. W. T. Withers, Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky. Boswell Jr.'s dam, Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, sire of Frank Fisk, 2:29; second dam by Hamilton Chief, son of Royal George 9; third dam the Dooley Mare. MAUDE started in twenty-one races and won eighteen first moneys, and is well known to all horsemen. BOSWELL JR. showed miles in 2:26 and quarters in 35 seconds on two weeks' work.

Mares stabled or pastured (as owners may desire) on reasonable terms. All bills payable before the animal is removed. No liability for accidents. Best fences in the country. Address,

HARRY J. AGNEW, Hillsdale, Santa Clara County.

ALMONT MEDIUM 2133.

HAPPY MEDIUM, MAMBRINO PATCHEN, ALMONT AND EDWIN FORREST BLOOD!

ALMONT MEDIUM IS BY HAPPY MEDIUM, SIRE OF NANCY HANKS, 2:09; MAXEY COBB 2:13 1-4, AND SEVENTY-ONE OTHERS IN 2:30 LIST.

First Dam, LADY CHILES....by ALMONT 33. (Sire of Fanny Witherspoon, 2:16¼, Piedmont, 2:17½, Aldine, 2:19½, and 35 others in 2:30 or better).

Second Dam, LADY ROTHSCHILD....by MAMBRINO PATCHEN 58. (Dam of King Philip, 2:28¼, he sire of Lexington, ◐ 2:24½). (Sire of London, 2:20, and 17 others, and 17 dams of 64 2:30 performers, and 19 sires from daughters with 141 in the list).

Third Dam....by ALEXANDER'S EDWIN FORREST 49. (Dam of Rothschild, grandsire of Ready Boy, 2:23, etc.) (Sire of Billie Hoskins, 2:26½, etc.).

Fourth Dam by BLACK HIGHLANDER; Fifth Dam by LANCE, son of American Eclipse.

ALMONT MEDIUM is a dark bay with black points, 16.1 hands high, weighs about 1100 pounds, was bred by General William T. Withers, Lexington, Ky., is a model of perfect symmetry, remarkably level-headed, speedy, and game as a pebble, and will undoubtedly get a record of 2:15 or 2:16, barring accidents. He is bred in almost the identical lines of Nancy Hanks, 2:09, her second dam being by Edwin Forrest and Almont Medium's third dam by Edwin Forrest; Nancy Hanks' fifth dam by Lance, son of American Eclipse, and Almont Medium's fifth dam is by the same great horse. The only son of Almont Medium ever trained for speed (Mark Medium) gained a record of 2:25¼ during 1891 as a four-year-old, and all of this horse's progeny show speed at an early age.

Almont Medium will make the season of 1892, from February 1 to July 1, at the Race Track, Petaluma, Cal.

TERMS, $100 THE SEASON,

With the usual return privilege, providing Almont Medium is in the State.

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

GUIDE

RECORD, 2:16 1-4.

Will make the season of 1892 at the SANTA RITA RANCH, about one mile north of Pleasanton.

DESCRIPTION.

GUIDE is a handsome seal-brown, seven years old, stands 15.2 hands high, and weighs 1,090 pounds. He is of fine form, level-headed, intelligent, and comes from blood lines that are noted for the qualities of speed and gameness.

PEDIGREE.

GUIDE, 14,680 (Record 2:16¼)

- Director, 2:17 — Sire of Direct...2:06, Margaret S.....2:12½, Evangeline... ..2:19, Emma.. .....2:24½, and seven other 2:30 trotters.
  - Dictator 113 — Sire of 25 trotters and 3 pacers, and 10 sires of 18 trotters. (Hambletonian 10 / Clara, by American Star 14)
  - Dolly — Dam of Onward, 2:25½, Thorndale, 2:24½. (Mambrino Chief 11 / Fannie, by Ben Franklin)
- Imogene — Dam of Delwin, 2:26½
  - Norwood 522 — Sire of Tommy Norwood, 2:26½, Ida Norwood, 2:26½. (Hambletonian 10 / Lady Fallis, by American Star 14)
  - Daughter of (American Star 14 / Daughter of Harry Clay 45)

The attention of breeders is called to the above pedigree, which shows three crosses of American Star, embracing also the following great broodmares: Imogene, Clara, Dolly, Lady Fallis and Gretchen.

GUIDE'S sire has a record of 2:17, made in a five-heat race, and he is also closely related to Phallas, record 2:13¾ fourth heat, Jay-Eye-See, record 2:10, and Clingstone, 2:14. Guide, with a record of 2:16¼, is the fastest trotting son of the "Black Tornado," showing himself to possess the greatest share of the best qualities of his sire and grandsire, which, with his three crosses of American Star blood, makes him the peer of any trotting sire in the world.

TERMS: $200 for the season, with usual return privileges. Excellent pasturage, $5 per month, and the best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares can be shipped care of JAMES SUTHERLAND, Pleasanton, Cal. For further particulars, address JAMES SUTHERLAND, Pleasanton, Cal.,

*Balkan.

BALKAN 8848

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white), with black points, 16 hands 1½ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09½; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¼, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000.

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.
This horse can be seen at The Oakland Track, in charge of

WILL MAKE THE SEASN OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud inOregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

DIRECTOR JR.

Director, 2:17 (Sire of Direct 2:06; Margaret S. 2:12½; Evangeline 2:19; Guide 2:16¼; Emma 2:24¾; and 7 others in the 2:30 list.)

TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON, LIMITED TO TWENTY APPROVED MARES.

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

TERMS: $40 FOR THE SEASON.

LIMITED TO FIFTEEN APPROVED MARES.

The Fast Trotting Stallion

SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINNER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:21½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc.) by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾; Harry Clay 2:23¾; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted—so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17½, 2:17½, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to Wilkes-Electioneer Stallion.

COMBINED BLOOD
— Of the Greatest Son of
GEO. WILKES
— And the Greatest Son of ELECTIONEER,

ANTEEO WILKES.

Black horse, foaled May, 1889; sired by GUY WILKES, race-record fourth heat, 2:15¼.

First dam Amy Fay, by ANTEEO, race record 2:16¼, sire of Myrtle, three-year-old record 2:19½, Alfred G., four-year-old record 2:19¾, James Madison, record 2:17¾; second dam by Alexander, record 2:31¼, son of George M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, and grandsire of Yolo Maid 2:12; third dam by Naubuc, son of Toronto Chief, record 2:24½ and Gypsy Queen, ten-mile record 29:30, and full brother to the famous trotter, Thomas Jefferson, record 2:23; fourth dam Sacramento Belle, ten-mile record 31.07, one-mile record 2:38.

Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15.3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old, with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

Anteeo Wilkes will make the season of 1892, at the stables of his owner, cor. 45th and Watts street, near Oakland race track; look for sign board on Park Ave., leading from San Pablo Avenue to race track.

SERVICE FEE $100.

Training The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

Mailed postpaid for $3.50. Address

THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN,
313 Bush St., San Francisco, Cal.

A TRAINING AND DEVELOPING FARM.

THE SOUTHER FARM makes a specialty of everything connected with Conditioning, Balancing, Developing, Swimming and Training for Speed. A New Mile Track has just been finished and the plant is very complete.

THE SWIMMING TANK is doing everything that was expected of it, and more. It is simply invaluable in getting horses into condition for fast work, and its use takes out any soreness caused by training for speed. If a horse goes wrong at any point the swimming in salt water does wonders in the way of repairing damages, while the lungs, heart, back and shoulders are developed and no extra flesh is taken on.

Land perfectly square in form, all well fenced into five fields; good dwelling, large barn, etc.; garden, fine shade trees, plenty pure water in spring and well; good shade for stock. Land all under cultivation except portion used at present for pasture.

The soil is a deep, rich sediment, easily worked at any time, without gravel or adobe, suitable for wheat, barley, alfalfa, vegitables, fruit of all kinds. This is the finest natural grass and alfalfa land in the State—green grass the year round. One hundred acres of this land will keep as many horses as 500 acres of the general run of land. Just the place for a breeding and stock farm. This is evidenced by the fact that Valensin's (the home of Sidney), Salisbury's (the home of Director), McCarty's, and many others are grouped in the immediate vicinity. Excellent place for a track—no gravel in the soil. Fine view; surroundings very beautiful; climate perfection, being the desired medium between the coldness of the coast and the warmth of localities lying further east. A piece of property which is perfect, and a beautiful home. Schools and churches at hand. Title perfect. Owner about to retire. This property will be sold at a special bargain and on the easiest terms, viz:

ONE-THIRD or ONE-HALF CASH

Balance at 7 per cent. for time to suit purchaser.

☞WILL SELL ONE-HALF OF PROPERTY ON SAME TERMS.

ANTI-STIFF

To Strengthen the Muscles.

To Strengthen the Muscles.

It is a marvelous preparation for Strengthening the Muscular System. With Anti Stiff there is no faith required; it goes straight for the muscles, and you can feel it at work. It has a peculiar y warming, comforting and stimulating effect on all we k or stiff muscles and sinews. Quick in its action, clean y and pleasant in use.

Rub it into the muscles every night for a fortnight, and you will be pleased at its supporting and strengthening properties. There is not, nor has been, anything like it till now. It differs from all Oils, Embrocations and Liniments, both in substance and effect. Some Athletes are so fond of it that they rub it all over them.

Price 20c. and 35c. per box.

Trainers size, $1,00.

THE PERKINS ALWAYS LEADS!

Responding to the frequent requests of many of the leading horseshoers of the country we now offer as the latest production in the line of improvement

THE NEW

Perkins Steel Toe-Weight and Side-Weight Horse Shoes.

We claim that in this form of Horse Shoe are combined more real merit and a greater variety of points of excellence than any machine shoe ever before made.

The weight of material is where it should be, at the toe.

It will average 25 per cent. lighter than the corresponding sizes of the regular brands of flat shoes, and will wear longer.

It is the true Frog Pressure Shoe.

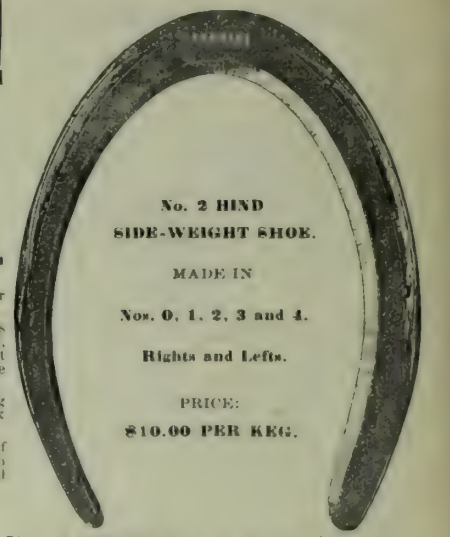
It is perfect for speeding and trotters, and driving horses, and is better than the flat shoe for any purpose.

It will not pick up stones, snow or mud. It will not throw mud or gravel, and clay suction cannot pull it off.

It is sold for about one-half the price of the hand-made Toe-Weight Shoe, and at a price per set but a trifle above that of the first class flat shoes.



Every intelligent horseshoer well knows the superior advantages of this shoe.

The expense of turning this style of Shoe by hand is large, and for that reason its use has been limited, although it is a well-known fact to the horseshoers that a large proportion of the horses wear the outside of the Hind Shoe faster than the inside.

They are made concaved, in order to avoid throwing mud, stones or snow, and it is almost impossible to pick up a stone with them.

The price we put upon them is about one-half that of the cost of the hand-turned, and now within the reach of all. They are put up in all cases with Rights and Lefts in the keg.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR ASSORTED KEGS.

SANTA ROSA TRACK HARROW,

Pronounced by all horsemen who have used it and seen it work to be the Best Harrow Ever Invented.

It has sloping, chisel-shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth, so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. It runs on three wheels, with a lever to raise and lower it while in motion, making the track as uniform as if raked with a garden rake. For reference we offer the following: J. A. Goldsmith, H. W. Crabb, Samuel Gamble, I. DeTurk, and the directors of the Napa, Oakland and Petaluma tracks, etc.

DENVER RACES.

California Horses Doing Great Work at Overland Park—The Interesting Events in Detail.

[Special Correspondence of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

DENVER, May 31, 1892.

THE steady rain yesterday, all last night and this morning has left the track two inches deep in mud and water, and the weather is still threatening and cloudy, consequently the attendance is slim. Mr. Matt Storn's colt Hermitage is a good one. His race yesterday shows that he is not only fast but game, for he took the whip and never flinched. He is the first son of Friar Tuck that has won, and we predict that many of his sons and daughters by their brilliant performances will make his name famous on the American turf.

THIRD DAY, MAY 31, 1892.

SUMMARY.

First race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second, $25 to third; any colt or gelding to carry 110, fillies 105 lbs. One mile.

Orrick, ch h, 3, Joquito—American Girl, 110 lbs.....Young	1

Minnie Elkins, b m, 4, Duke of Montrose—Badge, 105 lbs.....Clancy	3
Bert Hart, ch g, 3, 110 lbs.....	0
Dick Wright, b g, a, 110 lbs.....	0

Time, 1:49.

Betting—3 to 5, Jim Dunn; 4 to 2; Minnie; 4 to 1, Orrick; 8 to 1, Bert Hart and 20 to 1, Dick Wright.

The horses were sent away at the first attempt, Minnie taking the lead, with Jim Dunn at his side and the others close up in a bunch. At the quarter Jim Dunn went to the front. At the half Orrick had his nose in front, Jim Dunn first to be beaten, and Minnie Elkins and Dick Wright were one hundred yards in the rear. At the three-quarter pole Orrick was ten lengths in front, and held his position to the string, Jim Dunn second, Minnie Elkins a length away, third.

SUMMARY.

SECOND RACE.—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For two-year-olds. Maidens beaten at this meeting allowed five pounds; if unplaced, ten pounds. Five furlongs.

Richard Mobley, br c, 118 lbs.....	0

Time, 1:07.

Betting—2 to 5, Grandee and Tigress coupled; 8 to 1, Mobley; 10 to 1, Patience Stapleton; 6 to 1, Karrick.

The youngsters splashed around some time before Mr. Ferguson could get them off; when they did get off Grandee had a little the best of it—but all were well up—and on rounding the upper turn the five could almost be covered with a blanket. When they swung into the homestretch Grandee had improved his position by two lengths, and came on and won as he liked by six lengths. The second place was very close between Tigress and Karick, but the place was given to Tigress, and a large crowd of those who had backed Karick grumbled at the judges' decision and claimed that Karick had won.

SUMMARY.

THIRD RACE.—Free handicap, purse $600, of which $100 to second and $50 to third. Entrance $15 each if not declared out. For all ages. Entries close the evening of the first day (May 28th); weights, 4 o'clock P. M., second day (Monday, 30th); declarations same day. One mile and a furlong.

El Rayo, ch h, 5, Grinstead—Sunlit 105 lbs.....Clancy	1
Marigold, ch m, 5, Milner—Katy Pease, 108 lbs.....Warren	2

Time, 2:06.

Betting—2 to 5, El Rayo; 3 to 2, Marigold.

The two went off side and side at a rattling pace, Marigold a neck in front when they came under the wire. At the quarter they were head and head, in the backstretch El Rayo clear by a length, and maintained that position to the end.

SUMMARY.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages. Ten pounds below the scale. Horses beaten at this meeting allowed five pounds; if unplaced, ten pounds. Four and a half furlongs.

Time, 0:58.

Betting—3 to 1, April Fool; 5 to 1, Vedette; 6 to 1, Sir Launcelot; 3 to to 1, Surget; 4 to 1, Maud D; 15 to 1, Nappar; 8 to 1, Belle M.; 15 to 1, Ben B. Dilie.

The horses gave Mr. Ferguson some little trouble, and they were at the post half an hour. At last they were sent away to a fair start, with Sir Launcelot in the lead, others all bunched. Rounding the turn Vidette was alongside of Sir Launcelot, and April Fool third. When they swung into the homestretch Sir Launcelot was a length ahead, improved his position down the stretch, and his jockey landed him a winner by a length in front of April Fool, who was half a length in front of Maud H., the others strung out.

SUMMARY.

Fifth race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards; the winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $800 to carry weight for age; if for less, four pounds allowed for each $100 down to $100. Seven furlongs.

Time, 1:34.

Betting—5 to 1, Sam Brown; 5 to 1, Emmet; 4 to 1, Pearl; 4 to 1, Belshazzar; 15 to 1, Senate.

The horses were sent away at the first attempt to an excellent start with Emmet in the lead, Hominy Bill second and the rest were bunched close up. At the quarter-pole Hominy Bill passed the leader and Sam Brown also went up to within a length of Hominy Bill, and in this order they raced to the half, when Emmet and Sam Brown seemed to have enough of it; the rest were struggling in the rear. From there on the race was at the mercy of Hominy Bill, who came along and won easily by six lengths from Emmet, who was half a length in front of Sam Brown.

Mr. Cyrus Holloway, Mr. Matt Storn's trainer, is seriously ill, and had to be taken to the hospital.

FOURTH DAY, JUNE 1ST.

Beautiful weather to-day; track heavy; attendance good (two thousand). Mr. J. B. Ferguson has given entire satisfaction to both owners of horses and the spectators. He has had one or two straggling starts, but such starts are unavoidable sometimes on account of young jockeys, etc.

SUMMARY.

First race—Owners' Handicap, purse $500, of which $70 to second and $30 to third; entrance $15; entries close usual hour Tuesday evening; owners to state weight with their entry through the entry box, and must start with the weights they assign. One mile.

El Rayo, ch h, 5, Grinstead—Sunlit, 83 pounds... .....Taylor	2
Revolver, b h, 6, Joe Daniels—Partisan, 101..... .....Clancy	3

Time, 1:48.

At the eighth Jim Dunn went to the front and out-footed both of the Holly entries, and from the quarter-pole the race was never in doubt, Jim Dunn increasing his lead at every stride. On rounding the upper turn he had the two Californians struggling in the mud far behind him, and he came on and won as he liked by twenty-five lengths ahead of El Rayo, who was two lengths in front of Revolver.

SUMMARY.

Second race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; for all ages; five pounds above the scale; horses beaten at this meeting once allowed 5 pounds; two or more times, 10 pounds; if unplaced two or more times, 15 pounds. Five furlongs.

Time, 1:08.

Betting—None against Charlie Wilson; 4 to 1 Bob Lytle; 8 to 1 Belshazzar; 10 to 1 each on Nappar and the Judge.

A good start was made, but before the horses had gone a sixteenth Charlie Wilson had taken the lead, and was never headed, winning handily by an open length from Bob Lytle, who was a neck in front of Belshazzar.

SUMMARY.

Third race—The Equitable Building Stakes—A sweepstakes for all ages; $10 entrance to accompany the nomination; $25 additional to start; $1,000 added, of which $200 to second and $100 to third; winners in 1892 of any race of the value of $1,000 to carry 3 pounds; of two or more such races, 5 pounds extra. Allowances: Those not having won at any previous time a race of $1,500 value, 5 pounds; of $750, 7 pounds; maidens, if three years old, 12 pounds; if older, 20 pounds. One mile and seventy yards. Thirty-seven entries.

Honshell, ch c, 3, Springbok—Genera, 95 pounds.....Taylor	3
Dungarvan, blk h, 4, 117.....	0

Time, 1:56.

Betting—1 to 6 Brookwood and Dungarvan (coupled), 5 to 1 Acclaim and 12 to 1 Honshell.

Honshell went to the front immediately after the flag went down. At the quarter, past the stand, he was six lengths in the lead; up the backstretch he flew. At the half Dungarvan tried to overhaul him, but it was a useless attempt, and rounding the upper turn Brookwood moved up, as did Acclaim, and when all three rounded into the stratch Honshell was a length to the front, Acclaim second and Brookwood third. At the seven-eighths pole Acclaim passed Honshell, and Brookwood in turn did the same; the latter came with a tremendous rush, but too late to overtake the fleet-footed Acclaim, who landed a winner by a length in front of Brookwood, who was the same distance in front of Honshell, Dungarvan some lengths behind.

SUMMARY.

Fourth race, purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $2,500 to carry weight for age; if for less, one pound allowed for each $100 to $1,500; then two pounds for each $100 down to $1,000. Six furlongs.

Time, 1:21.

Betting—4 to 1 Perigal, 2 to 1 Gov. Ross, 3 to 1 Henry T., 4 to 1 Bert Hart, 10 to 1 Parson Crook, 12 to 1 Barton H., 10 to 1 Wert Adams, 4 to 1 Mary Hall.

Through the bad actions of Mary Hall the horses were kept at the post for more than half an hour. Finally Mr. Ferguson got them off in good shape, Mary Hall going to the front, closely followed by Wert Adams, the rest all abreast a length away. There was no change going up the backstretch nor around the upper turn. Mary Hall was ahead when the bunch swung into the homestretch, closely pressed by Parson Crook and Gov. Ross. Half way down the stretch Mary Hall was beaten. Parson Crook came with a rush and won by half a length from Gov. Ross, who was a length in front of Mary Hall.

SUMMARY.

Fifth race, purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $1,000 to carry weight for age; if for less, two pounds allowed for each $100 to $500; then four pounds for each $100 to $100. One mile and a sixteenth.

At the second attempt Col. Ferguson sent the five away on even terms. Before the first turn was reached Silverman had drawn clear of the others, and at the eighth pole was a good length in front, and in this order they continued to the half-pole, when Minnie Elkins and Hominy Bill moved up, and the three ran abreast around the upper turn, with John Winfield a length behind and Grand Duke twenty lengths to the bad. When well down into the homestretch Silverman seemed to be in distress, and dropped back to fourth place, Winfield going to third. Minnie Elkins was ridden hard for the race, but she could not overtake Hominy Bill, who won by a length, Minnie Elkins second, two lengths in front of John Winfield.

FIFTH DAY—JUNE 2D.

The weather to-day was lovely and the ladies turned out in large numbers. The grand stand and club-house were pretty well filled.

So far the favorites have been beaten, and the results to-day have not made an exception to the rule. Only one favorite, Geraldine, won to-day. To-day's programme had five good races for the people.

SUMMARY.

First race, purse $500, of which $70 to the second and $30 to the third. For three-year-olds and upwards. Winners at this meeting of any purse or stake to carry five pounds extra. Horses that have been beaten once at this meeting allowed five pounds; two or more times ten pounds. Maidens, if three years old, allowed seven pounds; if older, ten pounds additional. One mile.

Pearl, ch f, 4, 97..... 0

Time, 1:49.

Betting—6 to 5 both Prince Henry and Montana, 5 to 1 McGinty, 10 to 1 Raceland Jr. and Nettie Douglas.

There was some little delay caused by McGinty's bad acting. Finally starter Ferguson got the bunch off to a good start. Prince Henry led away from McGinty and Montana, Nettie Douglas and Raceland Jr. being next, and Pearl some lengths behind at the first quarter. At the three-eighths McGinty was in the lead, but soon fell back, and before the half was reached Montana had the lead and Prince Henry second place, Nettie Douglas fifteen lengths behind McGinty, Raceland and Pearl ten lengths behind her. On rounding the upper turn Montana and Prince Henry raced neck-and-neck all the way in, Prince Henry winning by a short—very short—nose, and B. C. Holly thought the race ought to have been decided as a dead heat. It was a very close finish, and many believed Montana had won it, while there were as many who thought that Prince Henry had won it. McGinty was a bad third.

SUMMARY.

Second race, purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For two-year-olds; the winner to be sold at auction. Those entered to be sold for $2,500 to carry their proper weight; if for less, one pound allowed for each $100 to $1,500; then two pounds for each $100 to $1,000; then three pounds for each $100 to $500. Five furlongs.

Time, 1:06.

Betting—6 to 5 Investigator, 2 to 1 Senator Walcott, 2 to 1 B. F. Karick, 8 to 1 Patience Stapleton, 8 to 1 Richard Mobley and 4 to 1 Ghost Dance.

Investigator was second to B. F. Karick, who had the best of it at the start. Before the half-mile post was reached Investigation had the race to himself, was never headed, and won easily by two lengths from Senator Walcott, who was a length in front of Ghost Dance.

SUMMARY.

Third race—Free handicap, purse $600, of which $100 to second and $50 to third; entrance $15 each if not declared out; for three-year-olds and upwards; entries close the usual time Tuesday evening, May 31st; weights and declarations Wednesday, June 1st. One mile and three-sixteenths.

Sympathetic's Last, br h, a, Fairplay—Sympathetic, 108 pounds
.....Weaver 1
Gov. Adams, b h, 5, Nathan Oaks—Atletta, 114 pounds.....Feeney 2

Time, 2:13.

Betting—1 to 2 Adams; even money on Sympathetic; just before the close Adams was 6-5 and Sympathetic was 9-5.

A short time before the race Mr. Holly scratched Revolver—who had been entered the night before—and the two, Gov. Adams and Sympathetic's Last, went to the post. There was a great deal of money going in on this race. It was Pueblo vs. Denver, the latter horse being raised here, while the former was bred and raised near Pueblo. The two were started off on even terms, and both rushed for the extreme outside of the track, which was hard and good going. Adams was slightly ahead on passing the stand, but they were so close, nose and nose, that they were like one horse, and in this way they ran to the half-mile post, when Sympathetic's Last dropped back a length, and most people thought the race was over, but when well into the homestretch he came very fast and passed Gov. Adams half way down, and won as he liked by two open lengths.

SUMMARY.

Fourth race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; for all ages; 10 pounds below the scale; winners of the meeting once, 5 pounds; twice, 8 pounds; three or more times, 12 pounds extra; horses beaten once allowed four pounds; twice, 7 pounds; three or more times, 12 pounds. Four and a half furlongs.

Time, 0:57.

Betting—20 to 1 Flora E., Jimmy B., Ben B. Delie and King Faro, 6 to 1 Surget, 3 to 2 Geraldine, 6 to 5 April Fool, 4 to 1 Hal Fisher, Sir Launcelot and Vidette.

After some delay the flag fell to a good start considering the kind of horses that were to be started. Geraldine soon went to the front, closely followed by April Fool and Hal Fisher, the others strung out for an hundred yards. On turning into the homestretch all three of the leaders were or seemed to be abreast, but half way down it was plain that Geraldine had the race well in hand, and won by an open length from April Fool, who was half a length in front of Hal Fisher. A great deal of money had gone in on these three horses.

SUMMARY.

Fifth race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages; winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $500 to carry weight for age; if for less, four pounds allowed for each $100 to $400. Seven furlongs.

Betting—7 to 10, Emmet; 2 to 1, Minora; 4 to 1, Bugle; 5 to 1, Sam Brown; 10 to 1, Vasistas; 15 to 1, Senate; 20 to 1, Dick Wright.

After one or two false starts the horses were sent away to an excellent start. Before the quarter pole was reached Sam Brown and Vasistas was in the lead and the rest close up. At the half Sam Brown and Vasistas had succumbed to the fast going and heavy track, dropped back, and were beaten, Minora and Emmett, now struggling for the supremacy as they ran around the upper turn, followed closely by Senate, Dick Wright and Billy Duncan.

Emmet and Minora and Senate came into the stretch neck and neck. Bugle, who was close to the inner fence and about four lengths to the rear, now commenced to run, when he gradually overhauled to others, and catching Sunset a short distance from home, won under whip by half a length, one length between second and third.

In this race there was Sam Brown, a chestnut horse, said to be by Superb (the trotter) or Boomerang, and Mr. Du Bois, the owner of Superior says that he is certainly by Superior, and that he can prove it. He was trained for a trotter and failed, and as a runner he neither has the speed nor gameness of the thoroughbred.

There will be no races on Friday, June 3rd, but on the next day, Saturday, there will be six, and one of them a heat race, making really seven races.

SIXTH DAY—JUNE 6TH.

As there were no races set for last Friday in the programme, it was thought best to set it aside as a day of rest for the horses, and Saturday was to have been a big day, with six races in the programme. But early Saturday morning it commenced to rain, and continued throughout the day, making the track a sea of water and mud and the weather cold and disagreeable. So the managers concluded to postpone until Monday, all entries to stakes and purses to stand.

Yesterday the sun shone out, in the afternoon the wind was blowing from the northwest, and under the influence of heat and wind the track dried up quite a bit. But there had been too much rain, and one day of sunshine was not sufficient to make a good and fast track, although when the horses started to-day the dust was flying. Two inches underneath, however, the ground was still wet, making the track safe but slow.

The association announced through the papers yesterday that all ladies would henceforth be admitted to the grounds free, and the result was that a larger number of ladies and gentlemen were in attendance than usual.

SUMMARY.

First race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards; the winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $3,000 to carry weight for age; if for less, one pound allowed for each $100 to $2,000; then two pounds allowed for each $100 to $1,000. One mile and a furlong.

Time, 2:03.

Betting—5 to 1 Brookwood, 8 to 5 El Rayo, 6 to 1 Hominy Bill, 8 to 1 McGinty, 10 to 1 Dick Wright, 15 to 1 Pearl.

The horses were sent away at the second attempt, Orrick in the lead when passing the stand, the others close up. At the quarter the positions had not changed, except that Brookwood had taken second place, and was in the lead at the half. From there on he had it all his own way. He came on and won as he liked by ten lengths in front of Orrick, who was five ahead of Hominy Bill. The winner was put up and bought in by his owner for $2,000, the price he was put in at.

SUMMARY.

Second race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages. Winners at this meeting once, to carry four pounds; oftener, seven pounds extra. Beaten horses allowed seven pounds. Those that have started two or more times and have been unplaced, allowed fifteen pounds. Five furlong heats.

Time, 1:04½, 1:06.

Betting on the first heat—1 to 3, Revolver; 6 to 5, Vidette; 3 to 1, Geo. Ross; 4 to 1, Belle M.; 8 to 1, Stranger; 15 to 1, Jimmy B.; 10 to 1, Judge; 20 to 1 Raceland Jr.

There was no betting on the second heat.

The flag fell after one false start. Revolver forged ahead. Rounding the upper turn he increased his position, and was two lengths in front of Vidette. When well into the homestretch Gov. Ross came very fast. At the seven-eighths pole he was on even terms with Revolver, but the latter shook him off and won by a length, Vidette third, two lengths behind Gov. Ross. Time, 1:04½.

Second heat—All the horses went to the stalls except the three first. There were sent away without delay. Vidette and Revolver soon left Gov. Ross in their wake. The two raced nose-and-nose around the upper turn. Half way down the homestretch Revolver came away, and won by four lengths, Vidette two lengths ahead of Gov. Ross. Time, 1:06.

Third race—The Knights Templar Stakes—A selling sweepstake for three-year-olds (foals of 1890); $10 entrance to accompany the nomination, $25 additional to start; $1,000 added, of which $200 to second and $100 to third; $4,000. Weight for age. Allowances: 1 pound for each $200 less to $3,000; 2 pounds for each $250 less to $2,000; 1 pound for each $100 less to $1,000. If entered not to be sold, to carry 5 pounds extra. Starters and selling price to be named through the entry box the usual time of closing, the day preceding the race. Each horse named to start to be liable for the starting fee. One mile.

Time, 1:49.

Betting—1 to 3, Prince Henry; 3 to 1, Honshell; 4 to 1, Mary Hall.

There were originally twenty entries. All scratched except the above three, who were sent off after one or two false starts on even turns. At the eighth-pole Honshell went to the front, but before the quarter was reached Prince Henry went up to him, and the two raced neck-and-neck to the half as if they were one horse. On rounding the upper turn Honshell fell away beaten, and Prince Henry came along and won, pulling up, by six lengths, Mary Hall and Honshell fighting for second place. Honshell, however, won the second honors by two lengths. Time, 1:49. The winner was put up and bought in by his owner for $2,000, the price he was put in at.

SUMMARY.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages; the winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $600 to carry weight for age; if for less, four pounds allowed for each $100 to $100. Six furlongs.

Colonel Ferguson started them all in a line. Emmet, however, soon went to the front, with Minora and Belshazzar at his heels. Around the turn they maintained this order. When fairly into the stretch Emmet slightly increased his lead, and was never pushed, winning two lengths from Belshazzar, who had half a length the best of Jim Mulholland. Time, 1:18. The winner was put up and sold for $230, his owner buying him in at that price—$30 more than he was put in at.

Betting—4 to 5, Top Gallant; 5 to 2, Montana; 5 to 2, Acclaim; 15 to 1, Lew Douglas; 15 to 1, Counterfeit; 20 to 1, Barton H.

Some little time was spent before a start was effected. Top Gallant at once went to the front, closely followed by Montana and Lew Douglas. At the quarter Top Gallant was four lengths in front, Montana next, Acclaim two lengths behind him, and the rest strung out for more than one hundred yards. At the half Montana had closed up the gap between himself and the leader, and was at his flank rounding the upper turn. Feeney urged Montana forward a bit, and when the homestretch was reached the two were on equal terms. Half way home Top Gallant was getting cat-gut and steel, but to no purpose, Montana winning easily by three lengths, Top Gallant two lengths in front of Barton H. Time, 1:56.

RACING AT SALEM, OREGON.

Good Crowds and Close Finishes the Order—The Events in Detail.

SALEM, OR., June 2, 1892.

Despite the threatening weather, the rain and the cold wind yesterday, the first day of the Oregon Breeding and Speed Association's spring meeting at the State Fair grounds was a success. The track was in good condition, although a trifle slippery, say the Oregonian. The attendance was fair, but nothing to compare with what it should have been. An excuse is found for this in the fact that the air was too cold and the clouds too threatening to encourage people to visit the track. But those who went there were highly entertained, as will be seen by a reading of the summary of the races.

Starter, Van B. de Lashmutt; Timers, J. C. Smith and S. Jones; Judges, Looney, Cottle and Collins.

The initial race of the Oregon Breeding and Speed Association—the first spring meeting ever given on the Salem track—was the three-fourths mile dash, all ages, purse $200. By 1:45 the sky had cleared and all was ready, although the track was rather slippery. There were six starters. Altus drew first, Patricia second, Lancer D. third, Hello fourth, Cyclone fifth and Nipper sixth. The score was made with little effort, and it was a pretty start, with good running all the way round. It was as pretty a first race as has been seen on the State track for many years, and considering the condition of the track the time was good. Cyclone took the dash by less than a half neck, and Hello was after second place by about the same distance.

The second race was the 2:25 pace. There were six starters, and the start was made on the sixth score. All ran during the heat but St. James. Capt. Mount, however, broke but once. Harry M. was set back for running. It was a good heat, although slow. Time, 2:38½. Mutuels—Field paid $14.25. Auction pools sold on first and second heats: Blondie $10, Capt. Mount $5, Harry M. $3, field $3.

Second heat—This was a pretty team race between Blondie and Capt Mount, with Blondie leading. Three horses failed to pass the flag, and were distanced. Time, 2:34½. Mutuals paid—Blondie, $7.10.

Fourth heat—This was an uneventful heat, although pretty pacing was done. Time, 2:38½.

There were five starters for the quarter dash, but after scoring a dozen times or more they were started off with Joe D. and Cyclone standing. The three horses came under the wire each a length behind the other. Time, 0:23¾. Mutuals paid—Red Dick, $14.75.

There were three starters in this race, and it required four heats to decide it. The second heat was a dead one. Hamlin went under the wire first, and as he had paced and ran, for which he would have had to be set back, the heat was declared a dead one. After many attempts to get a good start, the horses were tapped off with Miss Alice in the rear, her driver having jockeyed the start.

THIRD DAY, JUNE 4TH.

The June race meeting of the Oregon Breeding and Speed Association closed at dark here this evening on the track of the State Board of Agriculture. This was the first spring meeting ever held at Salem, and was a success in every particular. Except the first day, which was rainy, the weather was good. The track was in prime condition, the horses in good trim and the attendance large. The races had the following result:

The fastest time recorded on the coast at a spring meeting was made here to-day. It was fully as good as is seen in September. Susie S. took the second heat in the free-for-all trot in 2:22½. In 1890 at the fall meeting Alta went in 2:23¾, and at the same meeting Bailey went in 2:22 (in the trot of that class) tieing the Oregon record, which was held by Homestake. In the same race Kitty Ham went a quarter at a 2:17 gait.

Friday Georgie Woodthrope surprised everybody. She has a grand reputation, and the expectation was to see her do some trotting. They were disappointed in seeing her distanced in the first heat. She has a record of 2:23, and was shut out in a 2:27½ heat.

There were two Cyclones on the track, and both are runners of merit. One of them was from Independence and belongs to W. W. Percival. His half-mile record is 0:49½; three-quarters, 1:14½; mile, 1:44. The other Cyclone is a California horse, and belongs to F. M. Starkey. His three-eighths record is 0:34½; half mile, 0:48. He held the world's three-eighths record for a long time. April Fool took it from him in 0:34½. Fashion, of Texas, took that record from April Fool in 34 flat, and now holds the record of the world for three-eighths dash.

The First Trotting Matinee of 1892 at San Jose.

There was a good-sized crowd at Agricultural Park last Saturday, June 4th, it being the first matinee performance of the year. The management of the Santa Clara Valley Agricultural Society had the affair in charge; this was a sufficient guarantee that everything would be conducted in a first class manner. The weather was delightful, the track as smooth as a billiard table, and at two o'clock the judges, William Bradley, Thad. W. Hobson and C. H. Corey, took their positions in the stand, while the timers, H. G. Cox and Daniel Bowen, adjusted their chronometers and sat as near the wire as possible.

There were three trotting events and one match against time advertised. As this was the first time that the Palo Alto youngsters were to appear, driven by the new drivers and trainers, much interest was manifested among the spectators as to how the colts would act.

The way the gentlemen won the races augurs well for the system inaugurated at this famous farm, and as there are over one hundred trotters besides the yearlings at work on the tracks at Palo Alto, the public can look forward to a greater number of trotters entering the charmed circle this year than ever before from this great breeding establishment.

The first event on the programme was a match race for $100 a side between La Siesta's brown gelding Daylight, by Eros, dam Crazy, and Palo Alto's bay three-year-old mare Orphina, by Norval, out of Orphan Girl, by Piedmont. D. Cool drove Orphina and Wm. Vioget was steadying Daylight. The Palo Alto mare won the purse in two straight heats. Time 2:26½ and 2:32½. The following is the

The second race was for a purse of $100. The entries were James W. Rea's bay mare Laura R., by Electioneer, dam Lady Farmer, by Young Lexington, and Palo Alto's bay stallion Paola (brother to Palo Alto, 2:08¾) by Electioneer, out of Dame Winnie by Planet.

Lou Simmons, who made the remarkable record of getting three in the 2:20 list last year, was seen behind Paola, and C. F. Bunch, the trainer and driver for Mr. Rea, was seated quite comfortably behind the big mahogany bay mare.

Paola won the first heat in 2:30½, Laura R. captured the second in 2:28½ and Paola the third heat and purse in 2:30. This places Dame Winnie in the front rank as a thoroughbred dam of trotters, she holding the honor of being the dam of Palo Alto, 2:08¾, Big Jim, 2:23½, Gertrude Russell, 2:23½ and Paola 2:30. The following is the

The next event was a race against time. Wild Bee was to essay the task of lowering her former record of 2:30½. In the first trial Mr. Phippin drove her carefully under the wire in 2:30½. At the second attempt, however, she trotted without a break or skip in 2:29. And thus another Piedmont is placed in the list, and Wildflower, 2:21, enters the great broodmare table.

The entries were Vioget's chestnut mare Alexandria, by Dexter Prince, out of Princess; Palo Alto Stock Farm's bay mare Wavelet, by Piedmont, out of Wave, by Electioneer. T. Nolan drove Wavelet and W. Phippin held the lines over Alexandria. The Piedmont mare won in two straight heats. Time, 2:31½, 2:28.

Veterinary Medical Association.

There was a representative attendance at the meeting of the State Veterinary Medical Association at the Baldwin Hotel on Thursday evening. President W. E. D. Morrison of Los Angeles was in the chair, and Drs. C. Masoero, W. F. Egan, F. A. Nief, P. Burns, F. M. Skaife and H. W. Rike of San Francisco, J. Maclay of Petaluma, C. B. Orvis of Stockton, R. K. Witherspoon of Los Angeles, D. F. Fox of Salinas, P. P. Parent of Hollister, W. E. Wadhams of Santa Clara, H. A. Spencer and H. Spencer of San Jose, P. Davenport, of Santa Rosa, F. E. Pierce of Oakland and R. A. Archibald of Sacramento were also present.

The president in a comprehensive speech touched on the various leading interesting topics of the day in connection with the veterinary profession, and congratulated the members on the satisfactory progress made by the association during the past twelve months, which he hoped would continue until all the members of the profession were enrolled on the association's list of membership. A paper on "Actinomycosis" in cattle was read by Dr. R. A. Archibald and generally discussed, after which Dr. P. Parent read a paper on "Wounds of Articular and Bursal Cavities." This paper was also thoroughly reviewed and discussed by the members present. The passing of the proposed bill for the protection of the profession by the next Legislature was indorsed, and the members pledged themselves to use every effort in their power to secure the passage of the bill. After some formal business the meeting adjourned to meet on the second Wednesday in September.

Dr. Hicks is Dead.

The announcement in last evening's Bee that Peter J Shields had been appointed special administrator of the estate of Mortimer W. Hicks, deceased, was a surprise to most Sacramentans, who were not aware that "Doc" Hicks was dead. The fact is, however, that he died at Cleveland, Ohio, on last Wednesday, where he was visiting his sons. Some years ago he was stricken with paralysis, and he has been practically helpless since.

"Doc" Hicks, as he was familarly known, was born in Indiana in 1826, where his father was a physician of large practice. He adopted the profession of dentistry, and in 1848 located at Keokuk, Iowa, where he resided thirty years, and accumulated a considerable fortune. But reverses came, and as the Doctor's health was impaired by overwork and close confinement, and his changed circumstances made the old scenes distasteful, he determined to emigrate to California. About all that remained of his property were a number of fine horses, which he had kept and bred for pleasure. He brought a carload of them to California, settled in Sacramento county, and in a short time became well-known throughout the State as a breeder of trotting horses.

The deceased leaves three sons, two of whom reside in Ohio, and the other, L. B. Hicks, in this city.—Sacramento Bee.

By a telegraphic dispatch we learn that the famous gelding W. H. Bailey, owned by L. P. W. Quimby, having a record of 2:20 and valued at $10,000, died at Portland on Thursday evening of pneumonia. Only last week the horse returned from California, where he had been working on the Petaluma track.

WILLIAM A. PAXTON JR., an extensive breeder of good horses, from Omaha, is in San Francisco. Mr. Paxton owns a large horse ranch in Douglas county, Neb., and has one of the finest stables in the State. He is here in the interest of his pet weakness, and expects to pick out something good on the coast to ship back home.

WE have received a new invoice of Wallace's Year Book Every breeder should have one. Price, $2.50.

Incidental Training for Colts.

Every owner of colts realizes that they need early handling. But few go farther than the feeling that one ought to be able to hire a careful expert to do this work. The possessor of only two youngsters will sigh for what ought to be their care, not appreciating his own latent power and tact for this kind of thing.

This inference, of course, applies to the man who thinks more of his infant equines than just to remember their probable value in money. It includes every one who loves to have them about and is ready to care freely for their physical wants—supplying food, shelter and thoughtful attention to the diet that will best promote a symmetrical conformation.

If the colt's home is on a farm and its dam must plow and do other field work, there is little to be learned by following about—its place is in a yard or pasture lot in company with an idle horse or some fellow-colts. But when it has nourishment from the mother, it is a valuable part of the colt's training to allow the harness to remain, when already on, that the straps, lines, etc., may impress the youth with their harmlessness. Before the first month of life is passed the straps should be purposely dangled about and brought in contact with every inch of the surface of the young limbs. This and other operations tending to acquaint with "the real varied life of a horse" should be repeated until our subject is made to endure the wrapping of straps or cords loosely about limbs, body and head, without resistance and without effort to kick or run out of them. This sort of handling includes the actual holding of the little fellow daily with one's main strength, and conquering it for but a few moments at a time, before a week old; afterward hold less frequently until it ceases to struggle.

After one month old, put on a colt halter for a few minutes, three times a week, at first not tying. After a fortnight teach to lead beside the dam for a week, afterward tie in the stall by the dam morning and night, and teach to eat ground grain and bran, at first from the hand, adding a little sugar at times. If the milk supply is light, it is now a good age (eight or nine weeks) to add a quart of warm cows' milk with one-fourth the bulk increased by water. But up to this age the colt should never be tied more than an hour at one time, and, as a rule, but twice during twenty-four hours, while eating beside the mother. Some one, two, should be about the barn or in hearing distance, up to this age, while the colt is tied, to extricate in case of accident.

For the above work a systematic man needs not to devote more than ten minutes per day for forty days (of the first sixty of the colt's life), which is equal to less than seven hours' time. For the following four months no more time is necessary, and the youngster may be brought up to its independent life (after weaning) with less than three days' actual time devoted, incidentally, to the training. Short-sighted people, of course, who do not distinguish between training and "breaking," may see little value in such work.

At ten weeks of age the coming horse is capable of going away from home. This does not mean, however, that it should go continually with the dam. The latter if kept as a driver in the city, village or country, must travel in the aggregate a dozen or more miles per day. A chapter in the career of the colt is to be devoted to sightseeing. To see new objects and to learn that they are not at all terrible, it must be fresh and wide-awake. Hence the caution to not exhaust with continued leading about. When starting out for a drive one can consider whether the extent is a suitable trip for the pupil in the way of incidents, and whether there are in view any objects, such as stumps, large stones, clumps of shrubs, wild or domestic animals (not frequent sights at home), a stationary or traction engine, noisy machinery, etc. During the last five weary miles of the day's journey of ten miles, nothing would, as a rule, attract the colt's attention. But an ordinary drive not much exceeding a mile for every month's age, would not fatigue the little one seriously. The sights along the streets teach readily that there are numerous disagreeable-looking things. The way the old matron goes right along in the midst of it all gives her pupil constant assurance that "things are not what they seem." A dozen miles' travel a week for three months led by the side of a sensible mother, or allowed occasionally to follow loose, if disposed to come along promptly, teaches more effectively at the period from three to six months of age than when older. There will necessarily be a call for the exercise of some care in having a colt along. The absent-minded driver should always tie the colt to the harness where he will not fail to have it "ever present in view." He will be less lost to the world of life by this precaution. If the dam has a model gait at the walk or the trot, the short trips should engage the earnest effort of the youngster to imitate, and the thoughtful driver will study to adapt the pace of the elder to that of the younger.

It is not easy to anticipate all the "thousand and one" items that are to come under the gaze of the colt's first six months of life, but the idea to be impressed on the owner is that it is only by seeing and knowing through the several senses, not once, but several times (scores of times in many cases) that the disposition to be frightened is to be eradicated. Good eyes and good sense will enable some to learn more readily than others. More important than all is it that confidence in the driver be firmly established. An assuring word on all occasions of hesitation will be of great value in cultivating the habit of caution which nature furnishes by means of instinct. Otherwise there might be danger of developing a listless, stupid trait of character which is positively a great detriment, if not fatal to even moderate usefulness in a trusty driver. The driver of experience with horses need no printed programme to guide his work in the incidental early lessons. The only probable lack in his construction is patience and "stick-to-it-iveness." The colt has less than a score of years for life, as a rule, and it is urgently demanded of every breeder that the first year and a half be improved. A captain of war times told his chaplain that if his men approaching a conflict prayed, they must do it as they marched to battle. This sentiment is the key to the situation about the great majority of stables. If the colt has care, it must often come at odd spells as an incident of busy life, in small and irregular quantities. The prominent men of the world became such by turning to good account their spare moments of boyhood and youth. The good, trusty horses may be made in the same manner. If the lives, comfort and happiness of busy men, frail women and trusting children are to be sacredly considered, more and more thought must be given to the coming horses.—Ray Marshall in Wallace's Monthly.

TURF AND TRACK.

Races at Oakland this afternoon.

Secretaries, send in your programmes.

A first-class trainer in Russia receives $6,000 a year.

The yearlings by Palo Alto, 2:08¾, are unusually promising.

The improvements at the Oakland track are of the permanent order.

One hundred horses outside of yearlings are in training at Palo Alto Stock Farm.

What has become of the Baden track? Could it have been boomed out of sight?

One hundred and three Electioneers are in the 2:30 list to date, and only one is a pacer.

Matt Allen has disposed of Judge Post and a Rossington colt for $1,000 and $500 respectively.

Arab, 2:15, and Della Magee, 2:28, have been added to Golden's string at Mystic Park, Boston.

Gus Walbaum has bought from J. C. Carr, his half interest in the Saratoga Racing Association.

P. Lorillard, of New York, has declared his great Iroquois filly, Addie, out of the American Derby of 1892.

Cy Mulkey has sold to Arthur White the aged gelding Tim Murphy, by imp. Kyrle Daly, dam Maggie S.

Norval, 2:17½, is ten years old, and has three trotters in the list. The oldest of his get are four years of age.

Messrs. J. A. & A. H. Morris, of Westchester, N. Y., have engaged an occulist to operate on St. Florian's near eye.

Marin, 2:22, has a number now; it is 19,449. His sire, Quinn's Patchen, is registered also; his number is 19,439.

St. Carolus, a full brother to W. O'B. Macdonough's great stallion St. Carlo, won a good race from a fine field at the East recently.

Dollie McCone was the only successful Californian at the East last Monday. This daughter of Joe Hooker won at Latonia.

H. Stover, St. Louis, Mo., has bought from C. McCafferty, the bay horse Jake Saunders, by Ten Broeck, dam Cicely Bowling.

The Tyrants are doing great work at the East. Lawless, by Tyrant out of Linotte, beat a fine field at Morris Park the other day.

A familiar expression of Budd Double's when giving his views on any subject is: "Still, I may be mistaken; I have been many times."

Owners of stock farms are requested to send in their lists of foals to this journal. We publish all such announcements free of charge.

Billy Thornhill, 2:24½, will be given to the trainer this fall, and 2:20 is the mark that he will gain, unless some accident occurs to him.

W. O'B. Macdonough's Grandee and Tigress ran one-two in a five-furlong race at Overland Park, Denver, on the third day of the meeting.

B. C. Holly's Revolver won a five-furlong heat race at Denver last Monday on a heavy track, and Top Gallant ran second in another event.

Wm. Murry has recently purchased of Jesse D. Carr, of Salinas, the fine colt Sir Carr, by imp. Cyrus, out of Jessie D., by Wildidle. Price $2,500.

Jesse D. Carr sent his fine trotter Rex to Wm. Donathan last week. Rex is by Anteeo, 2:16¼, out of Accident, dam of Wanda, 2:17. He ought to be fast.

The Hobart farm has sustained another great loss in the death of one of their broodmares sired by Mambrino Boy. She died last Sunday of blood-poisoning.

The cable cars are now running past the entrance to the Bay District track. If the hotel was only fixed up and opened by some enterprising boniface it would become quite a resort.

J. Malcolm Forbes has been buying some high-priced thoroughbreds. A Longfellow yearling colt was recently purchased for him in New York at public auction, and cost $10,000.

Nine California horses have trotted in 2:30 or better thus far in 1892—two Electioneers, two Piedmonts, one Norval, one Dexter Prince, one Gold Dust, one Joe Gavin and an Alcazar.

There is a full brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, Antevolo, 2:19¾, and Coral (three-year-old), 2:25, at Palo Alto, that is the making of a very fast horse; he is just as handsome as Anteeo was at his age.

One of the few broodmares with two performers in the 2:30 list is Daisy, by Chieftain, owned by L. U. Shippee, of Stockton, Cal. She was sent to Cynthiana, Ky., recently and bred to Simmons.

H. Sanders, of Sanders & Johnson, of this city, has a filly by Sidney, 2:19¾, out of a daughter of Le Grand, that recently trotted a mile in 2:28. She will be another addition to Sidney's growing list.

Peter Brandow has a very fine son of Dexter Prince in his string; he is out of Luella, by The Moor, second dam the old trotting mare Ella Lewis. It looks as if Mr. Brandow will be in the swim this fall.

Six horses have records of trotting twenty miles inside of one hour. They are: Capt. McGowan, 58:25; Controller, 58:57; John Stewart, 59:23; Mattie Howard, 59:30½; Trustee, 59:30½, and Lady Fulton, 59:55.

Falrose paced a mile at Sacramento in 2:26 last week under the guidance of David Grum. Falrose is speedier than one would think at first glance, and it would not be surprising to see him get down close to 2:18.

Almost everyone in Bakersfield remembers Chas. Kerr's Guy Wilkes chestnut stallion Corbitt Wilkes. His name has been changed and he is registered standard. He will hereafter be known as San Corbitt 19,460.

There are a number of trainers working Palo Alto colts at Vina. Most of the trotters are going very fast. It would not surprise us if a few "dark horses" would come to light this fall to the glory of Palo Alto.

At the Jewett sale last week the 244 animals that were sold averaged nearly $400 per head. This is a good average for such a large number, and clearly proves that trotting horses can be raised at a handsome profit.

Lady Bunker, dam of Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, will have two representatives on the turf this season, as her sons, William L. (sire of Axtell, 2:12), by George Wilkes, and El Mahdi, by Onward, will both be worked for records.

Regarding May Day's date of breeding we have been shown the affidavit of Mr. Otis, the man who bred the mare, in which he says to the best of his knowledge and belief, but still he is not certain, she was foaled in 1870.

Mac Benton, sold at last Palo Alto sale in New York, has been repurchased by Senator Stanford. It is expected that the son of General Benton and Mattie, by Hambletonian 10, will prove a first-class producer of speedy trotters.

Deerfoot, the two-year-old filly killed in the fourth race at Latonia on Tuesday, had won $6,000 in two races this year, and her owner, Jack Chinn, of the Kentucky Stables, had been offered $10,000 for her. He valued her at $20,000.

There will be three or four strings of trotters from Palo Alto this year on the various circuits. One may be on the Montana Circuit, one on the Northern, one on the Central and still another on the Southern California Circuit.

It is reported that P. Duryea, Denver, Col., has sold his bay team, Badger Girl and Jessie Blake, to W. M. Cocrane, Del Norte, Colo., for $14,500. Jessie Blake is by Belmont and won a stake for two-year-olds at Sturgis, Mich., last year.

The track at Salinas is looking very lively if one is to judge by the number of trotters exercised there every day. The Gonzales kite track does not seem to affect the patronage of the old stand-by, and only proves that there is room for all.

The colt Ipswitch, that started at Morris Park in a two-year-old race, belongs to D. T. Pulsifer, of Tenny fame, and is a son of the great Kingston. It seldom occurs that a race horse is represented on the turf before his racing career is ended.

A. McFayden has a filly by Silver Bow, 2:22½, out of Lou Medium (dam of Redwood, 2:21, and Ethel Mac, 2:29½), by Milton Medium, that is considered the best foal she has had. Mr. McFayden, with that broodmare, seems to have had bonanza.

Wildflower, 2:21, at two years, is now entitled to a place in the Table of Great Brood Mares, two of her foals having trotted in 2:30 or better—Wildmont, 2:27½, and Wild Bee, 2:29. The latter got her record at San Jose last Saturday afternoon.

Since it has been announced that the trainers who handle the colts at Palo Alto will appear on the circuits this fall with the youngsters, the management have been annoyed with applications from young trainers and drivers from all parts of the United States.

Alfred Guerne, of Lexington, Ky., owner of Alfred G., 2:19¾, spent a few days in Tennessee this week, the guest of R. T. Royal, owner of the Breeder and Turfman. Mr. Guerne reports everything favorable in the Blue Grass region.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

J. A. & A. H. Morris expect to bring twelve head of English-bred yearlings to America in July. They are nearly all from American-bred mares shipped to England and bred to such noted English sires as Barcaldine, Galopin, Springfield, Hampton and others.

Ida Mills, one of Du Bois brothers' broodmares was found in the pasture one day recently with a broken leg, and had to be killed. She was by Mambrino Chief 214, and was the dam of Middle Way, 2:22½, and Clara Belle, 2:29¼, and was bred to Superior this spring.

A number of last season's high-class jockeys, Marty Bergen and Britton, the most conspicuous among the lot, are riding in very unsatisfactory form. Dave Gideon has released Bergen and Scoggan Bros. have surrendered first call on the once peerless Britton.

The pessimists in racing circles will throw up both hands when they learn that 50,000 people attended the first day's racing at Morris Park. The jam was so great that a panic was narrowly averted by the combined efforts of the Pinkertons and track employes.

And now it is reported that "Aurelius," who has ere now written columns innumerable against thoroughbred blood in the trotter, is going to breed a daughter of Electioneer, out of a mare by the thoroughbred Don Victor, to Allerton, 2:09½. Time brings many changes.

It is becoming more evident each season that the talent for bringing out the speed of trotters and pacers is born in men, and for this reason the drivers who make a good showing any season with colt trotters are the following year overwhelmed with applications for their services.

Palo Alto, 2:08¾, as a sire of wonderful colts, is said to surpass every other sire at Palo Alto, and "no other youngsters are as perfect in conformation and finish and as natural trotters as they," was the remark made by a very critical judge of trotting form last Monday to our reporter.

R. H. Walton, owner of Argent, 2:24½, had his hip badly injured last fall, but is now able to walk around. He has been standing Argent at San Jose and vicinity, and his colts are all fine-lookers and very promising. There are two or three that if handled would enter this list this fall.

It would be odd if Piedmont, who has not been considered exactly a success so far as a sire of trotters, should occupy a front rank at the end of this season. Two Piedmonts joined the magic circle at San Jose last Saturday, making thirteen to the credit of the big son of Almont 33.

At a meeting of the Vallejo Jockey Club on the evening of June 4th the name of the organization was changed to Solano Agricultural Association. The following officers were elected: President, Ben Rush; First Vice-President, J. B. Hoyt; Second Vice-President, W. B. Pressey; Secretary, J. R. Whitaker; Treasurer, Henry Connolly.

The buildings at the race track on Rancho Cotati are nearly finished, and in a few weeks there will be quite a number of young Eclectics and Mortimers exercising there. The colts and fillies are looking strong and handsome. The abundance of feed that grows on this celebrated farm has much to do with their appearance.

Fairy and Lawless, Californians, won cracking good races at Morris Park last Tuesday. The former ran three-quarters in 1:11¼—the fastest move at the distance this season. Lawless, who is a son of Tyrant and Linotte, by imp. Prince Charlie, has been successful on a number of occasions this season. Fairy won in a romp, pulling up.

Frank H. Burke purchased a full sister to Jessamine, one of his choicest broodmares, last week. This gray mare is by Abbottsford out of Sweetbriar, 2:26¼; second dam Peanuts, by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31. She is a very handsome mare, and would make a good mate for her sister. Double teams as well matched as they would be are very scarce.

Glendennis' mile in 2:20 at Philadelphia recently makes him the first new 2:20 performer of the season. Though a pacer he is essentially trotting-bred, being a six-year-old bay horse, by Hamlin's Almont Jr., 2:26, out of Black Golddust (dam of Justina, 2:20), by Hamlin Patchen; second dam Golddust (grandam of Henrietta, 2:17¼), by Golddust.

Post Odds (Caddo), the notorious race-ringer, turned up the opening day of the Ontario Jockey Club meeting under the name of Warbler. The horse ran with a shoulder-blanket which concealed the felon's brand placed on him last year by the officials at East St. Louis. One of his hind legs was dyed and his mane was roached. D. G. McDonald, of Almonte, Ont., entered the horse.

The death of Strathso, 2:13, was caused by a parasite lodging under the diaphragm, between the lungs and the stomach, making an enlargement that pressed the nerves against the spinal column and caused a paralysis of the hind parts. While in this state it is supposed she fell from exhaustion and broke her hind leg. This brought on a nervous prostration that, with her other ailments, caused death.

There is no trotting kindergarten at Lexington. Does not that seem a little strange? Of all places in the world, such an institution is needed here. We have more young trotters here than any other spot on the habitable globe, and yet we are behind with the facilities for training them. It is time our people should arouse from their lethargy. Do we propose to stay behind the whole world?—Kentucky Stock Farm.

The five-year-old colt Langton, 2:26¾, by Alfred 5328, will be one of the best of the Palo Alto contingent this fall. He is out of Laura C., 2:29½, by Electioneer. Alfred is by General Benton, out of Alice (dam of Mount Hood, 2:22¾), by Almont; second dam Norma, 2:33½ (dam of Norval, 2:17½, sire of Norlaine, 2:31½ at one year), by Alexander Norman. He ought to be fast, combining, as he does, such blood lines.

Mohawk Chief will have one or two in the list this year. Frank H. Burke purchased Nettie Walker at the late Palo Alto sale, and, as this handsome, large bay trotter was considered one of the fastest, perhaps she may be trained this fall. Wm. Vioget would be at home behind her. She is out of Nellie Walker (dam of two in the list), by Thorndale 305, and as she has had no foal this year, she is just right to take in hand.

This morning Kebir got his first fast work this season, and from the way he acted he seemed to think it was only play, says the Sacramento Evening News. If he could have talked to Charley Schlutius I think he would have said: "Let me out another link or two, and do it three or four times around the lot. But Schlutius is too fond of his big pet to give him one rod more work than in his judgment he thinks is a proper thing.

An Eastern paper says that "standard numbers don't count nowadays," which is certainly true as to horses that have nothing but breeding to recommend them and are old enough to trot fast if they know how. The stallion Hudson 2831, by Kentucky Prince, dam by Rysdyk's Hambletonian; second dam by Abdallah; third dam by Mount Holly, son of Messenger, recently changed hands for $190, and he is only ten years old at that.

W. J. Fleming, of San Jose, is working quite a number of trotters at the track. They belong to Geo. Shearer, of the Garden City, and consist of colts of Grosvenor, C. S. C. (J Gordon's Abbotsford), Argent, Fallis and Starlight Golddust. As it is early in the season to predict how fast they will go yet with Mr. Fleming's careful handling Mr. Shearer can rest assured they will never be ruined by trotting them fast when out of condition.

The Washington Park Club people are endeavoring to arrange a four-mile race for the summer. Failing in this, an effort will be made to induce Ed. Corrigan to send Riley against the two and four-mile records which have been held by Ten Broeck for about eighteen years. A majority believe Riley is capable of cutting a notch off the records, and Corrigan is said to be willing to send the horse, because he expects to retire him at the end of the season.

C. W. Godard has two or three fine roadsters. The gray mare that he purchased from Charley Perkins is pacing much better than heretofore. She can make the mile in 2:25. Recently she made the half in 1:11½. Mr. Godard has a sorrel pinto mare that can pace in 2:30. She is soon to have a colt by Tom Benton. Another animal that he has is a sorrel mare purchased from Dr. Fay. She is half-sister to Fay's sorrel horse.—Sacramento Evening News.

John S. Campbell, now with the runners, but whose campaigns with the wonderful gelding, Richball, 2:12½, are still remembered, is driving Billy Stewart, 2:18¾, on the roads in New York City. Richball's mark was made in a hot race won by Buffalo Girl, 2:12½, at Pittsburgh nine years ago, and the little bay is still doing the county fairs successfully in the West. He is yet good for a mile right at 2:20, and now has 101 heats in 2:30 or better to his credit.

THE best trainers in Kentucky are unanimous in their opinion regarding the importance of at least breaking and handling youngsters as yearlings. It does not require more than half the time to break a yearling that it does to conquer a two-year-old, so that trainers who do not believe in early development and the racing of yearlings have no hesitancy in saying that horses ought to be broken and worked enough to make them thoroughly gentle in their yearling form.

HARRY AGNEW is handling quite a number of young Dawns on his splendid mile track, which has just been completed. The youngsters are all trotters, not a pacer is to be seen, and as for his foals this year, they are as fine a lot as there is in the State. He has a very choice band of broodmares, and Dawn never had an opportunity to be bred to such highly bred mares since he was taken from the track until he came here. We look for him to surpass every developed son of Nutwood as a sire.

T. C. SNIDER, of Yolo, is training a four-year-old colt by Fallis, dam Ava, at Sacramento. He is not giving him much fast work, but the driver moves him some occasionally. Snider also has a Dexter Prince mare that he has just taken up which is a splendid-looking animal. She shows that she has too much grass in her to be hurried, but Mr. S. has already driven her a quarter in 0:42. Zolo, the winner of the roadster race, is looking in splendid condition, and Charivari worked out a mile the other day in 2:45.

ALEXANDER NORMAN'S fame as a progenitor of speed rests principally through his daughters. Twelve mares by him have produced sixteen trotters, four of his daughters being in the great broodmare list with two trotters apiece to their credit; while still another daughter, the fleet but rattle-headed Lulu, produced when bred to Geo. Wilkes a filly that afterward became the dam of the Electioneer stallion, Advertiser, record 2:16 as a three-year-old, considered one of the greatest young horses living.

WHAT a great horse Guido is, rheumatism and all. On Decoration Day he beat a magnificent field at St. Louis for the Memorial Handicap, one mile, worth $2,140 to the owner of the winner, W. H. Babb, of Portland, Oregon. In the bunch were Virge d'Or, Aloha, Gayoso, Oregon Eclipse, Red Cap, Chief Justice, Highland, Pescador, Lucille Manette and Come-to-Taw. Guido won without any urging, while Virge d'Or, under whip, beat Gayoso for the place. The winner carried 118 pounds, Virge d'Or had 116 and Gayoso 98.

THERE are quacks in all kinds of business, and in the profession of training horses plenty of them are to be found. While a man does not risk his life in patronizing them as he does when employing a quack doctor, yet he does risk valuable property and is almost certain to have it badly injured. The country abounds in quack trainers—men who have a mere smattering of the qualifications that ought to be possessed by a man who takes valuable property in his hands with a view to properly educate and develop it, so as to bring out all its latent speed.

THE Hanford Race Track and Breeders' Association has already begun the work for which it was organized, viz., looking after the interests of the horsemen of the Lucerne Valley. The work of leveling the Hanford race track began recently, and sprinkling began also. Five new stalls have been built on the track, and Mr. Eddy will begin training horses there this week. A meeting of the association was held yesterday to elect officers and collect the remainder of the initiation fees. There are now some seventy members of the association.

JOCKEY ANDY MCCARTHY died in Fordham Hospital, New York, last Saturday, of pneumonia. He was thrown heavily by Little Nell in a race at Morris Park on the preceding Wednesday. McCarthy was a good jockey, and would have won a large fortune and considerably more fame if he had not been the possessor of such an ungovernable tongue, which was constantly getting him into trouble. His numerous tilts with Starter Caldwell, Col. M. Lewis Clark and other racing officials are well-known, and McCarthy was under suspension a greater part of the time.

AT Philadelphia, Pa., May 26th, the double team trotting record on a regulation track was reduced to 2:13¼, by Belle Hamlin and Globe, at the Belmont Driving track. The team was hooked to a skeleton wagon weighing less than 100 pounds, and they trotted the mile without a skip. The world's double team trotting record was 2:13, made by Belle Hamlin and Justina, over the Independence, Ia., kite-shaped track, October 27, 1890. The fastest previous time on a regulation track was 2:14, made at the Baltimore meeting by the team that broke the record as above.

SATURDAY last was a great day for trotting at San Jose. Five got into the list—one Norval, two Electioneers and two Fiedmonts, as follows: Orphina, 2:26½, b m, by Norval—Orphan Girl,; Paola, 2:30,b s, by Electioneer—Dame Winnie (therefore full brother to Palo Alto, 2:08¾); Laura R., 2:28½, b m, by Electioneer—Lady Farmer, by Young Lexington; Wavelet, 2:28, b m, by Piedmont—Wave, and Wild Bee, 2:29, b m, by Piedmont—Wildflower. This makes four in the 2:30 list from Dame Winnie and two from Wildflower—Wildmont, 2:27¼, and Wild Bee, 2:29. Both of Wildflower's list trotters were by Piedmont, 2:17¼.

WHILE Dock Stevens, a colored boy, was exercising the three-year-old colt Italia on the "forty acres," a large pasture west of the St. Louis (Mo.) Fair Grounds, the horse ran away and collided with a barb-wire fence. Stevens was thrown against the wire and lacerated in a frightful manner. His chest was literally torn to shreds by the barbs, and a number of ugly cuts, some of them a foot long and an inch in depth, covered his legs and body. An ambulance was hastily summoned and the boy was removed to the City Hospital. The horse belonged to J. G. Ghio, of St. Louis. Italia was badly injured, and may never race again.

WE have just received a dispatch from Cleveland, Ohio, conveying the news of the death of Dr. M. W. Hicks, formerly of this State. Dr. Hicks was well known and universally liked, and had it not been for a stroke of paralysis which incapacitated him from handling and developing the colts and fillies that were descended from the band of Flaxtail mares which he brought to California many years ago, there is no doubt but that he would be among the foremost horsemen on this coast and would own a large stock farm. P. J. Shields, of Sacramento, has been appointed administrator of the California estate, which is valued at $13,000.

SANTA ANITA boasts of twenty-nine weanlings this year. Ten are by Emperor of Norfolk, nine by the imported Australian stallion, The Hook, seven by Gano and three by Verano. The colt foaled May 12th should be a crackerjack. He is by Emperor of Norfolk, dam Clara D. Clara D. is the dam of that great race horse, Santiago, and that equally great racemare, Santa Ana. The Hooks are said to be splendid lookers, and they should be race horses, too, for few better-bred horses (or stronger outcrosses) were ever brought to this country than the Australian.

BEFORE G. Valensin left it was learned that, notwithstanding the glowing reports of the terribly fast miles that were written up in the daily newspapers as being made by the Sidneys, there was not a word of truth in them, for Frou-Frou and Fausta had not been driven faster than 2:40 since they came from Stockton, and the yearlings that were trotting fast eighths two months ago were never extended beyond a quarter of a mile at any time. The chances are that unless James Dustin gives them the finishing touches in their education they will not be such phenomenals after all. "There's many a slip 'twixt the mark and the tip," therefore we look for the Sidneys at home to sustain the glory of their sire this year.

MURPHY & HOLLOWAY'S Teuton has broken down again, and has been retired for all time. He has been one of the most remarkable and unfortunate animals on the turf. Fast as the wind, he has broken down half a dozen times just on the eve of some great race. He was the wild Western tip for the Brooklyn two years ago, but misfortune overtook him and his leg went down. This year he was trained for the Suburban, and his owners backed him again. They stood to win almost $150,000, and up to two weeks ago he was in fine condition. He worked a mile and a quarter in 2:09 without being extended. But the trouble came to the surface again a week ago Saturday, and as the case was almost hopeless, he was retired.

THE will of Walker S. Hobart was filed for probate last Tuesday. The executors are John H. Boalt, Charles T. Bridge and James Cross. They allege in the petition for probate that the estate consists of real property in this city and elsewhere in the State, together with personal property, all of which is worth about $3,000,000. The will was executed on April 15th last. The only clause containing a bequest is as follows: "I give, devise and bequeath to my three children all my property, real, personal or mixed, of whatsoever kind and wheresoever situated, to be divided equally, share and share alike." Deceased bestowed upon his executors full power to manage his estate without bonds and to dispose of property without an order from the court. The heirs are: Alice Hobart, aged 21; Walter, aged 19, and Ella, aged 17. It is said that notwithstanding the allegation of the petition, the estate is worth fully $6,000,000.

WM. FIELDWICK has a string of ten trotters at the Bay District track. All of them are looking in the pink of condition, and some of them will be heard from this fall. Beaury Mac, 2:19¾, never looked better, and shows no sign of the lameness that afflicted him last year; he ought to lower his record this fall. In another stall was seen the bay mare Little Alberta, full sister to Little Albert, 2:17¼. A three-year-old stallion by Redwood, 2:27, is very promising, and will make a 2:30 performer. Chas. Kingsley's bay mare Mrs. White is here; she is in foal to Mr. Spreckles' stallion Aptos Wilkes. There are three youngsters belonging to Chas. W. Welby, and one of the best-matched chestnut teams seen in this city belonging to F. M. Day. They have been bred to H. Mansfield's highly-bred trotting stallion, Anteeo Wilkes, and if they enter the 2:30 list this fall—and there can be no doubt of this fact—they will prove a most valuable pair of matrons.

LA FLECHE won the Oaks on June 3d, with The Smew second and Lady Hermit third. La Fleche is a magnificent filly, the property of the philanthropic Baron Hirsch, whose winnings will be entirely given away in charity. She is by St. Simon, out of Quiver, and was bred for the Queen by Col. Sir George Maud at Bushy Paddocks, Hampton Court. She was bought at the sale of royal yearlings about a year ago by Baron Hirsch for $27,500. This was the largest price, with one exception, ever paid for a yearling. She has won nearly every race she has run in. All her winnings have been distributed among various charitable institutions. The earnings of the Baron's other horses are also given away, but it is hoped that those of La Fleche will exceed those of all the others put together. She is a wiry animal, very hard, with perfectly-formed limbs and very free action. She is said to have all the necessary strength in the right places, and to be without an ounce of lumber.

WOODLAND NOTES.—There are several prominent turfmen in Woodland at present who are negotiating for a large number of Yolo-county racers. There is a demand for fast horses, especially runners, and some important sales will probably be made in a few days. J. E. King has sold a Sobrante filly to L. J. Rose, of Sacramento, at a handsome figure. Mrs. George Dinsdale has disposed of the fleet-footed Red Cloud, John Dinsdale having purchased this flyer for $1,000. Sam King has purchased two running mares from John Adams, and will soon have them under training. J. E. King's colt Red Blaze moved a quarter in 0:24½ last week. This is a promising young animal, and Mr. King has refused an offer of $1,000 for him. The visiting turfmen express themselves as being surprised to find that the training track for runners at the fair grounds is not worked into condition for use. The race track has proved to be one of the fastest in the State, and twenty or thirty head of horses will be brought here to be trained for the fall races. —Yolo Democrat.

J. A. MCDONALD, superintendent of Asylum Stock Farm, near San Rafael, for a long time, has decided to strike out in the business of breeding first-class trotters for himself, and, with that object in view, has leased for a good term of years the Foster place, near Hopland, Cal. The ranch contains 2,000 acres of magnificent land, and it is claimed that a better spot could not have been selected in the entire State for the rearing of horses. Mr. McDonald has purchased of G. Valensin the great three-year-old colt Sid Fleet, who, last season as a two-year old, made a record of 2:26½ with only three weeks' work. This son of Sidney and Flight will be the premier stallion on the McDonald farm. Already Mr. M. has secured about thirty royally-bred brood mares, and being a thorough horseman and excellent manager, should soon be in the front ranks of the breeders of trotting stock. On the ranch Mr. McDonald has leased there is a splendid dairy and creamery, while the stallion, broodmare and hay barns alone cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. Alfalfa grows luxuriantly in that section, and altogether the prospect is a beautiful one.

A MONTANA millionaire who sold his stock at auction some time ago was taken aside by a prominent horseman and asked "if he could please tell how it was that he kept out of bankruptcy while owning that lot of ninety horses." For a minute the man of millions was staggered by the audacity of the quiet but earnest-looking questioner, but quickly recovering himself, said: "Well, I really cannot say. I had an idea that I could buy cheap and breed cheap and by —— sir, I see this loud-mouthed auctioneer and every one else says they must be sold cheap. They have cost me more trouble and money in the past few years than all my mines and other business ventures. I suppose I would be a bankrupt if I continued in the horse business, for I see that I began wrong. That's a business that is not governed by bull luck, and a man must devote his whole time to it when he gets a good start. I admit I am a dismal failure at it."

A. H. MOORE, of Colmar, Pa., who in the last six months has invested more than a quarter of a million of dollars in trotters, and from his first purchase it was evident that he wanted nothing but the best, has recently perfected arrangements for the services for five years of the only Splan, who will have entire charge of his horses in training, with the exception of Annorean, 2, 2:26½, who is in Doble's hands; Mambrino Maid, 2:15¼, that is in the stables of John Goldsmith, and Lizzie Mack, 2:24, who will be worked by Tom Grady, of Philadelphia, they having been placed prior to the date of securing the services of Mr. Splan. His string will embrace some of the best in the land, including Palo Alto Belle, 2:22½, Margaret S., 2:12½, Position, 3, 2:22¼, and others of rare breeding. Mr. Splan, with his entire household effects, including "Little Splan," will move to their new home in the autumn, where a residence well suited to the genial pair will await them.

A CHICAGO dispatch, dated Tuesday, June 7th, says: "John H. Mackey and Miss Henrietta Louise Peter, both of San Francisco, were married here to-night. Mackey's name is familiar to most people, but especially so in turf circles, his father John Mackey being the manager of J. B. Haggin's Rancho del Paso stud near Sacramento. The bride, a charming brunette, is the daughter of Mrs. S. Peter of 804 Van Ness avenue, San Francisco, and also niece by marriage of J. C. Gemmer of the United States Brewing Company of Chicago. The wedding took place from the Gemmer residence, 347 North Clark street, this evening at seven o'clock. It was a private affair, invitations being limited to a few of her kinsfolk who live there. To-morrow evening, the happy couple will leave for New York, where Mr. Mackey has to attend the sale of Haggin's yearlings, after which they will take a trip to Kentucky and Florida, to return to California in September, where they will reside. Ms. Mackey is a clever young man, being an expert horseman and a pleasant writer on turf matmatters as well. In San Francisco he was for some time connected with the Examiner, and going to New York wrote occasionally in a most entertaining manner for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, under the non de plume of "Salvator." We wish the young couple all the success in life possible.

BEAUTIFUL indeed as a work of art and remindful of California always is the present of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association to its much-esteemed starter of 1892, James B. Ferguson, of Lexington, Ky. The work of art referred to is a magnificent golden goblet some ten inches in height, with satin-finished exterior and burnished interior. On one side is engraved a likeness of the popular Kentuckian, flag in hand, and standing upon the familiar platform in front of a well-bunched field of gallopers who are just about to be sent on their journey in quest of glory and coin. The work is worthy of any artist in the land, the figures being as life-like as the hand of an engraver can make them. On the reverse side is the inscription, "James B. Ferguson, From the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association, Spring Meeting, 1892." This beautiful cup was made by A. Hirschman, and reflects great credit on the Sutter-street jeweler. It is encased in a very pretty affair lined with gray plush, and is entirely in keeping with the general excellence of things. The present was forwarded to Col. Ferguson the latter part of this week, and that it will be appreciated goes without saying.

JUDGE GILDERSLEEVE, in the Superior Court of New York, June 6th., overruled the demurrer of the Coney Island Jockey Club to the complaint of Edward Corrigan, that the club would not let his horse Huron run in the Futurity Stakes last year until he got a mandatory injunction from Judge McAdams. His horse finished second and the club refused to give him the money won by Huron or to accept an entry from him. He brought suit against the club to compel it to pay second money to Huron and to accept further entries, and there was interposed a demurrer on the ground that the club was a private corporation and need only accept such entries as it chose. Counsel for plaintiff claimed that under the Ives pool law, which gives a club the special privilege of pool-selling and bookmaking at its track, the defendant could not avail itself of the plea that the club was a private corporation. Counsel for defendant argued in support of the dumurrer. Judge Gildersleeve, in overruling the dumurrer, held that it was sufficient to decide that as a part of the complaint demands money judgment, it is not demurrable. The complaint is good in law.

WE received a pleasant call last Saturday from T. P. Judson, of Grant's Pass, Or. Mr. J. reports a boom in the horse industry in his section of Oregon. The district fair will be held in Roseburg this year, instead of at Central Point. Roseburg is a lively town of 2,000 inhabitants. Grant's Pass is but eight years old, and contains 2,200 people. Within her limits is a half-mile track, and one of the safest and fastest in the Webfoot State. It was built by four men—H. C. Kinney, H. B. Miller, Dr. F. W. VanDyke and T. P. Judson—and the general excellence of this race course has done much to attract attention to Grant's Pass and to build it up to its present proportions. Dr. Van Dyke's stallion Adrian, by Adirondack, who has enjoyed some little reputation as a trotter, has gone to pacing, and will make a fast side-wheeler, it is thought. H. R. Miller has a two-year-old, full brother to Oregon's champion stallion trotter, Altao, 2:22½. Mr. Judson's fast standard mare Adriana, by Adirondack, dam by Hambletonian Mambrino, on the 2d of May foaled a fine colt by Tom V. (brother to Sister V., 2:18½), by Sidney—Nettie Lambert, by John Nelson 187. A most promising youngster is an eighteen-months-old colt in the Judson stable, by Altamont 3600, dam Satinet, by Graduate. He has already shown better than a three-minute gait. Satinet has been sent to Jay Beach's place in Vancouver, Wash., and that famous horseman thinks the mare will go into the charmed circle easily during the coming season.

Paola—Palo Alto—Dame Winnie.—Last Saturday was a great day for Palo Alto, for Dame Winnie and incidentally. for Piedmont. For the Rancho Palo Alto as every one of the debutantes succeeded in making the mark which places them in the list, and that on their first appearance and guided by drivers which have had them in charge for some time, Some weeks ago, writing of the new methods which have been inaugurated at Palo Alto, I prophesied that it would prove a wise deviation, and this, the first time it has been put in practice, supported that view. All of the horses which gained a record were driven by the men who have trained them and all four succeeded in their aim. Two Electioneers were added to the century which marked the number at the close of 1891, two Piedmonts and a Norval from a Piedmont mare, and by the way it is surely safe to prophesy, that hereafter the Piedmonts will occupy a prominent place in the trotting history of Palo Alto. The Electioneers have been so prominent that all others were cast in the shadow, and as the shadow is always the deepest when the light is close by, the get of the other Palo Alto stallions were thrown into the back-ground. Then, too, the arrangement whereby each trainer has the sole control of his string, will give a better chance to bring them all out. There will be a strong desire to have all which are under their charge do well, and as the Electioneer colts are decreasing in numbers from year to year others will have a better opportunity. The public interest will be the most strongly attracted by the young stallions by Electioneer, and which is likely to be the successor to the dead emperor, a question which will elicit any amount of discussion for years to come. In connection with that, last Saturday gave a point which is well worthy of consideration. Paola trotted in 2:30¼, 2:30, losing the second heat to Laura R., by Electioneer, in 2:28¾. This gives Dame Winnie four in the list, and with her son, Palo Alto, wearing the stallion championship, mark her as one of the greatest of great broodmares. The family being so highly endowed with trotting speed is an augury that the gift will be perpetuated, and still stronger indications are presented by the get of Palo Alto. One of the fastest yearlings at Palo Alto is a daughter of the champion, and if no bad luck comes in her way it is nearly a "moral certainty" that she will come very near the top notch before the year closes. The oldest were foaled in 1890 and there are only two of that age in training at Palo Alto, and both of these give promise of being worthy descendants of a great sire. Then there is another point in favor of a son of Dame Winnie, making good his title to the crown. Alcantara and Alcyone trace to Fanny G., by imp. Margrave, the intervening links being Mambrino Patchen and imp. Australian. Dame Winnie goes to the same source, Planet and imp. Glencoe filling the gap. Alcantara is the sire of thirteen trotters with race records of 2:25 or better and Alcyone has twelve in the same list. No other son of George Wilkes can show as many as Alcantara, and Red Wilkes is "on a tie" with Alcyone. The grandam of Nutwood was by Boston, and Boston is the grandsire of Dame Winnie. Nutwood has nineteen in that list which is certainly a severe test as all the records were made in actual races, and according to the Kentucky Stock Farm, from which the information is obtained, there are only twenty sires which are eligible. But vaticinate as we may, and gather all the victorious lines in the genealogy, at the best it is only guessing. There will be many contestants for the crown on the home farm—Azmoor with the flying Rowena at the first offset. Whips, with Navidad and Warlock, and had Hickok's Whips' colt got to a race, there is scarcely a question that he would have knocked all the "green" records out. The Electricity youngsters are marching towards the pathway of glory, and then the Advertisers, Amigos, Trumans and others which are not likely to wear the title of pretenders. Even when it is conceded that a Palo Alto-bred Electioneer should be the legitimate successor, two of the outsiders will surely make a stubborn fight. Anteeo and Albert W. being in the melee with valiant troops at their service, and those which have left the place of their nativity will not be claimants of the Tichborne order. Ansel will be in the list with Lexington for a slogan; Chimes goes into the battle with a big clan at his back, and of the same set are the other sons of the famous matron which will not be thrust aside in the race, and, judging from what I saw at Meadville—the sons and daughters of St. Bel—the second generation is very likely to excel the first. And why not? Mont Rose, the granddaughter of Beautiful Bells, is the fastest of the tribe, and that made when a three-year-old, so that her 2:18 means more than the figures express. It would be tedious to mention all the sons of Electioneer which stand a good show, but even in a brief rehearsal it will not do to omit the names of Norval, Eros and Sphinx which have already presented tokens of "potency" which cannot be passed. And in canvassing the claims of candidates, it must be distinctly kept in remembrance that opportunity will be an important factor in fixing the status. That those which are fortunate enough to be located on the big establishments will have far superior advantages, cannot be controverted, and, in all probability, the premier will represent one of the model places.

The unparalleled success which attended Palo Alto while Mr. Marvin was the president and chief instructor of the college, led to the belief that his resignation would be disastrous to future operations. That Marvin is justly entitled to a full share of the honor, cannot be denied by anyone who will be guided by common sense and is governed by candor, but at the same time it does not follow that no one else is capable. When it was publicly announced that there would be no "head trainer" employed, there were still louder protestations and dire prophesies that the glory had departed from the big ranch on the banks of the San Francisquita, and that it was utterly out of the question that it could prosper under such adverse conditions. The favorable opening at San Jose last Saturday is an augury that these pessimistic prophecies would not be sustained, and though so small a skirmish cannot be accepted as a sure premonition of victory gained when the main battles are fought, it is a good omen. An account of the trotting will be found in another department of this paper.

The Dam of Manette.—While in the East, and since my return, I have been frequently questioned in regard to the claim which J. W. Knox has lately formulated, that Addie was not the dam of Manette. In the last number of the Kentucky Stock Farm I see that a letter I wrote Mr. Forbes has been published in the Horse Breeder and in which the motives of Mr. Knox are questioned, and my belief that the first statement, and that reiterated from time to time, by Mr. Knox is correct. For certain reasons I have not as yet made public the evidence from which I have come to the above conclusions, but will do so in this department of the Breeder and Sportsman the coming week, and I have not the least hesitancy in writing that these are the only conclusions that the evidence will justify.

"Putting up Jockeys."—While in Chicago I had the pleasure of meeting Col. Lewis C. Clark, the presiding judge of Garfield Park. Though the interviews were brief, a few minutes at a time between the races on two days at the above-named race course, I was impressed with the great knowledge he possessed in relation to racing affairs. He has seen the best side of European racing and been on terms of intimacy with the famous turfmen of Great Britain and the Continent. Keenly appreciating what he saw and heard, an enthusiast in all pertaining to the royal sport, it could not be otherwise than that his experience should tend toward advancing the depending interests in his own country. The history of the Louisville Jockey Club from the time Col. Clark became the governing spirit, proves how beneficial his administration has been to his own state and others which have followed the guide of Churchill Downs. I would not detract an iota from the well-merited fame of a person who has done so much for the good of the turf, and in differing with him in some points, concede that he makes a strong argument in favor of the methods he pursues. The points of variance between the Colonel and myself are, first the changing of jockeys before the race and accepting the betting rates as conclusive evidence of the intentions of managers of racehorses. There has, of course, to be some data whereby the intentions can be estimated, and the "state of the odds" offers one of the most tangible elucidations of the question. Should there be good reasons to believe that an animal has a fair chance of winning after all the conditions are fully considered, and the betting intimates that he is far lower in the scale than he should be there is room for suspicion. And yet it is not an infallible test of intention to commit a wrong. Bettors take queer fancies, and horses run "in and out" to the discomfiture of those who put their faith on previous performances, and then the in and out running cannot be traced to pre-determination on the part of those who have the horses in control. Were it an infallible touchstone favorites should never lose, or, at least, an outsider never win, when all of the horses which participate have been before the public a sufficient time to afford a line of comparison. The downfall of "the talent" is the reward of bookmakers and by pitting mathematical chances against the idiosyncracies of bettors the "pull" which justifies the "layers" to pay large sums for the privilege of entering into the contest—the battle between the money of the arithmeticians and the dollars of the cute chaps, with a good number putting on a stake prompted by feeling and sentimentality. Therefore it can be truthfully said, that while the odds offered and taken are, in some cases, a hint of wrong intentions, they will not entirely justify the assumption that fraud is contemplated.

An instance which came under my observation at the late meeting of the Blood Horse Association, will show the fallacy of taking the betting for an absolute criterion. One horse was a decided favorite, the odds being 2 to 3, never larger than that figure. The party which controlled was under suspicion and one of the bookmakers who had been on intimate terms with the owner, marked all the others off his slate and laid against that one alone. It seemed that there must be good grounds for this kind of betting, but when that favorite won it was clear enough that if any compact had been made the pencillers had been victimized. Had the jockey been changed it would have been cited in evidence of the justness of the rule. In his great anxiety to secure "honest racing" it appears to me that Colonel Clark has gone to an extreme, and in the efforts to ensure a horse being ridden to win if he can, a reproach is cast on the parties who have charge, an undeserved stigma which lowers the man and also tends to lower the standard of racing. When spectators see jockey after jockey changed, the only plea in justification of that course being suspected fraudulent intent, they must come to the conclusion that the "rottenness of the turf" has not been overdrawn. Many will also reason that there must be a far greater number of "jobs" than those which are detected before the opportunity is offered to make them successful, and therefore the whole business is corrupt and every man engaged in it some degree lower than a highwayman. If a nefarious job were actually planned the plotters escape punishment when a jockey is put up by the judges. In case their horse wins they are only out the sums betted against his winning, less the amount of the purse. Should he lose they are protected. But if the state of the odds justified the changing of jockeys it would also be a link in the chain of evidence necessary to convict and were that supported by suspicious jockeyship than the penalty could be inflicted and the turf forever rid of this promoter of villainy. In one case he is left to plan and plot, and in the other he is banished to where he must seek other opportunities for his cunning to make it profitable, other fields to pursue his trickories upon. Smart fellows, indeed, are those gipsies of the turf, and up to any scheme which gives promise of profit. Fear of punishment is all that keeps them from committing depredations, and were the change of jockeys confined to that class of—not turfmen, turf-pirates is a better term—no harm would follow. Better yet, however, to let them show their hand and get shut of them for good. When in Chicago I heard of one of their projects which was carried through successfully; not once, but several times, according to the relator. The plan was to get a good horse in a race where his chances to win were favorable if the jockey were capable. A stable boy, and a poor one at that, was billed to ride, and, as a natural consequence, the odds were longer against him. When the money was placed one of the confederates entered a complaint that the horse was not "meant," pointing to the long odds as corroborative proof of the charge. Down came the stable boy, up went the jockey, and out came the horse in front. The losses in these cases fell on the bookmakers, and the schemers were triumphant.

Col. Clark has an admirable system of guarding against rascality. A "form book" which shows at a glance what the horses have done under certain conditions, even to the manner of running, whether whip and spurs were worn, and all the other minutia necessary for a correct understanding of what it would be impossible to carry in the memory. A capital judge he assuredly is, and his good qualities far overbalance what some may term cranky notions. At the same time he might be equally as good if he had a little more faith in human nature, and depend more on conciliation, more on a light tension of the rein than a strong pull with the curb chain drawn tight.

The Oakland Track.—The first racecourse I ever set my feet on in California had a sign over the entrance gate which bore the title of the "Oakland Trotting Park." That was on a bright April morning 1874, and it struck me then as being one of the most admirable places for a track and race course I had ever seen. There are many admirable locations in California which have been utilized in that way and not a few of them which it is extremely difficult to award a preference, and yet when all things are taken into consideration I will be compelled to adhere to my first belief that it is entitled to the garland. That is when the premium depends on natural advantages. Notwithstanding the beauty of location it had a desolate appearance when I started on the Eastern trip the last day of April. The house had been deserted for several months prior to that time, and everything gave evidence of there being no one to care for it. A general dilapidation, and no place has a more dreary woe-begone look than a racecourse and its adjuncts when going to the bad. I learned in Chicago that the place had been rented for a term of years, and from my knowledge of the lessor looked for a general cleaning up, but favorable as the impression was, did not anticipate that so much would be done in the short time that has elapsed since the lease was obtained. Great changes, indeed, for the better, and contemplated improvements which will bring the artificial in harmony with the natural. These I will describe hereafter as when carried out it will be a great benefit to the horse-breeding interests of this coast. There is to an opening to-day, an informal house-warming, when visitors can judge for themselves what can be expected in the future. If the well wishes of the community avail Mr. Ben Wright can surely look for substantial support.

Good Words for Goldsmith's String.—While in Chicago I met Mr. Ijams, who had just come from Terre Haute, and asked him what he thought of the appearances of the horses under Goldsmith's charges. "The best-looking lot, taking them altogether, I ever saw," was his reply, and further questioning elicited the response that they were so uniformly good that he could scarcely determine which he most fancied. That was only a few days after their arrival, and he was nearly as much surprised by them showing no bad results from their long journey as their high form. That a few months will add another surprise I have not the least doubt, and the best of all eulogies, races won in good company be annexed to form and breeding. Assuming that they pass through the ordeal of change of climate without injury, there is little fear that they will be another feather in the plume which waves over California-bred horses. Wm. H. Doble, Budd Doble's father, corroborated Mr. Ijam's estimate, and the veteran who has been so intimately connected with trotting affairs for more than half a century was enthusiastic in his praises. The last time I saw Mr. Doble was at Buffalo in 1872, nearly twenty years ago, and Time has certainly touched him with a gentle hand. There appears to be a magical influence, so far as "green old age" is concerned, in a close association with horses, trotters especially. That implies plenty of out-door exercise and enough excitement to keep the blood from stagnating; and there is also a healthy stimulus in recalling the stirring scenes of long, long ago. Mr. Doble is 76 years old; it would be better to repeat the apt reply of an octogenarian, that he was 76 years young, as there are plenty of men a score or more years younger who are old in comparison.

TWO LETTERS.

No 1.

Culpepper, Va., May 6, 1892.

Joseph Cairn Simpson, Esq.—

Dear Sir: Thanks for copy of Breeder and Sportsman of April 30, 1892, containing your interesting comments on my letter to you, as well as your entertaining comments on horse-breeding, in which you seem to me to diverge slightly from trotting horse breeding.

I have always regarded and treated the subject of trotting horse breeding in the light of one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of American industries certainly the greatest animal industry in, and almost peculiar, to America—and in this view I regard the permanent establishment of a breed that can be relied upon, with uniformity to trot at a reasonably high rate of speed—say 2:30 or better—and of so defined trotting instinct and conformation as to reproduce characteristics with uniformity when interbred with each other, and even to impress them to a marked degree on their progeny when crossed on less defined types as more important, financially considered, than the production of "the two minute trotter"—if his should be the sporadic case of extreme speed.

Our foreign market for horses of an established breed of even medium speed (for American trotters), so long as the rate simply excelled that of other countries, would far more than compensate in the aggregate receipts for our product the immense return to be reaped by the fortunate breeder of the two minute horse; and, in my humble judgment, the man who "neither looks to the right nor looks to the left," but keeps in "de middle ob de road," adhering to the highest bred of the recognized, tested and approved trotting material at present available, will have more chances to win the two-minute prize than any one now living would have who should undertake to lay and build upon new foundations.

In 150 years or so a type might be established from purely thoroughbred (running-bred) ancestors that would prefer the trot to the running gait by persistent training in each generation, and I hope you may live long enough to see the result of the experiment! I wouldn't like so long a lease of life myself, though if we had the money requisite for the satisfactory trial of the experiment, we could have lots of fun, and could help the harness and wagon makers no little; and, if we got tired waiting for our results, we could drive over occasionally to the farm of some old-line "trotting-blood-in-the-trotter" crank and see a trotter.

I fully concur with you in the general superiority in beauty and finish of the thoroughbred, but I hope some day to get you here and have you admit on your return that the most beautiful individual equine of your acquaintance was a deeply trotting-bred trotter.

Yours sincerely, Fontaine A. Daingerfield.

THE MISTAKE OF JOSEPH.

[To the Editor of the Kentucky Stock Farm].

Culpepper, Va., May 18—I was greatly surprised at seeing a private letter written by me to Joseph Cairn Simpson, Esq., published in the Breeder and Sportsman, California, of April 30, with Mr. Simpson's interesting comments and criticism. And I was not a little amused at seeing it reproduced (probably only as an introductory to Mr. Simpson's entertaining article to which it furnished "the text") in the Stock Farm of the 12th inst.

From Mr. Simpson's present standpoint of confidence that the future will sustain the "running purist the strictly-thoroughbred-trotting horse theorists"—he has in the past made some mistakes for which he must now be sorry. For instance, he bred Columbine to the intensely trotting-bred Electioneer Hambletonian, Clay and double Bellfounder, obtaining as results only the trotting plugs Anteeo, 2:16¼, and Antevolo, 2:19¾, when he could just as conveniently have bred her to Norfolk, with his Lexington-Glencoe, or Wild-Idle, with his Australian-Lexington-Glencoe, pure thoroughbred-trotting (?) lineage.

Then, again in this morganatic alliance of their dam Columbine, he established a bad precedent to be followed by her sons and grandsons; for Anteeo has further degraded the family by siring his best and fastest son, James Madison, 2:17¼, from a union with Lucy Patchen by the intensely trotting-bred horse George M. Patchen 31, and his son, Anteeo Jr., has begotten his first 2:30 performer, Hailstorm, from a mating with Star, another mare by the same horse.

Verily it seems that "the sins of the fathers are to be visited upon the children to the third and fourth generations!"

Possibly, if Columbine had been bred to the patricians Norfolk or Wild Idle, her sons would never have made the morganatic alliances alluded to with the disastrous (?) results recorded.

FOXHALL A. DAINGERFIELD.

No. 1 was sent to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN office and forwarded to Chicago, where I received it on my way home. No. 2 I cut from the Kentucky Stock Farm of late date, One of the mysterious things in connection with controversies in which the breeding of fast trotters is the foundation, is the promptness of those who advocate the side of the question which Captain Daingerfield espouses to fly from argument to invective, ridicule, or some sort of rhetorical display. In the past personal abuse was thought to be an effective weapon, and though, happily, that has given place to better methods, there is a tendency to fly from the track, a desire to twist into uncouth shapes, the evidence presented, and give a different color than that which the testimony justified. That there was nothing to warrant the construction put upon the article to which Captain Daingerfield refers in his letter No. 2 the readers of this paper and the Kentucky Stock Farm can testify, and certainly there was no violation of etiquette in publishing a letter that was as well written as the one copied, and without a mark to indicate that it was not intended for publication. There is nothing in letter No. 1 to show that the writer was "surprised" by giving publicity to his first communication, or that he was "amused" by the application. It was simply this, that in my estimation a young man who had had plenty of means, plenty of enthusiasm, a still greater quantity of determination and also more bountifully supplied with an obstinate resolve to carry his plans to a successful termination, would succeed in producing fast trotters from a strictly thoroughbred foundation. That during the pendency of the experimental stage there would be a good show to cover expenses, in fact, more than an even chance to make money if the business was conducted with knowledge and skill. There was nothing in the article to imply that part-bred mares should be bred to thoroughbred stallions, and therefore I did not make a mistake in breeding Columbine to Electioneer in preference to Norfolk or Wildidle, according to the tenor of that article. The progeny of either the last-named stallions from Columbine, if trotting speed were lacking, would not bring more than good looks—which it would be reasonable to expect—would justify; if from a thoroughbred mare there would be a certain market at a good price.

The comments in letter No. 1 are to the point, expressing the views of the writer clearly and without offensive additions. Inasmuch as it was written on one side of the paper, properly paged, etc., I accept it as intended for publication, and it would have appeared sooner but for the delay incurred by remailing.

JOS. CAIRN SIMPSON.

A Great Order.

The Manhattan Food Company, doing business at 623 Howard street, this city, has just received from Chicago an order by telegraph for a carload of their celebrated Red Ball Brand food, to be shipped at once. The California product, like our horses, is getting to be very popular at the East, and it deserves to be, for it is a good thing.

COSTA RICA, the Santa Anita cast-off, landed first money again at St. Louis on Thursday last.

YO TAMBIEN keeps up her victorious march. Last Thursday the daughter of Joe Hooker and Marion won another mile race at Latonia in fast time, making her fourth successive win.

JAMES TAYLOR, of Rochester, once owned Manon, 2:21, and Manette, the dam of the $125,000 Arion. He bought them from J. W. Knox, paying $500 for Manon, and exchanged a cow for Manette.

COL. LAWRENCE KIP, of New York, has sold his celebrated road team, Fastroda and Mary Wilkes, to W. R. Allen, of St. Louis, for $6,000. This is the team that beat Belle Hamlin and Justina in a show ring last winter.

DAN MCCARTY is said to have been so "sweet" on Bernardo's chances in the Garfield Derby, booked for to-day, that he offered to bet any amount up to $1,000 on the Cheviot gelding against any named horse in the race. If Wadsworth starts he ought to win, for he hasn't lost this season as yet.

RACING by electric light is no longer an experiment but is now an established fact. The trial at South Side Park last Thursday night was an unqualified success, and all those present were delighted at the results achieved. The system used at South Side Park is the incandescent one. The lights are placed in bunches of four's and are distributed all around the track, there being over 400 used. It was feared that the lights would throw a shadow but they are muzzled in such a way as to prevent this. It is the intention of the management of South Side Park to introduce the new feature as soon as possible, and night racing will be begun just as soon as the park is completed and the track is fit to race on. Night racing will also be continued all through the hot summer months and there is little doubt but that this new racing innovation will be warmly welcomed by the race-going public of St. Louis.—Sporting News.

MARVIN expects to do wonders with the Electioneer-Beautiful Bells family, and there is bound to be a great boom in that line. C. J. Hamlin is developing the get of Chimes in a manner that never marked the training of the Mambrino Kings and Almonts. Marvin has three of the get of Beautiful Bells in training, besides many youngsters by her dead son, St. Bel. In Belleflower, 2:24¾, he has a good and consistent trotter. He hopes to beat the 3-year-old record of Bell Boy, 2:19¼, before the season closes, but if that is the limit of her speed she will never head Chimes Girl at Hartford, judging from the way the Village Farm filly is moving along now. He also has Electric Bell, that will be trained for a record, and the yearling Bellsire, that will be asked to trot in 2:30 or better this season. Mr. Marvin has great faith in Cecilian, 2:22 at two years old, proving a great race horse, and he has a phenomenal filly in Antilla, by Ansel, out of a daughter of Gen. Benton.

HOOF-BEATS.

D. J. MCCARTY will send a number of trotters to the Oakland race track next week.

PROF. THOMAS BOWHILL, M. R. C. V. S., has returned to this city after a prolonged visit to Europe.

M. F. DWYER has changed his colors, and hereafter his horses will race under "all white with a gold tassel."

WALLACE MENDENHALL, of Pleasanton, is attending to the clerical duties of the Valensin Farm in Mr. Valensin's absence.

THE Palo Alto people think the coming great cross for the production of world-beating trotters is the Electioneer—Piedmont.

DR. F. A. NIEF, the popular veterinarian, is among us again after a stay of two or three years in England and on "the Continent."

FRANK FRATES and T. R. Muir of Ione, Amador County, have been commissioned Directors of Agricultural District No. 26 by Govenor Markham.

THE fifth payment in the Golden Gate Fair Association Futurity Purse of 1893 will be due on the 15th inst. There were 37 fourth payments made last January.

DR. KNAPP, the well-known pigeon shot and owner of Sir Walter, gave Garrison $2,000 after he had ridden his colt to victory in the Great American Stakes.

NELSON STOCKTON and Ed. Rene have quite a good trotter at San Jose. He is called Ed. Rene, and will be observed in the company of 2:30 aspirants this fall.

ELECTIONEER's 2:30 list was not only swelled to the extent of two last Saturday at San Jose, but the dam of Wavelet, by Piedmont, was a daughter of Electioneer and half-sister to Waxana, dam of Sunol, being out of Waxy, by Lexington.

TEN sons and daughters of the California-bred horse Bishop sold at auction in New York on June 2d for $10,150, an average of $1,015. The youngsters auctioned off were the property of Mrs. James Franklin and Dr. Franklin, of Gallatin, Tenn.

WM. MURRY arrived at Pleasanton last week from Grayson Stanislaus County. He has a stable of young trotters from L. R. Richards' place. Most of them are by that breeder's famous horse Elector. These youngsters will receive a course of training at the track.

WM. J. FROST, formerly of Petaluma, but now at Lompoc, has quite a string of horses; among them is the pacer Keno R., that may get in the 2:30 list if nothing happens. Mr. Frost reports everything booming in the horse line and that there are about thirty trotters and pacers there.

CAMPBELL's Electioneer, 2:17¾, that J. J. Conley bought at Woodard's for $15,000, was not bought for Briar Hill Farm, but for a gentleman in Rhode Island, and has been shipped to his new owner. There were negotiations pending in Kentucky, but his owner concluded to stand him in East.

A MARE thirty-one years old was bred two years ago to a Wilkes stallion in New Hampshire, and produced a foal. She was bred back to the same stallion last year, and was heavy in foal, when she was taken sick and died. The cases where mares can be gotten in foal at such an age are very rare.

P. J. WILLIAMS started from San Jose for Salt Lake and the Montana circuit last Monday. His string is a small one and consists of the handsome trotter Silver Bow, 2:22½, the filly Leap Year and the Silver Bow-Maud Singleton yearling that has been astonishing the talent by the way it trots.

HUSSAR, 2:20½, the six-year-old son of Jersey Wilkes, was placed in Orrin Hickok's hands this week by Edgewood Farm to be campaigned by that great reinsman, who will have good material in Hussar, who made his record in a race last season and has been brought to fine condition by Rody Patterson.

WM. H. MCMANUS' fine trotting stallion Billy M., by Steinway, 2:25¾, out of Mollie G., by Pinole Patchen; second dam by Young Niagara; third dam by Don Juan, is at the Bay District track. He trotted in 2:36 last week, and will be another one of the Steinway family to swell the list this fall.

TWO CALIFORNIANS dashed under the wire first at St. Louis last Wednesday—Sir Carr and the celebrated Al Farrow. The former, by imp. Cyrus—Jennie D., was recently purchased of Jesse D. Carr by William Murry, of Sacramento. His win was at four and a half furlongs; Al Farrow's at three-quarters of a mile.

J. M. CAPPS, of Modesto, is working Belle R. at Sacramento. She is a three-year-old by Elector, dam thoroughbred. Her owner is Sam Broils, a farmer at Modesto. The mare has had but little work yet, but shows good qualities, and when she gets used to her surroundings will be fast, it is thought.

THE mares Hazel and Una Wilkes are moving quarters in 34 seconds, and doing it in a way that is very fetching. Brignoli Wilkes since coming into Mr. Goldsmith's hands has been straightened out, is now moving like a trotter, and bids fair to be more than a good horse this year.—Terre Haute Cor. The Horseman.

THE hoofs of a stallion colt must be looked after more carefully than those of other colts. He is early placed in confinement and kept there, so that his feet have no chance to grow naturally. This class of horses is, therefore, more apt to have unsound feet than others. A horse without sound feet can accomplish little.

LAST Saturday two California horses were successful at St. Louis. Oregon Eclipse won a six-furlong dash, with another Golden Gater, Tim Murphy, in the place, while Costa Rica, a Santa Anita cast-off, captured the coin in a race of seven furlongs. At Latonia, Yo Tambien won a mile dash in good time and from a fine field.

THE kite-shaped track on the farm of the Maple Valley Association, near Kirkwood, Del., has been completed. A two-inch pipe all around the inner line of the track is provided with spray nozzles, by which the entire course can be sprinkled in a few minutes. The farm has box-stall accommodations for nearly two hundred horses.

AMONG the arrivals by the Monowai was J. A. Roberts, a well-known Sydney sportsman, and a commissioner from New South Wales to the Chicago Exposition. He is in search of blooded trotting stock for the colonies, and was the first man to introduce American trotters into Australia. Mr. Roberts has fixed his headquarters at the Baldwin.

AT THE Tattersall's sale of thoroughbreds in New York on the night of June 2d a yearling brother to Freeland (by Longfellow out of Belle Knight) brought $9,000, Brewer F. A. Ehret, of New York, being the purchaser. A yearling brother to Longstreet (by Longfellow—Semper Idem) brought $6,000, and Mr. Ehret secured him also.

ANOTHER close relation of Electioneer 125 got into the list on May 30th, making a record of 2:30 in the fourth heat of a trotting race at Morrisania, N. Y., in which there were nine starters. The trotter we refer to was Chimes Boy, by Chimes (brother to Bell Boy, Hinda Rose, St. Bel, Belleflower and Bell Bird). The Electioneers are surely "breeding on."

MAUDLIEN, 2:25¾, by Harold (sire of Maud S., 2:08¾), out of Nutula (sister of Nutwood, 2:18¾), by Belmont, and she out of the great Miss Russell, has a bay filly by Mazatlan (son of Electioneer and Rosemont). This pedigree tabulates well. The blood lines of Sunol, Maud S. and Arion are intermingled close up. If there is anything in breeding the filly should trot.

AN ATTRACTIVE speed programme has just been completed by Agricultural District, No. 13, which holds its meeting at Marysville for five days, commencing with August 18th. A new pavilion and judges' stand have recently been erected to accommodate the crowds, which the unusually good programme is expected to attract, over $5,000 being hung up in purses.

JUDGE J. J. CARTER thinks to insure square racing patrol judges are an actual necessity. "If any man comes to me," said Mr. Carter, "and gives me even an intimation that he believes the horse he is backing is 'dead,' I will see that he gets a run for his money, but to ask me alone to watch the movements of every horse in a race, is preposterous. I tell you it keeps me busy in watching for the winning horse."

NOT long since a Hoosier horseman entered a trotting-bred colt in a two-year-old stake, and when the colt was taken up to be broke, the first time he was driven, he started off on as nice a pace as one could wish to see, a gait that he had never previously shown. It would have made any one laugh to see the look of surprise creep over the face of the Hoosier owner, as he said, "a pacer, by gosh! I've made a mistake in the class."

MILLARD SANDERS is doing very well with the horses at the San Mateo Stock Farm. He has some very good material to work on. With two such great generals of the sulky as John A. Goldsmith and he to handle the trotters for this world-renowned farm there can be no doubting the result regarding the descendants of Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, for they will take a more prominent place than ever in the estimation of all lovers of game race horses.

"OLD COPPERBOTTOM was a bay roan, 15½ hands high, fine style, compact as a pony and had all the gaits; a good trotter, fast pacer, fox trot and running walk, and stamped himself in his colts. Old Copperbottom was sired by Old Imported Copperbottom, that was brought to Kentucky from Canada, his dam was by Stump-the-Dealer, and he by old Whip. They were blood bays and good saddle horses in their day." So says W. P. Moner, of Lucille, Montana.

WADSWORTH, the wonderful three-year-old Longfellow-Trophy colt, won the Club Members' Handicap at St. Louis on the 4th inst. from a field composed of such flyers as Aloha, Balgowan, Ethel Gray, Gayoso, Guido, Faithful and Vallera, who finished in the order named. This event was a rich one, having $5,000 added by the association, with $100 each for starters. Wadsworth ran the mile and a quarter in 2:08 flat, and it was his fifth consecutive win of the season. Undoubtedly he is one of the best three-year-olds seen in many a day.

THERE will be a mixed free-for-all pacing and trotting race, a 2:40 trotting race, and a half mile and repeat running race on the Fourth of July at the Salinas track. All races are open to horses in the old Seventh district, consisting of Monterey, San Benito, Santa Cruz and San Louis Obispo countries. There are plenty of good horses in training in these counties, and the several events, for which good purses are offered, should fill well, thus assuring good racing, for which the public will show their appreciation by turning out in large numbers.

BLANDINA, foaled 1858, by Mambriuo Chief 11, dam the Burch mare, dam of Rosalind, 2:21¾, and Donald, 2:27, is the greatest broodmare that has yet existed that has not produced a standard performer. She is the dam of King Rene, 2:30½, Abdallah Pilot, Swigert, Solicitor, Rienzi, Redwood and Barcena. All seven are producers of standard performers, and Barcena, Swigert, King Rene and Abdallah Pilot have each produced performers with records below 2:20. Favorita, by Abdallah 15, is the only mare, aside from Blandina, that has produced four 2:20 producers.

DOCTORS Pierce and Butler recently operated on a stallion, the property of W. Y. Norris, of Minneapolis, Minn., for the cure of stringhalt. The animal was very badly affected in both legs, and when excited would jerk them up to the abdomen. The operation consists of severing the tendon of the peroneus muscle below the hock, and does not necessitate the animal losing a day's work. After the operation the horse walked home sound, and still remains so. This operation has been performed very successfully by German veterinarians, but American veterinarians have been slow in trying the experiment.

THE portrait of Shanghai Mary, dam of Green Mountain Maid, hangs against the wall in the comfortable smoking-room at Stony Ford, a room in which the little clouds have curled above the heads of General Grant, Jay Gould, Gov. Stanford, Robert Bonner and other gentlemen of national fame, and it attracts marked attention. It shows a mare of great quality, of racing lines, and discriminating men concede that Green Mountain Maid would have been less renowned had the bobtail chestnut been lower bred. Harry Clay gave the action, but Shanghai Mary furnished the nerve force and quality necessary to win a place on the trotting throne.

THE GUN.

The Country Club's Bull's-Head.

The Country Club held one of those unique and refreshing events known as "Bull's-head breakfasts" at the Club's preserve in Marin County on Sunday last.

It was one of the most pleasant social events ever held by the club of this nature. Preparations for the event, portended an unusual season of social enjoyment, and the event proved all, and even more, in this respect, than had been anticipated.

It is refreshing to find an occasional protest, against the the custom of the age, in mounting the utilitarian steed and riding it to the destruction of all things truly beautiful. Men are all too much dwarfed, warped and imprisoned by the bonds, customs and duties arising out of the complex relations in which they find themselves, especially in the central magnets of association. Nature has provided within the sea-girt confines of Marin County, and the thoughtful memberbership of the Country Club have seized the opportunity, to there preserve that rugged beauty, which nature ever presents when tossing her hills, as if in protest, to the inanition of the plains.

The fact that within two hours' ride from the city may be found all of those attractive and restful conditions, which, by contrast, are rendered invaluable, is a matter upon which every lover of nature is to be congratulated.

The eight o'clock ferry for Saucelito found Country Club members and guests, numbering in all about sixty-five, bound for the beautiful home of the Club in Marin County. The trip across the bay was enough to thoroughly introduce and ingratiate all into the splendidly-exhilerating feeling of pleasure which ever attends such a gathering of sportsmen.

The train was boarded by the party at Saucelito and was soon flashing along through the beautiful gorges, glens and cañons of the Paper Mill. Beautiful beyond description are the June scenes presented in the hills of California; the verdure of the forest is noted for its varied hues. From the deep, dark green of the laurels and gums the coloring of nature runs through the multiplicity of shades of oak and pine to the rich golden of the maples and willows. The wild flowers color brightly the kaleidoscopic views presented from the car window; now a stretch of valley thickly matted with fresh, sweet grasses with patches of scarlet eschscholtzias and golden mustard, while here and there the bluebells seemed as if a patch of sky had fallen to the earth; then, onward still, dashing through narrow aisles which wind their way through cool, dark shadows of the giant pines. Trees and fences, fern-clad cliffs and mossy banks bedecked with creeping vines and adornedwith nature's delicate laboratories which constantly distill and render free to every passing wind the most subtile of perfumes. The ride of an hour or more along the winding bed of the Paper Mill, pausing a moment at Camp Taylor and other rural resorts, terminated at Point Reyes where some twelve or fifteen carriages and other conveyances met the party and they were speedily whirled away toward their destination—the Club-house of the Country Club.

The beautiful ride of seven miles was greatly enjoyed by all, especially the latter portion of it, which led through the beautiful and strikingly picturesque Bear Valley.

A ride of about three miles up Bear Valley and the journey terminates, as the road leads up a gentle eminence. From the last bend in the roadway, approaching, you catch sight of a red banner, gleaming as it flutters through the trees, from a staff over the club-house, on which are emblazoned in white letters

THE COUNTRY CLUB.

Up through the lawn, which slopes down to the winding roadway from the club-house, through the pines and oaks with which it is studded, the party were driven to be welcomed in person by President Webster and Secretary Quay.

Stretched from the convenient boughs of the trees in the lawn and over the entrance drive was a large banner bearing the motto,

"UNDER THE GREENWOOD TREE."

"Very appropriate." "Very beautiful." "Chosen with good taste," and many kindred expressions were heard from the lips of the visitors as the view of the buildings and grounds burst upon them. The motto expresses it all—"Under the greenwood tree," where freedom unrestrained may disport, where none may intrude to molest or annoy. The great poet who held the key to all of Nature's secret chambers,and beheld, with vision clear, her most sacred charms was doubtless imbued with the force of her subtle power when he gave expression to the words which the club had adopted as their motto. The visitors were taken in hand and in a short space of time a dash of cool, sparkling water washed the dust from the exterior, which was followed by mint juleps galore, which were sent in search of dust, dryness or other foes to ease, that may have lodged in the throats of the new arrivals.

A tour of inspection was then made about the premises. The barn, the garden, the poultry-yard, the kennels, the dairy were seen and found to be all that any well-regulated club could desire, and only such, as such a sportsmen's organization as the Country Club could find any use for. Their stables contain some fourteen horses and any number of light wagons and turnouts, such as are adapted for hunting in the surrounding hills. The kennels contain some fifteen or twenty dogs, all considered, by their respective owners, as being invaluable for field work and good ones in their respective classes. The announcement was then made that breakfast was ready. It struck a responsive chord in every breast (we believe the gastronomic nerve is in the breast, and all drew near to witness the

RESURRECTION OF THE GRUB.

Barney Galindo, the acknowledged chef of all rare Spanish dishes, supervised the unearthing of the bullsheads and placing them upon the tables prepared for the occasion, which were placed in a large tent out on the lawn in front of the club house. This main dish of the festal board was flanked by a splendid and complete Spanish dinner.

During the hour spent in discussing the succulent Spanish viands—and no dishes ever prepared is so conducive to the development of a full-grown appetite—the health of President Webster and Secretary Quay were drunk with that heartiness which carries with it the stamp of the true sportsman's good will.

Coffee and cigars were served when the party had returned to the club-house veranda. The party then divided, some driving down Bear Valley to the ocean, while others visited the State fish hatchery. Some time since Mr. Peter Donahue sent from London some two hundred English pheasant's eggs. Some thirteen of these eggs have already been hatched, being incubated by the motherly instincts of a little bantam hen. When approached the queer little things show their thorough wildness by hiding, each one on its own account, being thoroughly independent of their foster mother, who, at the least unusual noise, finds herself bereft of her strange family.

The New Hampshire trout, caught from the club's trout lake, which lies about eight miles from the club house, were the subject of much admiration on the part of the visitors.

Among those present, the following gentlemen were noticed: President, F. R. Webster; Secretary, J. M. Quay; Messrs. J. M. Adams, W. Alvord, W. Brown, President of the Tamalpais Club; E. L. Bosqui, H. Walker, W. J. Golcher, F. S. Butler, W. Rose, F. W. Tallant, A. C. Tubbs, W. B. Tubbs, H. Veuve, G. Whittell, W. B. Wilshire, Ramon E. Wilson, H. W. Woodard, R. B. Woodland, F. L. Wooster, Judge Shafter, P. Shafter, W. B. Brown, S. C. Buckbee, E. P. Danforth, F. Gray, J. D. Grant, R. R. Grayson, H. E. Hall, Colonel Mole, United States Army; Sewell, Martin, Earle, Grow, Eyre, Boyd, Wheeler, Howard, W. E. Holloway, W. S. Kittle, J. B. Lincoln, R. McMurray, J. J. Moore, W. S. Newhall, L. J. E. Tucker, B. Parrott.

The Recreation Gun Club.

On Sunday last the Recreation Gun Club met at Oakland Track to participate in its fifth monthly event of the season. The day was beautiful, but a strong wind blew directly across the traps from the score line for the hours occupied in shooting the main match and later veered, so that the birds were assisted in their right quartering flight, very materially. The birds were a good average lot and many were the really difficult ones presented through out the day. Owing to the fact that many of the membership of this club were absent on their summer's outing trips and other conflicting engagements, the attendance was not nearly so large as usual, only about one-half of the membership being present. Mr. Wright, the new lessee of the Oakland race track and the shooting grounds was present in person and provided a splendid line of refreshments with a good strong cup of coffee, which new provision of this beverage at luncheon was most heartily enjoyed by all the participants in the match. His efforts in accommodating the shooters at all matches is highly appreciated by the sportsmen and will add much to the pleasure of these occasions.

In the main match of the day, the shooting, all things considered, was well up in the display of skill, usually noticed at the trap.

Kyle led off with a clean score, while Slade and Barney followed in close proximity with eleven kills each. Slade's first barrel kills were the event of the day, he killing his eleven birds handsomely in this manner, his eleventh bird only escaping and that was one which few, if any, even of the most skillful, would have felt seriously at fault in missing. Mr. Barney used his second barrel frequently, but in most instances, only for safety.

The new rule by which this club contests for four prizes each month gave an added interest to the sport of the day. The rule was adopted at last month's meeting and consequently too late to have the prizes present at that contest. On the occasion above referred to the prizes were on hand for the May and June contests as well, the former to be distributed per the score of last month.

"Slade" won the first prize in May and choose from the prizes presented for that month a beautiful pearl handle combination pocket knife. Mr. H. C. Golcher, winner of second prize, chose an embossed flask. Mr. T. R. Barney, third, fishing line and flies. Mr. George Jackson, fourth, fifty Ely's best Selby loaded shells.

The prizes for June consisted of a gentleman's combination toilet set with fine leather case; a fine carving set; a sportsman's combination pocket piece, knife, spoon and extractor; a beautiful pearl handle cork screw.

Kyle, "Slade," Barney and Allen took the prizes in order named. Barney and "Slade" arranging second and third between them by agreement.

Mr. W. A. Allen did some very good work in scoring ten neat kills followed by Uncle Robert Liddle with nine clean kills which is a very commendable score, all things considered. Messrs. Golcher and Jackson were not up to their usual form while Messrs. Randall and Worth each were handicapped by reason of unsuitable guns. Dr. Gere did very well and is improving in his shooting at every meeting of the club. The score.

C. W. Kyle	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2	2—12
T. R. Barney	1	1	0	2	2	2	2	1	2	1	2	1—11
"Slade"	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	0	1—11
W. A. Allen	1	1	0	1	1	1	2	0	1	1	2	1—10
Robt. Liddie	1	0	1	1	2	1	0	1	1	0	2	1— 9
H. C. Golcher	2	2	0	0	1	2	1	0	2	2	0	2— 8
George Jackson	1	0	1	2	0	1	0	1	2	0	1	1— 8
"Randall"	2	1	1	0	0	2	0	2	1	1	0	0— 7
G. G. Gere	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	2	1	1	1	1— 7
"Worth"	0	1	1	0	1	0	0	2	0	1	0	2— 6
"Randall" (May score)	1	2	1	2	2	2	2	0	1	1	1	2—11

After this the prizes were distributed and luncheon enjoyed when pool shooting was indulged in until the afternoon was well spent.

The first pool resulted as follows.

"Randall"	1	2	1	2	2	2—6
"Slade"	2	1	1	1	2	1—6
Golcher	2	2	2	2	2	1—6
Barney	2	0	2	1	2	2—5
Kyle	1	2	1	0	1	1—5

In another pool the scores stood as follows.

Worth	1	1	1	1	1	1—6
Golcher	1	1	2	2	0	1—5
Barney	1	2	2	1	0	0—4
Allen	2	1	1	2	0	0—4
Gere	2	0	1	1	1	0—4
Kyle	0	2	1	2	1	0—4
"Slade"	1	0	0	1	0	1—3

In another pool Golcher took first, Barney, "Randall" and "Slade" standing next with five kills each.

In an eight bird pool, $5 entrance, Barney won first on seven clean kills. "Randall", "Slade" and Golcher taking the balance of the money on six birds each. The wind had increased until it was a merry race, the birds were leading the sportsmen and the pleasure was then brought to a close.

The Lincoln Gun Club.

This, the leading club shooting at inaminate targets, in the West, met at their grounds at Alameda Point on Sunday last to compete for the club's regular prizes. The grounds of the club are situated on a point which is bound by the bay on three sides, and it is but fair to say, that when the wind is lively, which is usually the case, and was especially so on the occasion of the above named meeting, it becomes a large factor in rendering the shooting quite difficult.

The attendance at all of the club's regular meetings for the month have been, and will doubtless continue to be quite light, owing to the fact that many of the sportsmen are taking their outings in the mountains.

The matter of reducing target shooting to a pronounced degree of perfection will be very hard to do on the grounds now used but the erratic motion of occasional birds, when effected by the wind, renders the shooting full of interest.

The leading event of the day was a match at thirty singles and ten pair, resulting as follows:

of guns in this brief space of time; and as Miss Oakley chats pleasantly on, your are surprised to learn that the firing from the head with the barrel downwards is quite as easy to her as looking along the sights from the shoulder. Miss Oakley has given thousands of exhibitions of her skill in all parts of the world, and can boast the possession of no less than forty-one prizes, which comprise medals and guns, representing victories in some fifty matches, and are considered to form one of the finest collections in the world. This keen sportswoman could entertain you with many a hunting episode in pursuit of deer and bear, and of sport with wild boar in Germany, together with descriptions of fancy shooting from bicycle or from horseback. She is a fearless rider—but the sound of the final explosions in the arena close by reminds you that your interview must have already outstretched orninary limits.

The Seattle Tournament.

The eighth annual shooting tournament of the Sportsman's Association of the Northwest will be held at West Seattle on June 16th to 18th inclusive. The programme for the three days presents a number of events which will fill in the time to the very best possible advantage to all who may be so fortunate as to attend.

The list of prizes, as usual, consist of almost every conceivable article under the sun from a $350 trophy down gradually to the foot of the financial unit of value.

There can be no doubt but that a grand season of sport will be enjoyed at that time.

The popular and leading shotgun cartridge house on the Pacific Coast, the Selby Smelting and Lead Company, have prepared and forwarded to the management of the Sportsman's Association of the Northwest, an elegant gold medal to be placed for competition at the tournament of the above-named association which takes place at Seattle on the 16th, 17th and 18th of the present month. The trophy is formed of the representation of two guns crossed and held together by a gold bar at point of crossing on which is engraved the word "Selby" depending from the guns by links appears a plate on which is the figures "1892," and on a bar below, the word "Seattle" from which appears the representation of an inanimate target, while the lower part of the trophy is composed of a beautiful shield on which in enamel appears "First Prize." The inanimate features of the tournament take the lead in numbers, which is very proper when we take into consideration that this is the only way by which the shooting contingent of the country may be materially enlarged. There are, however, several live-bird events arranged for, and the team contests on the third day will undoubtedly be found to be quite interesting.

The firm of Kellogg & Hall, dealers in Gendron Cycles and shotgun cartridges, have removed to 318 Market street, where a spacious store room accomodates their business and gives an opportunity to note the fine stock of wheels which they carry. Any and everything one can desire in the cycling line is here found, and that, too, at such prices as will commend the goods to the public. In addition to their large and varied stock of cycles this firm has on hand a large stock of shotgun cartridges adapted to any purpose at the trap or in the field. For trap work this firm makes a specialty of loading shotgun cartridges according to any formula ordered, using the utmost care in loading to the end that the highest degree of accuracy, evenness of pattern and penetration, may be uniformily attained. Do not fail to call on them. Remember the number, 318 Market street.

The practice of going to the score, or in loading one's gun elsewhere, it is well nigh universal, to close the gun with a sharp quick movement letting the lever or other action snap in place with the full force of the spring. This should not be done as few other matters serve to wrack a gun so much. The proper way is to place your thumb on the lever and with a firm pressure close the gun, letting your lever come more gradually and evenly into its position thus locking the gun. It is most annoying to see one handle a gun recklessly and without regard to its preservation. If you have a good gun you desire to keep it in perfect order. Heed this suggestion, and a good gun will stand by you, with good core, well nigh a life time.

The unequaled satisfaction which has been given and continues to be given, to sportsmen generally, by the use of the Greener gun is a matter upon which the manufacturers of this excellent gun have cause to be congratulated. The E. T. Allen Company, 416 Market street, have coustantly on hand a large assortment of these high grade guns. "These guns are growing in favor every day. They are the best guns for nitro powder because of their superb construction and the high grade of the material used. The wonderful wearing quality and the way the guns are bored to shoot are the principal reasons why sportsmen who want a gun for service and close shooting nearly always choose a Greener."

Captain Bogardus has become quite stirred up about pigeon matters, says Jacob Peutz. He intends to let it be known that he is not out of the race yet. The captain has lately been giving shooting exhibitions at Minneapolis and has issued the following peculiar challenge. The contestants to stand 15 yards rise and shoot at 50 live birds per man, H and T traps, and no bird to count unless killed outside of a circle of ten yards in diameter drawn from a point located between the two traps and equi distant from them in straight line. Any bird killed on the ground to be scored a lost bird. Now there is an opportunity for some one to test the captain's skill.

"I have found out some things about nitro powders," said a practical sportsman to us some time since. "And what have you discovered?" we asked. "Just this," he replied, "and that is, that while I have fired a gun whenever opportunity offered, ever since I was a boy, and have selected and loaded my own ammunition, but I have just discovered that I do not know how to load any of the nitro powders so as to derive from their use the highest and best results.". "After this," he continued, "I shall allow those who make a study of the business to load this class of goods for me."

On July 4th and 5th, the Williamette Rod and Gun Club of Portland, Oregon, will hold a grand tournament. From necessity, owing to the scarcity of birds, their events on that occasion, we are informed, will be largely, if not wholly confined to targets. The events of this club are always of the very first nature and they have long since established a reputation, excelled by none, as entertainers. If you go you will be sure to have a good time.

Fishing in Ceylon Rivers.

River fishing in Ceylon is very little practiced or understood by Europeans in general, says an exchange. To do it successfully means usually to go far a-field "remote from towns," and put up with a number of inconveniences, such, for instance, as sitting for hours in a cramped position in a native canoe, exposed to the glare of the sun, from the water as well as from above, or else crawling along the slimy banks of some river or streamlet, fighting at every step with thorns, insect pests and all sorts of abominations inseparable from the jungle. No pleasant hostelries, where the angler may solace himself after his disappointments, with copious draughts of nut-brown ale, or a cheery chat with mine host or a brother piscator—none of the delicious, soothing influences, which surround the river in dear old country at that season of the year when the angler pursues his sport. No one of these things are present in the "gorgeous East," beautiful in its way, though it undoubtedly is. Most men who belong to the noble army of sportsmen look to the gun and rifle for their amusement, and indeed shooting is, for climatic reasons, more suitable to the country than fishing. It is not so trying to tramp for hours through jungle after elephants, or even through paddy-fields after snipe, as it is to sit still for the same length of time in a little canoe scarcely ten inches wide, which so cramps your limbs that you can scarcely walk when you leave it, and the best river fishing is done from such a canoe. Still, for all that has been said, there is some good fishing in the Ceylon rivers, and in many instances, the sport may be practiced with comfort; and I, for one, can testify to its having afforded me many delightful hours' amusement, making a pleasant change from the eternal snipe and duck slaughtering.

Be it understood I am alluding to the fish purely indigenous to the island, the native fish in fact—not to the trout and carp which have during the last six years or so been introduced into certain streams in the hills from abroad. As to the native fish of Ceylon their name is legion. Not pretending to the smallest scientific knowledge of their natural history, I cannot attempt to do more than describe the appearance and give the native names of a few of those which are most commonly met with.

One of the commonest and most sporting fish is the Pettiya. In appearance and shape it is not unlike a roach; it has a perfectly round jet-black spot near the tail, which distinguishes it from all other native fish, and renders it identifiable at once. This spot is proportionate to the size of the fish, and in a Pettiya of a pound weight, would be as large as a No. 16 gun-wad. It is found in nearly every river and canal—such as are made for the purpose of irrigating paddy-flelds in the law country. The usual baits are plantain, bread-paste, or cocoa-nut kernal; although there ard others which sometimes prove very deadly, of which mention will be made presently. The fish lie close to the bottom as a rule, and need the finest tackle to beguile them. Fine gut collars, hooks of the Pennell-Sneck pattern of sizes, varying from Nos. 1 so 5, according to the ascertained average size of fish in the water, (for the size of Pettiya differs greatly in different places), and a tiny float, will be found necessary for success. I have always found the eyed-hooks of the above size superior to any others.

When hooked, a good Pettiya of 6 oz. or 7 oz. will splash tpe water and run about the pool or river in fine style, and a handsome fellow he is when he is taken out of the water. There his goodness ends, for like most Ceylon river fish, he is worthless on the table. As to the average weight, I should say that it was about 5 oz. I have often taken fish weighing 14 oz. and even 16 oz., never heavier than this; but this has been in certain well-known places where they run large. In irrigation canals and small streams, one has to be content with a great many of 3 oz. and 4 oz.

There are two notable places for Pettiya well-known to me, which will repay the trouble of a visit from any angler intending to go to Ceylon. Of course, there are hundreds of other similar waters, more or less good, but the two in question are not only remarkable, but are easily got at from the capital, Colombo.

The first is on the Kuruganga, some few miles from Colombo. The village of Kurawita is on the main road, and the Kuruganga (river) flows under the bridge at the village. A few hundred yards up the river from the bridge are the Kuruganga Falls. They are, when the river is fairly full, magnificent, and the grand jungle scenery all around the banks of this lovely river would alone be a sufficient charm to one unaccustomed to-view the luxuriance of tropical woodland and vegetation, without the additional pleasure of fishing amid such novel surroundings. Below the falls is a Buddhist Temple, and just under it the river forms a deep pool, and when the water is clear, one can see literally thousands of fish of different sorts in it. There are hundreds of Pettiya of all sizes, and monstrous fish called Layla (I spell the name as it is pronounced in Singhalese), many of the latter run to 8lb. and 10lb., besides other fish which only a naturalist could attempt to classify. It is a sight to see, and one which would never be forgotten. Now the priests of the Temple are very jealous about this pool and the fish in it. Of course, being Buddhist, they strenuously object to the taking of fish, and view the attempt of any angler to catch their pet fish—which they feed morning and evening with rice, plantain, etc.—with extreme displeasure. They have no real right to preserve the fish—there being no ordinance in Ceylon giving such a right—but they go upon long usage and time-honored custom, and it is not advisable in the East for Europeans to trample rudely on native prejudices and traditions.

The other notable place for fishing is on the Maskeliya river near the village of Gillimalle, a few miles only from the foot of the celebrated "Adam's Peak." You continue your journoy from Colombo, in the coach which takes you to Kuruwita, till you arrive at the terminus Ratnapura (City of Gems) some fifty odd miles from Colombo. Having put up at the Government Rest House, you either walk or ride about eight miles along a jungle path until you come to the river, where there is a magnificent pool literally full of fish. It is larger and even more picturesque than the Kuruganga one, and, like it, is close to a Temple, from which the fish get copious supplies of food. I have fished this place scores of times, and have never met with any objection from the priests. You stand on the bridge and fling a large piece of plantain into the river. Immediately from the depth comes up a mighty Layla 8lb. or 10lb. in weight. His great white mouth opens, and down goes the pieces of plantain with a gulp. Another and another piece of the same fruit goes the same way. Now you insert a hook attached to your finest strong gut into a similar bait, and offer it to him. Up he comes again; the white mouth opens; you are trembling with eagerness and excitement. and with a contemptuous glance at the bait and the gut attached to it, down goes Mr. Layla to the bottom, sulky and indignant at having such a palpable fraud offered to him. The cunning of these fish is almost beyond belief. They are far more artful than any fish I have ever encountered in England. Trout are fools compared to them, and even the wily carp would have to receive points from them. They are probably of the carp family I should say, for in shape and color they certainly somewhat resemble them, only they have not got the barbs so highly developed. During all the years I have angled for them and other Ceylon river fish, I have never taken a large Layla—never one over 3½ lbs. or 4 lbs., although in two pools here alluded to, many fish may always be seen of certainly 10lbs. weight, if not heavier. Once only, in the Gillimalle Pool, I hooked with fine tackle a monster, which I estimated at about 12 lbs., but he broke away from me.

Pettiya and other fish abound in this pool, and if there is a little stain in the water good sport may always be relied on using the baits already mentioned.

Some six years ago an animated discussion took place in the Ceylon papers as to whether the Mahsee existed in the island. All sorts of opinions were advanced, and at length the weight of alleged scientific opinion was that the Mahseer was to be found in the rivers, though a far smaller variety than that of India. It was suggested that this fish, the Layla, was a kind of Mahseer, but this is a question for the naturalist, with whose province, as already stated, I never meddle. I only speak of the fish by its native name, and leave its classification to abler hands.

The Layla, perhaps the handsomest of all Ceylon river fish, must be confounded with the Lula, the ugliest and most repulsive-looking of all. It is not unlike a loach with a huge head, altogether out of proportion to its body, which is long, thin and slimy. The best bait for it is the fresh-water or even salt-water prawn. By the way, the prawn is a good all-round bait; it will take any and every sort of fish, and for many kinds it is simply paramount. The Lula is worth mentioning, for hideous though he is, yet for the table he beats all other river or tank fish. If on a shooting or fishing trip you can get a native to catch you some Lula, despise them not—filletted, and seasoned by the hand of an artist, they are excellent.

While alluding to prawns, it may not be uninteresting to describe a singular way the natives have of catching them. Watch a Sinhalese man who wants a few fine prawns. He plucks a long stalk of grass, quite a foot and a half long. With the fibre he deftly makes at the top a tiny loop, a little smaller than that on the gut of a tied-hook which you buy at a shop. He goes to a place where the water is clear, and the surface is unruffled by wind. He either peers over the bank, lying prone on the ground or more commonly softly wades into the water. Presently he sees a fine prawn, which, after jumping forward and backing after the mauner of prawns, keeps fairly still in mid-water. Now is his time. He cautiously and steadily passes the loop at the end of the stalk of grass over the protruding eye of the prawn, gives a little twist with his finger and thumb, and nooses his prey, and takes him kicking and bending the stalk (like salmon-playing in miniature) out of the water, and transfers him to the little bag in his waist-cloth. One would think that in the struggles of the drawn the eye would be pulled out; but this very rarely happens. I have often amused myself with this Liliputian sport. It is not easy, and is very interesting. At a station called Puttalam, in the North-Western Province, there is a jetty running out into the salt-water lake, and under the piers there used to be any amount of fine prawns. Often have I and one of my men waded about under the jetty, when the water has been perfectly calm, and caught a good dish of prawns in this primitive fashion. I do not doubt that many a Ceylon reader of the F. G. has seen it put in practice.

The native rod is made from a frond of the kitul palm, and an excellent rod it is, light and stiff, yet with considerable play in it. No reel is used, but there is always a good bit of line twisted round the top which can be unwound when necessary. For gut, they use a kind of fibre called tangoos; it is coarse and strong, but it does not glitter in the water, and therefore is not very noticeable.

Many years ago I lived in a bungalow overlooking the Kaluganga, near where it runs into the sea at Kalutara, Western Province.

We (i. e., a chum who lived with me, and I) used to keep a canoe at the bottom of the garden, for the purpose of crossing the river for snipe and duck shooting, which we did in the season about six mornings in the week. Of an evening, we would do a bit of fishing in the native style, and rare fun it was. This was the procedure in which we strictly copied the Singhalese fishermen. Taking three native rods and tackle, we baited with prawn, and going a little way up-stream, we threw the lines together with the rods into the river—one in the middle and one on each side, and let them float down with the stream, which was deep, and not at all swift, while we kept the canoe well behind. Presently up would go the butt of one of the rods—be it remembered, they were but short kitul fronds, and very light—and the little rod would begin plunging and jigging in the liveliest manner, when we would paddle up to it and see what was causing the commotion. Sometimes we got a thumping lula, or other fish, the names of which I have now forgotten, and sometimes we lost our prey and the hook too; but we often made good catches and had great fun over it. I have no doubt the native fishermen at that place pursue the same system to this day.

In this river we never took laya, though pettiya and several other kinds were brought to basket. I have never done any good fly-fishing for native fish, though I have often tried it. Occasionally I have taken small pettiya to a fly, but very rarely. Friends of mine have told me that they have had good sport with the fly on certain rivers in the colony, but those streams are not within my knowledge. Legering and patermostering I have seen practiced with a certain amount of success, but have never considered that they were nearly so successful as bait fishing in the ordinary way.

It will be found hard to teach the native man anything, he does not know about catching the fish of his own country, and the more one approximates to his method in the matter of baits and where and how to fish, the more chance there will be of having sport. One important exception of this rule however, must be noted. English rods and tackle are far superior to those of native manufacture. Let the rod be light and stiff, and use the best hooks and gut. The latter may be well preserved by being kept in vaseline smeared papers and placed in well-fitting tin boxes.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

The Norwegian Elk Hound.

Some short time back we received an enquiry from a correspondent relating to the Norwegian Elk Hound, says English Stock-keeper, and since the receipt of the communication in qnestion we have corresponded with Mr. Herbert Dicksee, who, it may be remembered, showed a very fine specimen of the variety, named Norway Fritz, at Cruft's Show, and whose likeness appears on this page. The variety, as Mr. Dicksee very correctly asserts, is extremely rare, even in Norway, and consequently a great deal of uncertainty prevails in this country regarding its merits and appearance. By some it is described as resembling the St. Bernard, but as its weight is only thirty-five pounds, we are inclined to regard it as partaking of the character of a smooth-coated Sheep-dog more closely. Norway Fritz is a very muscular dog, powerfully-built, and low on the leg. His coat is close, and of great densiiy, his skin loose and very thick. He carries his tail over his back, and has large double dewclaws on his hind legs, the dewclaws being considered points of the greatest importance by Norwegian breeders, and in temper he is most affectionate.

Regarding the uses to which Elk Hounds are put in their native country, Mr. Dicksee informs us that the elk-hunters usually take out one hound on a slip, and loose him when the elk breaks covert—owing to the depth of the snow the elk is soon brought to bay by the hound, who informs his master of its whereabouts by his incessant barking. Upon oocaeion Elk Hounds are used for bear-hunting, a class of sport which they are well calculated to assist in, as their courage is very great and their powers of scent enable them to track Bruin for considerable distances. To judge from the likeness of Norway Fritz, the correct shape of ear in the Elk Hound is the "drop" and we feel less hesitation in making this assertion, as Mr. A. Strutt, who was in Norway as special artist upon the occosion of the visit of the Prince of Wales, and who imported the dog is emphatic in his assertion that Norway Fritz is one of tho most typical dogs of the breed in existence.

Sales.

The St. Patrick Greyhound Kennels, Denver, Colo., report the following sales:

Edelweiss, white dog, whelped September 10, 1890, by St. Patrick ex Daisy Dublin to Chas. Barrows, Denver, Colo.

P. D. Q., white dog, red markings, whelped February 8, 1890, by St. Patrick ex Daisy Dublin to F. A. Withers, Pueblo, Colo.

Handy Andy, white dog, whelped September 10, 1890, by St. Patrick ex Daisy Dublin to F. A. Withers, Pueblo, Colo.

Blizzard, white and brindle dog, whelped September 10, 1890, by St. Patrick ex Daiiy Dublin to C. H. Bryon, Pueblo, Colo.

Master B., white and red dog, whelped September 10, 1890, by St. Patrick ex Daisy Dublin to C. H. Bryan, Pueblo, Colo.

Saint, red and white dog, whelped April 27, 1892, by imp. Babazoun ex Daisy B. to R. W. Porter, Longmont, Colo.

Sinner, red and white bitch, whelped April 27, 1892, by imp. Babazoun ex Daisy B. to R. W. Porter, Longmont, Colo.

J. B. Martin, San Francisco, Cal., has sold ———, white and tan fox terrier dog pup, whelped April 21st, by Blemton Shiner ex Sunbeam to G. T. Allender, Watsonville, Cal.

Also, white foxterrier bitch, same litter, to Adolph Spreckles, San Francisco, Cal.

Captain Thos. Higgs last week sold his English setter Earl of Essex (Rover H—Beasy) to S. and W. McKinney, of Olympia, Washington.

Bred.

Wm. Maillard, Boulder Creek, Cal., has bred Guess, fox terrier bitch by Dick—Norwick Belle to J. B. Martin's Blemton Shiner, 14277, at San Francisco, upon June 3rd.

Whelps.

P. D. Nolan's greyhound bitch Valley Queen (Stranger—Jersey Lily) whelped on June 2nd, four puppies to same owner's dog Scout (Monarch II.—Mischief) two dogs and two bitches, all four white and black.

Entries Close.

Entries for the Pacific Coast Field Trials for setter and pointer pups whelped after January 1, 1891, will close June 15th with the secretary, J. M. Kilgarif, 418 California street.

The greyhound men of the Pacific Coast will recall, on mention, Mr. James H. Watson, of New York, the pleasant and interesting gentleman who in company with Dr. Van Hummel made the western coursing circuit two years ago, being present at Merced with the beautiful little fawn bitch, Drytime and be pleased to know that he is still as earnest in his admiration of the sport as ever. Drytime has thrown nine fine pups to Burnaby, being sent to England by Mr. Watson for this purpose. Mr. Watson is reported as saying that he will enter some of the youngsters this fall at Great Bend and probably at Merced, and is only at a loss to select the proper ones to enter, so evenly developed is the entire litter. Speaking of this litter Forest and Stream says: This litter affords any one who would like to run a greyhound in the Great Bend Derby, but who has not good enough material in his kennel, the chance to nominate one of these pups and run it in his his own name. Mr. Watson will pursue the plan that should have been tried before and send his dogs out West in July, so as to be properly seasoned by the time the meeting comes off. In view of this, Royal Crest, that did so well last year, should be able to bring a prize East this year, as it was only the want of condition that stopped him in the Derby last October. Mr. Watson will attend the meetings, and it is again proposed that a special car be secured to Great Bend, and surely there should be enough lovers of the leash in this part of the country willing to go, so as to secure the reduced rate of $50 for return trip.

High-Class and Plug-Shooting Dogs.

Mr. H. S. Bevan, in current American Field, has the following to add to the already great volume of matter written recently on this subject. He says:

"Much valuable information in regard to the terms of "high-class" and "plug-shooting," as applied to our sporting companions, has appeared in the columns of the American Field. Mr. Titus, in particular, supplies your readers with the benefit of his well-balanced brains and long experience with all sorts and conditions of dogs, and he has no doubt conferred a great boon on us all by giving us the benefit of his closest observations. While I am aware of the fact that Mr. Lorillard is a man who is endowed with the utmost veracity, I feel that in undertaking to find seven or eight bevies of birds on ground that Mr. Tucker had hunted over with that grand brace of puppies, Count Anteo and Miss Ruby, the two puppies that I admired most of all at the last Southern trials (and there were many good ones), he would have a part to perform equal in severity to any one that Hercules was said to have undertaken and accomplished. I may be mistaken, but I can honestly affirm in the old woman's dialect (she was not up to the physical exertion of praying), "Them's my sentiments."

In regard to Mr. J. M. Avent's "high-class dogs" and "plug-shooting dogs," I will say that I have seen the great Antonio put down in private with (at that time) Mr. Avent's best "plug-shooting dog," and had birds been shot to points—as they can be by Mr. Avent when he wants meat—the side of the bag that held the fruits of Tony's industry would far have exceeded the side which testified to the brilliant (?) work of the plug-shooting dog. For myself, if I were going out on a shooting trip, I certainly would rather take Jean Val Jean with me than any "plug-shooting dog" I have seen Mr. Avent handle, and I have seen a great majority of them. The same applies to Chance, Ollie S., or even Cassio, although the latter dog was born under an unlucky star. I was told by a practical sportsman, who had the pleasure of shooting over all of the dogs of the Memphis & Avent's Kennel in Dakota, in 1886, that of the pleasure he had while shooting over the different dogs, and he gauges his pleasure by the number of birds he can kill, none equaled to his mind the pleasure it afforded him to shoot over Rodigero and his son Champion Dance. I have often been told that Juno A. was the favorite bitch of the whole kennel as a shooting dog with all three owners of the now defunct kennel. I now have a catalogue before me of the Avent & Thayer Kennel, and on reading the description of the now late Juno A., it is brought to my memory that this bitch had all the elements of a high-class field-trial dog. Mr. O'Banton told me that Fanny M., a Derby and All-Age Stake winner, was his favorite shooting dog out of the whole Blue Ridge contingency, and I, for one, should, I feel sure, enjoy a day's shooting over that good little bitch more than a week's tramp after a great (?) plug-shooting dog. Ye Gods, what a name! "Plug-shooting dog"!!!

"When a man offers you a plug-shooting dog, gentle reader, at a very low price, because he is leaving the country, is going to Europe, or has three of the same breeeing, feel confident that for one hundred and fifty dollars you are getting a far better bird-finder than Daisy Hope! I think the reason we hear these long windy yarns about bolters is, as Mr. Waters remarks, 'the average amateur tries to hunt too slow.' He recognizes the fact that he is gifted with a greater knowledge of likely places than his dog inherits from his ancestors, and is not satisfied unless his dog runs through every dot of sedge twice or three three times, for luck, if there is said (by some ancient darky) to have been a sorghum patch in close proximity, within the last seven years. Again, many men will talk politics and discuss the quality of whisky, and the probability, or the reverse, of a future state, and while these long, windy discussions are going on, Bolter (?) is forgotten. But it is remembered that he cast a long distance, either to the right or to the left, it is not quite remembered which, and not being a seen quality, he is invoking language that is not always used by orthodox Sunday-school teachers, and all because he was attending to his work and keeping at it, while his owner was possibly giving the race question more attention for the time being. Yes, a dog that has less pace and range than the caricatured chinker often gets blamed for faults that he has not, and I, for one, think that we, here in America, can show dogs of a higher class as shooting dogs than any other country in the world has ever produced, notwithstauding Mr. Llewellin's very ambiguous statements to the contrary. If he has better specimens of the Llewellin family than such dogs as Gladstone, Count Noble, Gath, Roderigo and Chance, let him keep them in England, for they are needed there more than we need them in America. Again let the detractors of the present field-trial dog ignore such dogs as will be placed in the front ranks when Messrs. Merriman, Bryson, Pat Henry, T. M. Brumby and Mohawk spot in the winners, and content themselves with the shooting dog that is far better, ye know, than the field-trial dog because he can run (?) all day. Still, ye knaw, when you go to buy the latter he can be bought cheap, as his owner has three of the same kind, or else is going to Africa (in his mind). But on selling his dog he will stay in his office, and will continue to serve his country, to the sad detriment of the new religion he was about to impress upon the inhabitants of Africa's sunny shores."

Judge Mortimer has been commissioned by Mr. Henry Huber of this city to purchase for him while in England the best pointer dog he can find in that country.

It is universally conceded that Mr. Huber now owns in the Duke of Vernon and Sally Brass II, two of the finest pointers in American, the new addition to his kennels as authorized above, will place him beyond question at the head of the pointer fanciers in the whole country.

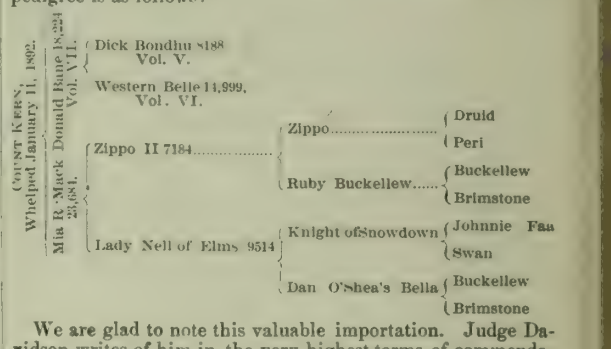
This is business with a vim and Mr. Huber has, in advance, our hearty congratulations on this new venture.

It is not every day that one finds a man who will be satisfied with nothing save the best. Here's to your very good health, Mr. Huber, and also to that of your very excellent dogs.

Mr. W. A. Cumingham, of Honalulu, H. I., is accumulating a fine kennel of field dogs. Several shipments have been made him from this coast and still others are being contemplated. Mr. Cumingham is an enthusiastic sportsman and is doing much to forward the sporting interests of the island.

The St. Patrick Kennels of Denver, Colorado., report a fine line of sales in this issue, and in so doing came in touch with the many greyhound fanciers of this coast, where, to be a friend of the footed flyers, is to be a friend of many of the ardent admirers of this beautiful breed.

Pacific Kennel Club.



The regular meeting of the Pacific Kennel Club, held at 21 Kearney street on Wednesday evening last, was attended by thirty-four members. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Ramon E. Wilson; First Vice-President, Fred Webster; Second Vice-President, E. P. Schell; Recording Secretary, Horace Orear; Financial Secretary and Treasurer, Clarence Haight.

The following new members were admitted: John A. Donahue Jr., S. E. Fishcher, F. L. Wooster, Fred Farnsworth, W. A. H. Chenoweth.

The Committee on Constitution and By-Laws were instructed to have 500 copies of the same printed. The next meeting will be held the first Wednesday in July.

Messrs. Harvey and Linville have just received a fine English setter puppy from Judge Davidson, of Monroe, Michigan. The puppy is grandly bred and presents every feature of promise to be found in a young dog. Excellent in bone, well formed, a fine, intelligent eye and a splendid coat. He is pure white, save some lemon flecks about the head and ears.

We looked the merry little fellow over and aided in christening him Count Kern, and we trust that when, on January next, he enters the field trials at Bakersfield that he will show the birds of Kern County that he can count them a shade more rapidly than any other entry in the Derby. He was bred by Henry W. Campbell, of Monroe, Michigan, and his pedigree is as follows:

We are glad to note this valuable importation. Judge Davidson writes of him in the very highest terms of commendation. He arrived on the 6th inst., and is in fine condition. To say that Mr. Linville is pleased with him but mildly expresses his feelings.

An Azian correspondent gives the following, which may be highly flavored with Munchausen sauce: "A circumstance which I should say was an uncommon one in the annals of shikar, happened the other day. A gentleman while out shooting in the Eastern Dun in a canebrake started a leopard and cub. Among his dogs that were beating was a powerful English greyhound. This dog drove off the leopard and killed the cub. This same dog also killed a very powerful lungoo (grey monkey), one of the largest size, standing fully 3 ft. 9 in. or 4 ft. One of the spaniels had cut this lungoor off from the tree for which it was making, and it turned upon the dog and bit it in the neck very severely, its tusks being as large as a small leopard's. It then tried to strangle the dog, when the greyhound came to the rescue. It caught the lungoor by the nape of the neck, and with one crunch killed it."

He talks with confidence akin to that of the Barzoi man before the famous wolf contest. But then he is in Asia. It may be thus in Asia, we cannot say, but we doubt it.

Colonel S. O. Gregory, one of the oldest and most enthusiastic admirers of the greyhound and active supporters of coursing on the Pacific Coast, has been in the city for more than a month past and is a frequent and welcome caller at this office.

H. T. Harris, 166 Thirteenth Street, San Jose, offers his Irish setter dog puppy, whelped June 13, 1891, out of imported Kate IX (11,504), by Ch. Elcho Jr (3881), at the reduced price of $25. Retrieves and otherwise yard-broken. *

The Woodhaven Kennels will receive through the selection of Mr. James Mortimer, a greyhound bitch from England.

Many guns are chambered for a certain length of shell. Be sure and use no other shell in that gun, if you would attain the best results and experience no inconvenience in shooting it. If the shell be too long—passing beyond the shoulder when uncrimped in discharging—you will experience a sharpness of recoil, owing to the extra pressure on the charge, and you will notice the sharp even ring about the point of the shell where it has extended beyond the chamber into the barrel. You cannot expect regularity of pattern in using such shells, and in addition you are liable to spring the barrels of your gun, besides otherwise wracking it.

If the shell be too short for the chamber you will experience a recoil, caused by the resistance of the shoulders of the chamber to the charge. In short, the man who made the gun turned it out for certain shells; use no other.

Cannot the shoulder be cut out so that any length of shell may be used to advantage? Possibly, but do you not know that guns are cranky? They are. A very little change in some guns, seems to affect their shooting qualities; some for the better, others for the worse. If your gun shoots to suit you, do not, on any account, have it changed. It is a very important rule to learn which says, "Let well enough alone."

It is stated, on what is generally taken as good authority, that sea fishes have been found at a depth of 2,750 fathoms, (16,500 feet).

Specimens of the murænа, an eel.like fish, have been taken at a depth of 15,000 feet.

The Gadus melanous has been taken in the Antartic Ocean at a depth of 12,000 feet, the halibut at 800 feet below the surface. It is said that the shark seldom descends lower than 500 feet.

The Country Club is going to have a pigeon shoot at Napa Soda Springs to-morrow, Sunday. A grand time is anticipated.

City View Entries, Portland, Or.

Oakland Colt Stakes.

Entries closed yesterday with Secretary Dimond for the Colt Stakes to be trotted for at the August meeting of the Golden Gate Fair Association on the Oakland track. The events did not fill as well as was expected, as many breeders considered the added money insufficient, and others were fearful that they would meet such cracks as Athadon and Bell Bird in the three-year-old division and would not have even a show against them to save stake money. The following are the entries for the events specified:

Two-year-old Colt Stakes—Free for all, mile heats, best two in three. Entrance $50, of which $10 must accompany nomination. Added money, $200.

Oakwook Park Stock Farm's b c Stilleco, by Steinway, out of Inex
Oakwood Park Stock Farm's ch c Cascade, by Charles Derby, out of Idol Belle.
R. J. Havey's b g Daghestan, by Stamboul, out of Alta Belle.

San Mateo Stock Farm's b f Silver Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, out of Sister.
Buckman & Carragher's b c George Dexter, by Dexter Prince, out of Nellie C.

Three-year-old Colt Stakes—Free-for-all, best three in five, mile heats. Entrance fee $50, of which $10 must accompany nomination. Added money, $300.

J. H. Troy's ch c Frank Tea, by Ned Gifford, out of Dolly Tea.
J. H. Strobridge's b f Lulu F., by Christmas, out of Hayward Belle.
Feldwick & Lewis' s c Brushwood, by Redwood, out of Frances Sherman.

CHARLES DUNN, of Stanford, Ky., has lost by death Eliza Jane (dam of Maud Messenger, 2:16¼), by Gentle Breeze 3456, dam Kitty Rivers by Abdallah 15. She was in foal to Lord Wilkes, son of Guy Wilkes, 2:15½. Her breeding qualities were sold for $1,000 the season, and Mr. Dunn has refused $2,500 for her.

IN the trotting horse world, says the American Sportsman, the short-bred performer usually enjoys a very brief season of triumph. He may have the speed to brush with a whirlwind, but when it comes to the steady, driver-like drill, something gives out and another phenom is retired.

J. A. & A. H. MORRIS' two-year-old colt Gallantry, by Galopin, has a bowed tendon. It is thought he will not be able to meet his engagements this year.

Nearly all the prominent drivers are using "Foster's Patent Track Harness. Even the most conservative have to acknowledge that it is away ahead of any other harness for track work. It is in use at Palo Alto and other large establishments where a good thing is appreciated. J. O'Kane, 767 Market street, sells them.

The members of the various associations in this State who have their race tracks in excellent order are agitating the question of giving trotting matinees until the fall races commence.

Suggestions to Fair Managers.

"Fair time" is rapidly approaching, and every one in the community knows what that means. The farmer who has kept apace with the times in the breeding and raising of fine cattle, sheep, hogs and chickens, is busy preparing the choicest representatives for competition at the annual fair that will soon take place in his district. The owner of trotting stock is working hard to have his best and most promising colts and fillies in readiness for the races, and, knowing that the year 1892 will be celebrated for the large number of exceedingly well-bred ones that will appear for "the word," he is more than anxious to have his youngsters render a good account of themselves.

The members of the associations have awakened to the fact that in order to make their meeting successful, they must offer good premiums for the stock and prepare the places for the reception of the blue bloods, so as to have none of the exhibitors complaining. The rights of the farmers who exhibit their choicest stock must be respected, and everything should be done to make their annual visit a pleasant one. These people neglect their farms at the busiest season to be present with their stock and have them looking well; they are out of pocket by the transaction, yet they believe the interests of their district should be made known, and the public in general can be taught that in the breeding and development of the very best stock, they are able to show improvement every year.

The farmers' wives and daughters who are interested in making embroideries and executing fine needle-work, will be getting new patterns and studying new designs for work, which they will copy and place on exhibition. The belles of the kitchen will have their choicest displays of cakes, pastry and preserves ready. The artists that have been working faithfully with brush and pencil, will have their specimens finished to adorn the walls of the pavilion. The inventor will be on hand with his latest invention; it may be a washing machine, a corn-sheller, a section of a mowing machine, or an automatic cradle that will rock the child while playing a lullaby. It may be some other valuable invention in which the sanguine discoverer may "see millions," but, nevertheless, it will be on exhibition, and will gather the crowd, and keep him busy explaining its merits. The small boy will begin saving his dimes and nickels for the "greatest epoch in his life," and visions of oranges, candies, rides on the revolving horses and a seat on the highest fence to see the gaily-colored costumes of the jockeys, flit before his youthful mind, and already has he begun the arithmetical study of figuring up the days until the band begins to play and the gates are thrown open. He is going to persuade his parents to go, if possible, and, if they do not, why he will try and get a chance to lead a fine bull calf around in front of the all-wise judges, and thus earn twenty-five cents. The little girl will content herself with looking nice and sitting near the band, where the tunes she is trying to learn are played so easily by the big band that she recognizes every note, and feels as if some day she will be able to make others as happy as the blue-dressed, gentlemanly "wind-charmers" have made her.

The secretary and president of the association begin to see signs of the coming fair in every letter received, besides, nearly every farmer they meet informs them. The great questions that devolve upon them regarding pavilion exhibits, live stock exhibits and the programme of races must be solved soon. By appointing suitable committees, the first obstruction may be removed; the second and third are comparatively easy, they believe, and with the hearty co-operation of the directors these will receive prompt attention. One idea must always prevail at the deliberations, and that is, "how can we draw the crowd to make our meeting successful?" It is a difficult question to answer, nevertheless, a few suggestions at this time may not be out of place. Let there be a mixed programme—running, trotting and pacing. Add variety to that. Have double-team racing, owners to drive, and roadster races, owners to drive also. If you can get up a peg race between farmers, such as was described in last week's BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that may prove novel and attractive. Have ladies' tournaments and give suitable prizes—prizes that will pay for the riding habits of the young ladies. Do not be miserly in this respect. If possible, get an aeronant to give an exhibition in the forenoon, or even just before the racing begins; have him on hand, and see that he gets away on time—if he is going to make an ascension at all. Have a little system about your work. Commence to pave the way now to have everything in operation. When the races are called, have the horses and men come out on time. Abolish heat betting; do not allow it, and the heats will not be protracted until the sun sinks in the west and every one goes home tired and disgusted. Put some vim in the work. Have a paid judge in the stand, a man who thoroughly understands the rules of racing and will have no favoritism; a man with backbone enough to make every one respect his judgment. He should be wide-awake to see every movement of the horses from start to finish, and be able to give his decision immediately. Nothing looks so bad as a large crowd of excited men and boys occupying the track in front of the judges' stand for twenty minutes waiting for a decision to be rendered. The judges' stand should be reserved exclusively for the judges, and the clerk should have a big placard placed in a conspicuous place with this announcement on it for the benefit of inquisitive visitors who have no more right to be there than they have among the musicians that are playing.

The secretary must be a worker and study every plan to help the other officers make the fair a success, and by his activity and labor with the farmers, the merchants, the country press, the horsemen, and dairymen, much can be accomplished. He must remember, however, there are a large number of fast horses that are owned by men who do not live in the district, and to reach that class and get them to come to make the meeting successful, should be one of the things he must rivet his attention on now. Therefore, it becomes his imperative duty to get the programme of races published immediately, so that every horseman can make entries and arrange for his trip through the circuit. There will be more than one circuit this year in California, and more horses are in training to-day than has ever been known before; therefor it behooves all who are connected with the district fairs to wake up and secure all the attractions they can.

California Trotters of 1892.

The year 1891 is one that will long be remembered by California lovers of light harness horses. Record after record was broken, increasing the fair fame of the Golden State as a horse-breeding center as few ever imagined it could be done in one single season. Over 200 California-bred horses trotted in 2:30 or better, and almost every world's record was gathered into the credit of our horses. The eyes of the world were riveted on the land of the lovely climate nestling 'gainst the bosom of the mighty Pacific.

Wonderful indeed was the work of our horses, but it is not at all unlikely that California light harness animals will during the coming season shiver the hour-glasses and scythes of Father Time as fast as the veteran can bring them out. We base our belief on gratifying reports from our stock farms and on the fact that the tracks throughout the State have been renovated and made "as fast as bullets." In many towns new courses will be ready for the work of record-breaking long ere the racing season ends. "Fast" as was the Stockton track in 1891, it is likely, with the packing-down it has received from the rains of the winter season, to be better than ever this year. At Bakersfield, Vacaville, Watsonville and Gonzales, brand-new tracks will be in use, and no one knows but that one of these will eclipse Stockton's course in point of "fastness."

At this stage of 1891 there were not so many newcomers to the "list" as in the present year. Thus far nine trotters have entered the magic circle in California. Two were sired by Electioneer, two by Piedmont, and one each by Norval, Dexter Prince, McNasser's Golddust, Joe Gavin and Alcazar. And another thing—more horses will "go to the races" in California this season than last. Our "star" drivers are, for the most part, on the circuits east of the Rockies, but many a crack reinsman will doubtless "develop" during the absence from the State of the Generals of the Trotting Turf. Men will drive their entries first under the wire who were unknown to the "followers of the circuit" last season.

A tide is setting in, however, that threatens to engulf the sticklers for records "against the watch." We predict that the sally will be hereafter to the person who is lauding his trotter to the skies: "How much money did your horse win in stakes and purses?" "What stakes did he capture?" or "How many races did he get first money in?"

The trotter marches on these days in the road to extreme stamina, while the thoroughbred bolts the fence and disappears down the hill into the slough of sprinterdom. A trotter that can go down the line and capture first money in a majority of cases generally has far more stamina and endurance than the "blue-blooded" galloper of the present, who in many cases hoists his brush in token of distress after going less than a mile. A trotter that gives up the game inside of three miles is branded at once as a "rank quitter." This state of affairs is due to the intelligent work of the trainers of trotters as against the careless and idiotic way the majority of thoroughbred trainers prepare their horses for the fray. The thoroughbred was at one time capable of traveling much further in a day than the trotter, but this can not with truth be said of him at the present time.

Some Contrasts and the Outlook.

The latest news from the East is not of a very encouraging nature. With protracted rain, storms, blizzards, and unusually cold weather, the various stables of California horses are far from being as comfortable or as well prepared for the campaign as they would be if they had remained here a few months longer. The great advantages this climate possesses over all others from Maine to the Rocky Mountains and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico is becoming more universally recognized and admitted. The strings of horses that arrived in the East in charge of J. A. Goldsmith and Orrin A. Hickok, opened the eyes of critical horsemen who acknowledged they never before saw such well-matured, sleek-looking, healthy animals at that time of the year. The horses had all shed their winter coats weeks before their departure, and consequently shone like blue-ribbon winners at a horse show. The excellent way the San Mateo colts moved was also a surprise, for while the Eastern horsemen were figuring on tips and toe weights these youngsters, with the lightest of shoes, were out taking their work like veterans whenever the weather permitted. The lofty-gaited trotters that used to sprawl and spread their feet all over the track are not in demand here, and, if sufficient time was devoted to the study of the change in the gait of our fast ones, it would easily be seen that the leading stallions that California has been blessed with, are line trotters, and those that have had excessive knee and hock action, and spread, twist and roll their feet all over the course have been gradually but thoroughly disposed of. We do not know where they have gone to. Perhaps they may have been sold in the Eastern sales, and some of the artists who profess to change the structural formation of horses' limbs may be kept busy experimenting on them, but they are not found here. The tracks in the East are all muddy, and our line trotters seem to get along as well as the spraddlers. The great hardship and perhaps the greatest care the California trainer has in the East is the prevention of sickness among the horses. Orrin A. Hickok has suffered a great loss already in the death of the pride of his string, Ariel, and to keep the rest free from "deadly pneumonia's relentless grasp" is to him a duty which he will not neglect.

On this coast, at this season of the year, there seems to be no such danger, for the air is rare and dry, and no rain storms are ever dreamed of. Repotrs of horses dying while in training here are very few; in fact, we do not believe we ever heard of any. They may get injured or be thrown out of training because of their inability to improve, but the epidemic of influenza that oftimes follows the horses during the racing season in the East is unknown here. We have had the epizootic in all its various forms, but it has always been eradicated.

The Valensin string of trotters have arrived at Salt Lake, and from the latest reports we learn that the people are very enthusiastic over the excellent appearance of the horses.

George Starr started East yesterday with a string of trotters and pacers for Mr. Salisbury. He surprised the people last year with the appearance of his string of flyers and afterwards astonished the talent by winning all the races, bar one that he wanted to.

We shall have better racing this fall in California than we have ever had. We have not been delayed in the training and conditioning of horses because of the weather, and there are more enthusiastic, deserving young men willing and anxious to "cross steels" with the veterans than ever. With a new crop of trotters we shall have a harvest of trainers and drivers. Already the bugle of victory has been sounded at San Jose by the young men who came over from Palo Alto with their colts and went back triumphantly to the home of Electioneer, each of them carrying a laurel of victory, and with a 2:30 record dangling from each sulky. And the work has but just commenced. There are nearly one hundred to follow from that farm alone.

We shall see a string on the circuit from the Oakwood Park Stock Farm driven by Ed. Lafferty; a few from San Mateo handled by that master reinsman, Millard Saunders; a select number from the Valensin Stock Farm driven by his brother; several from the Richards' Stock Farm driven by William Murry, then La Siesta's big string, besides those from the Agnew Stock Farm, Santa Rosa Stock Farm, De Turk & McGraw's string and numerous others that will make it interesting for all who go to the races.

THAT the winter racing association managers of the effete East have their eyes on California is certain. A man interested in both Guttenburg and Saratoga associations is even now on a visit to our city, and expresses himself as very much pleased with the situation of Bay District track. Jack Chinn, of Kentucky, coming in the interest of another syndicate of racing men, will soon arrive, go over the ground and consider the prospects for the successful carrying on of winter racing here or in the vicinity. There are several excellent spots near us on which a first-class race track could be located, and racing could be made to pay during the winter if conducted in a fair and square manner to the satisfaction of race-goers. However, inducements must be offered Eastern owners of thoroughbreds in the shape of cheap transportation, and a well-known Chicagoan who visited this State last winter gave as his opinion that it was not unlikely that racing could be made to "go" here in the winter if the organization having matters in charge went down into its treasury and paid the cost of transportation of horses at least one way. Hundreds of good gallopers could then doubtless be brought to our shores, and in their train would come thousands of their followers from the East. There is no denying that with good fields and square running a winter meeting would be a real success here, and our only hope is that honest, enterprising men will take hold of the proposition and carry it through.

MUCH speculation is being indulged in as to what will be the fate of the famous horses at present quartered at Hobart Stock Farm. Almost everything on the place is a turf or harem celebrity, and few farms in the world can boast of so many gilt-edged matrons or of such a stallion as Stamboul, 2:11. What would Alma Mater, dam of Alcantara and Alcyone, bring at public auction, and when would a crowd of horsey capitalists stop bidding on Trinket, 2:14; Nancy Lee, dam of Nancy Hanks; Four Corners, 2:20¼, or Bye-Bye, sister to Lockheart, 2:14¾? These are not a tithe of the famous trotters on that farm, and if they are ever placed on the auction block there will be horsemen here from Manitoba to Mexico to make purchases and from Maine to California. It was not the policy of the deceased owner of the farm to kill his young trotters off by racing them in their early youth—in fact, he did not want to know that he possessed any infant phenomenons. Campaigning vealy youngsters was out of his line entirely, and we respect his memory therefor and can say with truth that Walker S. Hobart was a sensible man and looked out for his horses in a manner that reflected great credit on his judgment. It is all very well to break in the youngster, but to strain him in his infancy is radically wrong. While we do not know anything authoritative regarding the Hobart horses, we are of the opinion that there will, at no far-distant day, be a sale, the like of which has never been known in America.

SOME time ago we called the attention of the Park Commissioners to the condition of the speed track and urged them to have it put in order so that our horsemen with their light vehicles could ride over it with safety. Commissioner W. W. Stow has taken up the subject and given orders that it be harrowed and sprinkled every day, and as soon as the appropriation is received the whole surface of this course will receive a new coating of clay. There has not been a single shovelful of clay put on it since the gates were opened, and now that it is to receive some we hope that a liberal coating will be laid. it will then be in order to keep a man there who thoroughly understands keeping such a course in order. We will try and see if that cannot be done. For what we are about to receive, however, we are truly thankful.

Dr. Creely Sues for Damages.

Dr. Edward J. Creely, a veterinary surgeon of this city, sued W. R. Hearst, proprietor of the Examiner, last Wednesday for $20,000 for damages for libel. He complains of the publication of an article in which he was represented as having said that glanders was epidemic in local livery stables and that the proprietors of the infected stables concealed the cases. He declares that he never made the statement, because it was false, and that its publication damaged him in the sum of $10,000. Some pictures representing horses suffering from disease were also published with the statement that they had been furnished by him. He asserts that this was false and damaged him in the sum of $10,000.

Welch's Palo Alto Inhaler is one of the most popular veterinary appliances known, and is almost a specific for colds, pneumonia, etc., which, if checked in their incipiency, frequently saves a valuable animal. For sale at J. O'Kane's 767 Market street. Pacific Coast agents. *

THE IMPORTING OF HORSES.

Decision of the Treasury Department—It is of Interest to Breeders.

Secretary Foster has issued a circular to Collectors of Customs, explaining precisely what horses imported into this country are subject to duty. In this order he says:

"After communicating with the leading authorities in this country on the breeding of selected domestic animals, and in consideration of the earnest protests which have been received against alleged unfair discriminations contained in department's circular No. 10 of January 22, 1892, the department has, under the advice of Secretary of Agriculture, concluded to modify the said circular, so as to avoid the objections which are urged against its terms by responsible and recognized authorities in the matter referred to. Circular No. 10, of January 22, 1892, is hereby revoked, and the following rules will be observed in lieu thereof by officers of the customs and all others concerned in the importation of live animals under the provisions of paragraph 482 of the act of October 1, 1890:

"It having been ascertained that animals which are cross-bred, and others with unknown pedigrees have been recorded in certain registers, with the sole object of making them eligible for free entry into the United States, and as paragraph 482 of the act of October 1, 1890, provides that no animal shall be admitted free unless pure-bred of a recognized breed, the object of the law being in the opinions of this department and the Department of Agriculture, to exclude from free entry animals not absolutely and strictly pure bred, it is hereby directed that on and after June 1, 1892, no animal which is brought into the United States from foreign countries for breeding purposes shall be admitted free of duty unless the importer furnishes a certificate of the record and pedigree in the form hereafter given, showing that the animal is pure-bred and admitted to full registry in a book of record established for that breed; that both its sire and dam were likewise recorded in a book of record established for the same breed, and that there have been four successive top crosses by recorded sires of that breed on the side of the dam, together with the affidavit of the owner, agent, or importer that such animal is the identical animal described in said certificate of record and pedigree.

"Unless the certificate of record and pedigree herein provided for is produced, the animal shall be considered dutiable as not being pure bred of a recognized breed, and duly registered in the book of record established for that breed. In case such certificates are not at hand at the time of the arrival of the animals and other evidence is produced, satisfactory to the collector, showing that the animals are entitled to free entry, the collector may so admit them, taking a bond in double the value of the animals for the production of the proper certificate.

"In accordance with the recommendation of the Secretary of Agriculture, officers of the customs are hereby directed not to admit animals to free entry unless they are recorded in one of the registers mentioned in this circular."

Big Winners at Gravesend.

During the twelve days' racing meeting of the Brooklyn Jockey Club, which closed at Gravesend recently, there were seventy-two races run, in which 247 different horses appeared. The club gave in added money to the stakes and overnight events the sum of $107,910, which included $17,150 added to the Brooklyn Handicap, $9,210 to the Great American Stakes, and $2,850 to the Fort Hamilton Handicap to make up the guaranteed value. Fifty-two stables won money, the honors falling to the Oneck Stable by virtue of winning the Great American Stakes with Sir Walter. With the Brooklyn Handicap to his credit, Green B. Morris occupies the second place, and the "Scarlet" Stable, which swept everything before it last spring, shows up well in third place, despite its misfortunes. The total of money won amounts to $175,120, divided as follows:

Oneck Stable	$19,680 00	Boulevard Stable	$1,330 00
G. B. Morris	19,520 00	Gideon & Daly	1,310 00

The Terre Haute Express has the following: In the San Mateo Stock Farm's string, that John A. Goldsmith has in charge, the mares Hazel Wilkes and Una Wilkes are moving quarters in 34 seconds and doing it in a way that is very fetching. Brignoli Wilkes has been put through a course of sprouts since coming into Goldsmith's hands, and is now straightened out and moving like a trotter. Orrin Hickok, who is at the same place with a stable of California equines, is said to still feel inconsolable over the loss of his Whip's gelding, Ariel, who died last week. He was stricken with gastric fever on route from this State, and after a layover of a week at Council Bluffs was thought well enough to continue the trip. After his arrival at Terre Haute complications set in which could have no other result than death. Hickok expected great things from the horse, and after his demise he said: "I have been waiting ten years for just this horse to take St. Julien's place and have been educating him for two years for this campaign, and had him just right. I never expect to again get his equal. Before leaving California he had shown his ability to do three heats in better than 2:17." He was seven years old and bred at Palo Alto, and was of such high nervous organization and indomitable will power that the Palo Alto people were not successful in getting him track-educated, and he was consigned to the drudgery of double-team work to a farm wagon. He was doing this work when Hickok purchased him, and he set out to thoroughly edi cate him. He found his work cut out from the start, as the gelding seemed to be simply unconquerable. Many a day was he given fifty miles of work, and in one stretch of five days he received 156 miles. Patience at last did the business, but it took two years of hard and never-let-up-work to accomplish the end.

ASYLUM STOCK FARM.

Gilt-Edged Young Trotters That Will Make This Establishment Famous—A Well-Managed Institution.

In almost every fertile valley adjacent to San Francisco can some of the residents point with pride to stock farms devoted to the raising of fine horses, but the visitor who rides out of San Rafael about five miles and sees the imposing edifice called the St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, which is built upon eminence overlooking the San Rafael valley, would hardly believe for a moment that upon the long stretches of rich pasture around it there were over a hundred head of as finely-bred horses as can be found anywhere. But before going to look at this collection it may prove interesting to take a glance of this institution which, from a very humble beginning, some thirty-eight years ago, has assumed such large proportions.

The improvements consist of a church, work-shop, laundry building, the two asylum buildings, which are three stories in height and contain the residence and executive department, dining rooms, gymnasium, recreation halls and library, class rooms and exhibition hall for plays, entertainments, etc. The top floors of these buildings are reserved as dormitories. Everything about the place is kept neat and clean. The children, and there are some six hundred of them, are healthy, robust-looking little fellows that seem to enjoy their home and love to tramp across the fields among the flowers, when not at their studies. The building set apart for the hospital is but seldom occupied, and not a death has occurred in the institution in twelve months. This fact speaks volumes for the sanitary condition of the institution, the excellence of the food, the watchfulness of those in charge and the healthfulness of the climate.

The idea of the President, Rev. W. D. McKinnon, has been to give the boys trades and teach them occupations that may prove valuable to them in the future. He has about fifteen boys learning harness-making; the class of work they do is most creditable, and a ready sale is found for all these youths manufacture. In the tailor shop at least a score of boys were seen making clothes for the asylum. The little youngsters handle the needle deftly and neatly, and the hundreds of suits, besides the derby hats they make, remind one of the vastness of this institution which needs so much clothing to cover its inmates. The shoemaker shop is presided over by a Crispin who has a number of apt scholars, if one is to judge by the excellent class of work and the large number of shoes made every day. The steam laundry has all the latest machinery for washing and drying, and a number of boys are seen here. The busy hive of industry seems to contain no drones, and when the new buildings, which are badly needed, are constructed, a number of other trades will be introduced; and that other growing California industry,—preserving and canning fruit will receive attention. In the main building a number of boys are learning to cook and wait on table.

The farm itself consists of 3,000 acres, and some twenty youths are working there.

When Rev. W. McKinnon took charge of this place the land was used exclusively for pasturing, and much of it being marshy, it was allowed to go to waste. He set out some 10,000 fruit trees, 7,000 vines and about 10,000 small fruit brushes, and saw that the 1400 acres of land bordering the bay could be made most valuable for agricultural purposes. Forthwith he made contracts with owners of steam dredgers and had levees built around a greater portion of its shores; the result is that for the last two years very heavy crops of hay have been harvested; as this land gets older it becomes more productive. The only industries of note that were followed by the managers for the purpose of increasing the revenue of the institution were the raising of cattle and dairying when he came, but with the limited range and the cares and trouble incident to taking care of large bands of cattle the stock was sold, and in their stead choice trotting-bred mares were purchased from time to time, until there is as fine a collection of stock as is to be found on any of the largest breeding establishments in this State. J. A. McDonald, who has been supervising this portion of the farm's affairs, has met with the greatest success in the undertaking. A representative of this journal, hearing numerous reports regarding the excellence of the horses, mares and colts, paid it a visit, and was agreeably surprised to see that nothing had been exaggerated and that the appearance of the stock compared very favorably with any that he had seen this year.

A few months ago the black stallion Director Jr. was purchased, and his book was not long in being filled, for he is one of the grandest-looking young horses, as well as one of the best-bred sons of Director, standing for public service, combining as he does the same blood lines as Direct, 2:06. He is by Director, 2:17, out of Brainey, by Echo 462; second dam Lady Dudley, by Tom Dudley; third dam by Bertrand Jr. He is pure-gaited and very promising, and if given an opportunity will make a low mark. His colts are all like him, and show the same perfect conformation, clean limbs, strong joints and beautiful head and neck. They are stylish in action and solid in color.

The black stallion Almonition, now at Petaluma, also belongs to this farm. He is by Alcona 730, out of Pansy, by C. M. Clay Jr. 22; second dam Lady Richelieu, by Richelieu, etc. As he is entered in a number of important trotting events that are to take place this fall, the public will know more about him when he appears for the word; suffice it to say, however, he is a very fast and promising youngster.

Another grand-looking individual, and one that we think should be trained for speed, is the three-year-old stallion Melrose. He is by Antinous 4778, out of Lilly Vernon (dam of Vermont Boy, 2:15), by Tom Vernon; second dam Fanny Belmont, by Williamson's Belmont. Antinous is by Electioneer, out of American Girl, by Toronto Sontag 307; second dam Laura Keene (sister to the dam of Alban, 2:24), by Hambletonian 10. Tom Vernon is by Hamilton Chief, a son of Royal George 83, out of Lady Vernon, 2:29½ (dam of Oakland Maid, 2:22, and Patchen Vernon, sire of Allen Roy, 2:17½), by Engineer.

Without any ostentatious show or without seeking the plaudits of the world, Senator Leland Stanford seems to be always doing something for others that endears him to the beneficiaries, as well as all to who hear of such acts of kindness. He has not forgotten the orphans, and knowing that the object of building up a stock farm at this place is to make use of the vast pasture lands and afford a certain revenue for the sale of trotting stock every year, he sent over a standard-bred son of Electioneer to be used for breeding purposes. He is a deep mahogany bay, about 15.2 hands, and weighs about 1,000 pounds; he has never been worked for speed, but he has an inherent right to be fast and to be a producer of fast ones. He is out of Loritta, 2:22¾, by Pie lmont, 2:17½; second dam Lady Lowell, by Schultz's St. Clair; third dam Laura (dam of Doc, sire of Occident, 2:16¾). He has been bred to a number of the broodmares mentioned below, and his progeny no doubt will be sought for.

The yearlings are a handsome lot, all of them large and strongly-formed. Among them was noticed Onawanda, bay colt, by Dawn, 2:18¾, out of Blackbird, by Reavis' Blackbird, 2:22; second dam a daughter of Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31; third dam by Gen. McClellan 144.

Wildwood, bay colt, by Winwood (son of Antevolo and a Nutwood mare), first dam Mollie Mac, by Alexander 490; second dam Tom Poulterer mare, by Owen Dale.

Loch Moree, chestnut colt, by Ashland Almont 3481, out of Amy, by Mambrino Wilkes; second dam by Pill Box, son of Norfolk; third dam Kitty Winter. Ashland Almont is by Almont 33, out of Pauline, by Ashland Chief (sire of Black Cloud, 2:17½); second dam Rosina, by Abdallah 15, etc.

Sir John McDonald, bay colt, by Soudan, 2:27½, out of Emma, by imp. Hercules; second dam by Williamson's Belmont; third dam by imp. Glencoe.

Hazlenut, by Dawn, 2:18¾, out of Grey Nellie, by Rustic; second dam by Gen. McClellan 143.

Donald Wilkes, foaled 1891, is by Mambrino Wilkes 6083, out of Fan (dam of Patchwork, trial 2:30), Cricket 2:28, (trial 2:27), by Signal 3327; second dam by McCracken's Black Hawk.

Melbourne, bay colt, by Sidney, 2:19¾, out of Zelika, by the Grand Moor 2374, second dam by C. M. Clay Jr. 22; third dam by C. M. Clay 18; fourth dam by Henry Clay 8.

In describing the various qualities of each of these youngsters it would be a difficult undertaking to find adjectives enough; they should be seen to be appreciated, and as this farm is overstocked with youngsters, each and every one of these will be sold at very low prices. None have been worked for speed, but a likelier lot of "green" ones is not to be found anywhere. Whoever gets them will secure bargains.

The bay colt Electus, foaled 1890, is a very promising youngster. He is by Gaviota, out of Lilly Vernon (dam of Belmont Boy, 2:15) etc. Gaviota is by Electioneer, out of Lady Ellis, by Mohawk Chief; second dam, Lady Clay (dam of Victor Clay, 2:26), by Clark's Paymaster; third dam by Morse Horse 6.

Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, is ably represented by two yearlings that will add more laurels to this great son of George Wilkes. One of them is out of Rosalind, by Del Sur, 2:24, second dam Gulnare, by The Moor; third dam, Lulu Jackson, by Jack Malone, etc. The other is out of Libbie B. (sister to Mollie Drew, 2:27, grandam of Freedom, 2:29¼ as a yearling), by Winthrop, 5:05; second dam, Fanny Fern (dam of Balkan, 2:15, and Molly Drew, 2:27), by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston.

The broodmares need no further praise than to say, taking them individually or collectively, they are hard to excel and are unequalled on many of our larger stock farms. They are sound and kind, all bays, browns, blacks or chestnuts, and not a badly-marked one in the lot. Most of them are related to the very best families on the coast and have been bred to the very best sires. As the prevailing idea in the purchasing and stocking of this farm has been "to get the best and breed to the best," the produce consequently will be most valuable.

The mare Veronica (sister to Flora Belle, 2:24½), by Alcona 730, out of Fontana (dam of Silas Skinner, 2:17), belongs to this place, and is being trained for a record at Petaluma. Her two-year-old filly, Vera, sold for $1,950, and she was considered the greatest bargain at the Souther Farm sale.

Sedina, 2:28½, by Sidney, 2:19¾, out of Star (dam of Hailstorm, 2:30), by George M. Patchen Jr., has a beautiful filly by Simmocolon, 2:19, at her side, Pansy, by C. M. Clay 22, out of Lady Richelieu (dam of Alfred, 2:26), by Richelieu (a son of Mambrino Chief 11); second dam, Lady Vance, by Trimble's Eclipse; third dam, a daughter of Joe Gale, son of Marlboro, etc. Pansy is the dam of Almonition, a very promising colt at Petaluma, King Ora, and a Sidney foal at her side that should make a fast one, Pansy will surely enter the great broodmare list inside of two years. Everything she produces trots fast.

Fancy (dam of Gus Wilkes, 2:22½, by Bonner, out of Sophia, by Williamson's Belmont, is the dam of Winifred Wilkes (full sister to Gus Wilkes, 2:22), by Mambrino Wilkes, and she has a filly by Eclectic (brother to Arion, 2:10¼) at her side that is a perfect beauty.

Fan, by Signal 3327, out of a daughter of McCracken's Black Hawk 767, has another Eclectic filly at her side that would rival many of the little princesses in any equine kingdom. Fan is the dam of Patchwork, trial 2:30 as a two-year-old, and Cricket, another two-year-old that trotted in 2:32.

Cora (dam of Clara P., 2:29½, one of the handsomest broodmares at the Agnew Farm) is a fine-looking matron. She is by Corsican, out of a daughter of Jack Hawkins (sire of the granddam of Direct, 2:06.)

Lady McDonald, black mare, by Hambletonian Mambrino, out of Lady Wood by Rockwood 1467, second dam Lady Clark by Kisbar 1773.

Mylitta (three year old record, 2:36, on a half-mile track) by Mambrino Wilkes, out of Mollie Fern by Captain Kohl (son of Hambletonian 725 and Lady Livingstone); second dam Fanny Fern (dam of Molly Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, etc.), by Jack Hawkins; third dam s. t. b. by Jim Crow. She has a colt by Memphis (son of Sitka) at her side, and has been bred to Sidney, 2:19¼.

Belle Jewell, chestnut mare, by Fitz James (brother to Dan Voorhees, 2:23¼) out of Countess (dam of Dawn, 2:18¾, and Strathway, 2:20), by Hambletonian 725. She is a fine, large mare. Her colt by Roy Wilkes, 2.08¼, sold for $1,000 as a yearling, and is a promising trotter.

Amatista, by Mambrino Wilkes, out of Amethyst by Admiral; second dam Spec, by Speculation. She has a filly by Ross S., 2:20¼.

Lady Kaltmyer, by A. W. Richmond 1687, out of Algerine, has a beautiful filly by Mount Hood, 2:22¾, at her side, and we doubt if there is a more perfectly-formed one anywhere.

Ulanee, bay filly, by Gaviota, out of a daughter of George M. Patchen Jr. 31.

Zelika, by the Grand Moor, dam by Cassius M. Clay 22, second dam by C. M. Clay 18, third dam by Henry Clay 8. She has a bay filly by Rupee, 2:14¾, by her side. Zelika has a very fast pacing colt here by Sidney, called Melbourne.

Freda, by Fred Arnold, is a fine-looking mare. She has a black filly by Rupee, 2:14¾, that's a trotter.

Young Countess, by Sam Patchen (a son of G. M. Patchen Jr. 31), out of Countess (dam of Dawn, 2:18¾ and Strathway, 2:20), by Hambletonian 725. Young Countess is dam of Duchess trial 2:26 as a three year old. She sold for $3,000.

Lady Indigo, black mare, by Alcona 730, out of the dam of Abdol, 2:28. She is bred to Guy Wilkes, and is one of the best mares here.

Linnet, by Lynwood, out of Lady Budd (dam of Capri). She has a fine filly by Silver Bow, 2:22½, about two months old.

Beauty, by the Grand Moor, out of a daughter of Owen Dale. The colt is by Silver Bow, 2:22½.

Zenobia, by Mambrino Wilkes, out of Zelika, by the Grand Moor.

Blackbird, by Reavis' Blackbird, dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31; second dam by General McClellan 143. She has a filly by Chaldean, the phenomenal son of Mambrino Wilkes.

Ivy, chestnut mare, by Don Victor, out of Isabelle by Hambletonian 10; secon ddam Godfrey Star, by Seely's American Star 14, is one of the Palo Alto mares that were purchased at the late sale. She has a filly by Mac Benton at her side.

South Carolina, by Alcona 730, out of a daughter of Whippleton. She is in foal to Eclectic (brother to Arion, 2:10¾.)

Lady Milicent, by Gaviota, out of a daughter of Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31; second dam by McCracken's Black Hawk. She has a bay filly by Leo Wilkes. Gaviota is by Electioneer 125, ont of Lady Ellis by Mohawk Chief; second dam Lady Clay by Paymaster (Clark's).

Lady Rosalind, by Gaviota, out of the Moss mare (great running mare). Bred to Sid Fleet, 2:26½.

Hazel, bay mare, by Exile (son of Echo 462), dam Black Swan (dam of Annie Laurie, 2:30), by Ten Broeck; second dam a daughter of David Crockett. She is in foal to Eclectic (brother to Arion, 2:10¼ as a two-year-old).

Gipsy, by Grosvenor 1687, out of Polly (dam of Mamie Comet, 2:23), by Sportsman, a son of Sherman Black Hawk 142. She has a handsome filly by Soudan, 2:27½, here called Laroka, and the black filly running beside her is by Chaldean.

Another good, reliable broodmare that deserves to be classed among the above is the chestnut mare Mollie Mac, by Alexander 490, dam by Owen Dale. This mare has one of the finest-looking chestnut fillies on the place. She is the dam also of the fine yearling colt by Winwood.

A very well-shaped seal brown filly claimed our attention. On inquiry we learned that she was by Pancoast, 2:21¾, out of Bessie Bowne, by Dictator; second dam by Mambrino Time; third dam by Paddy Burns, a son of Grey Eagle. There are few better-bred ones in the land than she.

Nettie, by Marco, by Morrow's Elector, dam Nellie Requa, by Abdallah 15. This promising mare has a filly by Almonition, which is the latest arrival on the farm. Nettie paced quarters in thirty-one seconds, and should be trained for a record when her foal is weaned.

Gladys, by Gen. Benton Jr., out of Kate, by Messenger Duroc; second dam by Geo. M. Patchen 30, is a very well-formed mare.

H. D., a fine bay mare by Gen. McClellan 144, dam Lady Burgess, by Little John (thoroughbred). She is the type of a grand matron.

Lillie S. is a well-formed bay mare by Dawn, 2:18¾, out of a daughter of Rustic, 2:30; second dam by Gen. McClellan 143 (sire of dam of Princess Alice, 2:16); third dam by Williamson's Belmont. She has a very strongly-built bay colt by Eclectic (brother to Arion, 2:10¼), a son of Electioneer 125, that will make a trotter, and then, when his days on the turf are ended, he would prove invaluable in the stud.

Elector is a bay mare by Elect (son of Electioneer and Inez, by Nordale) out of a daughter of Jerseyman; second dam by General Benton. She will prove of great value in the harem.

Crescent is by Dawn, 2:18¾, out of a daughter of Alexander 490; second dam a full sister to Kitty Irvington, the mare that brought such a good price at the Whitney sale. She has been bred to Alto Rito.

Carrie, by Mohawk Chief, dam by Ben Franklin; second dam s. t. b. thoroughbred.

Lady Sunshine, bay mare, by Dawn, 2:18¾, out of a daughter of Carr's Mambrino. She has been bred to Dexter Prince.

Kate R., by A. W. Richmond, out of Jennie Lind, by John Morgan. This good-looking matron has a fine black colt by Chaldean at her side.

Amy, by Mambrino Wilkes, out of a daughter of Pill Box (a son of Norfolk), is now being trained at the Petaluma race track. Her filly, Armais, by Balkan, 2.15, is one of the best-lookers here, and will be given an opportunity of showing that she is all that her game trotting inheritance warrants.

Lilly D., by Dick Patchen, out of Maggie by Jack Patchen. She is, as can be seen, an inbred Geo. M. Patchen mare, and is in every way a splendid representative of this family.

Meg, by Tom Patchen (son of Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31) out of daughter of Stockbridge Chief Jr., is in foal to Chaldean.

Hattie, brown mare by Tom Patchen, out of Queen, by Joseph; second dam (the dam of Queen's Patchen), has a fine colt by Almonition.

Coraline, full sister to Clara P., 2:29½, is in every way the equal of that perfectly-made matron.

Carro True, by Winthrop, out of Nellie, by Williamson's Belmont; second dam the Graves mare, belongs in the front ranks of this great regiment of fine-looking matrons.

Lady Duncan, by Signal Wilkes, out of Sylvia, by Tom Benton; second dam by Dave Hill Jr. 851: third dam by McCracken's Black Hawk. This bay mare is a trotter, and will be trained.

Gratitude, by Figaro, out of Susie Grattan, by Jonathan; second dam by Woodburn, out of Esperanza, by Ringgold, is one whose name will appear in the 2:30 list next year.

At the track at Petaluma there are two colts by Director Jr., both two-year-olds, that are trotters. One of them is black in color and a perfect picture of Director, 2:17; he is out of Cesanolia by Altamont, 2:27; second dam by Mike 2403 (son of Vermont 322); third dam by Savage's Old George (thoroughbred). Leader is the name of the mahogany bay colt out of Beauty, by Kisbar, 2:27¾; second dam by Oregon Pathfinder 10,981, he by Morrill 850. Kisbar was by Hambletonian 10 out of Lady Fallis, by American Star 14, etc. Whoever purchases these colts will have something worth training, and either of them are fit to grace the premiership of any stud harem in this State.

There are some forty other equally-bred colts and fillies from such sires as Dawn, 2:18¾, Leo Wilkes (brother to Sable Wilkes, 2:18), Silver Brow, 2:22½, Gen. Benton Jr., Buccaneer, Fred Arnold, Eclectic (brother to the champion two-year-old, Arion, 2:10¼), Oaknut, 2:24½, Mortimer, 2:27½, Alcona 730, Silas Skinner, 2:17, Alcona Jr. 2:24½, Ashland Almont, Soudan, 2:27½, Director Jr., Ulster Wilkes, Fayette King, Signal Wilkes, Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, Rupee, 2:14¾, Memo, Prompter, Sidney, 2:19¾, Admont 5338, Nutwood Chief and a number of other very prominent ones.

All of this stock looks excellent, and is healthy and strong. The feed on the hillsides and on the lowlands is of a most nutritive nature, while with the abundance of shade and water the animals seem to enjoy all the comforts of equine life. Every morning and evening they are looked after, and should any of them show any signs of sickness the animal is immediately led to the barn. Every one in the field seems gentle and docile, and the same rule which governs the 600 little children extends to these handsome horses, and that is "the golden rule of kindness."

Lack of space forbids us giving complete pedigrees and descriptions of the broodmares, colts and fillies in this issue, but enough is shown to astonish the reader who has never had any idea of the magnitude of the work that is being carried on at this great institution.

"Fields of the finest oats man ever gazed upon" surround the thrifty orchard on all sides, graveled walks divide the alfalfa fields, while along the turnpike leading to the depot are rows of acacias, eucalyptus and chestnut trees. It will only be a question of a few years before the imposing-looking asylum, instead of being surrounded by black hills, will be almost hidden in the center of fruit-producing orchards, vineyards and shade trees. The barrenness will be covered by a heavy growth of flowers and foliage, and the low stretch of marshland will be converted into an immense wheat field whose emerald spears will nod and toss at every breath of the gentle zephyrs. The creek with its wealth of white-winged messengers of commerce will come to the very gates of the farm, and peace, plenty and prosperity will crown the efforts of the kind and loving president, who is laying the foundation for one of the greatest self-sustaining institutions of its kind in the world. His work has just begun, and the same good judgment and foresight that has marked every step of his progressive march seems to prevail in the selection of the stock that will become more renumerative to the institution than any other that could be devised. A cordial invitation is extended to all to visit this place and judge of the work that is being done, and what progress has been made in this new industry.

Santa Rosa Scintillations.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The news of the death of Mr. Hobart was received with many expressions of regret by his many friends here. Santa Rosa horsemen concede that the trotting horse industry has lost one of its best friends.

Sonoma County is filling up with trotting stock, and what is to be done with it after awhile is a matter worthy of some consideration by the horsemen. To a prominent Santa Rosa horseman, who owns a large number, we put this interrogatory: "What are you going to do with all your horses? At the rate they are increasing you will soon be over-run with them." The horseman replied, "I tell you what I am going to do. I am going to ship a car-load of mine back to Kentucky next spring. I can sell them there. We cannot hope to sell all of our stock here, but take it back to Chicago, New York, Boston or Kentucky, advertise it thoroughly as our own consignment, and I am not afraid but that we will get good prices for our animals."

Speaking about the number of our best horses that go East this same gentleman said that it was a good thing for California that it was so, and he illustrated his theory by taking up the case of Anteeo. "A great many people," said he, "lament the removal of Anteeo from this county." He considered it a blessing to Anteeo and his stock. Had he been kept here, this county would have been full of Anteeos, that horse's service fees would have been about one-fourth what they are now, his reputation would not be so wide and the owners of his progeny here would not be so well off as they are to-day. Horses must be shifted around now and then to give best results to small breeders.

The same gentleman predicts that the Anteeo mares will come to the front. He says that they are as sure to become fashionable as the Nutwoods, and it will not be long before they will be heard from. A number of them owned here have been bred to different stallions, and the colts in every instance are promising. One of the best in town is owned by George A. Tupper, ex-county treasurer. She has foaled a colt by Ned Locke and one by Silas Skinner, and both are gilt-edged youngsters.

W. B. Sanborn has his string of runners at his stables here, all but his game mare Mamie C. She has been left at Sacramento, and was bred to Three Cheers. His great sprinter, Inkerman, is enjoying his, rest and when he turns him loose at Eureka at the coming meeting will be as limber as he ever was. Inkerman is, without doubt, the noblest race horse on the coast. He rarely starts in a race without winning a good place, and he is more often second. Besides Inkerman, Sanborn has Harry Peyton, by Flood; Stella by Joe Hooker; and a young trotter, by Daly, at his Santa Rosa Athenæum Stables.

Bert Edsall, the sixteen-year-old lad that takes care of Inkerman, has a deeper affection for that horse than many young men have for their best summer girl. He seldom leaves him, and when he does he gives strict orders to Mr. Sanborn to go out to see him every few moments. Bert is a very promising rider, and has had the mount in a number of very good races.

John Walker has a valuable matron in Pussy. She was sired by Wheatley, dam Maud by Ironclad. She has a colt by Philosopher, but has been bred by Mr. Walker to Harry Peyton this year. Another good mare that has been stinted to Peyton this year is the Robinson mare Jennie Lind, by Ironclad. She has a youngster by Daly, but has been called upon for a galloper, for next season.

Pat Carroll, of Bloomfield, has sold his bay gelding Pat Carroll, by Ironclad, dam Nellie Shannon, dam of Mamie C., to Mr. Chamberlain, of Rincon Valley. This horse made a very creditable showing last season and is expected to do better this fall. Inkerman will start in the Introduction race, one mile, at Eureka, also in the Western race, three-quarters and repeat. Stella has been entered in the Revere House purse, three-eighths of a mile, at that place, and for the Merchants', Railroad and other purses. Inkerman goes in the South Park race and Peyton will compete for the Humboldt purse.

George Guerne reports a number of fine youngsters at his stock farm. His George M. Patchen Jr. mare has a handsome colt, sired by George A. Stone's grandly-bred stallion. Illustrious. It is about two weeks old, and shows considerable speed. Mr. Guerne's Nutwood mare Daisy has a splendid colt by G. & M., full brother to Alfred G. The excellent matron Fenita, by Billy Hayward, has a little Silas Skinner that prances about the pasture with as much glee as his sire exhibits when beating a competitor under the wire.

Mr. Guerne's two-year-old stallion Alfred G. Jr. is in fine form and shows great speed and action. He is the picture of his sire, and has the same way of going. He will be put in active training this summer. The Anteeo mare, Eva G., is in foal to Silas Skinner, and if she does not bring forth a lightning flyer it will be a great disappointment, for the dam is a heroic race mare of good speed and the sire is flighty enough.

Graceful George, the pacer by Alcona Jr., is rounding to in good style. He gets plenty of good road work. Philosopher, the inbred Wilkes, is six years old this spring, and is a good deal better horse than is generally known. The stallion Antenut is certainly one of the best in the county, and he has many admirers. He was sired bo Anteeo and his dam was Daisy, by Nutwood. Daisy is full sister to Luella, dam of De Turk's Myrtle, 2:19½ at three years old. Mr. Guerne has over twenty head of well-bred trotting horses. He exercises great care in breeding, takes good care of his stock and has a firm, abiding faith in the trotting horse industry in California.

SANTA ROSA, June 6th. PUBLIUS.

A Practical Test of the Swimming Tank.

The use of the Souther Farm swimming tank for horses began on January 29, 1892. A very short trial proved the value of this method in conditioning horses; extra flesh was quickly and safely removed, lung power greatly increased, legs and feet greatly benefited and the general condition quickly improved. Swimming was carried on in all weather, but with salt water that was partly warmed by jets of steam; nothing else is fit to swim a horse in. Many prophesied that colds, distemper and pneumonia would be the result; but even the warmest supporters hardly expected that the horses that were swum would be almost entirely free from the usual spring complaints. Such was the case—the swimming seemed to toughen every animal that was so worked.

Another most desirable result was the evident muscular development of the shoulders, and especially of the back and quarters, which were beautifully developed in almost every horse so worked. This extra muscle showed itself very plainly in the stride.

The animal selected for a most thorough test was a large bay horse, Figaro; he had speed, but was very heavy, and by the time the extra flesh had been worked off he generally was sick of the whole business. He had also had more than his share of bad luck; but he had shown speed and determination, and was well-bred, being by Whipple's Hambletonian, from the Sister to Voltaire—the mare that is claimed to be the granddam of Arion, 2:10¾, and is the grandam of Flying Jib, Captain Griffiths' great pacer that is going East with Mr. Salisbury's string.

Figaro seemed a first-class subject for the desired experiment. He had had absolutely no work at speed since November 20, 1890, the day of the first Souther Farm sale—when he ran away on a trot for a mile while we were trying to exhibit him for the benefit of his colts that were to be sold. His first swim was on February 2, 1892, and between that date and June 3d he was in the tank fifty-three times, an average of a little less than three times per week. This in all kinds of weather, but always in suitable water and under good care, although he was not even blanketed when once fairly dry.

After swimming a few weeks we began to give him a little jogging, and in the three months from March 2d to June 2d he was harnessed about forty times and driven slowly from two to five miles. The work was not regular; sometimes he would not swim for a week and at others he would not be harnessed for days at a time.

On Friday, June 3d we christened our new mile track with a speed trial of the system. Figaro had not once been speeded for a year and a half; of this time he had spent nearly a year running in a paddock. His work for the last four months is given above—53 swims 40 times driven—no speeding whatsoever for eighteen months.

The horse was driven by an assistant trainer, was jogged three miles, and then hitched to a light cart. He was next driven two quarters on the backstretch, one in 47, the next in 41 seconds, and then went around the track easily. When near the backstretch the horse was started up; the first eighth was trotted in 20 seconds, the second eighth in a shade less than 18 seconds. The horse was not at speed when he left the post, but went faster and faster, finishing at a terrific clip; and although the quarter was trotted against the wind, the horse was not in the least blown.

The timing was done by John Groom and the undersigned. Both watches made the first eighth in exactly 20 seconds, the quarter a shade under 38 seconds.

To summarize: A horse that has no record is let alone for over a year, and is then swum fifty-three times in four months, and in the last three months is jogged forty times. Not one speeding in that entire period of a year and a half—no regular training for two years and a half. This horse on a new track (the first day smooth enough to use) to light cart, driven alone, trots an eighth of a mile in 18 seconds, timed by two watches, in the presence of witnesses.

GILBERT TOMPKINS.

History of Schultz's St. Clair.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—In your issue of the 4th, I notice C. F. N., of Petaluma, asks who bred Schultz's St. Clair. In reply will state I was quite young at the time the so-called Schultz's St. Clair was living, but remember him very well, as to color and general appearance, as well as many little incidents connected with his history.

In the first place his name is erroneously spelled; it should be Shoots' St. Clair. Four or five years ago I made as thorough investigation as I could, at the request of Chas. Marvin.

Shoots' St. Clair, which is his correct name, was bred by a Mr. Spencer, who was then and is still living adjoining Agricultural Park, Sacramento, Cal. In color he was a black, foaled 1860, sired by Old St. Clair (the sire of Mayfly, 2:30¼, and Mayflower, 2:30¾, etc.). His dam, from the account Mr. Spencer gave me of her, was a very spirited and blood-like mare, and either her or her dam was imported from the East, but he knew nothing further of her history or breeding.

In the early spring of 1862 my father, Chas. S. Lowell, a well-known horseman of early days, was driving over to Mr. Spencer's with a view of buying this colt, when to his great astonishment he met Capt. Shoots, who informed him he had just been over and bargained for the colt, so the next best thing my father could do was to engage his stud services for his old favorite mare Laura (the dam of Doc, the sire of Occident, 2:16¼). She was bred that spring to him, and foaled the next spring, 1862, a black filly, now known as Lady Lowell (dam of Ladywell, 2:16½, and Loritta, 2:22¾), now owned by Gov. L. Stanford. Shoots' St. Clair, being only two years old, was allowed to serve only two or three mares, and I am quite sure Lady Lowell was the only foal he sired, as he died the following fall. I remember very well how Capt. Shoots used to lead the St. Clair colt by the side of a saddle-horse, and he could trot nearly as fast as the saddle-horse could run, and on one occasion he led him in on the track, and was timed a 2:40 gait, which in those days was pronounced by horsemen that saw him a most remarkable feat, as they never thought of breaking a colt to harness then until he was at least three years old.

There is no doubt but Lady Lowell would have been one of the greatest producing mares at Palo Alto had Gov. Stanford owned her before she began to get old. She only had five foals, the first being Fatina, by Berlin. Fatina was foaled 1877, and is the dam of the promising young stallion Electro, now owned by the Sandwich Stock Farm in Illinois. Her next foal was Loritta, 2:22¾, by Piedmont, foaled in 1883. Lady Agnes was her next, who, I understand, was never worked for speed on account of an injury. In 1885 she foaled a black colt called Lowell, one of the fastest of his age ever bred at Palo Alto, who was destroyed in the great Palo Alto fire a few years ago, which burned to death some of the most promising and valuable of Electioneer's get. Ladywell (five-year-old record 2:16½) foaled 1886 was her last foal.

Yours very truly,

SAN FRANCISCO, June, 7, 1892. F. P. LOWELL.

History of Williamson's Belmont.

SAN JOSE, June 7, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Belmont was foaled the spring of 1847, and was got by American Boy out of imported Prunella, by Comus (son of Sorcerer); second dam by Partizan son of Walton by Sir Peter; third dam Pawn (sister to Penelope, by Temptation, dam of Whalebone, Whisker Wire, Web, etc.); fourth dam Prunella, by Highflyer, son of Herod; fifth dam Promise, by Snap, son of Snip, by Godolphin Arabian; sixth dam Julia, by Blank, son of Godolphin Arabian, etc. American Boy was got by Van Mater's Sea Gull, son of imp. Expedition. First dam Sister to Wilkinson's Boxer, by imp. Expedition; second dam by imp. Royalist, son of Saltram; third dam by imp. Magnetic Needle, by Magnet; fourth dam by imp. Bajazet, etc.

Belmont was a very handsome bay horse, fifteen hands, two and one-half inches high barefooted. He was a horse of remarkable beauty and style, and in good flesh would weigh over 1,100 pounds; yet he was so evenly made and finely-finished that he did not look so large, and was frequently referred to as a small horse. He was brought across the plains during the summer of 1853, at six years old, was first taken to Colusa county, and remained there until the spring of 1856, when I brought him to San Jose and stood him there until the spring of 1860, when he was removed to the ranch on the San Jose road, six miles north of Oakland, at which place he died on the 4th day of July, 1865, from lockjaw.

He was a horse of extremely quick, springy action, and was naturally a very fast trotter and walker. The first winter I had him at San Jose I rode him to San Francisco from 8 o'clock in the morning on a walk, and was at Henry George's stable, at the corner of Kearney and Bush streets, before the sun was down. I don't think he was off a walk at one time for the distance of one hundred yards.

I let Mr. Bowman, of the firm of Crim & Bowman, keep him in San Francisco for some five or six weeks, and while there we broke him to harness. The first day we drove him with a gentle horse, and he went off as kindly as if he had been driven for years. After driving him twice Bowman hitched him to a small road buggy, and drove him out to the old Pioneer track, and trotted him a mile in 2:55, and when he came back to the stable he said the horse did it himself, and that he was not trying to drive him. The following spring I drove him a great deal, and notwithstanding he was a horse that seemed extremely nervous and full of vim, I could drive him anywhere. I often drove him in the pasture field, where the mares and colts were, and he never did anything wrong in his life. I always believed that if his colts were handled the same as trotting colts were, and from the same class of mares, that no horse would beat him getting harness horses and trotters. I offered a gentleman $3,500 for a three-year-old by him in the fall of 1859 with the intention of having Eoff train it, but could not get it. I wanted to convince the people that a thoroughbred horse coutd get trotters as well as runners. More next week.

Respectfully, etc.,

W. M. WILLIAMSON.

Trotters at Marysville.

MARYSVILLE, CAL., June 1, 1892.

TO THE EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—

DEAR SIR:—Those interested in the promotion of our coming fall meeting, as well as those who take pleasure in breeding and owning fine horses, will be pleased to learn that the track has been thrown open, and already quite a number of trotters are in training here.

Mr. William Hogoboom, recently of Walla Walla, has charge of Mr. D. E. Knight's horses, among which are the Brigadier mare, Balance See, and the three-year-old stallion King of the Ring, by Silver King, and quite a number of promising youngsters. Mr. Hogoboom has a young stallion which he brought from home, a son of Almont Medium (by Happy Medium), dam Lavonia, by Almont 33, which gives every promise of being a flyer. Mr. Hogoboom is a very genial gentleman, well versed in trotting matters, and takes great pleasure in showing his horses to all who may chance to call on him.

There are also quite a number of horses in training here on private tracks. J. B. McDonald, the owner of Brigadier, has some fine young horses, all the progeny of this grand old horse. Charles Raisch has a daughter of this horse also which gives great promise. Charles Swantz, the veteran hardware man, has a Wilkes filly and a Brigadier colt in training on the track, and John Rainey, the owner of Alcantire, has a filly by that horse which is very speedy. Taken all together, the outlook for a favorable meeting is encouraging.

Mr. D. E. Knight has been to an enormous expense in fitting up the track and rebuilding the grand stand, together with eighty new stalls for the accommodation of horses, the cost of which was over $8,000, and the condition of things, all through the efforts of this gentleman, reflects great credit on him.

SUMMARY.

There was no regular game of cricket played last Sunday, but two good games will be played across the bay to-morrow. Below will be found reports of the championship games and bicycle tournament:

THE OLYMPIC CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM DEFEATED.

The second annual championship meeting of the Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States was held at the grounds of the Olympic Club on Decoration Day last. The weather was superb and he say as clear as glass. The track, while being a trifle soft was in good order, and the athletes found nothing to hinder them from breaking several of the old records. Fifty two thousand spectators occupied seats in the grand stand, while nearly half as many more were scattered around the grounds. The bright colors of the University, blue and gold, formed a very pleasing contrast against the glassy soft sky, and from beginning to end the students found encouragement in all directions. Their many fair lady friends were ever ready to cheer them on to victory, while the Olympians did not seem to have a dozen friends among the throng. The friends of the University boys were there for business and they successfully accomplished their mission by urging their favorites on to a well-deserved victory. For weeks and weeks before the day of the great battle the Berkeley athletes had trained patiently and faithfully so that when called upon to defend their colors they were in prime condition and well prepared to cope with their veteran foemen. When the first event was called there were many people in the crowd that predicted victory for the Olympians, but as the day wore on their faith began to weaken, and when scarcely half the programme was gone through with their confidence was entirely shaken, for victory had already perched on the banner of the University Athletic Club. To a man the U. C. representatives were in condition, but as much could not be said of the O. A. C. athletes, many of whom were scarcely more than half trained. The U. C. team was strong and well organized, while the O. A. C. team was unusually weak and indifferent. For several years the O. A. C. has won the championship pennant, and its representatives have always done nobly until this year. So sure were they of an other victory that they were sleeping while their rivals from across the bay were working hard to down them. Had every good man in the O. A. C. trained as faithfully as did the student athletes, even such wonderful men as Henry, Mays, Pheby, Hoffman, Morrow, Whiting, Mau and Bakewell could not have wrested the pennant away from the club which has won it for six years. Had Seidman, McArthur, schiffierstein, Jervis, and Bakewell been entered the Olympic Club would not have been defeated. In starting the sprint events the starter, James Jervis, was not as prompt as usual, for he missed a good many chances to send his men off when they were together. Several of the gentlemen whose names figured on the programme as officials were absent, and many of the officers present were obliged to do double duty. In future care should be taken that the entire force of officials be present. There was some fine speeding in the different heats of the hundred yard run. In the second heat Gill, O. A. C., and Woodward, U. C., ran a dead heat for second place but the judge, G. H. Fouks, U. C., very unjustly decided that his club mate had beaten the Olympian. In the half mile ran Mahoney ran himself out, and if he had used more judgment he might have won a place. The final heat of the 120 yard hurdle race was a grand exhibition of runner clearing. Young Henry of the U. C., who won it, proved himself to be a wonder. Towards the finish he ran like a racehorse, and the look of determination on his face during the last fifty yards will never be forgotten by those who were near enough to notice it. Foster ran nobly, but he had to give way to a world-beater. So anxious was he to keep stride with the U. C. man that he actually cleared over sixteen feet while topping the last hurdle. Collin won both walks easily, but he has not improved any in his gait. He was cautioned once in the one mile walk. Yates, who is a much more graceful pedestrian than Collin, might easily have won second place in the mile had he not been so ambitious to keep at the heels of a man who was traveling at the rate of six minutes for the mile. In the mile walk Yates made but a poor effort to walk square, and both his feet were in the air at the same time. He was given two fair cautions, but he failed to improve his gait, and so was disqualified. In the three-mile walk Yates walked squarer than Collin. Winters who was in third place at the finish walked well for a new man, and it was a great pity that he should have broken in the last fifty yards. He was ruled out for running. The mile run was a good race, but had McArthur or Skillman competed that event would not have gone to the U. C. Either of the two men mentioned would also have captured the half mile run. The quarter-mile run was a pretty race and Jellinek made a fine showing against Morse and Henderson. Baird did well in the five-mile run, and he deserves credit for breaking Skillman's record. Had the latter been in the race it is very likely that he would have beaten Baird a lap. Cassidy ran a game race, but could not come near Baird. Moody, who ran third, surprised his friends by making such good time. He had not trained much beforehand, and when in condition it is more than probable that he can beat the winner's time. The shot-putting event was not a very brilliant performance for a championship meeting. The high jumping was also below the average. Morrow's performance with the 16-lb. hammer was good. He hung it 120 feet 10½ inches, which broke the record of 109 feet 1 inch. The hammer was half a pound light, however, and this record would not be allowed. At the O. A. C. grounds last Sunday he again tried for a record with a hammer that was full weight, and he succeeded in making a record of 114 feet 11 inches, which will supplant his previous, Pacific Coast, record of 109 feet 1 inch. The pole-vaulting of Hoffman was fine, and that athlete may yet prove himself to be a world-beater. The board jump might have fallen to Foster had he entered.

The following is a summary of the results:

One hundred yard run: First heat—E. Mays, U. C.; second, C. A. Jelinek, O. A. C. Time, 0:10 3-5.

Second heat—First, A. S. Henderson, O. A. C.; second, H. T. Woodard, U. C. Time, 0:10 3-5.

Final heat—First, A. S. Henderson, O. A. C.; second, E. Mays, U. C.; third, H. T. Woodard, U. C.; fourth, C. A. Jellinek, O. A. C. Time, 0:10 1-5.

Eight hundred and eighty-yard run—First, J. P. Cosgro, O. A. C.; second, N. B. Hinckley, U. C.; third, D. Waterman, U. C. Time, 2:06¼.

One hundred and twenty-yard hurdle race: First heat—First, W. H. Henry, U. C.; second, A. Kelter, O. A. C. Time, 0:16 1-5.

Second heat—First, R. B. Huffman, U. C.; second, F. F. Foster, O. A. C. Time, 0:17.

Trial heat, winner to run in final—First, F. F. Foster, O. A. C. Time, 0:19½.

Final heat—First, W. H. Henry, U. C.; second, F. F. Foster, O. A. C.; third, R. B. Hoffman, U. C. Time, 0:15¾. This beats previous world's record of 15 4-5 seconds.

One-mile walk—First, Horace Coffin, O. A. C.; second, D. Winter, U. C.; C. M. Yates, O. A. C., disqualified for running. Winner's time, 7:33½.

Two hundred and twenty-yard run—First, E. Mays, U. C.; second, A. S. Henderson, O. A. C.; third, C. A. Jellinek. Time, 0:23.

One-mile run—First, F. S. Pheby, U. C.; second, J. P. Cosgro, O. A. C.; third, T. W. Bancroft, U. C.; fourth, P. F. Bauer, A. A. A. C. Time, 4:46.

Two hundred and twenty-yard hurdle race—First, T. V. Bakewell, U. C.; second, W. H. Henry, U. C.; third, A. Kelter, O. A. C. Time, 0:27¼.

Three-mile walk—First, Horace Coffin, O. A. C.; second, C. M. Yates, O. A. C.; third, L. T. Merwin, U. C. Time, 24:14.

Four hundred and forty-yard run—First, A. S. Henderson, O. A. C.; second, C. R. Morse, U. C.; third, C. A. Jellinek, U. C. Time, 0:51¼.

Five-mile run—First, G. D. Baird, O. A. C.; second, H. C. Cassidy, O. A. C.; third, E. P. Moody, A. A. C. Time, 28:30.

Putting 16-pound shot—First, John Purcell, O. A. C., 36 ft. 4 in.; second, R. H. Sherman, U. C., 24 ft. 3½ in.; third, H. S. Hunter, Academic Amateur Athletic Association, 32 ft. 9 in.

Pole vault—First, G. J. Hogman, U. C., 10 feet 4 7-8 inches; second, E. C. Van Dyke, U. C., 10 feet 1 1-8 inches; third, A. H. Mau, U. C., 9 feet 1½ inch.

Throwing 16-pound hammer—First, W. G. Morrow, U. C., 120 feet 10¼ inches; second, W. S. Hunter, A. A. A. A.; third, L. E. Hunt, U. C.

Running high jump—First, R. V. Whiting, U. C., 5 feet 7¾ inches; second, W. Patterson, A. A. A. A.; third, C. H. Woolsey, U. C.

Throwing 56-pound weight—First, A. H. Mau, U. C., 24 feet 1½ inches; second, R. H. Sherman, U. C., 22 feet ¾ inch; third, C. R. Morse, U. C., 22 feet 8 inches.

Running broad jump—First, T. R. Bakewell, U. C., 20 feet 10½ inches; second, C. R. Morse, U. C., 20 feet 4½ inches; third, A. W. North, U. C., 19 feet 6¼ inches.

The entries for the different races under the auspices of the Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club were numerous and several records were broken during the day. The races were won as follows: One-mile safety novice race arranged in four heats, the first of which was won by W. Toepke of the B. C. B. C. in 2:46, beating the coast record by six seconds. The second was won by H. A. Maxwell of the A. A. C. in 2:45, the third by C. L. Davis of the G. C. B. C. in 2:51, and the fourth by J. A. Delmas, G. C. C., in 2:44 2-5. The final heat between the above four winners was won by J. A. Delmas. The event of the day was the one-mile safety race for the championship of the State, to be run in two heats, the first of which was won by Grant Bell of the A. A. C. in 2:42, beating the record seven seconds, with J. C. Smith a close second. The second heat was won by Walter Foster of the A. B. A. C. the present one-mile champion, and Wilbur Edwards was a good second. The final heat was won by Walter Foster in 2:42.

A three-mile safety race for the State championship was carried off by B. C. Lund of the A. A. C. Time, 9:06. L. S. Upson came in second. The two-mile safety handicap was run in three heats. The first was won by J. E. Alexander of the G. C. C. Time, 5:39 1-5. J. A. Delmas of the G. C. C. was the second, time 5:59½, and the third was captured by A. A. Bouton of the A. A. C. in 5:58, while the final was won by A. J. Delmas, G. C. C., in 5:34.

A two-mile ordinary handicap was a good race. L. S. Upson of the C. C. W. was the winner. Time, 5:59 2-5. A special one-mile ordinary was announced to take place between B. C. Lund of the A. A. C. and William R. Lipsett of the G. C. B. C., the present champion. As Lipsett said he was feeling ill the race was postponed. Dunn rode alone in an attempt to break the record, but failed to do so. The programme was brought to a close by a five-mile safety race, which was won by Grant Bell of the A. A. C. in 14.18.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department MUST be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, as proof of good faith. Write the question distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Postively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

C. H., San Francisco.—Can you tell me in your next issue if the Epsom Derby (England) is a run on a straight course or a course with turns? Answer—It is run on a course with turns.

J. V. DeL., San Francisco.—Give me the breeding of the dams of Flaxtail 8132 and Pilot (Canadian). Who was the sire and dam of St. Clair 16,675, and what was Lady Ross' breeding? Answer—Nothing is known of the breeding of any of the horses you have inquired about.

J. G. M., Sacramento, Cal.—Please inform me through your paper what trotter holds the world's record for the three fastest heats in a race on an oval track? Answer—Delmarch. He trotted three heats in a race at Cambridge City, Ind., September 25, 1891, in 2:16¼, 2:14½, 2:12.

W. J. F., Lompoc, Cal.—Has a horse called Fred M., formerly owned by H. Dutard, a record? Can you give us a history of him? Answer—Fred M. was sired by Startle; his dam was a thoroughbred mare. He was driven on the roads in a business buggy for a long time in this city; he never trotted in a race and never got a record; he was very flighty, but when he settled down to trot could move very fast.

C. F. N., Petaluma, Cal.—Please let me know through the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN if a horse called Young St. Clair that stood at Sacramento or near there in the year 1875 or 1876. I think that a man named John Houghton bred him. He was by old St. Clair 16,675, dam Sally Barnes, said to have been a trotter in her day. Answer—See article headed "History of Schultz's St. Clair" in another portion of this week's paper. While this is not the horse, perhaps if you will write to F. P. Lowell, care Heald's Business College, this city, he can tell you something of the horse you inquire about.

To Recent Inquirer—The following, taken from the Rural Spirit, answers a question asked us recently: "With much pleasure I undertake to comply with your request in sending pedigree of the famous horse Pacific Laplander, to wit: Pacific Laplander, by Laplander, of Missouri, he by Old Laplander, of New Jersey, he by Flagelator, he by the noted running horse, Sea Gull, he by imp. Exposition, he by Pegassus, he by Eclipse, of England, dam by Gracious; grandam by Blackburn's Whip. Gracious, by Old Gracious, he by Virginia Diomed. Laplander, of Missouri's dam, by Marmisn; grandam by imp. St. George. Marmisn, by Virginian, he by Sir Archy, he be imp. Diomed. Old Laplander's dam by American Eclipse; grandam by Marshall's Duroc. Flagelator's dam by imp. Expedition; grandam by imp. Messenger. Sea Gull's dam by imp. Sour Kraut grandam by imp. Slender. Imp. Expedition, Pegasus and Eclipse, I can't think just now how they are bred. It has been so long since I have thought of the old horse's crosses that a great many have slipped my memory; but this much will give you a scattering idea. W. A. BASKETT."

It is of pecuniary interest to every horseman to aid in the introduction of Judge Burlingame's new book, "Parket," the Horseman's Hand-Book, for the reason that it educates the masses in all that pertains to the race course and speed trials, teaches them the technical terms of the turf, and how to mark and read a score card correctly, and must thus increase the attendance and interest in races. See advertisement in another column.

Washtenaw Chief.

Living in Oneida county, where Washtenaw Chief was said to have got a record better than 2:30, I am called upon very often to give the pedigree of that horse, so I will give a short sketch of the two horses that were named Washtenaw Chief. The information about the first horse of that name I got from people who knew him well. I never saw him, but the pedigree I got from an old poster put out by Wm. Robinson, of Clinton, N. Y., dated 1868. The first thing I find is, that in 1853 S. T. Turner kept a stallion called Black Hawk for service in Oneida and Herkimer counties. The horse is described as a small black horse, sired by Hill's Vermont Black Hawk, dam a descendant of imported Messenger, out of a Highflyer mare. Of course, at the present day, this pedigree on the dam's side amounts to nothing, but back in the forties, when the horse was raised, it was no doubt thought good enough. This horse was kept in this vicinity but one or two years, and I never heard that he ever trotted any races in New York State. He was taken from here to Ypsilanti, Washtenaw county, Michigan, were he was named Washtenaw Chief. He trotted many races in the Western States and California, getting a record.

I am unable to tell when or where this horse died, and the only place I find that he stood in Oneida county was at South Trenton, where lived Mr. Isaac Hughes, who bred to him a large gray mare. The produce was a brown colt, no white but a star. This colt was sold to Wm. Williams of the same place, who showed him at the Oneida County Fair in 1857, taking a premium under the name of Black Hawk. The gray mare, dam of this colt, was sired by Splendor of Oneida, who was sired by Black River Messenger, a son of Imported Messenger, dam a Patriot mare. Wm. Williams moved to a more southern part of the county, near Waterville, where the horse was put in training. In his first race he beat the then quite noted trotter, Quaker, in three straight heats, time, 2:41, 2:39, 2:38. He made so good a race that Mr. Robinson, of Clinton, N. Y., bought him, paying $1,700 for him. He was trotted this race under the name of Washtenaw Chief, as his sire was making for himself at this time quite a name in the West as a trotter. Mr. Robinson trotted him in many races, but never more than two or three outside of Oneida county, and those were in adjoining counties.

In this old poster, dated 1868, Robinson claims that his horse's record was 2:33, got at the Oneida County Fair at Utica in 1866, in a stallion race; he got his record the last heat. He trotted the same season at Trenton, beating Toronto Chief in straight heats, time 2:34, 2:35, 2:34. As this was where the horse was raised, Mr. Robinson allowed him to give an exhibition, the first half mile in first heat, which was trotted in 1:13. He could have trotted, no doubt, at that time in 2:24 or 2:25 on a mile track. Soon after he became a little wrong in his mind so that he was unable to trot a full mile at his best speed. Chester, I think, gives his record as 2:29, but this is a mistake. I saw the race he refers to and know it is wrong. Mr. Robinson told me a short time before his death that 2:33 was his best record, "but" he added, "I could have given him a record of 2:25." I can not give date of his death, but it was about 1868 or 1870. He was shown in the afternoon at a fair and died before morning.

This horse was full 16 hands high; weighed, in stud condition, 1,250 pounds, and when fitted down finest never weighed less than 1,100 pounds. He had any amount of speed—could score with ony 2:20 horse with a driver (his owner) weighing 200 pounds, and sulky 70 pounds. He sired some colts that could trot fast, but none ever got into the 2:30 list, I think.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

(Sire of Silky 2:26, Anna Belle 2:27½, Oaknut 2:24¼, Dot 2:29½.)

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2:18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood, has record of 2:18¾ in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

BOSWELL, JR.

Will stand at the same place at the low price of $50 the season.

BOSWELL JR., sired by Boswell (a son of Almont 33), dam Nellie B., by Kirtley's Patchen; grandam Sophie (grandam of Nancy Hanks, 2:09), by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; great grandam by Parker's Brown Pilot. This stallion Boswell was purchased by King Kalakaua from Gen. W. T. Withers, Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky. Boswell Jr.'s dam, Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, sire of Frank Fisk, 2:29; second dam by Hamilton Chief, son of Royal George 9; third dam the Dooley Mare, MAUDE started in twenty-one races and won eighteen first moneys, and is well known to all horsemen. BOSWELL JR. showed miles in 2:26 and quarters in 35 seconds on two weeks' work.

Mares stabled or pastured (as owners may desire) on reasonable terms. All bills payable before the animal is removed. No liability for accidents. Best fences in the country. Address,

HARRY J. AGNEW, Hillsdale, Santa Clara County.

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

ABDOL 17,716.

RECORD, 2:28.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½, (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾; sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track; dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23¾, made in 1880; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family. This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18½ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

    - Hambletonian 10
    - Lady Fallis, by American Star 14
  - Daughter of.....
    - American Star 14
    - Daughter of Harry Clay 45

The attention of breeders is called to the above pedigree, which shows three crosses of American Star, embracing also the following great broodmares: Imogene, Clara, Dolly, Lady Fallis and Gretchen.

GUIDE'S sire has a record of 2:17, made in a five-heat race, and he is also closely related to Phallas, record 2:13¾ fourth heat, Jay-Eye-See, record 2:10, and Clingstone, 2:14. Guide, with a record of 2:16¼, is the fastest trotting son of the "Black Tornado," showing himself to possess the greatest share of the best qualities of his sire and grandsire, which, with his three crosses of American Star blood, makes him the peer of any trotting sire in the world.

TERMS: $200 for the season, with usual return privileges. Excellent pasturage, $5 per month, and the best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares can be shipped care of JAMES SUTHERLAND, Pleasanton, Cal. For further particulars, address JAMES SUTHERLAND, Pleasanton, Cal.,

The Fast Trotting Stallion

SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc.) by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾ Harry Clay 2:23¾; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted—so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17½, 2:17½, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

Every one of the above descendants of ALCONA were trained by different men, in different parts of the country, and all made their records in races over regulation tracks. ALCONA is 14 years old and has already two producing sons and a producing daughter. TERMS, $75 FOR THE SEASON.

GRANDISSIMO 14,995. RECORD, 2:27 3-4. (FULL BROTHER TO GRANDEE, THREE-YEAR-OLD RECORD, 2:23½).

Sired by La Grande 2868, dam Norma, by Arthurton 365; grandam Nourmahal, full sister to A. W. Richmond 1687.

GRANDISSIMO got his first work last season better than 3 minutes November 11, 1891. Was worked out four times and trotted to a record of 2:27¾ in a race Thanksgiving Day at Napa, finishing the last quarter in 36 seconds. Fifteen days training,—certainly a remarkable showing. I expect him to get a low mark next season. His colts are fine lookers and natural trotters. He will be bred to a limited number of mares at the low price of $50 FOR THE SEASON.

ALCONEER 15120. (FULL BROTHER TO ALCONA JR., 2:24, SIRE OF SILAS SKINNER, 2:17). Sired by ALCONA 730, dam Madonna (dam of Alcona Jr., 2:24, Del Rey, 2:29), by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22); grandam by Joe Downing 710.

ALCONEER is a handsome, good-sized horse, and a natural trotter. With two months training last fall as a 3-year-old he trotted a mile in 2:41; last quarter in 37½ seconds. TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON.

CADUCAS 10,840. Sired by ALMONT MEDIUM 2133, record 2:28¼, dam Amelia T. A Fine Site For a Breeding and Stock Farm,

Situated Among the Most Famous Group of Stock Farms in California.

A SPECIAL BARGAIN!

200 ACRES PERFECTLY LEVEL LAND—PORTION OF THE FAMOUS SANTA RITA Rancho—at Pleasanton, Alameda County, about 50 minutes from Oakland pier, 15 minutes from the local depot, bordering on the County road.

Land perfectly square in form, all well fenced into five fields; good dwelling, large barn, etc.; garden, fine shade trees, plenty pure water in spring and well; good shade for stock. Land all under cultivation except portion used at present for pasture.

The soil is a deep, rich sediment, easily worked at any time, without gravel or adobe, suitable for wheat, barley, alfalfa, vegitables, fruit of all kinds. This is the finest natural grass and alfalfa land in the State—green grass the year round. One hundred acres of this land will keep as many horses as 500 acres of the general run of land. Just the place for a breeding and stock farm. This is evidenced by the fact that Valensin's (the home of Sidney), Salisbury's (the home of Director), McCarty's, and many others are grouped in the immediate vicinity. Excellent place for a track—no gravel in the soil. Fine view; surroundings very beautiful; climate perfection, being the desired medium between the coldness of the coast and the warmth of localities lying further east. A piece of property which is perfect, and a beautiful home. Schools and churches at hand. Title perfect. Owner about to retire. This property will be sold at a special bargain and on the easiest terms, viz:

ONE-THIRD or ONE-HALF CASH

Balance at 7 per cent. for time to suit purchaser.

*Balkan.

BALKAN 8848

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000,

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.

A TRAINING AND DEVELOPING FARM.

THE SOUTHER FARM makes a specialty of everything connected with Conditioning, Balancing, Developing, Swimming and Training for Speed. A New Mile Track has just been finished and the plant is very complete.

THE SWIMMING TANK is doing everything that was expected of it, and more. It is simply invaluable in getting horses into condition for fast work, and its use takes out any soreness caused by training for speed. If a horse goes wrong at any point the swimming in salt water does wonders in the way of repairing damages, while the lungs, heart, back and shoulders are developed and no extra flesh is taken on.

Visitors Welcome Any Day Except Sunday.

For further information, address GILBERT TOMPKINS,
Souther Farm, San Leandro, Cal.

One and one-half miles northeast of San Leandro; eight miles southeast of Oakland. Turn off County Road between above places at "Stanley Road," three-quarters of a mile north of San Leandro.

DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training or this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud inOregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

DIRECTOR JR.

- Director, 2:17 — Sire of Direct 2:06; Margaret S. 2:12½; Evangeline 2:19; Guide 2:16¼; Emma 2:24¼; and 7 others in the 2:30 list.

TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON, LIMITED TO TWENTY APPROVED MARES.

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

TERMS: $40 FOR THE SEASON.

LIMITED TO FIFTEEN APPROVED MARES.

ANTI-STIFF

To Strengthen the Muscles.

To Strengthen the Muscles.

It is a marvelous preparation for Strengthening the Muscular System. With Anti Stiff there is no rest required; it goes straight for the muscles, and you can feel it at work. It has a peculiarly warming, comforting and stimulating effect on all weak or stiff muscles and sinews. Quick in its action, cleanly and pleasant in use.

Rub it into the muscles every night for a fortnight, and you will be pleased at its supporting and strengthening properties. There is not, nor has been, anything like it till now. It differs from all Oils, Embrocations and Liniments, both in substance and effect. Some Athletes are so fond of it that they rub it all over them.

DENVER RACES.

Charmion Captures the Montana Stakes, With Hermitage Second—Honshell Wins a Good Race—California Horses Doing Well—The Events in Detail.

[Special Correspondence of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

SEVENTH DAY, JUNE 7TH.

DENVER, June 7, 1892.

The weather was bright and the track tolerably good Attendance, two thousand. Five races were on the programme for to-day.

SUMMARY.

First race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; for three-year-olds that have started at this meeting and not won. Those that have run second in any race to carry their proper weight: those that have started once and have not been second allowed 5 pounds; twice, 7 pounds; three or more times, 12 pounds. Seven furlongs.

Silverman, ro g, 3, Richelieu—Nannie Knox, 115 pounds...Hennessy 1
McGinty, ch c, 3, Prince of Norfolk—Lizzie Idle, 115 pounds.....
.....Dennison 2
Wert Adams, blk h, 3, Glengarry—Cathline, 115 pounds.....Dalton 3
Top Gallant, ch c, 3, 122 pounds..... 0
Time, 1:34.

Betting—1 to 5 Top Gallant, 3 to 1 McGinty, 8 to 1 Silverman, 15 to 1 Wert Adams.

The start was a good one. McGinty soon went to the front, and he and Top Gallant raced neck and neck to the half. Soon after passing the half-mile post Silverman went up very fast, or rather the other two came back to him, and before the turn into the stretch was made, he was two lengths in front of McGinty and Top Gallant. Silverman never slackened his pace, and won without whip or spur by three lengths from Top Gallant, who was a length in front of McGinty. Dennison, the jockey on McGinty, claimed that Top Gallant fouled him at the head of the stretch, and the judges allowed it, giving the second place to McGinty and putting Top Gallant back last.

SUMMARY.

Second race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; the winner to be sold at auction; horses entered to be sold for $600 to carry weight for age; if for less, four pounds allowed for each $100 down to $100. One mile.

John Winfield, b h, 4, John W. Norton—Retribute, 106 pounds.....
.....Heunessy 1
Minora, ch m, 5, Gen. Custer—Emma Charles, 105 pounds.....Young 2
Yazoo, ch c, 4, Onondaga—Minnock, 106 pounds.....Weaver 3
Bob Lytle, ch g, 3, 107 pounds..... 0
Time, 1:48.

Betting—8 to 5 Bob Lytle, 2 to 1 Minora, 3 to 1 Yazoo, 9 to 5 John Winfield.

The flag fell to a good start. John Winfield soon went to the front, but did not hold his place long, for at the eighth-pole Bob Lytle was leading and Yazoo second. Before the half-pole was reached John Winfield was in second place and going for the leader, Bob Lytle. Around the upper turn all of them were together. Coming into the stretch John Winfield's nose was in front, Minora next, both jockeys urging their steeds down the homestretch and both running like one horse. Just before the wire was reached Winfield shot out his head and won by a nose, Yazoo third, four lengths away. Time, 1:48.

SUMMARY.

Third race—The Montana Stakes, for two-year-olds (foals of 1890); $10 entrance to accompany the nomination, $25 additional to start; $1,000 added, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Winner of the Pacific Coast stakes to carry 5 pounds extra. Beaten maidens unplaced in a sweepstake race allowed 5 pounds. Five furlongs.

Charmion, ch f, 2, Tyrant—Unit, 115 pounds.....Hennessy 1
Hermitage, b c, 2, Friar Tuck—Mistake, 123 pounds.....Feeney 2
Ghost Dance, br c, 2, Jocko—Minuet, 118 pounds.....Dennison 3
Phœbe Ann, b f, 2, 110 pounds..... 0
Time, 1:05.

Betting—8 to 1 Ghost Dance, 2 to 5 Charmion, 8 to 5 Storn's Entry.

After several false starts the four colts got off on even terms. Phoebe Ann, Hermitage and Charmion raced head and head to the upper turn. Then Ghost Dance joined them, and the four came down all abreast. At the seven-eighths pole Charmion had the best of it, Hermitage and Ghost Dance fighting for the place. Charmion won by a length from Hermitage, who was a neck the best of Ghost Dance. This event had thirty-three entries, only four coming to the post. Time, 1:05.

SUMMARY.

Fourth race—Purse $500, of which $70 to second and $30 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards. Winners of $500 at this meeting to carry their proper weight; of two such races or one of $1,000, five pounds extra. Horses beaten at this meeting once allowed five pounds; twice, seven pounds; three or more times, twelve pounds. One mile and seventy yards.

Honshell, ch c, 3, Springbok—Genera, 103 pounds.....Taylor 1
Sympathetic's Last, br h, a, Fairplay—Sympathetic, 126 pounds.....
.....Weaver 2
Centella, ch f, 3, Joe Hooker—Katy Pease, 107 pounds.....Warren 3
Orrick, ch c, 4, 122 pounds..... 0
Time, 1:48½.

Betting—6 to 5, Storn's entry (Centella and Honshell); 4 to 5 Sympathetic's Last; 5 to 2 Orrick.

As soon as the flag fell Honshell shot to the front, closely followed by the rest. At the quarter he was six lengths in front of Orrick, Sympathetic's Last third, Centella trailing. At the five-furlong pole Honshell had opened a gap of ten lengths. Sympathetic now commenced to move up. Around the turn Honshell continued to lead by several lengths, and when he came into the homestretch he was too far in front to be overtaken by Sympathetic's Last, whose jockey had evidently looked upon Centella as the one to be feared, and who was several lengths in the rear of Sympathetic's Last. The latter's jockey made play for Honshell, but it was too late, for he never could get within a length of the leader, who won by a length and a half, Sympathetic's Last second, three lengths in front of Centella. Time, 1:48½.

SUMMARY.

Fifth race—Free handicap, purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. Entrance, $10 each, if not declared out. For all ages. Entries to close the usual time Saturday evening, June 4. Weights and declarations Monday, June 6, at 4 P. M. Six furlongs.

Geraldine, ch m, a, Grinstead—Crown Peggy, 117 pounds.....
.....M. Kelly 1
Henry T., b c, 4, Duke of Kent—Jennie M., 100 pounds.....
.....Burlingame 2
Jim Dunn, b h, a, Harkaway—Prairie Wind, 110 pounds.....Young 3
Kate Claxton, b m, 3, 90 pounds..... 0
Peregal, b g, c, 100 pounds..... 0
Advent, b c, J. 100 pounds..... 0
Time, 1:15.

Betting—7 to 5 Jim Dunn, 10 to 1 Kate Claxton, 3 to 1 Peregal, 5 to 1 Henry T., 10 to 1 Advent; even money Geraldine.

Geraldine went to the front at the drop of the flag, Peregal second, Jim Dunn third and the others strung out. Geraldine increased her speed up the backstretch and around the upper turn until she was fifteen lengths in front of the gang, and came home an easy winner by six lengths. Henry T. was second, a length in front of Jim Dunn. Time, 1:15.

EIGHTH DAY, JUNE 8TH.

The weather was fine and the track in excellent condition. Good racing was the order, and the attendance was only moderate. Judge, Col. B. W. Woodruff; Assistants, Hon. Henry R. Walcott and Col. Jack Chinn.

SUMMARY.

First race, purse $500, of which $70 to second and $30 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards. Ten pounds below the scale. Winners of any race at this meeting to carry 7 pounds; of two such races or one stake of $1,000, 10 pounds; of three or more races of any value, 15 pounds extra. Horses that have been beaten once allowed 4 pounds; twice, seven pounds; three or more times, 12 pounds. One mile.

Dungarvan, blk c, 4, Hindoo—Calphurnia, 108 pounds.....Feeney 1
Nettie Douglas, b f, 4, Jim Douglas—Red Girl, 100 pounds.....Taylor 2
Vedette, b h, 4, Vengeance—Grace Tower, 100 pounds.....Weaver 3
Dick Wright, b g, a, 104 pounds..... 0
Time, 1:48.

Betting—Even money Dungarvan, 8 to 5 Vedette, 6 to 1 Nettie Douglas, 10 to 1 Dick Wright.

Soon after the flag dropped Nettie Douglas went to the front, lapped by Dungarvan, Vedette and Dick Wright. At the half Nettie and Dungarvan were ten lengths in front of Dick Wright and Vedette, who seemed to have lost all hope, and were struggling in the rear. On rounding into the stretch Nettie was a full length in the lead. At the seven-eighths pole Dungarvan was given his head, and he came on and won by four lengths, Nettie Douglas twenty lengths the better of Vedette, who was third. Time, 1:43.

SUMMARY.

Second race, purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages. Weight for age. Three furlongs.

April Fool, d g, 5, Confidence—unknown, 124 pounds.....Dodd 1
Maud D., b m, a, Creole Dance—unknown, 119 pounds...Vandusen 2
The Jew, c h a, Humboldt—Sallie Cotton, 124 pounds.....Hennessy 3
Surget, b g, a, 124 pounds..... 0
Sir Launcelot, b g, 5, 124 pounds..... 0
Dick Stranger, c h, 5, 124 pounds..... 0
Jimmy B., b h, a, 124 pounds..... 0
Investigator, b c, 2, 88 pounds..... 0
Charlie Wilson, ch c, 3, 111 pounds..... 0
Time, 1:35.

Betting—15 to 1 Surget, 20 to 1 Jimmy B., 12 to 1 Stranger, 8 to 1 Sir Launcelot, 6 to 1 Investigator, 3 to 1 Wilson, 4 to 5 April Fool, 5 to 1 Maud D., 4 to 1 The Jew.

They were one hour at the post when the flag went down, April Fool in the lead. Soon after a gust of wind, a cloud of dust, and nothing more could be seen until they were well into the homestretch. Then April Fool was leading and well in hand, followed close by Maud and The Jew, and in this order they passed under the wire, a length between the first and second, half a length between second and third.

SUMMARY.

Third race, purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards that have not won at this meeting. Winner to be sold at auction for $2,500; if to be sold for less, 1 pound allowed for each $100 to $1,500; then two pounds allowed for each $100 to $1,000. One mile and seventy yards.

Barton H., b h, 5, Nero—Lady Jack, 106 pounds.....Neal 1
Gov. Ross, b h, a, Silent Friend—Nep Hall, 112 pounds.....Rollins 2
Lew Douglas, b h, 4, Jim Douglas—Mary S., 102 pounds.....Weaver 3
Time, 1:50.

Betting—Even money Gov. Ross, 3 to 1 Barton H., 8 to 5 Lew Douglas.

No time was taken in starting these horses. As they swung into line they were sent away at the first attempt. Barton H., after a few strides, went to the front, Gov. Ross lapped on his flank, with Lew Douglas trailing, one length in the rear. In this order they raced into the homestretch. Here Gov. Ross was given the whip, but to no purpose, for Barton H. came along and won by six lengths, Lew Douglas a length behind Gov. Ross. Time, 1:50.

On the programme the fourth race was a free handicap, purse $600, one mile and three furlongs. All the horses were scratched but one, and the race was declared off, and the fifth race became the fourth.

SUMMARY.

Fourth race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards that have not won at this meeting. The winner to be sold at auction for $800; if entered to be sold for less, 4 pounds allowed for each $100 down to $100. Seven furlongs.

The Judge, ch g, 5, Modoc—unknown, 100 pounds..... Burlingame 1

Belshazzar, b c, 3, 99 pounds..... 0
Mary Hall, ch f, 3, 106 pounds..... 0
Time, 1:32¼.

Betting—6 to 1, Pearl; 10 to 1, Belle M.; 2½ to 1, Bob Lytle; 6 to 1, Sam Brown; 8 to 1, Yazoo; 15 to 1, Counterfeit; 7 to 2, Belshazzar; 5 to 1, Judge; 4 to 1, Mary Hall.

Sold to owner at price put in.

All went off to an excellent start. Yazoo and Counterfeit soon had a length the best of the others, who were bunched close up behind. At the half there was a string of horses one hundred yards long. Soon after passing the half Sam Brown and The Judge went up to within a length of the leaders. Rounding into the stretch for home the latter two horses were almost up with Yazoo and Counterfeit. Half way down The Judge forged clear of the others, came on and won by two lengths from Sam Brown, who was a length in front of Pearl. Time, 1:32¼.

SUMMARY.

Fifth race—Special, purse $300, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages. Weights for age. Three furlongs.

Queen, ch f, 4, Confidence—unknown, 117 pounds.....Dodd 1

Time, 0:35¾.

Betting—Even money, Queen; 2 to 1, Sam Jones; 3 to 1, Ben B. Delee; 4 to 1, Printer Tom; 8 to 10 to 1, the other.

This bunch of quarter horses finally got off after being twenty minutes at the post. Queen soon showed in front, with Sam Jones at her back, the rest in file. In this order they came down, and all except the leaders were whipping. Half-way between the eighth and sixteenth-pole Ben B. Delee made a rush out of the bunch, and for a second looked like a winner, but he could not get better than third place, Queen winning by two lengths, Sam Jones second, half a length in front of Ben B. Delee. Time, 0:35¾.

NINTH DAY, JUNE 9TH.

The weather was beautiful, the track fast and attendance small (about one thousand).

SUMMARY.

FIRST RACE—Purse $500, of which $70 to second and $30 to third. Stake winners at this meeting excluded. Horses that have won one race at this meeting to carry their proper weight; of two such races, 5 pounds; of three or more, 10 pounds extra. Horses beaten once allowed 1 pounds; twice, 7 pounds; three times, 12 pounds; four or more times, 18 pounds. One mile and a sixteenth.

Montana, b h, 5, Storey—Uga, 126 lbs.....Hart 1

Nettie Douglas, b f, 3, Jim Douglas—Red Girl, 105 lbs.....Weaver 3
Mary Hall, ch f, 3, 84 lbs..... 0

Time, 1:50¼.

Betting—7 to 10, Montana; 3 to 1, Honshell; 3 to 1, Douglas; 8 to 1, Mary Hall.

The quartette went away without difficulty. Honshell soon showed in front, Mary Hall second, Montana third, with Nettie trailing. In this order they raced around the lower turn, up the backstretch and half-way around the upper turn, when Montana went up to Mary Hall, and when he came into the stretch for home he made play for Honshell. Half-way down he had the race, Honshell's jockey using the whip freely. Montana won by a length from Honshell, the latter six lengths in front of Nettie Douglas. Time, 1:50¼.

SUMMARY.

SECOND RACE—Purse $100, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For beaten two-year-olds. Colts and geldings, 110 pounds; fillies, 105 pounds. If unplaced once allowed 5 pounds; twice, 10 pounds; oftener, 15 pounds. Four furlongs.

Richard Mobley, br c, 2, 100 lbs..... 0
Della T., br f, 2, 100 lbs..... 0

Time, 0:50.

Betting—1 to 1, Phoebe Ann; 6 to 5, Tigress; 8 to 1, B. F. Karick; 15 to 1 each, Mobley and Della T.

The youngsters were sent away after being at the post more than a quarter of an hour, and to a straggling start, with Tigress in the lead, the others a length apart. In this order they ran round the upper turn. On coming into the homestretch Tigress was still in the lead by two lengths, Ghost Dance second, Karick third, Phœbe Ann fourth, Della and Mobley, clouded in dust, behind. Half-way down Phœbe Ann crawled up, passed Karick and Ghost Dance and made play for Tigress, but to no purpose. Tigress came along and won easily by two lengths, Phœbe Ann second, Ghost Dance third, two lengths away. Clancey, the jockey who rode Ghost Dance, was ruled off for life for not riding to win.

SUMMARY.

THIRD RACE—Free handicap, purse $700, of which $100 to second and $50 to third; entrance $20 each, if not declared out; for all ages. Entries Tuesday, June 7th; weights and acceptances Wednesday, June 8th. One mile.

Jim Dunn, b h, a, 107 pounds..... 0
Gov. Adams, b h, 5, 109 pounds..... 0

Time, 1:42½.

Betting—6 to 5 Brookwood and Gov. Adams (bracketed), 4 to 1 Revolver, 8 to 1 Centella, 7 to 5 Acclaim, 6 to 1 Jim Dunn.

Revolver went off and took the lead after a few strides, the others well up except Acclaim, who was more than ten length in the rear fifty yards from the wire. At the quarter it was Revolver, Jim Dunn, Gov. Adams, Brookwood, Centella and Acclaim. There was no material change at the half. All closed up rounding the upper turn, Brookwood and Acclaim going forward, Gov. Adams and Jim Dunn dropping back at the head of the stretch. Half-way down Centella made play for Revolver, and at the seven-eighths-pole was nearly on even terms with the leader. Now Brookwood came rushing on, passed Centella first, then Revolver, and won by a length from the latter, who was half a length in front of Centella, Acclaim a bad fourth. Time, 1:42½.

SUMMARY.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; for all ages. If three year-olds, to carry 100 pounds; if four years old or over, 110 pounds. Winners of the meeting once, 7 pounds; twice, 10 pounds; three or more times, 15 pounds extra. Four and a half furlongs.

April Fool, d g, 5, Confidence—unknown, 117 pounds.....Dodd 1
Hal Fisher, br h, 5, Buck Walton—unknown, 117 pounds.....Nixon 2
Geraldine, ch m, a Grinstead—Cousin Peggy, 115 pounds.....Kelly 3

Surget, b g, a, 110 pounds..... 0
Jimmy B., b h, a, 100 pounds..... 0
Mountain Belle, b m, 4, 105 pounds..... 0

Time, 0:55.

Betting—6 to 5 Geraldine, 5 to 1 Hal Fisher, 7 to 5 April Fool, 12 to 1 Sir Launcelot, 20 to 1 Revenue Jr., 20 to 1 Zarena, 12 to 1 Surget, 20 to 1 Mountain Belle, 30 to 1 Jimmy B.

The horses had been half an hour at the post when the start was made. April Fool immediately went to the front, Geraldine second, Hal Fisher third, the others strung out. There was little change until nearing the end, April Fool winning by two lengths from Hal Fisher, who was a length the better of Geraldine.

SUMMARY.

Fifth race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards. Winner to be sold at auction for $800; if entered to be sold for less, 3 pounds allowed for each $100 down to $100. One mile and seventy yards.

Bugle, ch h, 5, Fairplay—Mary P., 108 pounds.....Burlingame 1
Minora, ch m, 5, Gen. Custer—Emma Charles, 105 pounds.....Young 2
Dick Wright, b g, a, Quartermaster—Virago, 105 pounds.....Neal 3
Hominy Bill, ch h, 4, 101 pounds..... 0
Vinco, b h, 6, 120 pounds..... 0

Time, 1:50½.

Betting—6 to 5, Minora; 3 to 2, Bugle; 2 to 1, Hominy Bill; 6 to 1, Vinco; 8 to 1, Dick Wright.

All went off to a good start. Rounding the lower turn Minora and Hominy Bill were in the lead, Bugle and Dick Wright a couple of lengths away and Vinco three lengths to the bad. At the half Bugle went up, passed Hominy and challenged Minora for the lead, and it was a fight all the way around the upper turn between these horses. When well into the stretch Bugle was in front, Minora second and Hominy Bill third. There was no change to the wire, except that Dick Wright passed Hominy Bill and secured third place, Bugle winning by a length and a half, Minora second, half a length in front of Dick Wright.

EXTRA DAY—FRIDAY, JUNE 10TH.

The day was bright, but there was a great deal of wind and dust, making it very disagreeable, especially for the ladies. The track was dry and fast. There were six purses on the programe.

SUMMARY.

FIRST RACE—Purse $300, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages. Ten pounds below the scale. Winners at this meeting once, 5 pounds; oftener, 7 pounds extra. Allowances: Those that have started two or more times, and have not been first or second, allowed 5 pounds. One mile and seventy yards.

Revolver, b g, aged, Joe Daniels—by Partisan, 121 pounds.....Hart 1
Idaho Chief, b h, 5 years, imp. Partisan—Mattie C., 111 pounds.....Lindsay 2
Jim Dunn, b h, aged, Harkaway—Prairie Wind, 121 pounds.....Young 3

Time, 1:52.

Betting: 1 to 2, Revolver; 3 to 1, Idaho Chief; 6 to 5, Jim Dunn.

Revolver took the lead soon after the flag went down. Idaho Chief joined him at the eighth pole, and the two ran head-and-head up the backstretch, round the upper turn and into the homestretch as far as the seven-eighths pole, where Lindsay stopped urging Idaho Chief, and Revolver won by a length from Idaho Chief, who was a length in front of Jim Brown. As soon as the jockeys had dismounted Lindsay was called up before the judges, and as he could not give a satisfactory reason for not riding Idaho Chief out, the judges rufed him off.

SUMMARY.

SECOND RACE—Purse $300, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. All ages. For horses only which have started at this meeting and have not run first or second. Weight for age. Four and one-half furlongs.

The Jew, ch g, aged, Humboldt—Sallie Cotton, 124 pounds.....Richards 1
Surget, b g, aged, Pawnee—Ouchita, 124 pounds.....Burlingame 2

Zarena, b f, 3 years, 100 pounds..... 0
Mountain Bell, b m, 4 years, 117 pounds..... 0
Ben B. Delee, gr g, aged, 125 pounds..... 0

Time, 0:56½.

Betting—5 to 2, Peregal; even, Surget; 5 to 1, Zarena; 5 to 2, The Jew; 6 to 1, B. B. Delee; 4 to 1, Belle M.; 6 to 1, Mountain Belle.

The horses soon swung into line, and ran off with Surget in the lead, the others close up. At the head of the stretch, coming home, The Jew passed to the front, came on and won by half a length from Surget, Mountain Belle half a length away, third. Time, 0:56½.

SUMMARY.

THIRD RACE—Purse $300, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards. The winner to be sold at auction for $800. If entered to be sold for less, three pounds allowed for each $100 down to $100. Six furlongs.

Emmet, br h, aged, Stockwell—unknown, 109 pounds.....Warren 1
The Judge, ch g, 5 years, Modoc—unknown, 106 pounds.....Burlingame 2
Advent, b g, 5 years, Astral—Bonnie May, 112 pounds.....Weaver 3

Minora, ch m, 5 years, 104 pounds..... 0
Silverman, rn g, 3 years 108 pounds..... 0
Counterfeit, b h, aged, 124 pounds..... 0

Time, 1:16.

Betting—8 to 1, Advent; 6 to 1, Silverman; 10 to 1, Counterfeit; 4 to 1, Belshazzar; 5 to 2, The Judge; 5 to 2, Emmet; 3 to 2, Minora.

Emmet took the lead, followed close up by the others. The Judge and Advent made play for him up the backstretch, but to no purpose. From the half-mile pole the race was never in doubt. Emmet came on and won by ten lengths, The Judge second, half a length in front of Advent, third.

SUMMARY.

FOURTH RACE.—Purse $300, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages. Non-winners at this meeting allowed 7 pounds. Five furlongs.

Charlie Wilson, ch c, 3, Buck Walton—unknown, 111 lbs.....Nixon 1
Geraldine, ch m, a, Grinstead—Cousin Peggy, 119 lbs.....Kelly 2
Hal Fisher, br h, 5, Buck Walton—unknown, 124 lbs.....Rollins 3
Vidette, b h, 4, 115 lbs..... 0

Time, 1:02¾.

Betting—1 to 3, Geraldine; 5 to 2, Wilson and Hal Fisher (coupled); 5 to 1, Vidette.

Charlie Wilson took the lead. Half-way round the upper turn Geraldine closed up the gap between herself and Wilson, but could not get on even terms with the leader. The once invincible mare was whipped all the way down the stretch, but was beaten a length by a cheap half-breed. Geraldine was five lengths in front of Hal Fisher, third.

SUMMARY.

FIFTH RACE.—Purse $300, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. All ages. The winner to be sold at auction for $2,500. If for less, one pound allowed for each $100 down to $1,500; then two pounds for each $100 to $1,000. One mile and twenty yards.

Orrick, ch h, 4, Joquito—Simeron Girl, 102 lbs.....Weaver 1
Gov. Ross, b h, a, Silent Friend—Nep Hall, 110 lbs.....Nixon 2
Bugle, ch g, 5, Fairplay—Mary P., 106 lbs.....Burlingame 3
McGinty, ch c, 3, 102 lbs..... 0

Time, 1:47.

Betting—2 to 1, Gov. Ross; 2 to 1, Bugle; 3 to 5, Orrick; 6 to 1, McGinty.

As the flag fell Gov. Ross made a rush to the front, followed by Bugle and McGinty, Orrick trailing. It was Ross at the quarter, Ross at the half, Ross at the three-quarters and Ross to within ten lengths of the wire. Orrick came from the rear with a rush and landed winner five feet from the wire by a short neck, Gov. Ross four lengths in front of Bugle, third.

SUMMARY.

SIXTH RACE.—Purse $250, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. All ages. For horses only which have started at the meeting and have not run first or second. Weight for age. Four and one-half furlongs.

Ethel Fortune, ch m, 3, Connor—Lula Riggs, 106 lbs.....Hennessey 1
Nappar II., b g, a, Nappar—Blue Mountain Belle, 106 lbs.....J. Kelly 2
Jimmy B., b h, a, Fairplay—Sympathetic, 124 lbs.....Hill 3
Flora E., b m, 4, 117 lbs..... 0
Raceland Jr., gr g, 5, 124 lbs..... 0
Kate Claxton, b f, 3, 106 lbs..... 0
Stranger, ch h, 6, 124 lbs..... 0
Miss Russell, ch f, 2, 83 lbs..... 0

Time, 0:57.

As the flag went down Ethel Fortune showed the way, with the others scattered along. Around the turn Ethel took advantage of the inside circle and increased her lead, and when she came into the straight she was two good lengths nearer home than Nappar II., who was next. Ethel Fortune won by a length and a half, Nappar second, two lengths in front of Jimmy B., third. Time, 0:57.

ELEVENTH AND LAST DAY—JUNE 11.

The weather was perfect, the track fast, the racing good and attendance large, between five and six thousand persons being present. It can hardly be said that the meeting was a financial success, as there were several days of cold and rainy weather, but the meeting has turned out much better than was anticipated by the members of the club. In fact, they are so well satisfied with the outlook that they have already issued their programme for a three weeks' meeting in August, commencing the second and continuing until the 20th, with $45,000 in purses and handicaps.

SUMMARY.

First race—Purse $500, of which $70 to second and $30 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards. Five pounds above the scale. Those that have never won a race of the value of $1,500, allowed seven pounds; of $1,000, ten pounds; of $500, fourteen pounds; of $300, twenty pounds. One mile.

Montana, b h, 5, Storey—Uga, 117 pounds.....Hart 1
Prince Henry, br c, 3, Fonso—Little Madam, 102 pounds.....Weaver 2
Acclaim, b m, 4, Three Cheers—Rosette, 115 pounds.....Hennessey 3
Honshell, ch c, 3, 98 pounds..... 0
Jim Dunn, b h, a, 117 pounds..... 0
Sam Brown, ch h, 3, 92 pounds..... 0

Time, 1:42

Betting—8 to 5 Montana, 8 to 5 Acclaim, 2 to 1 Prince Henry, 10 to 1 Jim Dunn and Honshell, 20 to 1 Sam Brown.

At the drop of the flag Montana went to the front, closely pressed by Prince Henry and Honshell. The latter was in front at the quarter-pole. At the three-eighths Prince Henry had overtaken him, and the two raced head-and-head past the half and around the upper turn. At the three-quarters Prince was a neck in front, and into the stretch by a length. At the seven-eighths Montana passed Prince and came in and won by two lengths, Prince Henry second, three lengths in front of Acclaim, third.

SUMMARY.

Second race—Free handicap purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. Entrance $10 each, if not declared out. For two-year-olds. Entries Thursday, June 9. Weights and acceptances Friday, June 10. 4 o'clock p. m. Five furlongs.

Cassa, b f, 2, Carey—Alletta, 95 pounds.....Taylor 1
Tigress, b f, 2, Prince of Norfolk—Katie A., 112 pounds.....Morton 2
Investigator, br c, 2, Fairplay—unknown, 107 pounds.....Burlingame 3
Grandee, g c, 2, 118 pounds..... 0
Longnique, b c, 2, 95 pounds..... 0

Time, 0:49.

Betting—15 to 1 Longnique; 1 to 1 Tigress and Grandee coupled; 3 to 1 Cassa and Investigator coupled.

The colts got on without much delay, Cassa going to the front immediately, Tigress, Investigator and Grandee close up and Longnique a long way off in the rear. There was no change throughout the race, Cassa winning by a length, Tigress second, two lengths in front of Investigator, third. Time, 0:49.

SUMMARY.

Third race—The Denver Club Cup—A sweepstake of $10 each, p. p., with $100 in cash added by the Overland Jockey Club. In addition to this a silver cup of the value of $250 offered by the Denver Club, subject to the following conditions: The cup is to remain in the possession of the Denver Club until won three separate times by the same rider, after which it becomes his property. The stakes to go to the second horse. Any horse eligible, provided he be ridden by a member or a guest of either the Denver Club or the Overland Park Club. Nominations to be made on or before 10 o'clock p. m. on Friday, June 10th. Entrance money to accompany the nomination. Heavy weight weights. 10 pounds added to weight for age. Seven furlongs.

Vinco, br h, 6, Bob Woodruff—Mollie H., 104 pounds.....Col. A. S. Tooke 1
Henry T., b h, 4, Duke of Kent—Jennie N., 102 pound.....A. S. Ashe 2
McGinty, ch c, 3, Prince of Norfolk—Jennie M., 151 pounds..... J. M. Kuykendall 3

Barton H., b h, 5, 104 pounds.....W. W. White 0
Greener, b h, a, 104 pounds..... Porter 0

Time, 1:51.

Betting—6 to 5 Barton H., 2 to 1 Henry T., 3 to 1 McGinty, 3 to 1 Nappar, 8 to 1 Greener, 6 to 1 Vinco.

There was no attempt at jockeying by the gentlemen riders, but the horses were a little fractious and caused some little delay at the post before they were sent away, Vinco in the lead, the others close by. At the quarter Barton H. and Henry T. both had passed Vinco, who was third and going easy and regular, McGinty, Nappar and Greener struggling behind. Up the backstretch Nappar improved, and at the half was lapped on Barton H., the leader. Round the upper turn four of the horses were in a bunch. Coming into the homestretch McGinty and Henry T. were alongside in front. Half-way down Vinco passed the two and won by two lengths from Henry T., who had half a length the best of McGinty, Barton H., Greener and Nappar badly beaten. Col. Tooke had the large silver cup, which holds over two gallons, filled up with champagne, and passed it around to the judges and reporters. Col. Tooke is a Texan by birth, but has been a resident of Colorado about eight years. He has thousands of friends here who congratulated him on his first equestrian victory.

SUMMARY.

Fourth race—The Overland Hurdle, a handicap sweepstakes for all ages. $10 entrance to accompany the nomination, $10 additional to start, $1,500 added, of which $200 to second and $150 to third; weights to appear Thursday, June 9th, starters to be named through the entry box the evening before the race, each horse named to start to be liable for the starting fee. One mile and a furlong.

Marigold, ch m, 5, 110 pounds..... 0
Gov. Adams, b h, 5, 111 pounds..... 0
Henry T., b h, 4, 92 pounds..... 0

Time, 1:56.

Betting: 1 to 2 Dungarvan and Gov. Adams coupled, 2 to 1 Marigold and Centella (coupled), 2 to 1 Sympathetic's Last, 8 to 1 Idaho Chief, 20 to 1 Henry T.

Centella went away in the lead, closely followed by Sympathetic's Last, Marigold behind and going apparently easy. There was no change until the three-quarter-pole was reached. Here Dungarvan's jockey sent him along, and when they swung into the stretch for home he was on even terms with Centella and Sympathetic. From there home it was a fight between the two horses (Dungarvan and the little brown Sympathetic's Last). Centella, too, was in it up to within one hundred yards of the wire, but the two horses beat her out, Dungarvan winning by a length, Sympathetic's Last two lengths in front of Centella, third. There was lively betting on this race.

SUMMARY.

Fifth race—Free handicap purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; entrance $10 each if not declared out; for horses that have run and not won at this meeting; entries at usual time of closing, Thursday, June 9th; weights and acceptances, Friday June 10th, at 4 p. m. Six furlongs.

Time, 1:16.

Betting: 3 to 2 Top Gallant, 3 to 1 Advent, 2 to 1 Gov. Ross, 3 to 1 Vidette, 8 to 1 Pearl, 5 to 1 Mary Hall, 10 to 1 Nettie Douglas.

Mary Hall took the lead, and held it to the head of the stretch, when she fell away beaten. Here Advent, Gov. Ross and Top Gallant fought for the lead in the straight. At the seven-eighths Nettie Douglas came with a brush of speed and passed both Top Gallent and Advent, landing second by half a length. Gov. Ross was first, Top Gallant, third, was two lengths away from Nettie Douglas.

SUMMARY.

SIXTH RACE—Purse $400 of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For three-year-olds and upwards. Winner to be sold at auction for $800; if for less, 3 pounds allowed for each $100 down to $1000. Two miles.

Time, 3:40.

There was a great deal of interest manifested in this race from the fact that it is the first race of that distance that has been run here for about sixteen years. Many of the young turfites never saw so long a race as two miles, and as none of the horses entered in the race had ever gone that distance, the money went in fast and heavy. There was no time lost at the post. No one seemed to want the lead, and the four went off all together. Vasistas soon took the lead, and held it for a mile and a half, when Winfield and Hominy passed him, and in turn Dick Wright. Half-way round the upper turn in the second mile Dick Wright went to the front, and came on and won hands down by three lengths, Hominy Bill second, Winfield third, one length away. Time, 3:40. The meeting was over.

All the hoof-stuffings are giving way to "Spelterine." It is the clearest, coolest and best hoof-stuffing known, and is almost as cheap as blue clay when you dig it yourself. For sale at J. O'Kane & Co., 767 Market Street. *

A WONDERFULLY IMPROVED PLACE.

Re-Opening of Oakland Track to a Delighted Public—The Trotting and Pacing.

The re-opening of the Oakland race track under the new management last Saturday was a great success, if one was to judge by the crowd of people who gathered there. Everybody said that if the meeting had been more extensively advertised the audience would have been much larger. The reason it was not advertised was because it was gotten up something similar to a surprise party, and the programme of entertainment was arranged about forty-eight hours previous to the races.

A large number of private carriages, buggies and road vehicles were seen coming in at the gates at one o'clock, and the fair occupants were curious to observe what was being done there, for Mr. Benj. Wright, the new lessee, is also one of the owners of the Galindo Hotel, the leading hostelry in Oakland. Every one that knew him believed he would make a number of changes, but no one had any idea that he could do so much in less than fifteen days' time. He must have had an army of carpenters, painters and plasterers working night and day.

While the ladies were on their way to the splendid seats provided for them on the porch, they were invited to stop and take a look through the building. The beautiful light wall paper, newly-painted woodwork, bright carpets, cosy rooms furnished with the newest designs of oak furniture, were evidences of the great change for the better that has been wrought. On the first floor the bar-room—the ladies, however, only glanced in there—was seen to be papered with gold and light-tinted wall paper; a new counter and bar fixtures, with a wealth of neatly-labeled bottles for liquors. Steel engravings and oil paintings adorned the walls. The old dining-room and kitchen were as neat as any in the land; the former will be subdivided into sitting-rooms as soon as Mr. Wright has the new addition to the building completed, which will be in about fifteen days. Here will be one of the cosiest and best-lighted dining-rooms in the country. The kitchen is supplied with an immense range, and the bright utensils on the shelves denote that there will be nothing lacking in that line for the chef de cuisine.

This club house will become a favorite resort where none but respectable people will come to enjoy a drive, a ride around the track, or a good breakfast or lunch. It is the lessee's intention to make this place second to no other in the State. That it will be a success, every one of the many hundreds who visited the place believed.

The track—the play ground for the equine kings and queens—has also received attention. The old, springy bridge over the creek that always caused horses to jump in the air on their journey between the quarter and half-mile poles has been removed, and in its stead a very substantial one has been built; it is covered with a good depth of soil, so that no perceptible difference can be found by the drivers who go over it on their springless sulkies. The turns have received attention, and the soil all over the track has been packed, harrowed, scraped and rolled until it is as smooth and fast as any in the country. The whitewash brush has been used with good effect, and the long, white unbroken fences are very neat-looking. The grand stand and all the stables have received liberal coatings of lily-white wash, making them look bright and cheerful. The judges' stand has also been painted inside and out. Mr. Wright intends to have the carpenters, who are busy fixing the pigeon-shooting inclosure, make some alterations and put in desks and tables for the use of the clerks in this useful little building. There will be a row of sheds built in which teams can be safely tied. Enough work is already planned to keep the carpenters and painters busy for a month. It is Mr. Wright's intention to fix up the quarter, half and three-quarter poles so that every one can see just where they are; heretofore, it took an hour to find where they were located.

If the horsemen will only show one-tenth part of the enterprise that is evinced by Mr. Wright, the people of this State will have an opportunity of witnessing some of the best racing ever given at the Oakland race track. We congratulate the people of our sister city in having such a person in their midst, and hope that they will, by their presence, show an appreciation for his efforts.

The races Saturday were more in the nature of "workouts" than anything else, because it is a little early in the season and none of the contestants were "keyed up" for a bruising race; still they all did very well, and if the pool-sellers felt as if they were in the wrong box, for no one seemed to care about betting, every one else was satisfied.

The contests were not exciting. The judges, A. H. Cohen, C. Babb and W. R. Birmingham, had very little trouble in starting the horses or deciding on the winners. As this day's racing did not constitute a record meeting, no one thought that any records would be smashed, and the results showed that their judgment was correct.

There were four events on the card. The first was for a purse of $150; three-minute class, mile heats, two in three, for which there were five starters—Pawnbroker, Signal, Electro, Mollie and Con Brio. As these were all roadsters and some of them very high in flesh, it was not expected that great time was to be made, the race seemed to be entirely between Pawnbroker and Signal, the rest of the horses not having a ghost of a show to win at any time. The following is the summary:

SUMMARY.

Purse $150 three-minute class; mile heats, two in three.

B. J. Wright's br s Pawnbroker....Simpson	1	2	1
D. C. Brown's b g Signal....Brown	2	1	3
P. W. Bellingall's g g Electro....Bellingall	4	4	2
B. Fry's b m Mollie....Cody	3	3	5
O. Mansfeldt's b s Con Brio....Mansfeldt	5	5	4

Time, 2:58, 2:56, 3:04.

The next race was a free-for-all, purse $200, mile heats, three in five. There were but two entries, the Reliance gelding Tippoo Tib and the Abbotsford gelding Sunrise. Jack Edgar drove the former and L. J. Smith the latter. In the first heat Sunrise led to the half, and broke, when the smooth-going Tippoo Tib passed him and came in winner by a length. The second and third heats were also won by Tippoo Tib. Sunrise is a big-gaited horse, and one of the handiest breakers in the country. He will be a pretty good horse in the races this fall. The following is the

SUMMARY.

Purse $200, free-for-all, mile heats, three in five.

A. C. Dietz's b g Tippoo Tib....Edgar	1	1	1
D. C. Brown's b g Sunrise....Smith	2	2	2

Time, 2:29, 2:31½, 2:30.

The third race was for the 2:50 class, mile heats, two in three. There were four starters. It was merely a repetition of the first event, so far as the trotting of the "green uns" was concerned. The enthusiasm of the audience was never aroused, for there always seemed to be one horse that could play with the balance, and of course as distance was waived, the rest could do as they pleased, and their fight was centered in getting the second place. The following is the

SUMMARY.

Purse $125, 2:50 class, mile heats, two in three.

P. Mortensin's g g Tom	1	1
John Cody's b g Injun	2	2
A. L. Hinds' b m Lady Ariel	3	3
W. A. McLean's b s Pegasus	4	4

Time, 2:38, 2:45.

The closing event was for green pacers. There were three side-wheelers to come for the word: J. L. Stout's chestnut gelding Oakland Prince, A. L. Hinds' bay gelding Sample and J. F. Edgar's Gertie L. Oakland Prince led the way in the first heat down to the half-mile pole, where he made a disastrous break and was passed by Sample and Gertie L. He was fully five lengths behind when he got straightened out and commenced to pace; he soon closed up the gap, and on coming near the wire passed the leader and won by a length. Time, 2:43.

In the second race J. Edgar did not seem able to get Gertie L. started right, and the race lay between Oakland Prince and Sample. They paced like a double team, and gave the audience a chance to see a contest, for on nearing the wire the two pacers were head and head, but Sample had to receive a touch of the whip, and was beaten by a nose in 2:36, Gertie L. twenty lengths behind and acting badly. The following is the

SUMMARY.

Purse $100, green pacing class, mile heats, two in three.

J. L. Stout's ch g Oakland Prince	1	1
A. L. Hind's b g Sample	2	2
J. F. Edgar's b m Gertie L.	3	3

Time, 2:43, 2:36.

RACING AT PORTLAND.

California Horses Hold Their Own in the Web-Foot Metropolis—The Winners and Losers.

FIRST DAY—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 8TH.

PORTLAND, OR., June 8.—A large crowd saw the races on this, the opening day, and everything went off like clockwork. The talent got a hard fall in the 2:50 class trot. Georgia Woodthrop was a disappointment in the 2:33 trot, her bad acting causing her to be distanced in the initial heat. The winner, Prince H., driven by "Red" Green, is a newcomer to the list, making a mark of 2:30 in the third heat. Flora F. was driven in a masterly manner by "Sandy" Smith, late of San Francisco, and to his efforts were due the victory. She was second choice in the betting. Hello won the opening race, three-quarters, running, by an eyelash, from the favorite, Altus.

SECOND DAY—THURSDAY, JUNE 9.

Another good, enthusiastic crowd went out to the City View Park to-day, and the management pleased the public immensely by having the events come off so that the crowd got back into town by 6 o'clock. The track was in good shape, a little shower settling the dust nicely. The first race was won easily by Red Dick (two lengths), he leading throughout. Mamie S. got the place by a head. Vanquish was given the second heat, because he trotted squarely and King Patchen didn't. The latter, by dint of galloping, however, did manage to pass the wire a head in advance. The judges promptly set the son of Mambrino King back. Vanquish won the first heat easily by over three lengths. Blondie, the converted pacer, won his race easily. Sidmoor (formerly Jack Dempsey) went lame, unfortunately, and was withdrawn after the first heat.

THIRD DAY—FRIDAY, JUNE 10TH.

This was the best day's racing of the present meeting by long odds, and a large, pleased crowd saw it. Misty Morn beat the speedy half-breed, Red Dick, after a most exciting chase, Dick leading until they were very close to the wire, when the mare got up and won by about a length in fine time—0:48½. Several watches made it 0:48 flat. The second race, won by Altus, was a close thing from start to finish, necks separating the first three at the end. The race between Almont Medium and Georgie Woodthorpe was a pretty one, but the fine-looking son of Happy Medium won easily enough. Belle S. won in straight heats, Johnnie Moor finishing at her wheel in the first and last one, and showing considerable speed. The rain made the track slippery in the Belle S. race, so that the time made was not so bad after all.

LAST DAY—SATURDAY, JUNE 11TH.

The meeting which came to an end to-day was a success in every way. Everything has passed off pleasantly, and the horsemen, spectators and management have no cause for complaint. Misty Morn won the opening race after Black Alder had been indulged with the lead half the way. Flora T., driven well by "Sandy" Smith, won the 2:40 trot after a hard drive in the first heat. Nubia, the Soudan gelding, acted badly, and Mosher was substituted for Lee Shaner as driver. The move was not a good one, however, and the judges afterwards announced that they were in error and that Mr. Shaner was entirely blameless. Susie S. had a desperate struggle with Challenger Chief in the final heat, but the latter broke thirty feet from the wire and ran in. The third heat was a hot one also, all the horses finishing in a bunch.

Foster's Patent Track Harness completely fills the bill, and it is safe to predict that the two-minute trotter will wear one of these harnesses over a kite track when that mark is reached. J. O'Kane & Co. are Pacific Coast Agents, and state that they are daily in receipt of orders for these harnesses from the most prominent drivers. See ad. *

TROTTING horses are very backward in their preparation in Kentucky.

THERE should be some good double-team races seen this fall on the circuit.

THERE will be racing at Agricultural Park, Petaluma, on the Fourth of July.

MRS. LANGTRY has a racing stable, and the owner of the horses is put down as "Mr. Jersey."

MARGARET S. will be marked as low as possible, trotting, this year, and then be put to pacing.

THISTLE, 2:19, brother of Gold Leaf, 2:11¼, has been a mile in 2:16 over the Parkville Farm track.

A MINIATURE track for the youngsters is being made at the celebrated Woodburn Farm in Kentucky.

FERNDALE, the $6,000 yearling of last season by Simmocolon, 2:19, has trotted a mile in 2:39¼ at Parkville farm.

"DO YOU know why racehorses are like carpets?" "Why?" "Because they're often beaten and often pulled up."

COSTA RICA, by Grinstead, dam Althola, has been sold to J. Gillespie, of St. Louis, Mo., by the Gambrinus Stable.

MONROE SALISBURY has determined not to start Direct at any town that will not put up a purse of $5,000 or more.

WILL the 2:10 of Jay-Eye-See be lowered this season? This is the world's record for trotting geldings, and has stood unbroken for eight years.

ORRIN HICKOK has engaged to drive the Edgewood stallion, Hussar, 2:20½, by Jersey Wilkes, that was driven last season by Rody Patterson.

THE proximity of the Souther Farm race track to the Talbot Farm will make it a very desirable place to work the young Mount Hoods on this fall.

"IN OLE times honesty wuz de bes' policy, but in dese days de man what buys a hoss am supposed to locate all de spavins for hisself," says Brudder Gardner.

DAN MCCARTY, better known as "White Hat" McCarty, has sued Thomas Carpenter to recover possession of a horse valued at $1,000 and also for $1,000 damages.

A. L. HINDS has Balkan, 2:15, looking stronger and better than he ever has been known to be, and should nothing happen him, will be in fine trim for the races this year.

LEE SHANER is having an awful run of bad luck. W. H. Bailey, 2:20, whom he trained, died; Lady H. is very sick, and Sidmoor pulled up lame in the 2:25 pacing race at Portland, Or.

R. D. FOX'S chestnut stallion Chancellor, 2:30, was given a work-out last Saturday, and demonstrated that he had the ability to wipe out his record whenever it was deemed necessary.

BOB FORSYTH, a very good performer on the running turf, dropped dead at Latonia one morning last week. He was a bay horse, foaled 1886, by Bertram, dam Lizzie Grant, by Exchequer.

F. WHITMORE'S gray filly Gracie S., by Prince of Norfolk out of Gilroy Belle, by Lodi, won a two-year-old race at St. Louis on the 6th of June. Hazlett's G. & C. was third in the same event.

THE first race track in Kentucky was laid out in 1775 at Shallow Ford Station. A man engaged in testing the speed of his horse on this track was shot by an Indian in a cane thicket near by.

FROM the lack of patronage many of the stallions in the United States experienced this year, it is believed that "an era of castration" is about to dawn, and only the very best colts will be saved.

LOT D. SLOCUM has commenced an action against Count Valensin in the Alameda Superior Court to recover the possession of the chestnut mare Marion or her value, $5,000, and also $1,000 damages.

J. L. MCCORD, of Sacramento, will take Shylock 2:25 through the Oregon Circuit this fall; this gentleman has several other sons and daughters of Tom Benton that will prove bread-winners this year.

JAMES CORCORAN has quite a string of trotters at Napa. The fine black stallion Stonewall, by Director, 2:17, out of Nellie Grant, by Steinway, 2:25¼, is moving very well, and will get in the list this fall.

THOS. BONNER, Superintendent of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, is very much infatuated with two Bay Rose fillies he is handling. It is hoped that Bay Rose will appear among the list of 2:30 sires this fall.

THERE is a bay gelding by Le Grand, at the San Mateo Stock Farm that will prove a very interesting member of the "green class" this fall. He will get on the roll of honor unless some accident happens him.

WALTER MABEN will campaign the trotter Richmond Jr., 2:20¾, on the California circuit this season. Richmond Jr. is going in the 2:20 class, and made quite a showing on Eastern tracks since leaving California.

JULIAN, brown gelding, by imp. Darebin—Lydia, won a good race at Westchester on the 7th inst., defeating Wah Jim, Vernon and Dr. Rose, among others. Lawless and Fairy, Californians, won on the same date.

H. D. ALBRIGHT took quarters recently at the race track with his trotting horses Fred Arnold 11,084 and Alpheus Wilkes 8847. He will give them slow work and prepare them for the fall campaign.—Salinas Journal.

WARRENER, the brother of Sunol, 2:08½, owned in Maine, is built much like his celebrated sister, being 16 hands high at the withers and 16 hands 1¼ inches at the rump. He possesses good natural speed, and will be trained in 1893.

JEFF FRUIT, of Merced, Cal., has a colt by Richards' Elector which he calls El Rio, and horsemen from that city say that he will get this three-year-old inside the 2:30 list, as well as his filly Electric, that got a record of 2:35 last fall.

ONE of the largest pools ever sold in the West was auctioned off at St. Louis the evening of June 3d, in connection with the Club Members' Handicap, decided Saturday. It footed up $5,475, of which Wadsworth brought $1,000.

GUIDO AND NERO, the well known Californians, won races at St. Louis last Saturday. Guido's win (with Al Farrow second) was at seven and a half furlongs, which he ran in 1:35. Nero beat the famous Wightman, and ran a mile in 1:41¾.

IT IS said that the following receipt will never fail to remove warts from horses: Caustic potash, red precipitate and soft lye soop. Make a mixture and apply about three times. Stock never suffers any inconvenience from the application.

J. G. BERRYMAN, a well-known trainer and driver from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, is in this city. He intends to make this State his future home. We bespeak for him a cordial welcome, and are only too glad to see men of his caliber among us.

THE stallions Henry Baker, by Anteeo, 2:16½, and Depper, have just closed a heavy season in the stud at Monterey. The progeny of these horses that have appeared this year are all good-lookers, and seem to know no other gait but the trotting gait.

DON J. LEATHERS has matched his yearling colt by Alfred G., 2:19¾, dam by Pilot Medium, against Sisson & Lilley's yearling by Sphinx, 2:20½, dam by Triumvir, for $500 a side. The race will be trotted at Grand Rapids, Mich., next fall.

THE two-year-old Sir Modred colt Shelly Tuttle, that ran second to Morello in his maiden effort, belongs to Marcus Daly. He was named after Mr. Daly's friend, the pleasant-faced gentleman that managed the Marcus Daly stable of trotters through the Grand Circuit last year.

MATT BYRNES says Tammany is the best horse he ever trained, and he conditioned Salvator and Firenzi too. The former, a son of Iroquois and Tullahoma, took up 122 pounds and ran a mile in 1:40 the other day at Morris Park, defeating the famous Yorkville Belle and Patron.

ONE of the finest-looking colts at the Hobart Stock Farm is by Stamboul, 2:11, out of Bon Bon, 2:26, by Simmons. The horses and mares all look strong and well at this place; the probabilities are that if they are to be sold by auction the event will not take place until after the first of January.

CRIT DAVIS' list of campaigners includes Bonnie Wilmore 2:14½; Nellie W., 2:14½; Katherine S., 2:20½; Felter, 2:27; Victorine, 2:22; Hazel Dell, 2:29½; Lulu B., 2:27½; Andy Dutter, 2:27; Emma T., 2:24¾; Nona Kurtz, 2:24; Pat-My-Boy, 2:25, and C. C., 2:30. He has 41 trotters of all ages to handle.

THE Belmont Driving Club of Philadelphia has made arrangements with Budd Doble to trot Nancy Hanks at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, on Thursday, June 7th, against her record of 2:09 for a special purse of $5,000, with $1,000 added if the record of Robert Bonner's Sunol (2:08½) is broken.

WHITE HAT Dan McCarthy has leased thirty stalls at the Oakland race track, and will soon have a battalion of record-breakers safely domiciled there. The Dexter Prince representatives are in the majority, and if anyone will get the list of this great son of Kentucky Prince extended it will be this well-known breeder.

FAIRY beat Correction in a three-quarter-mile dash at Morris Park last Monday, running the distance in 1:12½. Correction was a great favorite, but did not run kindly. Ex-Senator Rose also got second money with Sir Roy, who finished behind Ajax, formerly known as the imp. Dandie Dinmont—Moonlight colt.

ORRIN A. HICKOK is a great believer in the efficacy of springs or hoof-expanders for the curing of most diseases of the feet, and also for helping a horse's gait by giving him a wider surface to stand on while trotting. He uses them on nearly all of his horses that are subject to contraction, quarter cracks, thrush, etc.

R. H. NEWTON and G. W. Woodard have decided to start Tom Ryder and Belle Button as a double team in the fall races. These animals are now under training at the Fair grounds. C. R. Hoppin's string of Cubit colts is now quartered at the track, and are being trained for the races next fall.—Yolo Democrat.

L. J. ROSE is reported to have made a big winning on the success of Fairy June 7th at Morris Park. The mare went to the post at 2 to 1 against her chances, and won from her ten opponents easily. In the race, Tormentor, by Joe Hooker, was second, and Kildeer, by Darebin, third, and they were the only Californians in the race.

A PROMINENT horseman in speaking of the faults of jockeys and drivers said, "I never want a person who will turn around to see where the rest of the contestants are in a race just as he is nearing the wire. Such a person can neither ride nor drive for me a second time." There was much wisdom, in fact, a sermon, in that remark.

WILLIAM LYNN, of Salinas, has his fine Junio stallion Gilpatrick almost ready for the trainer. This youngster is just finishing a heavy season in the stud, his services being greatly in demand by all owners of mares who saw him trot in his races at Salinas last fall. It is predicted that 2:25 will be his record before the first of November.

MR. "STRONG-ARM" CLANCEY, who has ridden so suspiciously at several of our meetings, was ruled off for life at Denver on the 9th inst. for not making an effort to win with Ghost Dance. Let the pullers have rope, and trust the judges to bring them up with a short turn before the members of the Armstrong family know what has struck them.

WHILE en route to New York six yearlings, consigned from Rancho del Paso, died at the following points: At Ogden, Utah, a filly by Hidalgo, dam Felicity, and a filly by Joe Daniels, dam Irian, by King Ban; at Laramie, Wyo., the Mariposa colt by Ben Ali, and the Darebin–Louise filly, and at Chicago a colt by Ben Ali, dam Sabina, and a filly by Hyder Ali, dam Linnotte, by Prince Charlie.

IT IS said that Colonel Harry I. Thornton is seriously contemplating selling all his trotting stock this fall and that he will devote his attention solely to the breeding of thoroughbreds. Col. Thornton has some of the choicest-bred mares, stallions and fillies in California and should he dispose of them there is no doubt but that he would realize a goodly sum.

NOTHING has been done at either the regulation or kite-shaped tracks at Stockton yet. The directors are waiting until the busy harvest days are past, and then they will prepare these remarkable race courses for a long programme of record-smashing races. We do not believe, however, that the events of last year will be repeated. It would be asking too much.

SIDMOOR (formerly Jack Dempsey) is quite lame in the fore shoulder. He was led around after the race at Portland, Or., last week, and seemed in considerable pain. He will be relieved of his customary workout and rested up in hopes of a speedy righting. Lee Shaner lays his going lame is due to the cuppy track which was a severe strain on the horses at the last turn.

MONTANA won a grand race at a mile and an eighth last Monday at Morris Park, beating Reckon and Lizzie, and covering the distance in 1:53¾. It was a great day for California all around, Fairy also winning and Sir Roy getting second money. Montana is four years old, by Ban Fox from imp. Queen, by Scottish Chief, and belongs to Marcus Daly, of Anaconda, Mont.

THE Directors of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association are soon to hold a meeting at which some action will be taken to thoroughly renovate the club house at the Bay District track. This is something that must be done immediately, and the quicker the place is made to look presentable the quicker the stalls will fill with horses that will be trained for the fall races.

DR. DUNN, of Berkeley, is the proud possessor of a black filly that many would like to own. She is by Simmocolon, 2:19, out of Fontanita by Antevolo, 2:19½; second dam Fontana (dam of Silas Skinner 2:17 and Flora Belle 2:24½), by Alcona 33; third dam Fanny Williams (dam of Bay Chieftain 2:28½) by Abdallah 15. She is all that a judge of individuality would expect from such breeding.

AT THE head of Grand View Stock Farm, in Williamson county, Tennessee, stands Rowland, brown horse, by Shannon, dam Riglin, by imp. Glengarry; second dam by imp. Australian; third dam Rescue, by Berthune; fourth dam Alice Carneal (dam of Lexington), by imp. Sarpedon. The sons of Shannon are highly-prized, and Bishop is doing splendid work in the stud in Tennessee also.

WILLIAM DONATHAN has had two good ones sent to lengthen his string of trotters at San Jose last week; they are very promising trotters, and both are by Eros, out of Accident by Elmo, therefore, they are full brother and sister to Wanda, 2:17¾. The gelding is called Rinconado, the mare is called Solita. We make the prediction that both will enter the 2:30 list the first opportunity they have.

DENNIS GANNON has a four-year-old Eros gelding at his place in Marin county that did not show anything remarkable in the way of speed until about a month ago, and since then he seems to go faster every time he is driven. We would like to see Mr. Gannon have a string of horses composed of as good trotters as this one on the circuit this fall. His colts and fillies by his Electioneer-Norfolk stallion, Grover Clay, are all trotters.

A BLACK pacer driven by a young man named William Kelley can be seen on the San Leandro road almost any afternoon that has not been beaten by any road horse that has tried to pass him yet. "He can almost fly," is the remark made by all the would-be horsemen who have tried to keep near him. No one knows his breeding, and he never has been on a race track. He would be valuable in the pacing races this fall.

MR. WILLIAM H. MOODY, of Claremont, N. H., has bought of Elliott Brothers, Bowdoinham, Me., the yearling bay filly Susonia, by Warrener, full brother to Sunol, 2:08½; dam by Nelson, 2:10; second dam by Mambrino Pilot Jr., he by Relf's Mambrino Pilot, from a daughter of Alexander's Abdallah. We doubt if there is another yearling in New Hampshire with so strong an extreme speed inheritance close up as is found in this little miss.

FROM an analysis of the list of animals with records between 2:30 and 2:08½, it would appear that a trotter is at its best when seven years old, as animals of that age in this list exceed in numbers those of any other age. The figures are as follows: Two years, 2; three years, 17; four years, 31; five years, 54; six years, 70; seven years, 80; eight years, 56; nine years, 49; ten years, 25; eleven years, 21; twelve years, 13; thirteen years, 10; fourteen years, 2; fifteen years, 1; seventeen years, 1.

SIR WALTER, the imp. Midlothian–La Scala two-year-old, put the Great Eclipse Stakes to his credit at Morris Park last Saturday, beating Don Alonzo a scant head, the latter the same distance in front of Dr. Rice. The race was worth $20,000 to Dr. Knapp, owner of Sir Walter. The colt has thus early in the season won $43,000 in stakes—a great sum for a youngster that cost only $900 as a yearling at public auction. California two-year-olds are, as usual, doing the best work at the East.

THERE is a four-year-old brown colt by Richards' Elector in training at the Pleasanton Stock Farm that will receive many compliments when he appears on the circuit this fall. He is not only of good size and perfectly-proportioned, but he is one of the "sweetest-gaited" horses ever seen on a track and with his frictionless gait is developing great speed. Richards' Elector if given any kind of patronage would have surpassed his sire, age for age, in the showing his progeny would make in the 2:30 list.

HENRY SAUNDERS will be on the turf this year with a stable of horses from W. J. Gordon's Gordon Glen Farm. Among them are Guy, 2:10¾, and Prince M., 2:19¼, as erratic a pair of horses as ever wore harness. Prince M. was a fairly successful campaigner last year, though he was badly handled. He won a heat in the Blue Ribbon stake at Detroit in 2:16¾, and it would not be a surprise if he reels off a mile in 2:14 some day this summer. Saunders also has Prince Hogarth, 2:27½, and King Leo. Prince Hogarth is coming into form, and will beat 2:20 this summer. King Lee is pronounced by Mr. Saunders to be almost promising colt he ever handled.

THERE seems to have been much difficulty this year in getting mares in foal on the various stock farms in this State. The general report is that the mares seemed "cold," and most of them were stinted several times before they were considered "safe." This is something very unusual here in the history of breeding; the opposite being generally the rule.

WILLENA, by Eros, out of a Brigadier mare, in the La Siesta string, is declared to be a great two-year-old. Last week the sulky to which the filly was hitched broke down with Vioget, throwing that lightweight out. Willena went on in the even soprano of her way and trotted her mile out, notwithstanding the downfall of the sulky seat, in 2:58, to the intense astonishment of the onlookers in general and Mr. Vioget in particular. The latter picked himself up little the worse for the mishap, and now swears that the bay filly is one of the most natural trotters he ever gazed upon.

W. O'B. MACDONOUGH'S Tigress won a splendid race at Denver on the 9th inst., going the four furlongs in 50 seconds flat on a track that was not fast by any means. The Prince of Norfolks are doing well this season, and Tigress has been very consistent in all her races. In this race Matt Storn's Phœbe Ann was second, and another Californian, Ghost Dance, third. The Golden Gaters demonstrated marked superiority pretty much all through the meeting at Overland Park, which concluded last Saturday, and Mr. Macdonough must have been pleased with the showing made by his string.

L. J. SMITH, is located at the Oakland, Cal., track, with a string composed of Sunrise, 2:25¼, by Abbotsford, 2:10½; Jim Blaine, 2:34½, by Oakland Boy, and the following green horses: Fearless, by Wormwood, dam by Fearnaught; a five-year-old pacing mare by Brigadier, 2:21¼, dam by Signal; a two-year-old colt by Brown Jug, son of Nutwood, dam by Ben Franklin; J. W. Benton, 3, by Gen. Benton, dam by Alexander Button, 2:26½; Colton, by Antevolo, 2:19¼; a two-year-old colt by Mambrino Wilkes, dam by Edward Everett, and a two-year-old filly by Lynwood, dam by Grand Moor.

J. C. SMITH, of Oakland, has his fine bay stallion, Anteeo, Jr., at the Oakland race track. There are many sons of Anteeo but few better shaped than this one, besides he is the sire of Hailstorm the bay colt that got a record of 2:30 as a three-year-old last fall. Hailstorm is the first great grandson of Electioneer to get within the charmed circle, and will be the first one to enter the 2:25 list if the present indications of his speed are any criterion. Anteeo, Jr., is a trotter, and will trot in 2:30 this fall. His trainer and driver, J. H. Crowe, is very sanguine regarding this stallion's ability to get in the list.

I WILL wander for a minute from the track to say that a country colt uninitiated in the wars of town life, but trained at Z. E. Simmons' Wilkes Lodge Stock Farm, is about as good a yearling as the best one in Kentucky. He is a gray colt, by Anteeo, 2:16¼, dam Frenzy (2), 2:27¼, by Florida, and can just fly—how fast no one knows yet—but he will be on parade at the track as soon as his owner returns from New York, and many a yearling will refuse to make second payment in stakes when his owner has a sight of this youngster or his gait.—Lexington Correspondence New York Spirit of the Times.

MR. J. G. FOLLANSBEE, from California, tells me that W. R. Hearst, his relative, is likely to go on the turf this year or next. Mr. W. Hearst, son of the late Senator Hearst and proprietor of the San Francisco Examiner, has been more of a devotee of yachting than of racing. But the announcement that his new steam yacht Vamoose it for sale is likely to be followed by his debut on the turf. When his late father's racing stable went under the hammer, young Hearst retained the San Simeon breeding farm in California, and young horses bred there will doubtless form the nucleus of his contemplated racing venture.—The Rider and Driver.

MARGARET S., 2:12½, by Director; Mambrino Maid, 2:15¼, by Mambrino Startle; Position, 2:22¼ (at three years), by Acolyte; Palo Alto Bell, 2:22¼, (at three years), by Electioneer; Gretna, 2:27¼, by Mambrino Dudley, Hildeburn, 2:34 (at 2 years), by Cheltenham, and several green horses of the Cloverdell string were shipped to John Splan, at Cleveland O., last Wednesday. Splan already had Evangeline, 2:19 (at 3 years), by Director: Ollie Wilkes, 2:23¾, and Annorean, 2:26¼ (at 2 years), by Cyclone, of the Cloverdell lot, making all sold one of the most valuable collections of trotters ever consigned by one individual to another for training.

COMPLAINT was made to the Secretary of the Treasury that the regulations of the department in regard to the free importation of animals for breeding purposes discriminate against American trotters. The complaint was made by Walter I. Hayes, member of Congress from Iowa, and was referred to the Agricultural Department. Secretary Rusk replied that the law requires that no animal shall be admitted free unless pure bred of recognized breed; that no discrimination is made against any breed; that the only requirement is that the animal shall have five-sixteenths blood of its breed, and if evidence to this effect cannot be produced surely such animals can not be considered pure breed.

D. J. MURPHY, at the Palo Alto sale last February, purchased Myrtha, by Contractor 1084, second dam McCa, by Almont; third dam Dolly (dam of Director, 2:17; Czarina, 2:21; Thorndale, 2:22¼, and Onward, 2:25¼), by Mambrino Chief 11. She was stinted to Whips, 2:27½, and last week dropped a beautiful bay filly. With the same news from this stock farm came the information that Carrie Malone (sister to Charles Derby, 2:20), by Steinway, 2:25¾, and Hattie B. (dam of Chloe 2:24), by Hawthorne, both had fillies. Carrie Malone's was by Soudan, 2:27½, and Hattie B.'s was by Dexter Prince. With the class of mares Mr. Murphy has stocked his farm there is no doubt but that in a few years the place will take a leading position among the stock farms on this coast.

JAMES A. ROBERTS, proprietor of the Fairlawn Stud Farm, near Melbourne, Australia, who is on a visit to this country on official business in connection with the World's Fair, Chicago, was the first gentleman to embark in the business of breeding and developing trotters in Australia. He owned Boccacio (a Kentucky-bred horse), by Woodford out of Rising Star, by Gage's Logan. Mr. Roberts bred this handsome stallion to thoroughbred mares, and every colt and filly proved faster at the diagonal gait than anything that had ever been bred before in the colonies. Mr. Roberts is quite an enthusiast regarding the possibilities of Australia as a market for trotters, but he says: "Exporters must remember that nothing but the very best will do over there."

WHILE James B. Ferguson, of Lexington, Ky., was at this Spring's Blood Horse Meeting he received an offer of $10,000 for four yearlings by Longfellow, which offer he declined with thanks, declaring that he would get considerable more for the youngsters at public auction. This prediction came true at Tattersalls sale, New York, on the 7th inst. The Longfellow-Fanfare filly brought $3,000; Longfellow—imp. Manzanita colt, $4,500; Longfellow-imp. Encore filly, $5,700; Longfellow-Attractive colt, $3,300; total for the four, $16,500. A difference of $6,500 is something to almost any man, and Capt. Ferguson showed his knowledge of the horse business in general and the worth of the Longfellows in particular by not accepting $10,000 for the four sons and daughters of the great brown horse.

THE Victoria Racing Club Committee have decided to have decided to add £2000 (as before) to the Champion Stakes in the event of the winner covering the three miles within five and three-quarter minutes, whereas if the race be reduced to a long preliminary canter and a sprint at the finish the added money will also be reduced—to £500. But this time limit clause is subject to extension up to an hour before the race. The stewards can give a little more grace to the horses if they have to wade through a quagmire, for instance, but under fair weather conditions they will need to make a good show or take the consequences of an all-round "waiting" race. This innovation is calculated to please the public even if it doesn't always suit owners.

SOUTHER FARM NOTES.—The Glen Fortune colt, out of old Puss, died on Monday. Chas. Chase has sent his bay colt by Brown Jug to be trained. Mr. Lapan has sent his bay pacer Haviland, 2:27, to be trained for the fall races. James Kerr's sorrel filly, by Sidney, is trotting very fast. She will get into the charmed circle this fall. Mr. Killip has his sorrel team of pacers, Eva G. and Tony B., at the farm. They are being put through their paces for the fall races. Allen Mayhew, of Niles, sent to the farm this week his brown mare by Alonzo Hayward, dam by Belmont. She will be handled for speed. There are about thirty pacers and trotters at the farm being handled by Jack Groom and his able assistant, Jas. Heard. They expect to pick out a few to go down the line for the boys to guess at.—San Leandro Reporter.

JOHN HARPER, whom we mentioned last week as having gone East, expects to remain until September, looking after his racing stock. He owns Hotspur, a horse that holds the world's record of three minutes and three-quarters of a second for a one and three-quarter mile race. Last year Hotspur was sick and could not run, but this year he is in fine condition and can be expected to do good work. R. D. Robbins, another one of Harper's horses, will run at Latonia on June 14th, where we believe, the stakes will be $15,000. He has sent two of his horses, Regal and Barw Scot to the Montana racing circuit. Braw Scot lately ran a mile in one minute and forty-one and one-half seconds in Woodland. Mr. Harper expects to realize considerably from his fast stock this year.—Solano Republican.

AMONG the finest stables in the world are undoubtedly those belonging to the Czar of Russia. The royal stables of St. Petersburg excel all others for magnificence and completeness. In the coach-house there may be seen a carriage which cost nearly $1,000,000. It appears like a golden chariot, and will accommodate a dozen passengers. Diamonds, rubies and pearls abound in the interior decoration of the vehicle. It is the carriage in which the great (and notorious) Catherine of Russia rode to her coronation. Another interesting vehicle, which does not run on wheels, is a sled or sleigh, built by Peter the Great. He was an industrious workman and an enterprising ruler. This sleigh would not do credit to anyone's workmanship at this day, but, being shaped and fashioned by the hands of the Czar of all the Russias, its rude workmanship was obscured by the greatness of the workman.

ON THE afternoon of Sunday, June 5, the training stable at the famous Woodburn Farm, Spring Station, Ky., was destroyed by fire, together with nine horses, sulkies and training paraphernalia, the whole being valued at $12,000, with no insurance. Thirteen horses were saved from the burning building but the following highly-bred and promising ones perished: Pastime, 2:27¼, gray colt, by Lord Russell, dam Noonday, by St. Elmo; Engardine, 3, bay colt, by King Wilkes, dam Englewood, by Belmont; Teneriffe 3, bay colt, by Stowaway, dam Tulip, by Alexander's Abdallah; Materia, 4, bay filly, by Matterhorn, dam Dolly, dam of Belmont, Jr., 2:23¼; Antigone, 3, bay filly by Harold, dam Menetta, by Vakeel; Fonina, 3, bay filly, by King Wilkes, dam Puella, by Harold; Petroline, 3, bay filly, by LordRussell, dam Patrol, by Onward; Radiant, 3, bay filly, by Lord Russell, dam Rosabella, by Belmont; Solvent, 3, b f, by Lord Russell, dam Nina Wilkes, by George Wilkes.

WIRELIGHT in Kentucky Stock Farm: Only harm can result from the useless discussion of the standard. For goodness sake let the matter rest. The breeders of the country are reasonably well satisfied with the standard as it is. Give us race records, and let the standard alone. There is no demand for a change. A discussion of the subject only confounds confusion worse. There is a subject that is not discussed enough by the turf writers of the country. Instead of the everlasting tampering with the standard, let these wise ink-slingers devote a part of their time and mental force to creating a strong prejudice against the too common practice of breeding mares to unsound horses. If we are intending to build upon a solid rock, and for the future, let us first examine the corner-stone and see that there are no cracks in it. If English horses are better than ours, it is because our cousins across the ferry are particular never to mate their mares with unsound stallions, no matter how slight the unsoundness is.

A WRITER in the Horse Review says: "Faustino, the whirlwind colt, looks grand; not so much as a slight puff can be seen upon him. He is just as sound and smooth as if he never trotted a step in his life. He looks all over like a young horse destined to be a sire. He is strong in the quarters and gaskins, a long, swinging reach from hip to hock, short in cannon and shank and stout in the right places. When he stepped around a regular track in 2:14¼ in a race it was no difficult task. His action is nearly perfection; it is a snappy, big-gaited motion, almost unlike any other trotter on the turf today, yet none are more evenly balanced, none appear to get over the ground easier, and with that floating, gliding motion that characterizes Faustino. He is a great young horse, and before the leaves of October fall again something like 2:10 or 2:11 will be emblazoned upon his banner. As a horse he will fill the eye of a judge and cause him to turn back for another look at him; as a trotting machine he can put ninety-nine in every hundred soundly to sleep."

WHILE the imp. stallion King Galop stood for service at S. S. Howland's farm, near Mt. Vernon, he was almost completely ignord by New York breeders. He was sent to the Nursery Stud in Kentucky, and the first of his get, yearlings, were offered for sale in New York Monday night. They were sold with those of Major B. G. Thomas, and were the production of famous Dixiana. Eight of the get of King Galop brought $11,000, an average of $1,375, the highest price paid was for a bay colt out of imp. Plain Fields. This was pronounced the finest yearling that ever left Kentucky. He was bought by August Belmont for $3,800. Thirty-four Dixiana yearlings brought $29,775, an average of $875. The best figure was $4,200, paid by August Belmont for a yearling colt by Longfellow out of Highflight. J. H. McCormick bought a full sister to Vocalite.

COLORADO has just lost one of its greatest thoroughbreds in the death, near Dolores, Montezuma county, of the famous stallion Jim Douglas, by Wildidle, dam Yolone, by Norfolk. This splendid animal was brought to Colorado in 1885 by C. Johnson, now of Overland Park in this city and for a number of years Jim Douglas was looked upon by the local turfmen as a cracker-jack, as indeed he was, for at Washington Park, Chicago, on the 29th of June, 1886, with 122 pounds up, he ran a mile and one-sixteenth in 1:47½, lowering the world's record for the distance at that time. Besides being a thorough racehorse, Jim Douglas has made his mark as a stallion, and has a number of good colts in the West to-day nearly as good racers as he was himself. His fault was confined to his disposition. He had a persistent habit of sulking at the post, and lost a few good events in his racing days on account of this unpardonable custom. It often happened that his rider, in order to make a start with Jim Douglas, would have to face about and wait until the field had gotten well away before his horse would turn tail and start in the course. Even with this disadvantage he often won the race—Field and Farm.

THE Board of Directors of the Yolo County Agricultural Association met in Secretary Magoffey's office Friday afternoon, with a large number of members present. The purpose of the meeting was to straighten up and balance the accounts of the association. The secretary's report as to the condition of affairs was read and filed. After several small bills were allowed, the advisability of holding a fall meeting came up for discussion. The board, after taking into consideration the losses of the spring meeting, came to the conclusion that if it could not raise enough money by subscription in the city of Woodland to justify them in holding a fall meeting, that no such meeting would be held. The amount required was settled upon and apportioned between the different houses in the city in a sum that was deemed equitable. A committee consisting of Directors Mowder, Woodard and Doolittle was appointed to interview the business men in regard to the matter and report at the next meeting. If the committee meets with the success that it should, then the fall meeting will be held, but if the subscriptions do not come up to the amount required, the idea of holding fall races will be abandoned.—Yolo Democrat.

ON our recent visit to California the best trotting stallion we saw was Bay Rose. This stallion cost $20,000, and is owned by the Pierce Brothers, of Santa Rosa. This farm occupies the site of an old fairground, and the quarters are very commodious. A mile track adds to the value of the place. We saw a great many fine mares at pasture in the field. Some had foals at side, one of the latter being a young son of the great Palo Alto out of an Almont 33 mare. We were not particularly struck with the equine specimens at Palo Alto. The premier, Palo Alto, is an ungainly brute with a big head, short, thick neck and a bad set of legs. The $168,000 stallion Advertiser, by Electioneer, dam by George Wilkes, is undersized, but to our notion the best put-up horse on the place. We were rather struck with Electricity, a great big gangling son of Electioneer, out of the dam of Jay-Eye-See, and to our notion he should have been made the premier instead of Palo Alto. We saw a great many promising young things at Palo Alto, one of which is the yearling sister of Sunol, which, they tell us, will be speedier than the famous little mare for which Mr. Bonner paid $41,000, and that broke the world's record. Palo Alto is an ideal establishment and the good work has but fairly begun.—Denver Field and Farm.

THE Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association will give two race meetings this year. The Summer Meeting commences on Saturday, August 6th, and ends on the following Saturday, August 13th. The Fall Meeting will be given in October. The Association has advertised a liberal programme for their Summer meeting, entries to close on July 20th. Judging from the present prospect, everything points towards an interesting series of races. With the Bay District track in good hands and repaired, as it now will be, and with the alternative of the Oakland track, which will be in first-class condition, in case they do not succeed in getting the Bay District, it looks as though it was going to be a prosperous year for racing in this section. The colt and stallion purses for the Fall Meeting of the Association closed last March. Those who are fortunate enough to have two and three-year-olds by the stallion entered in the Stallion Produce Stakes will do well not to overlook the fact that to start their colts they will have to name them on July 1st, and pay the small entrance fee of $5 on that day, which, with the payment of $20 more fifteen days before the meeting, will make their horses eligible to start. As all the entrance money for the stallions goes to the colts, these stakes will be worth big money to the winners.

IF, ON looking into a trotter's stall, you see the walls hung all around with gay, soft blankets, you must guess his record to be, or going to be, about 2:10, and add a second or two for each blanket less in array. Axtell's or Nancy Hanks' boudoir is quite a study in blankets. Each trotter has so many that the walls are covered with the handsome wardrobes of the petted animals looking pretty and making soft padding for the walls at the same time. Axtell's raiment is about this: In the first place he has about four body-suits or blankets with head-pieces, which cover him from eyes to tail—two heavy and two lighter, in striped material or plain white trimmed in blue and plain blue trimmed in white. Each suit has a surcingle, pad or girth to match. He wears one of these when he takes a walk on cool mornings or evenings. Then there are two large, square blankets to wear after his exercise for "sweating out," and an extra square wool blanket as a "cooler." He has still another blanket to wear in the stable, and two linen sheets to throw over him in warmer weather and fly time. On the pegs hang four bridles—one with blinds, to wear on the road before he has been settled down by training; an open bridle for track work or jogging, one of white leather to wear on parade, and one of russet leather to wear when le roi s' amuser.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Howls.

Strange that all kennel clubs should have more or less dissension in their ranks—as a usual thing the non-workers are the ones who cause discord and discontent. I wish some day to find a kennel club where this element is conspicuous by its absence, and the echo answers—some-day—in the sweet after awhile.

*

Dog Whip has grown rather funny in his old age—got himself suspended from the Canadian Kennel Club, and of course the American will follow suit. Come, old man, this is a shame; be clean; be square, it is just as easy, in fact more so, than to be dirty. "Cleanliness is next to godliness," especially in the kennel world.

Handlers, I am sorry to say, sometimes so far forget themselves as to allow a cash consideration to come between them and the dogs they have in their string. They are sometimes paid to push to the front certain dogs to the detriment of others that they may have in hand at the same time. They will hold back and suppress those they know are far the superior to those owned and under their care. Why? Because they are paid to push another, to give the other better care, in fact all their care. Some of you who have been disappointed with your Derbys think this over and hereafter keep your eye on your handler. A large number are above suspicion and another large number are not, so watch.

Don't hear much from the Gordons this year. Harry Malcolm and a host of others seem to have shut up altogether of late Have not had a row for a long time. Well, they will make up for lost time when they do begin.

H. L. G. says Waddell is a back number. Back number or no back number Mr. H. L. G., he knows a good Setter or Pointer when he sees it and that is more than can be said of you. Old numbers are generally preferable to new ones.

*

John Davidson, who tries to judge on the Stonehenge Standard and according to my opinion, also knows a Setter or Pointer if any one in America says Waddell does know. But then what is the use of summarizing. Waddell's reputation is not in question, and when it is, it will then be plenty time to produce proof.

Bull terriers got a great setting back by Judge Mortimer. Prizes withheld, etc.; rather tough, gents, but get typical specimens and other evidence of showing your dogs before a known judge; you might have gone on for years fondly thinking you had good specimens, you know. You know you have not, and can go to work and get some good ones.

* *

Friend Hubbard, he of Irish setter fame, is really suffering great trials and tribulations of late. He has had the good fortune to see a real pointer at work in the person of the field-winner Promotion. Ever since he seems to have been in a cataleptic condition. Come Hub, rouse yourself and open your eyes and you will be enabled to see quite a few short hairs which are capable of making you or any other man blink. Even should Mr. Barker have only one pointer in his string there are other good ones in the country just the same, and my advice to you now, as I have given it to you personally, is, to come over to the short hairs and you will have old reliables on your side. I know you have been unlucky with what few you have tried, but try again.

* *

The chappy who writes under the (prickly) name of "Cactus" seems to have an intense desire, as it were, to stand in with that beauty (?) Clam-Clam—bump on the tail, so to speak. When Clam-Clam bow-wows he makes an asthmatic effort to sniffle. Won't somebody please notice it?

*

I am in favor of the best system for field trials as against the spotting system which leaves everything with the judges, and as Dr. Rowe says there are only four or five men qualified to judge the work of the high-class dogs (?) we poor fools will have to travel with the side show; no room for such as us with the Great Moral Tin-Combined Monster Pavilion Hippodrome and Roman Circus—we are simply not in it (?) Yet our money pays the fiddler, and for our edification the skirt dance is performed, but how long will this suit our fickle nature? How long will we pay our hard cash (silver) to be calmly told we are a pack of demmed fools and haven't the slightest idea of what a dog should be or how one should act in the field even if we have had twenty years or forty years' experience with dogs in the field, and possibly have killed thousands of birds to our know-it-all brother who is competent to judge a high-class dog. We are simply told to straddle the fence and to put up the cash when the gang demands; as to what, when or how we want things, we are too cussed idiotic—born so—to know, and should, therefore, keep our mouths silent and be thankful for the great interest (?) that our guardians are daily taking in our behalf; and we should also be extremely thankful that we are not placed in an asylum—where we belong—only if our liberty was deprived from us we would thus be enabled to get a hustle on ourselves and produce the cash for our guardian's pockets. Hence we roam, we wander in darkness, except the small ray of light that sometimes falls across our path, a reflection so to speak from the bright illuminating presence of the esoteric brother—the Mahatma of the doggy world—who is only endeavoring to raise us poor fools from darkness to a higher plane—the plane of the High-Class Field Trial Winner of today and the days to come.

At Echo Cocker Kennels, Stockton, Cal., property of Geo. A. Gray, Stockton, Cal., liver cocker spaniel bitch, Bronneville, by Bronta—Maud E., to Giffee E., by Giffee—Ladylay by ch blk Pete—Miss Nance, May 6, 1892.

Valuable Information for Breeders.

The treatment of the brood bitch and the management of her pups during the earliest portion of their existence are subjects to which the fullest attention must be paid by the owner of any kennel who wishes to make a name for himself. Of course, it is most desirable that the bitch should be in perfect health, not only at the time of service, but during the period of gestation and whilst suckling her whelps, otherwise the latter are sure to be more or less affected in constitution. It is consequently very necessary to see that the prospective mother of a family is kept free from mange, and that her blood is in good order, as it never can be exactly prophesied when she may be ready to be used for breeding purposes. Some bitches will be in profit three or even four times a year, but twice in that duration of time is perhaps nearer the average. It is unwise to introduce her to the male animal until the red discharge has just ceased, and a second visit after an interval of a clear day, is a wise precaution to take when it can be arranged for.

It is not desirable to leave the two animals together as a general rule, nor should the female be unnecessarily excited or over-fatigued after service: but, on the contrary, the proper method is to leave her as quiet as possible for a few hours. This being so, the careful owner will usually endeavor to arrange for some person that she knows and is fond of to take her over to the kennel of the dog; and it may be added that the proprietor of the latter animal is always glad that this should be done, for if the bitch should prove barren it is more satisfactory for all parties concerned. The practice of the owners of all stud dogs differs somewhat when such misfortunes arise, but the fairest arrangement to agree to is a gratis visit for the same bitch, or a service at half fee for another matron belonging to the same owner.

The period of gestation in a bitch lasts for sixty-three days, and during its earlier stages it is quite unnecessary that any special treatment should be accorded her. At the same time a due allowance of healthy exercise should be given, and her food must be plentiful and of sound quality. She must not, however, be allowed to get too fat, and, in fact, if a brood bitch be permitted to get into this state the chances of her proving barren and having a bad labor are materially increased. At the end of the sixth week at latest it is time to take precautions to avoid her injuring her forthcoming progeny by over-exertion or by leaping on and off chairs or the benches in her kennel. It is a good plan, too, where it is possible, to introduce her to her quarters in which it is proposed that she should whelp, but a reasonable amount of gentle exercise must be given her, and every attempt must be made to keep her spirits up. Some bitches when in this condition become very low spirited and pine when left by themselves in a strange kennel, and then it is a good plan to leave her pet playmate with her, assuming that she has one, until almost the very last day previous to her whelping.

We have stated above that it is a bad plan to allow pregnant bitches to leap on and off benches, and therefore their beds should always be made on the ground of their breeding quarters. The floors of these should always, if possible, be boarded, or at least that portion should be upon which the bitch and her pups will lie. The reason for this is that the mother when her young ones are born will hollow out the straw of her bed in such a manner that the whelps lie upon the floor, her motives being no doubt the increased facility obtained thereby for licking them and cleaning up of all impurities.

It is a thoroughly bad plan to place the bed of a brood bitch in a box with sides—however low they may be—or in a kennel with a top to it; as in the one case she may injure both her whelps and herself when getting in and out, and in the other it will be a very difficult matter to reach her or them if it should be necessary to do so. Some bitches become most irritable when they are on pups, and resent the slightest interference with themselves or their offspring; whilst others appear to invite society, and rejoice to see their master or attendant about them. All visits from inquisitive strangers or children should be discouraged; and from a day or two before the date when the whelps are due until they are old enough to get about, and even then, no unnecessary handling of them should be permitted.

The day before the bitch is expected to pup she should be given a good dose of salid oil, and her diet should consist of strong broth and scraps. A bountiful supply of fresh clean water should always be near her bed at this time, and the owner or attendant when he looks in from time to time to see how matters are going on, must be most careful to avoid startling or exciting her in the least. It is always best to leave matters to nature so far as possible, but occasions arise when assistance become imperatively necessary. In such cases it would be sheer insanity for the beginner, unless he possesses some medical knowledge, to interfere; and even then, if a proper qualified veterinary surgeon can be found it is better to resort to his services. An experienced owner knows how to act upon an emergency, but the novice, of course, does not, and therefore, we repeat, he should confine his sphere of usefulness to running for the assistance which should have been previously arranged to be forthcoming if required. Here it may be stated that many a valuable canine life has been sacrificed through leaving such important matters until the last.

When the bitch has been delivered of all or some of her pups a little warm gruel should be given her, and her diet should consist of this for the first day or so, every care being taken that the supply is plentiful, and that each installment is not left long enough beside her to become sour. Then good broth and scraps, mixed with Spratts beetroot biscuits may form her fare. Every precaution must be taken to avoid fever, and therefore the supply of meat must be limited, whilst the bitch must be kept absolutely quiet or she may destroy her pups. Assuming that she has a sufficient yield of milk to nourish all the whelps she has brought into the world, the youngsters will do well enough until about the ninth day, when their eyes open, and very soon after that event occurs they will, after a little coaxing, begin to lap from a saucer.

Half a dozen pups are quite enough for most mothers to do justice to, and if it is desired to bring up more, or if she has no nourishment for them, a foster mother may be tried, or they may be brought up by hand. The foster mother, like her human prototype, the wet nurse of our youth, is a terrible nuisance to have about a place, and as may very naturally be supposed, it is not only a most difficult matter to get one whelping about the same time as the bitch, but when she is procured, it becomes a still harder task to induce her to do her duty by her charges. There is no artificial food for very young pups to beat Nestle's Condensed Swiss Milk, given diluted in water and warm from a feeding bottle, and after a few days they may be given Spratts Patent Puppy Food with the best possible results. In the case of the larger breed, a goat will be found to be an admirable foster-mother, and she can be brought into the place where they are and held down whilst they suckle her in turns. There is, of course, always great trouble entailed in feeding the helpless puppies at frequent intervals, but the greatest risk they run at the earliest period of their existence is from cold. The absence of animal warmth kills off scores of canine orphans of a tender age, and therefore a warm corner near the kitchen fire, which should be well made up the last thing at night, is the place for them—provided always that the cook be propitious.

Many and many have been the arguments that have been raised upon the subject of cows' milk as a diet for puppies, and several experienced breeders are of the opinion that this article produces worms. Whether this is so or not we cannot positively assert, but we very much prefer goats' milk, and are therefore advocates of the system which provides for the lacteal beverage taking the form of Nestle's production mixed with water. At the same time we very strongly advise that good, sound broth be largely given to whelps who are considered valuable, and this can readily be extracted from bullocks' or sheep's heads, bones, or from scraps of lean meat. Mix up with the broth crushed Spratts biscuits, and feed the youngsters five or six times a day in small quantities, taking care that no food is left beside them, and above all things see that their bed and the floor of the kennel is kept scrupulously clean, but do not meddle with the former until the whelps are a week or ten days old, as the bitch understands her duties in this respect.—Stock Keeper.

Nature, Causes and Treatment of Wind Colic.

Dogs occasionally suffer from what is commonly called wind colic, an affection characterized by distention of the stomach or intestines by gas. There are a variety of influences capable of producing this. When a similar trouble occurs in man it is generally due to decomposition of the food, as a result of which gas is generated. But the digestive organs of t e dog are very strong and active; he has also marvelous ability to resist and dispose of poisons, the product of putrefaction, that would be destructive to the highest order of animals. It is therefore safe to assume that in his case gaseous distention is seldom caused by decomposition, but very generally is due to some obstruction to the contents of the stomach or bowels.

The fact that the appetite of dogs is frequently perverted, as shown by their swallowing bits of wood, stones, etc., is instanced in support of this theory. They also habitually take into the stomach pieces of bones, the passage of which through the body must often be difficult and slow. These obstructions alone might not be sufficient to cause gaseous distention. But where they exist the digestive organs are at a disadvantage, and were they called upon to dispose of food unusually burdensome they would more than likely fail to do it promptly; and gas is always generated where the process of digestion is delayed.

Intestinal obstruction may occur in the absence of a foreign body, as a liver of bone, or the like. In some instances for a time there is loss of power in the muscular fiber of a small part of the intestine, while the parts above and below it still retain their normal action. The affected part collapses, and the tube is as tightly shut as it would be were it pinched by the thumb and finger.

Closure of the intestine may also be effected by acrid or irritating matters. In such cases probably a spasm occurs in the intestinal walls and the tube is contracted. Obstruction is also produced by what is termen intussusception. By this is meant that one portion of intestine slips into another, stovepipe-like; the outer part then contracts upon the inner and holds it fast. An intestine may twist and so become closed; it may even tie itself up into something like a knot. These are a few of the causes of obstruction.

Wind colic is more easily detected in some dogs than in others. As a rule, when it occurs in house pets they plainly indicate their sufferings by moaning and ear-piercing cries. But large dogs, and notably mastiffs, seldom give such expression when in distress; therefore an attack of this sort in them is extremely likely to be overlooked except by the most observing matters. All the victims of the trouble are very restless. They lie down, but in a moment are up and walking about; in two or three minutes they again lie down, but the position seems to intensify their sufferings and they are soon upon their feet. This extreme restlessness, by the way, is quite conclusive evidence of pain in some part of the body. If it is in the abdomen the back of the sufferer is sometimes arched, and the walls are retracted and hard, but if the painful attack is wind colic the abdomen is distended, and when tapped with the fingers it is resonant, like a drum. Vomiting sometimes occurs in this painful affection; if it does, and the troublesome gas is in the stomach, much is generally expelled and the relief is immediate. But vomiting is the exception rather than the rule when the stomach is so distended, and the pain seldom subsides, except under narcotics, until the gas has passed downward and out of the body. When the gas is confined to the intestines the pain is as severe as when the stomach is involved, but there is much less danger in such an attack for the expulsion of gas is as a rule more easily effected from the intestines than from the stomach.

Pure and simple wind colic at first is unattended with inflammation; therefore fever is absent, the nose remains cold, and the pulse is little if any more rapid than usual. But if the attack is severe and persistent for several hours, and the cause remains, inflammation of the stomach or bowels, or both, is very liable to set in. Hence, relief should in every instance be effected as speedily as possible.

In very severe cases, when the abdomen is greatly distended, to make assurance doubly sure, it is best to assume that the gas is confined to both the stomach and intestines, and to endeavor to dislodge it by the mouth and by the bowels. An emetic should therefore be given; and one of the most efficient and harmless is powdered ipecacuanha; the dose of which for a dog of the largest breeds is one-half a drachm. This should be put into a cup of warm, not hot, water, and poured down the sufferer's throat. If it does not act in ten minutes the dose should be repeated.

After giving the emetic, an injection of quite warm water should be administered. As for the quantity of water, it should be forced into the bowels until it runs out. If hot can be borne by the hand without being scalded, the water will oftentimes relieve the pain even more speedily than the most powerful narcotic. It is also very relaxing, and if spasm of the intestine is the obstruction it will generally quickly relieve it. If the obstruction is overcome, when the water comes away from the bowels a volume of gas will be discharged with it, and the pain will at once lessen, if it does not disappear entirely. If such a happy result does not follow, another, and yet another injection should be administered at intervals of ten or fifteen minutes. If gas is not brought up by the emetics, or down with the injections, the sufferer should be put into a tub and his abdomen be bathed for ten or fifteen minutes with hot water. This also failing to bring relief half a teaspoonful of laudanum in a little water, should be poured down his throat; that is, if he is a dog the size of a mastiff.

In about an hour this will have had nearly its full effect. If the abdomen is still greatly distended and the pain is not subsiding, a physician should be sent for. And the messenger should request him to bring an instrument for tapping. The hollow needle of a hyperdermic syringe will oftentimes answer for this purpose, but it is best to be supplied with a trocher such as is used in evacuating a dropsical effusion in the abdomen. By the means of this instrument the gaseous distension can be at once relieved. And invariably when great it should be relieved as speedily as possible, for continued pressure against the heart is liable to stop its action, and in some neglected cases it was found that so great was the distention certain abdominal organs were literally torn from there attachments, and death resulted in a few moments.

Beyond doubt, many cases of wind colic occur and are not detected; and not impossibly more than one mysterious death has been occasioned by it. If treated judiciously and promptly it is not likely to prove fatal except in a small proportion of cases.—ASHMONT in American Field.

Kennel Notes.

Dr. Bowhill, the well-known veterinary surgeon, who has been absent from the city for the last three years in England and Scotland, has just returned, and true to his love of the game little dog, the foxterrier, has brought back with him two good specimens, a dog and bitch, both wire hairs.

Todge, the dog, is a bit large, but on good lines, with a splendid head, long jaw and well-carried ears, straight in front, fair bone and feet. He has a hard coat, a bit fluffy at present, but he has had a long trip and is not in good condition. He is by Tartar, out of Nellie by Princess—Vestor. Tartar, by Tyla—Lill. He was whelped January 1890, has a tan head, black saddle and spot at tail.

The bitch Beattie is by Jack's Again, out of Vernon. Jack's Again by champ. Jack Frost—Lees Ley. Vernon by Surprise, out of Dresby, she was whelped January 1891, has a black and tan head, white body, is a bit on the small side. She has just visited Todge and the produce will be a valuable addition to the wire-haired terriers on this coast. Both Todge and Beattie are registered in the English Kennel Club Stud book. Dr. Bowhill should become a member of the Pacific Foxterrier Club, for he will have pups eligible to the class next year and he may be successful in producing a wire hair capable of beating the best smooth.

Gilroy, in years gone by, was the resort of the field trial men, in fact, the Gilroy Rod and Gun Club inaugurated the holding of annual field trials on this coast, and held several successful events. In recent years the sportsmen in that vicinity have failed to show any interest in the sport. Come, gentlemen, wake up; you have good dogs in that section. Enter and run your dogs at the Pacific Coast Field Trials.

The Pacific Kennel Club would meet a long-felt want by establishing a boarding kennel close to the city. A suitable place could be leased at a small rent and a capable man engaged to look after the dogs.

Mr. Geman Hopkins, who recently resigned from the management of the Blemton Kennels, has bought a place at Hempstead, L. I., and intends breeding foxterriers for himself. He was very successful on the other side of the water, and we may look for some grand ones in a few years from his kennel.

Owners of foxterriers who have not joined the Pacific Foxterrier Club should hand their names to the Secretary, J. B. Martin, Auditor's office, on or before the next meeting, July 18th. The club's membership is growing, the monies on hand to date are $40, and the prospects are that about $150 will be in the treasury at the beginning of the next bench show season. This will be used in purchasing valuable cups and medals, which will be awarded to the winning foxterriers in the various classes owned by members of the club.

What has become of the California Kennel Club? Three months have gone by without a meeting of the club members being held. Is the club so thoroughly under the control of one man that its business is in his keeping entirely, and must the members await his pleasure to be informed as to the financial condition of the club? The members should insist upon a meeting being held immediately and a full report of the recent show should be forthcoming.

A question that has been asked of A. B. Truman and which he declines to answer is this one: How and by what authority did you obtain the use of the California Kennel Club's monogram to use upon medals that you offered as prizes at the recent shows of the club?

Mr. I. J. Ballatyne, of Peoria, Illinois, the well-known fancier of pups, has received from England the prize-winning pug bitch, Bradford Nellie. This will be a valuable acquisition to his kennels, which already contain some winners.

THE GUN.

The Wild Sheep and Goats of India.

Since the number of reputed species of wild sheep inhabiting the territory within the sphere of influence of the Government of India has been somewhat reduced by recent researches, sporting readers of the Asian will doubtless like to be made acquainted with the results of such researches, says R. Lydekker in the Asian. I may at the same time take the opportunity of pointing out the proper scientific names of all the Indian species of sheep, while we may also glance at the Indian representatives of the allied group of wild goats, in relation to which there are some questions which sportsmen may help in deciding.

In spite of suggestions published at various times both by sportsmen and purely zoological writers that they might prove to be merely varieties of one species, it has been hitherto generally considered that the wild sheep of the hills of the Punjab, commonly known on the oorial—or more correctly urial—was perfectly distinct from the one found in Ladak, and generally referred to under the title of the shapoo. The magnificent series of heads of Indian-horned game collected by Mr. A. O. Hume at Simla, which he has with great generosity recently presented to the British Museum, has, however, now enabled Mr. W. T. Blanford to state definitely that the two animals are merely varieties of a single species. The name shapoo, by the way, is applied by the Ladakis to the male of the ladak race, the last syllable being merely the distinctive appellation of the male gender; consequently the animal ought rather to be spoken of as the sha. It is true, indeed, that the Ladak sha is generally a larger animal, with longer and stouter horns than the typical urial of the Punjab; and the latter usually has a larger ruff on the neck than the former. The large series of heads in the Hume collection shows, however, that the difference in the size and curvature of the horns is not constant, and that it is quite impossible to find any certain specific points of distinction between the two forms. Consequently this species of sheep may be known indifferently either as the urial or the sha, while its proper scientific title is Ovis vignei—so named after Vigne, one of the earlier travellers in Ladak. It is probable that when we have explored the whole course of the Indus, it will be found that the area inhabited by the typical urial is not really separated from that in which the true sha dwells. By this indentification, we have two supposed distinct species of wild sheep knocked into one; but this is not all, for the writer quoted above has also shown that the wild sheep of Baluchistan and Kelat, for which Mr. Hume proposed the name of Ovis blanfordi, is likewise merely another variety of the urial.

In almost all works on Himalayan sport, we find the large wild sheep of Changchenmo and the Tibetan plateau alluded to as Ovis ammon, now the true Ovis ammon, or Argali, is a species inhabiting Northern Mongolia, and appears to differ from the Tibetan form by the absence of the ruff round the neck, while there may be also some slight differences in color. This is consider by competent authorities sufficient to indicate that the two kinds are entitled to rank as distinct species. Consequently, I hope that in future sportsmen will learn to speak of the Tibetan species as the Tibetan Argali, or Hodgon's wild sheep; while when they desire to refer to it by its scientific title the name Ovis hodgsoni should be employed. I may add that a wild sheep from Zanskar, which was described under the name of Ovis brookei—after the late Sir Victor Brooke—turns out to be a hybrid between the sha and the Tibetan argali.

The only other species of Indian sheep are the great Pamir sheep (Ovis poli) and the bhoral, or blue sheep of Ladak and Tibet (Ovis nahura). The former only enters the territory under the sphere of British influence in Hunza to the north of Gilgit; its shikar on the Pamir has been graphically described by Major C. Cumberland last year in land and water. The especial interest attaching to the bharal is that it forms an almost complete connecting link between the sheep and the goats, this being especially shown in the characters of the skull and horns.

Of wild goats five well-defined species are now recognized from India, four of which are not found southwards of the Himalaya. Three out of these five are characterized by having horns of greater length than the skull, and are included in the genus Capra; while the other two have much shorter horns, and are referred to a second genus. The Pasang or Persian wild goat (Capra ægagrus) is a Western form only extending into India on its western side, where it is met with in Baluchistan and Sind. It is easily recognized by the sharp point edge of its scimitar-like horns; and is considered to be the ancestral stock from which the domesticated breeds of goat have been derived. The Himalayan ibex is generally regarded or identical with the ibex of Siberia and the Thian Shan (Capra sibirica), although it has been thought that it may be distinct. It differs from the Pasang, as all sportsmen know, by the front of the horns of the bucks being flattened and marked by bold knots. Further information is required about a dark-colored ibex from Baltisan, which has been considered to be merely the common species in its winter dress, but this is not yet ascertained with certainty, and sportsmen will do good service if they will send skins and heads of this ibex to competent zoologists, stating the time of year they were killed. There is also much uncertainty about an ibex, of which three specimens have been obtained—probably from the Upper Kishanganga Valley in Kashmir territory—characterized by the marked outward curvature of the horns, and the absence of knobs except near their tips. Mr Sterndale, who first brought to notice this ibex, proposed that if it proved to be a new species it should be called Capra dauvergnei, after M. Dauvergne, who has resided for many years in Kashmir; but additional specimens are urgently needed before the question can be decided as to whether it is merely a variety or a distinct species.

There is little to remark in regard to the markhor, except that zoologists are now satisfied that, in spite of the great difference in the form of the spiral of their horns, all the varieties belong to a single species. The proper scientific name of this species is Capra falconeri, and not Capra megaceros, as we so frequently find it termed in sporting works.

The two remaining Indian wild goats are the Himalayan tahr (Hemitragus jemlaicus) and the so-called Nilgiri ibex (Hemitragus hylocrius). Both, as already mentioned, differ the true goats by their comparatively short horns; and they are further distinguished by having a small naked area at the end of the muzzle. The Nilgiri wild goat differs from the tahr by having the outer side of its horns convex, and not passing into a sharp ridge in front; and it is distinguished from all other goats and sheep by the presence of four teats in the females.

The Country Club Shoot.

There was a jolly crowd of members of the country Club that alighted from the train at Napa last Saturday evening and got into the busses and carriages in waiting to be driven up to that beautiful resort known as the Napa Soda Springs. The proprietor, Andrew Jackson, had everything in readiness for the guests and the hospitality, for which he has long been noted, was lavished with an unstinted hand. In the morning the members were surprised and pleased to see a large number of people coming up the various roads leading to the hotel; all of them were bent upon seeing the members shoot. Everything around the trap shooting grounds was in apple-pie order and the members were not long in arranging for the day's sport. The retriever owned by Mr. Jackson took as much of an interest in the proceedings as the members. The birds were a very fine lot; and there were plenty of them, so that the members felt that there were more to shoot than they have had at any time or place this year. The features of the day were the shooting of thirty-five birds straight by Mr. Webster and Mr. Austin C. Tubbs' score of 19. Mr. Webster shot twelve birds with one barrel only. The crowd, in which there were a number of members who did not care to shoot, became very enthusiastic over the exhibition. A splendid collation was set out by Mr. Jackson for the participants in the shooting matches, and with the choicest of Napa's famous wines, the cold chicken, salads and sandwiches were greatly relished.

The following are the scores:

A Trick Worth Knowing.

The question was asked a breeder of bull dogs what a man was to do in case of an attack from a bulldog. He replied as follows:

"A bulldog gives little warning of an attack, but he always jumps high. That is one good point to remember. If a man knows that he is to approach a strange dog, he should provide himself with a newspaper and matches. A bit of blazing paper thrust in the face of a bulldog will make him jump through a plate-glass window.

"If a dog springs for a man the latter should guard his face with his arm and try to meet the animal with his forearm. With the right hand he should attempt to catch one of the animal's front paws. The paw of a bulldog is ultra-sensitive. If it can be caught, a vigorous squeeze will make the animal howl for mercy and retire discomfited. The quickest way to release a person from the jaws of a bull dog, if he is unfortunate enough to be bitten, is by catching the dog's hind paw, in the center of which is an exceedingly tender spot called the heart. This should be pressed, or, even better, the paw taken into the mouth and bitten with the teeth. The dog will relinquish the hold at once. It is a desperate remedy, but a sure one, and one that is resorted to by the professional dog fighters."

Why He Dropped the Subject.

"Ten thousand dollars for a dog!" he exclaimed, as he looked up from his newspaper. "Do you believe anyone ever paid any such price, Maria?"

"I'm sure I don't know, James," she returned, without stopping her needlework even for a moment, says the Chicago Tribune. "Does the paper say that much was paid?"

"Yes, there's an article on valuable dogs, and it speaks of one that sold for $10,000. I don't believe it."

"It may be true, James," she said quietly. "Some of these blooded animals bring fancy prices, and there's no particular reason why the paper should lie about it."

"I know that, Maria; but just think of it—just try to grasp the magnitude of that sum in your weak, feminine mind. You don't seem to realize it. Ten thousand dollars for a dog! Why, hang it, Maria! that's more than I am worth!"

"I know it, Joseph, but some are worth more than others."

She went calmly on with her sewing, while he fumed and sputtered for a moment and then dropped the subject, especially the weak, feminine mind part of it.

ROD.

Fishing.

By John W. Matthews.

A youth besides the water sits,
The noonday sun is warmly beaming;
His nose and neck are turkey red,
His eye with radiant hope is gleaming
He watches close the bobbing cork
Advance upon the tiny billows;
A jerk, a swish, and high above
He lands a sucker in the willows.
That's fishing.

A fair maid trips the tennis court,
A dozen eyes admire her going.
Her black and yellow blazer burns
A hole right through the sunset's glowing.
She drives the ball across the net,
And into hearts consumed with wishing
She drives a dart from Cupid's bow;
She'll land a sucker, too. She's fishing.
That's fishing.

The politican on his rounds
Tackles both workingman and granger.
He tries to make them think that he Alone can save the land from danger.
He chucks the baby on the chin,
He says your wife looks really youthful,
And though you know you're fifty-five,
And look just twenty, if he's truthful.
That's fishing.

My little wife beside me stands
And steals a dimpled arm around me.
A kiss upon my lips—that's bait—
Some information to astound me.
Her bonnet is quite out of style,
Her summer wrap quite past the using.
That lovely one—so cheap—at Brown's
Is just the one she would be choosing.
That's fishing.

So whether the game be fish or men,
The bait be kisses, worms or blushes:
The place at home, by sunny pool,
Or tennis ground at evening's hushes.
'Tis the old game the Serpent played
With Mother Eve in Eden's bowers;
And Adam's sons and daughters all
Will love the sport to time's last hours.
That's fishing.

—American Angler.

Food for Fishes.

At the twenty-first annual meeting of the American Fisheries Society, which opened at the Holland House, New York, on May 25th, Mr. A. Nelson Cheney presented the following interesting paper on the above-named subject. He said:

As a rule fishermen give themselves little concern about the food supply of the fishes which they delight to capture with rod and reel, with fly and bait. If a trout as it is taken from the landing-net is found to be plump and well-fed, the fact is noted as it is placed on a bed of ferns in the creel; and so, too, when a trout proves to be gaunt and lean its condition is commented upon, but not one angler in a hundred ever thinks of making the least effort to supply food which will enable the gaunt, lean fish to become plump and well-fed.

I am of the opinion that there may be many anglers throughout the land willing to render assistance in increasing the food supply of fishes in waters not within the direct influence of the National or State Fish Commissions, if they could know how to go about it, and at the same time know what a simple matter it is to furnish a diversity of food to fishes that from natural causes may be restricted in their diet. Primarily I address the anglers, but the subject is so broad a one, that in applying the suggestions that I shall make, others may be interested. As an example of stocking water with fish food not native to it, I may cite a lake in the State of New York, which is thirty-six miles long and from one to two and one-half miles wide, that was planted with 18,000 crayfish in 1878. The plant was made in two or three streams at one end of the lake, and for several years past the crayfish have been found in abundance, from one end to the other of the thirty-six miles of water. A form of fish food that I have been and am specially interested in is the fresh-water shrimp, Grammarus fasciatus of Say, or perhaps more frequently called Grammarus pulex. We have three species of Grammarus in our ponds, brooks and rivers, and Prof. S. I. Smith says of them: They probably breed throughout the Spring and Summer, as females taken at various times from March to August are found carrying eggs or young in various stages of development." He infers that, as species allied to the fasciatus develop rapidly, they breed several times each season. When trout are found to have dark-red flesh with cream-like curds between the flash flakes, it is a sure sign that the waters they inhabit produce crustacean food in abundance.

I have transplanted shrimp in trout streams with the best results, but never have tried them in ponds. Caledonia Spring Creek, on which one of the hatching stations of the New York Fish Commission is situated, is famous the country over for its well-conditioned trout, and its abundance of fish food. The Castalia stream in Ohio is similar in character to the Caledonia Creek, and the fish food in many respects is identical because of transplanting mosses and water weeds with accompanying insect and crustacean forms of life from the latter to the former. Prof. J. A. Lintner examined a can of mosses and aquatic plants sent to him from Caledonia Creek after "his attention had been called to the remarkable abundance of trout in the stream, abounding, it was believed, as in no other natural locality in the United States."

When the can was opened the mosses and plants swarmed with insect larvæ and crustaceans to such an extent that he could not believe that it was a fair representation of the fauna of the creek, and wrote to know if other animal life than that which naturally accompanied the plants had not been placed in the can, but none had been introduced except those contained in the plant when gathered. Shrimp were so numerous in the moss that one could not raise a handful of it without the very large number of these creatures present. The water from the can was poured into an aquarium and at once "numerous examples of the minute crustacean cyclops were observed, resting against its glass sides or darting swiftly through the water, the females bearing on each side of them the ovoid sac of eggs which forms so conspicuous a feature of their appearance."

Prof. Peck, the State Botanist, who examined the aquatic plants from Caledonia, said: "There is among the mosses one of special intertst, both because of its rare occurrence and because of the noticeable coincidence between its abundant growth there and the abundance of animal life that accompanies it. * * * It is known to botanists by the name Hypnum noteraphilum, or moisture-loving moss. Franklin and Lancaster counties, Pennsylvania, are its previously reported localities, where it is said to grow in limestone springs. It was discovered in the Caledonia Creek several years ago * * * but up to the present time this remains its only known locality in our State." Prof. Peck advises that in transplanting this moss, limestone waters should be selected, although one of the mosses associated with it at Caledonia occurs in waters free from lime. Prof. Lintner says that the small crustaceæ of the family Gammaridæ undergo no metamorphoses after their escape from the egg, and therefore give promise of no difficulty in their propagation, and he thinks that in time every order for 5,000 brook trout will be accompanied with an order for 100,000 shrimps. The food of the shrimps is in doubt, "but they are believed to be principally vegetable feeders, although eating animal matter in a decayed state when convenient to them." Again quoting from Prof. Lintner: "The ordinary laws of nature give us a prodigality of insect life almost infinitely in excess of fish fecundity. A fish deposits her spawn but once during the year, but in the aphis or plant louse in one year there may be twenty generations. Latrelle says that a female aphis produces about twenty-five young each day, and Reaumur proved by experiment that a single aphis might be the progenitor of nearly six billion descendants during her life. The crustaceans are also remarkably prolific, * * * the proposition to propagate crustaceans and insects for fish culture must be regarded as intimately connected with that of transplantation—perhaps as a corallary of it.

Mr. Thomas Andrews, of Guildford, England, a noted pisciculturist whose reputation as a successful fish propagator is broader than his native land, in writing me of some large fish in one of his ponds, said that they were grown in ponds containing an extraordinary amount of natural food, which he made a point of cultivating. I asked him to tell me what this food consisted of and his manner of rearing it, and he writes as follows:

"Westgate House, Guildford, England, May 7, 1892.—I make a great point of natural food for my trout, and devote several boxes of 10 or 12ft. long, 6ft. wide and 1ft deep to that purpose, besides numerous small ponds and side streams. In order to appreciate the value of the principal, and I consider the best, food for young trout, viz., Gammarus pulex, one must observe them at this season of the year, and they will be found in pairs. If a pair is captured, the male insect detaches itself from the female, and she will look large on the abdomen and of an orange color. If she is placed in the palm of the hand and slightly pressed with a camel's hair pencil, the young will be squeezed from her. 'This is my food for young fry.' The young shrimp is just the size for a hungry trout seven weeks old, and I have often brought the Gammarus up from my ponds to the hatchery and fed them there. There are, of course, other insects which are very suitable for the young fish, and I cultivate the 'alder fly,' whose eggs are to be found on the rushes and grass hanging over the streams or ponds in May and June in England. I collect these eggs and hatch them out, turning the larvæ into the water. I need hardly tell you that they are almost miscroscopic, and just the thing for the young fish. Then there is the 'grannom fly,' which I cultivate by bringing home the eggs which are found in bunches, attached to rushes, bits of stick, grass and woodwork in the rivers. To-day I had a can of grannom eggs sent up, and I should think there is a bushel basket full of these. They will be sent down to my ponds on Monday and placed just as they are in among weeds and rushes and will hatch in due time. The May-fly we can and do introduce in the same way, but until last season they were put into a pond where there were about 15,000 yearlings, and they stood but little chance to increase. Last season the eggs of the May-fly had a place devoted to them, where there were no fish, and we have found quantities of larvæ already. We also cultivate the Limnæa—snails—and the young of these make capital food for my fish of all ages. We feed the snails and shrimps on liver or horseflesh, and where my man washes his meat sieve the snails have collected in heaps and devour all that is washed off the sieves. My experience has taught me that one yearling fish is worth a hundred or a thousand fry for stocking purposes, yet I do not deny that a great many fish can be saved in the fry stage by artificial feeding. I get fewer fish perhaps (by feeding natural food), but I get monsters of 6, 7, 8 and 9 in. in a year, and my yearlings fetch three times the price of some other pisciculturists. Public opinion also in England is in favor of yearling or two-year-old fish for stocking purposes, and the results are more satisfactory by far. We cannot get anything like enough yearlings or two-year-olds to supply the demand, and most people over here have given up stocking with fry. There is, of course, a sale for fry in England, as proper rearing ponds have in many cases been made, but the general opinion is in favor of yearlings."

Mr. Andrew's letter shows the way to vast possibilities, not only in the line of rearing trout fish in ponds on natural food, but in supplying mature fish in wild waters with a generous addition to their larder by transplanting eggs, larvæ or imagos of various insects. It is a most fascinating subject, but the pages already written warn me that I must be brief. The alder fly and grannom-fly, referred to by Mr. Andrews, belong to the dun tribe, the former being the alder, orl or light dun, and the latter the greentail or shell-fly of the fly-fisherman. The duns belong to the family Phrygawidoe and are called caddis-flies, and the larvæ are called caddis worms, and are sometimes confused with the May-fly, which they should not be. The dun or caddis-flies are so common that a description of any one of the score or more species is unnecessary. The larvæ or creeper cases are hollow cyniders, smooth inside, composed of straw, grass roots, small stones and shells, and closed at one end. They are excellent trout food; every trout fisherman is familiar with them, and they are easily collected for transplanting. D. Barfuth, of the University of Bonn (Report U. S. Fish Commission 1873 and '74 and 1874 and '75, p. 735), examined a number of the common trout of Europe (and found these to contain the creeper cases of fario Phrybanidoe as follows: In one, 136 cases; in another, 585; in another, 116; in another, 186; in another, 115. Of six trout examined, the cases were found in all the stomachs, and also in the entrails; in one, the intestinal canal, as far as the anus, was completely stuffed with the other.

A book written by a lady for fly-fishermen, with the title, "Favorite Flies," soon to be issued from the press of Houghton, Miffin & Co., Boston, will contain six plates of natural insects, including the different stages, of the May, caddis, stone and other flies.

Last year I experimented with the May-fly, Ephemera, to discover if it could be transplanted to waters where it was unknown, and found that it would bear safely a journey of twenty-four hours at least. This fly is called the dog fly, and one of the species—there are more than two dozen—is called shad-fly, and they are the "drakes" of the fly-fishermen, the "green drake" being the largest and best known. Of the abundance of the May-fly, it is said (Westwood's Introduction to the Classification of Insects), that in some pools of Europe it is customary to collect their dead bodies and use them for manure. The distinguished naturalist Reaumur gives this account (Introduction to Entomology: Kirby and Spruce: "The myriads of Ephemeræ which filled the air over the current of the river, and over the bank on which I stood, are neither to be expressed nor conceived. When the snow falls with the largest flakes, and with the least interval between them, the air is not so full of them as that which surrounded us with Ephemecæ. Scarcely had I remained in one place a few minutes when the step on which I stood was quite concealed with a layer of them from two to four inches in depth." This was near the River Marne, in France.

I know personally of but few places where the flight of May-fly is in clouds, but in one place in New York it closely approaches, if it did not equal, that related by Reaumur. In a flight of May-fly there will be discovered green, gray, and purplish-black drakes. At first all are green, the female changing to gray and the male to purplish-black. Before my experiments with the May-fly on drakes, had extended beyond confining them to see how long thew would live, the Fishing Gazette, London, printed an article, written by Major W. G. Turle, in which he described a completely successful experiment in transplanting and establishing the May-fly in waters where it was previously unknown. I gathered my flies in a bait bucket and a tin biscuit box, but Major Turle improved upon that by using band-boxes with lines of worsted from side to side for perches. The flies were caught by picking them from the bushes and placing them in the boxes, and the boxes were taken by railroad train to the waters which it was desired to stock, and there the flies were released on the bank. Major Turle was of the opinion that it required two years for the eggs to mature, but, as will be seen of Mr. Andrews' letter it requires but a year.

The Deep Water Kings.

Dr. Anderson gave the name of Blyth's Finner (Balænoptera blythii) to a whale represented by a few joints of the backbone, which are preserved in the Indian Museum, and were considered to have been obtained from the shores of the Bay of Bengal. These bones indicate a whale of about sixty feet in length, but as Mr. Blanford considers that their Indian, or even their Asiatic, origin is open to great doubt, they will not further be mentioned on this occasion.

A still wider field for observation relates to the presumed occurrence of a totally different kind of whale in the Indian seas. This is the Humpbacked Whale (Megaptera boope) which is known to be very widly distributed, and is in probability represented in the Indian region, although it is just possible that it may prove that the representative of this whale known to occur in the Persian Gulf, and which doubtless ranges into the Indian Ocean, may be specifically distinct from the Atlantic form. This is, however, a matter of minor moment. The Humpback, even when in water, may be at once distinguished from the Finners, by the convexity of the back (from which it takes its name), this convexity being so great as to make the highest point of the back considerably above the level of the summit of the small and blunt backfin. Moreover, the whole animal is much deeper and relatively shorter than is the case with the winners; while it is further distinguished by the much greater length of the flippers, which are as much as one-fourth the total length of the creature, whereas in the Finners they are only from one-eleventh to one-seventh of the same. In order that these two latter features should be observed it is, of course, necessary that the whale should raise the fin part of its body out of the water, or should be cast ashore. Although we have no absolutely decisive evidence that the Humpback has ever been seen in Indian waters, yet there are two instances where this has probably been the case. Thus Mr. Blanford relates how he once saw a large whale off the mouth of the Indus, which, when it raised itself out of the water, appeared much stouter than a Finner, and was, therefore, in all probability a Humpback.

The second case relates to a whale, which Captain A. Stifle, of the Royal Indian Marine, found entangled in a telegraph cable off the coast of Baluchistan. Captain Stiffe, writing to Mr. Sterndale, says, that on the occasion referred to, which was in July 1873, "the telegraph cable was broken and a dead whale hove up to the surface, with three turns of cable round the neck of his tail, by which he was drowned." Nothing was then determined as to the kind of whale thus curiously captured, but it appears that its tail was thickly covered with barnacles, and since this feature is very characteristic of Humpbacks, it is probable, as Mr. Blanford points out, that the individual in question was of that kind. Both these presumed occurrences of the Humpback were, it will be noticed, in the Indian Ocean, and we have no sort of record of the appearances of the species in the Bay of Bengal. Since, however, a Humpback had been observed at Java, there is no reasonable doubt but that it must also occur in the latter sea, and we hope that ere long this may be indicated by direct observation. Humpbacks, we may mention, usually attain a length of from about 50 to 60 feet.

The gigantic Sperm-whale or Cachalot (Physeter macrocephalus) which attains dimensions a few feet longer than those last mentioned, is the largest representative of a distinct group of whales, characterized by the absence of the so-called whalebone, and by the presence of teeth in the lower jaw. In the water the Cachalot may always be recognized by the great depth of its enormous head of which a considerable portion is carried above the surface of the sea where the animal is swimming. At the present day this whale appears to be a rare visitor to the seas around India, the only recorded instance known to Mr. Blanford of an example being stranded having occurred in January, 1890, at Madras. This specimen, which was only some 25 feet in length, and was therefore probably a female, was noticed by Mr. Thurston, Superintendent of the Central Museum at Madras. It is stated that the Cachalot was formerly common in the Bay of Bengal and off Ceylon, where it was an object of pursuit by whalers.

The last of the whales definitely known to occur in the Indian seas is the smaller sperm-whale (Cogia breviceps), which does not seem to exceed ten or eleven feet, and may be at once distinguished from the Cachalot by its small and rather pointed head and its very large sickle-shaped back-fin. The great size of this fin will also serve to distinguish this whale from small Finners and Humpbacks; and, indeed, when in the water, it is much more likely to be taken for a porpoise. A stranded specimen would, however, be at once distinguished from the Killers and Porpoises by the absence of teeth in the upper jaw. This small whale appears to be widely distributed and is probably not uncommon in the Indian seas, although only one specimen is recorded as having been caught in India. This was captured at Vizagapatam during or about 1866, and was considered to be a new species, and accordingly named Euphysetes simus. Although a drawing of this example was made and published by Sir Walter Elliot, yet it is by no means certain that this is correct in every detail; and if any of our readers should have the good fortune to see a stranded specimen, they should bear in mind that trustworthy observations on its form and color would be very valuable. Moreover, as nothing whatever is known of the habits of this species, any observations on this point would likewise be most acceptable to zoologists.

THAD. STEVENS' GREATEST VICTORY.

The Memorable Four-Mile Heat Race at the Old Ocean House Track Between Thad. Stevens, Joe Daniels, True Blue and Mamie Hall.

FOLLOWING is a telegraphic report of the great four-mile heat race which took place at "the old Ocean House track" on the 15th of November, 1873. Probably there was never a more exciting contest or as much money wagered on any event in this country as on the one described below. Thad. Stevens was a Californian, True Blue and Joe Daniels Kentucky-bred. It is believed that a better horse than the former for a racing event of this description never lived, and as there are thousands residing in California who saw the struggle between the giants of the Far West and South over eighteen years ago and would like to see it again, even through the spectacles of a racing reporter, we reprint the story that clicked over the wires and brought so much woe to Kentucky hearts:

Never since the first introduction of horse-racing into this State have its residents been so excited over a race as they have been to-day over the great four-mile heat race. Nor can one wonder at the interest taken in it, for was not a California bred horse to contend against two of the very best horses from the East? One the son of the grandest four-mile horse that ever looked through a bridle (Lexington), and the other a son of imp. Australian, in whom was combined the best blood of the English turf. Added to the natural interest thereby engendered, the day was one of the most delightful of the season, and one peculiarly Californian. A mellow haze enveloped the surrounding hills, while a gentle breeze from off the Pacific toned the atmosphere to a refreshing temperature, added to which the music of the surf as it rolled in, nearly touching the western extremity of the track, made the scene one of almost inexpressible grandeur. By twelve o'clock the grand rush had fairly set in, and a dense column of horse, foot, and carriages streamed steadily over the hill and down the avenue leading to Ocean Park. Every available means of conveyance appeared to have been brought into service—from a four-in-hand drag to a rickety cart of the vegetable peddler. Thousands of persons came by the trains of the San Jose Railroad and walked the intervening distance of a mile. Within the park the scene was fairly suggestive of the English Derby day. Hundreds of aristocratic establishments were crowded together, occupied by gay votaries of fashion, who discussed the probability of the approaching race with animation and the contents of their hampers with equal earnestness. The hackmen are charging $40 a load from the city, customers finding their own conveyance back. The great speculator offered the managers of the race $5,000 for the receipts of the gate, independent of the receipts of the stands and extras. The offer was refused. True Blue, Thad Stevens, Joe Daniels and Mamie Hall were moderately exercised this morning, and appeared to be in excellent condition. The friends and supporters of True Blue remarked from time to time that the horse was a little stiff about the knees and lacked the desired amount of lustre in his eyes—a statement that was invariably received with significant winks, nods, etc., by the keen adepts in matters pertaining to the turf. The true state of affairs was shrouded with a suspicious mystery that the race alone could explain to the uninitiated. The gossip of the stables failed to contain any point of interest other than the report that the owner of True Blue depended upon distancing Thad Stevens in the first heat, and failing in this he had serious doubts of winning the contest.

At 1 P. M. the grounds presented a dazzling scene of animation. The proportions of the ground had swollen with marvelous rapidity, and there was at least 10,000 people on the course. The main road leading thereto was hidden for a mile by a cloud of dust, and a continuous procession of buggies poured steadily down the hill to the east. The pool-selling was commenced at noon, and opened briskly at large figures in the two hours that intervened before the horses were called. A heavy sum was deposited in the banks for cashing pools, the sum of which was between $40,000 and $50,000. Thad. Stevens was the favorite by greatly increased odds. A report industriously circulated that True Blue had exhibited symptoms of stiffness may have had some influence, but the confidence in the California favorite was still very strong. The ratio in pools between Thad. Stevens and True Blue at that hour (1 P. M.) was nearly three to one. The following shows the average pools an hour before calling the horses:

Thad. Stevens	$260	$275	$325	$300	$325
True Blue	165	152	165	165	155
Joe Daniels	105	100	90	80	75
Mamie Hall	10	9	8	5	5

A strong detachment of police under command of Captain Douglass maintained order in the vast assemblage, a portion of the men being mounted. In addition to the great crowd in the park, hundreds of gratuitous spectators took positions on the neighboring hills, where a view of the course could be obtained. At fifty-five minutes past 1 P. M. the alarm of fire was sounded by a series of yells proceeding from the grand stand adjoining the eastern end of the refreshment saloon near the course, and soon the smoke rolled up in dense volumes. A scene of intense excitement ensued, the crowd shouted lustily, the shrill whistles of the police increased the nervousness of susceptible persons, and for a few moments a terrible catastrophe was imminent. A few cool men, however, wrested the burning planks from the building and stamped on the fire, and the event soon passed from the mind as scarcely worthy of notice on an occasion so prolific of interest. The fire originated in the cook-house of the saloon. The damage was trifling. At half past 1 P. M. at a moderate estimate there was upwards of 12,000 people in the park and immediate vicinity, and the enormous seating accommodations were almost entirely occupied at an extra charge, while thousands occupied the vehicles in the field.

First Heat.—Promptly at the call Thad Stevens, Joe Daniels, True Blue and Mamie Hall went to the post. At the signal Mamie Hall jumped off with the lead and held on for the first mile, with Thad Stevens running second, True Blue third, and Joe Daniels fourth. In the second mile True Blue took the lead and held it to the fourth mile, when Joe Daniels, who had been trailing, made play for the lead, and after a fine brush with True Blue, took it, winning the heat by two lengths in 7:45, True Blue second, Thad Stevens third, and Mamie Hall last. The unexpected turn of the first heat produced an excitement that could only find vent at the pools, and consequently the sales sprang to a high figure. Pending the disposition of the second heat, the friends of Thad Stevens rallied promptly to his support and freely backed their opinion of his speed and endurance with coin, the impression prevailing that the rider of Thad held him in during the entire heat and simply strove not to be distanced. The horse was in fine condition when he left the track, and was applauded as vigorously as though the winner of the race. In one of the first pools sold Thad Stevens was taken as first choice for $2,100, Joe Daniels bringing $1,500, True Blue $800, Mamie Hall having been withdrawn, she being badly blown. The pools continued large, and heavy sums of money found its way into the box, they averaging from $1,500 to $3,000.

Second Heat.—The horses were called for the second heat at quarter to four, and the preliminary rubbing down and saddling having been accomplished, at five minutes to four another excellent start was made, the three horses passing the score even. Before reaching the half-mile Thad had pulled out ahead three lengths, True Blue following, and at the end of the first mile Thad crossed the score three lengths ahead, True Blue second, and Daniels lagging five lengths. On the second mile the relative positions of the horses were about the same. Thad gaining a few yards, if anything. On the third mile all of the horses crossed the score in close company, Thad a neck ahead of True Blue, with Daniels lapping on the flank. On the fourth mile Thad and True Blue began a neck-and-neck struggle, with Joe Daniels close up. In the last half True Blue shoved ahead and opened a gap of five lengths, which he held in crossing the score, Thad Stevens being seven lengths behind Joe Daniels. Time, 8:08.

Pool-selling was again resumed, and a number of heavy pools sold, in all of which True Blue was the choice, with the second choice alternating between Thad Stevens and Joe Daniels, True Blue selling at about four to three for the others.

Third Heat.—The horses were called for the third-heat at about half-past 4, and got off in good style at twenty-five minutes to 5. Thad took the lead again and pulled out handsomely a couple of lengths before reaching the first-quarter, with True Blue second. Thad held his own through the first mile and crossed the score two lengths ahead, True Blue and Daniels runnning neck-and-neck. The second mile was a close run between the three. They crossed the score in almost precisely the same order as in the first mile. The third mile was a repetition of the first and second. They crossed the score as follows: Thad Stevens leading, Joe Daniels lapping him, and True Blue a close third. At the first-quarter of the fourth mile True Blue quit and fell behind, and was speedily los tin the distance. Thad Stevens pulled out at his best, and parting company with Daniels, crossing the score nearly ten lengths ahead in 7:57, with True Blue distanced. The excitement was tremendous at this result. Deafening cheers ascended, and the air was filled with flying hats, as the race was now between Thad Stevens and Joe Daniels, and consequently looked upon as a sure thing for the California horse. But amid the joy intelligence was received from up the track that True Blue had broken his leg and was a ruined horse. He was lying disabled on the track, about midway between the first-quarter and the half-mile pole. The noble animal was removed from the track and the course cleared for the final heat, with Thad Stevens the favorite at 100 to 20 over Joe Daniels.

Fourth Heat.—It was almost dark when the horses got the word for the fourth and deciding heat. They made a capital start, Thad Stevens at once taking the lead, and as they disappeared in the gloom the old horse was leading by fully five lengths, an advantage he held all through the heat, Joe never once being able to overtake him, the result being that Thad won the heat and race in 7:46, which is remarkable time, considering the distance he had run.

The best of order prevailed and the city is jubilant over California's triumph. It is not unlikely that Thad Stevens will be sent East during the coming season to contend with the "cracks" of Kentucky and New York in their own strongholds. Mr. Chamberlain, the owner of True Blue, says he believes the horse permanently disabled as a racer by the accident. Various conjectures have been made as to the manner in which the accident occured, but no one knows certainly. It is generally believed the horse must have got his foot into a hole made by a gopher. True Blue was at his stable next day, very stiff and lame.

The winner, Thad Stevens, who has so suddenly become historical as the best four-mile-heat horse in America, was bred in California in the year 1865, consequently he is now eight years old. He is by Langford, out of Mary Chilton, she by imported Gleucoe, out of an American Eclipse mare; grandam Queen Mary by Bertrand. Consequently, he is, on his dam's side of the same family as Longfellow, Lyttleton, Extra, Fadladeen, Allie Hunt, Woodpecker, etc. He is described as a chestnut sorrel with one white hind foot, and stands about fifteen two or three high. As a runner he first appeared on the California turf in 1870, with but little success. In 1871 he won several races of one-mile and two-mile heats. In 1872 he began on New Year's day by being beaten in a race of mile heats three in five, by Pillbox, after winning the first heat in 1:54½, and making the fourth a dead heat in the same time, he running second in each of the others. On the 31st of January he turned the tables on Pillbox in a similar race, winning the third, fourth and fifth heats in 1:50½, 1:51½ and 1:49¾. On the 8th June, over the Oakland Track, (the others having been run over the Agricultural Park Track), he was beaten by Irene Harding in three straight heats, in 1:48¾, 1:48 and 1:47¾; but on the 22d he defeated her, winning the first, third and fourth heats in 1:51½, 1:47¾ and 1:49, Irene winning the second heat in 1:45¾. On September 24, over the Union Park Course, Sacramento, in a race of two-mile heats, he won the third and fourth heats in 3:41¼ and 3:45½, beating Nettie Brown, Irene Harding, Alice May and Modesto, Nettie Brown winning the first heat in 3:40½. At one time it was contemplated to enter him for the $20,000 purse race to have taken place at New Orleans, La., last spring: but the Louisiana Jockey Club withdrawing the purse, all idea of sending him East was given up. He has run several good races this year, but none better than his race of mile heats at Sacramento on the 5th of July, when he won the third, fourth and fifth heats in 1:43½, 1:46½ and 1:45, Thornhill winning the first two heats in 1:43 and 1:43, Nell Flaherty running second and third in all the heats. His last grand performance previous to the 15th was his race of four-mile heats on the 18th of October, when he beat Joe Daniels, Ballot Box, Irene Harding, Target and Kate Gift, Thad winning the second and third heats in 7:30 and 7:43, Joe Daniels winning the first heat in 7:42½, the time for the second being the best for a second heat on record.

Sired But One, That One a Flyer..

Seventy-one sires appear in the Great Table with but one performer to the credit of each, where that single performer is in the 2:20 list. Of these twenty-six are non-standard. The pedigree of six is practically unknown. Ten of them are pacers or by pacing sires. Two are of thoroughbred ancestry on the sire's side. The major portion carry the standard number. The number of heats in 2:30 or better each of these single performers have won follows the breeding of the dam, and it will be noted that few of them have less than twenty heats to their credit. The table is an interesting one in many ways:

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

MANETTE AFFIL DAM AND GRANDAM OF ARION.

When a question is raised regarding the pedigrees of great celebrities of the turf and track there follows an excitement which pervades that department of the horse world which is en rapport with the animal. However frivolous, however absurd, no matter if the bubble should explode by the merest puncture, it answers the purpose. There is an intensely combatative partisanship in horse affairs, a desire to pull down, a purpose to destroy, if for no other object than the pleasure there is in destruction. Then there are cunning contrivors who hope to advance their individual interests, so that one of these sordid scamps can safely calculate on the support he will obtain from the army of people who are prone to pay attention to his reiterated misstatements. Principally the tampering is taken up with the genealogies of trotters, though there have been a few instances where the big guns of the turf were attacked. The most notable instance in this country, where thoroughbreds were questioned, is that of Sir Archy when a groom or two were ready to swear that Gabriel and not Diomed was the true sire. But among trotters there are no lack of examples. Paddy was put boldly forward as the sire of Vermont Black Hawk, Flying Morgan as the sire of Ethan Allen, and there came the contention that Dexter was got by Harry Clay. But in all the histories of the attempts at discrediting a pedigree that I have read or heard discussed I cannot recall one where there was so much dependence put on the propensity alluded to as in the late attempt to invalidate the breeding of Manette and transfer her maternal relation to another.

Preposterously absurd, to say the least, the endeavor, and so utterly ridiculous that it is difficult to conceive what the author expected to do, under any other hypothesis than that he was governed by motives which are far from honorable, and misled by the idea that there was big money, and big notoriety for him attending the venture.

When I was requested by Mr. Ariel Lathrop to examine the pedigree of Manette the job was commenced under the impression that Knox had denied that he had sold Addie and her two fillies to Peter Coutts under the pedigrees presented by Palo Alto. There was little trouble in substantiating that much and affidavits were obtained from C. Van Buren, a former superintendent of Matadero Rancho, Mr. Coutts' farm, and F. W. Covey, assistant superintendent of Palo Alto, at the time the stock was transferred from Mr. Coutts to Gov. Stanford, a complete chain of evidence from the time of the delivery of the stock by Knox to Coutts and from Coutts to Stanford. Although the following letter from J. W. Knox to J. Malcolm Forbes will show that no such denial was made and that it had not been necessary to obtain them, there is a bearing which I will present hereafter.

"FASHION STUD FARM,
TRENTON, N. J., 3-22, 1892."

J. MALCOLM FORBES Esq:

DEAR SIR.—Your telegram received. Sunday is really the only day I can call my own, hope to visit city however can not if not convenient next Sunday to see me you can name a day that you will meet me in Boston as I want to talk the matter over with you as I have now at my own expense obtained all the evidence that proves to me that Arion is not bred as I have always believed up to Feby 26 when I was put in possession of facts ——— substantiated by affidavits unimpeachable that Manetta is NOT OUT OF Addie. You can wire me what time you desire to see me. Yours Respy J. W. KNOX."

This is an exact transcript of the letter sent by Knox presumably on the date given, excepting that where the blank is left between "facts" and "substantiated" the word is difficult to decipher, in all probability either and or now. On the first reading of the letter, it struck me that there was an evident intent to mystify. Further study gave me reasons to suspect that it might be a scheme to defraud by seeking to dispose of something to which there was no title, and, furthermore, that there might be personal aggrandizement sought apart from a direct receipt of money. To sustain the first view, I will call attention to the following testimoney. First, C. Van Buren's affidavit.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, }
COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA, } ss.

C. Van Buren being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

That on or about and during the year 1879, he was employed on the Matadero Ranch of Peter Coutts near Mayfield, in said County of Santa Clara, at the head of the stock department, and therefore in 1880 became and was continuously down to and including the year 1882, superintendent of said ranch. That on or about 1879, the said Peter Coutts bought from J. W. Knox, the broodmare "Addie" and her two fillies known as "Manon" then coming two years old, and "Manette" then coming one year old. That said fillies were then and thereby said J. W. Knox represented to said Peter Coutts as sired by "Nutwood," and brought to him as and represented and generally known to be the daughters of "Addie" by said "Nutwood." That thereafter in last, said two fillies were sold by said Coutts together with other stock, to said Stanford and are the "Manon" and "Manette" hereinabove referred to.

That the stock register with the name "Queen" written in pencil on page one thereof is the stock register in use at said ranch by Peter Coutts [illegible] the possession of said Stanford since the transfer of the Coutts stock to him in 1882, and that the entries on page seven thereof except the word "Addie," are a part of said register, that said stock register referred to herein as the "breeding register" was kept by one James Taylor, then employed on said Coutts Ranch and the entries therein are in his hand writing and were made by him in due and regular course.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this 7th day of April, 1892.
NICK BOWDEN, Notary Public. C. VAN BUREN.

From the above it will be learned that Manette was "coming a year old" when delivered to Mr. Coutts, the Stud Book mentioned in the affidavit gives the date of her birth August 7th so that she was a late colt, not a year old when sold by Mr. Knox. He owned the sire and dam of Manette when got, when she was foaled, and the first break in the ownership was the sale to Mr. Coutts. The affidavit of Mr. Van Buren establishes the youth of the filly when sold and is also proof of the genuineness of the Stud Book kept at Matadera and which is now in my possession. There is another point to be presented before analyzing the letter of March 22, 1892. Arion was purchased and paid for on Jan'y 12th as Mr. Lathrop's books show, just forty-three days including both dates, February 26th when according to that singular letter the writer was first aware that "Manetta is not out of Addie." Nearly thirteen years previous to that memorable February day he had sold Manette when coming one-year-old, and Manon when some thirteen months older, the family had gained distinction and the son of Manette had climbed to the very highest round in the ladder of trotting-horse fame without the least change in the belief. But a vast amount of money had changed from the buyer to the seller, more than had ever been paid for a horse before and with that change of ownership there might be a degree of nervousness when the universally-accepted pedigree, that sanctioned and given by the breeder of the dam, was threatened. A designing man might look at in it what he considered a legitimate light. That there was a whole lot of money to be gained if skillfully handled, and though I may be wrong in my conception of the duty of an honest man, the imperative obligation of an honorable man, in like circumstances, my first estimate on reading that letter has not been changed, but, subsequently, strengthened to a degree that it cannot be shaken, unless by testimony far different from any that has been advanced, or that has the least tinge of the same color.

According to my rating an honest man, provided he was guided by a fair quantum of common sense, would have stated plainly and without equivocation or concealment what he had learned. The proper person to communicate with would have been Mr. Coutts, to whom he sold the stock, but as he was dead, then Governor Stanford, who still owned Manette. Let us suppose, however, that as Mr. Forbes was the owner of the most distinguished member of the family, and nearer the point from which communications were made he was the party addressed, and my idea would be as follows:

TRENTON, N. J., February 27, 1892.

J. MALCOLM FORBES Esq: DEAR SIR.—In 1879 I sold Manette the dam of Arion, to Peter Coutts, of Mayfield, California, and gave her pedigree as it has been recorded. I had no information or thought that it could be otherwise until a short time ago when I was very much surprised mentally and otherwise I to learn that I was in error. In order to make amends as I offer at the reparation I may power I take the earliest opportunity to correct the wrong I have unwittingly done. When it was intimated to me that my version of the pedigree was wrong I took measures to make a thorough investigation, and yesterday February 26th I came in possession of the papers which I herewith enclose. Yours respectfully.

I will not so underrate the sense of any reader to offer further arguments on this point than a comparison of the letter actually sent and the one which would meet my views of honesty guided by fair capacity. It is needless to state what my impressions were from the information obtained before starting on an eastern trip Part of my business was to look into the affair further, and in pursuance of that place visited Dubuque, Iowa, to see the Nutwood Stud Book, which Knox sent to Mr. McFerran, after he sold the horse and which the Messrs. Stout had in possession. That did not add to my information. In Chicago, however, I learned some things which not only confirmed my faith in the conclusion reached, but also opened a new chapter in the history. In the last number of Cook's Horse Review there is an intimation that the information given was "semi-confidential" but I certainly did not so regard it and in writing to Mr. Forbes stated what I had learned. Mr. Babcock and Mr. Bauer communicated the intelligence to me, and Mr. Clark gave Mr. Lathrop the same information, and if the New Yorh agent of the Review did not report Mr. Knox right, he is the one to blame. It was simply this that Knox had offered to sell his evidence for $125.00, and if anything more were needed to confirm my belief in the motives which governed that was enough. Furthermore, I was informed that a brother-in-law of Mr. Knox, a Mr. Allen, I think, was in the office of the Review and was solicited to tell what he knew. He replied that he regarded the information as Mr. Knox's private property, and would not disclose the evidence. Still further, in the office of the American Trotting Register I saw an affidavit which lessened my opinion of them being "indisputable," as by some queer manipulation everything was in proper form, the signature of the maker, notarial seal, nothing lacking save the jurat, subscribed but not sworn to before the notary who affixed the stamp of office. There was a counter-affidavit in that case and that made by a person who was in a position to know beyond any cavil that the first was false. One would be certainly justified in throwing aside affidavits which emanated from the same source as that which lacked the jurat, and one which had no better foundation than a supposed mistake in the name of a mare which had not been corrected for more than twelve years, would be rather too weak for service. So far the only direct information was that "Manette was not out of Addie," and that not supported by even a hint of the real dam. "At my own expense," is also suggestive as it is "indisputable" that Knox should pay for rectifying his own errors. Taking that letter as sufficient data to throw doubts on a pedigree which had not been questioned for thirteen years, and when there were strong temptations to misrepresent, would display such a lack of judgment in the investigator that he might be ranked in the "sucker class" without his eligibility being called in question.

Afterward there were vague hints that Knox had been imposed upon by the man who had the mares in charge, and, guileless as a dove, Knox was ready to take advantage of that imposition for a consideration implied in his letter. Then it was furthermore hinted that Emblem was the real dam, and with that there came the conviction that there might be another motive, a double or triple motive. Every sane person is governed by motives, and the foundation of research into the causes which prompt certain actions is to look for the underlying motive. Had the motive been good, it is hardly reasonable that such a letter as Knox wrote to Mr. Forbes on the 22nd of last Feburary, and that after the lapse of twenty-five days after the receipt of the proof, would have been written. But in the first place some people would be gratified by the notoriety acquired by figuring in a sensational affair. In the second there are men who would seek pecuniary gain, and imagine there were big sums in view when the pedigree of a horse of the value of Arion was assailed.

Transferring the glory to another family might be an allurement, and, could Emblem be substituted for Addie, Tattler would take the renown of what heretofore had been credited to Hambletonian Chief.

Mr. Knox uses the Fashion Stud Farm letter-head, and he is said to be in the employ of the manager of that farm. That was the home of Tattler from the time of his sale by Mr. Alexander until his death, and it is a reasonable inference that there are many of his descendants domiciled there. It is a laudable ambition to subserve an employer's interest when that service does not interfere with the rights of others, and it may be claimed that Mr. Knox is giving a better genealogy to the phenomenal youngster by transferring the sire of his granddam from an inferior to one which has a high place in the Great Table. Some people might justify it on that ground.

Three mares were purchased by Mr. Coutts from Knox—Fidelia, by Volunteer; Emblem, by Tattler; Addie, by Hambletonian Chief. Fidelia and Addie were bays, Emblem a brown. Mr. Knox brought other mares from the East, and it appears a little singular that the bay and brown should be transposed in place of two of the bays. But shadowy as the letter from Mr. Knox to Mr. Forbes is, the reported change of names is still darker, too puerile for consideration.

There is testimony, however, that will come legitimately into this discussion—if overthrowing such a weak fabric can be called discussion—that being communications which have appeared over Mr. Knox's name. The first is cut from the Kentucky Stock Farm of late date.

J. W. KNOX ON MANETTE'S BREEDING.

The following letter was published in Clark's Horse Review last fall It does not seem to be very consistent with the story that Manette was foaled in Wisconsin.

EDITOR HORSE REVIEW: Your remarks in a late number have led me to pen a few notes, as it is a great source of pride to me, after combatting the many prejudices against old Nutwood, that I see my prediction made twenty years ago when I brought him away from California, about to be in the near future fulfilled—that he or his descendants would produce speed equal to Maud S.'s 2:08¾.

Addie I purchased at Goshen, Orange county, N. Y., after seeing her win a hard race in the mud, getting a record of 2:39, paying to I. A. McNally, of Newburg, N. Y., $500 for her. She could trot in 2:30. Manon, 2:21, was sold at Pittsburg, Pa., and taken with my other stock to California, where I sold Addie to Peter Coutts, of Mayfield, [illegible] purchased the produce being Manette, dam of Arion, 2:10¼. I also sold Manon, 2:21. He afterward bred Addie two seasons to Nutwood, [illegible] the produce being Maple, dam of Hattie D., 2:26¾, and Woodnut, 2:16¾. On Coutts selling his farm to Governor Stanford the family of Addie passed into his hands. Palo Alto never bred a mare [illegible] I had turned Covey, the superintendent, to do so [illegible] In fact, no prominent breeder of California used Nutwood, except Shippee, of Stockton. To get the Chieftain mare Daisy to the cover of Nutwood, I agreed to charge a fee payable when the [illegible] The produce was Mt. Vernon, 2:18.

TRENTON, N. J., November 26, 1891. J. W. KNOX.

Inasmuch as C. Van Buren has sworn that Manette was purchased of Knox "when coming a year old," and the following letter from James Taylor, who negotiated the purchase, it will be safer to accept Knox's recollections of one year than when twelve years have elapsed—Arion had not been sold when that letter was written.

ROCHESTER DRIVING PARK, May 16, 1892.

J. MALCOLM FORBES Boston, Mass. DEAR SIR:—I have seen an article in the [illegible] that Arion was not out of Addie. I was superintendent of Mr. Coutts' farm for six years, and purchased all the stock; purchased from Mr. Knox three brood mares and two fillies. They were all raised from the last together. Fidelia, by Volunteer; Emblem, by Tattler, Addie by Hambletonian Chief, two fillies by Nutwood, dam Addie.

Paid $500 for the oldest one, that was Manon, and traded Mr. Knox a cow for the youngest one that was Manette, the dam of Arion.

Mr. Knox informed me at [illegible] the foaling of these mares and their produce, and always claimed Manette was Addie's colt, and gives the bill of sale that way.

Manette looked like her dam, Addie. I broke Manette when coming three years old; she had a good way of going. I liked her action better than Manon's forward action. Yours very truly,

JAMES TAYLOR.

And now for the climax. In the Horseman of May 26th the following was published:

We have received the following communication from J. W. Knox:

EDITOR HORSEMAN:—In reply to your editorial of May 19th, I wish it distinctly understood that it was through no fault of mine that the [illegible] in my possession, regarding Arion's breeding has not been made public, and no reflection should be cast on me by any turf journals, as I have done all any honorable man could do, as shortly after obtaining the affidavits I offered to meet Mr. Forbes in New York City to consult with him on the matter. On his indifference to meet me there, in substance offered to go to Boston. I herewith give you his answer, which will be noted by breeders how much he values the breeding of his horse:

BOSTON, Mass., March 23, 1892.—J. W. KNOX:—Dear Sir: I have your favor of March 22d. The pedigree on the dam's side of my horse is of very little interest to me, since he has shown the speed that he has. I am planning to go away early next week, and may be gone three weeks. J. MALCOLM FORBES.

On receipt of his reply to my letter I wrote to Governor Stanford, giving him the facts in my possession, together with the true breeding of Arion, [illegible] regard to its publication, which I was [illegible] to do, and up to this date I have failed to get a reply to my letter.

It is now, from these facts, that I have decided not to make my information public for the present. J. W. KNOX.

TRENTON, N. J., May 23, 1892.

Does this letter satisfy Mr. Knox? Can he justify the withholding of information of so great public interest? What construction will the public put on it?

He obtained the affidavits February 26th, wrote to Mr. Forbes on March 22d. On May 23d he writes: "I have decided not to make any information public for the present." If there was a link wanting to make good the testimony in regard to the motives which prompted the attack on the pedigree of Manette, this sentence would supply the lack: "I herewith give you his answer, which will be noted by breeders how much he values the breeding of his horse." The chagrin could not be hidden, the schemer was at fault, all went agley. The claim that on receipt of Mr. Forbes' letter, he "wrote to Governor Stanford, giving him the facts in my possession, together with the true breeding of Arion, etc." I have as little faith in this as in the transposition of names, or any other portion of this thirteen-year-old tale. I met and had a long conversation with Gov. Stanford on April 7th, discussing the question from every point then reached and he certainly would have acquainted me with the contents of such a letter as Knox describes. Mr. Lathrop had no knowledge of a letter from Knox, and it is beyond the bounds of reasonable belief that Gov. Stanford was given the facts in possession of Knox, when the said Knox was guarding them so particularly that he was not yet ready when he wrote The Horseman to "make them public." At all events there is a sample of his correspondence in the letter quoted, and it would be singular, indeed, if he communicated to Governor Stanford what he took so much pains to hide from Mr. Forbes. Anyone who will read that letter carefully will scarcely believe that he changed his tactics so completely. That letter of March 22nd, came duly to hand, the one claimed to have been sent Governor Stanford did not, or, at least, it is the western hemisphere to a grain of sand that one containing such momentous information was a vain imagining, the base fabric of a vision.

There is one point more. Addie had four foals by Nutwood, three fillies all bays, her last a colt, a chestnut. The fillies bore a strong resemblance to each other, the colt more like his sire. Manette was foaled the 7th of August, 1878. September 4th of that year Nutwood trotted on the Bay District Course at San Francisco, and until sold by Knox remained in California.

The Metadora Stud Book—Mr. Coutts'—has it that Emblem was bred to Nutwood on April 22nd, 1879, and Fidelia, on the same date. Addie was also recorded as bred to Nutwood in 1879, but no other date given. That would necessitate the mares being brought to California before the 22nd of April when Manette could not have been more than eight months old, in all probability something younger.

If even by some hocus-pocus the man who had the mares in charge when they foaled got the names of Addie and Emblem transposed, and the transposition of the foals as well, it is another of the mysteries which cannot be unravelled that Knox did not make the discovery when one of the foals, at least, was only a few months old, the dams a bay and a brown, the foals a bay filly and a chestnut colt. Still more mysterious that on the 26th of February 1892, Addie was found to be Emblem and Emblem Addie. The long lost heir with the peculiar birthmark is nowhere. What queer correlation of circumstances induced the search for a grandam other than the dame which had worn the honor for thirteen years?

Mr. Knox in his own "hand-write" affirms, "I have now at my own expense obtained all the evidence that proves to me that Arion is not bred as I always believed up to Feb. 26th." When was the case picked up? What induced the expenditure individually encountered? People as a rule are not likely to incur an outlay without some tangible reason for making the investment. Until last November Mr. Knox had no doubts in regard to Addie being the dam of Manette and although he made a blunder in locating the birth of the foal, from the first letter to the Horse Review it must have been on a subsequent date when he commenced to prospect. Perhaps in straightening out the tangle in his brain in regard to the birthplace of Manette he had a vision; a dream which suggested that there was a rich lode in the vicinity of that birthplace, and dreams have a potent influence with some people. Not a speck of mineral in the old claim, not even a trace of color in the spoon. "Manette is not out of Addie" and if not she must be provided with a mother, and it had cost money to find out that much, and to furnish another would be still more expensive. The Prince must be provided with the right sort of a grandam no matter at what cost. So sung the dream siren, and there were pleasing hopes when the matter was given full consideration. Alas! Mr. Forbes did not put so high a valuation on remote family quarterings as he did on form, performances and the two high connections represented by sire and grandsire, and the rich mineral—such a store of it in sight too—became a heap of rubbish. Not entirely.

We regret exceedingly that any necessity should have arisen which made it incumbent upon friend Simpson to embody in his recent letter to Mr. Forbes, anent the breeding of Arion's dam, the desultory and semi-confidential conversation which took place in this office, particularly as his understanding of the matter led him to throw a degree of positiveness into the statement which the showing of all the facts and circumstances would hardly warrant, and which as it appears in print, is susceptible of misconstruction. The gentleman was informed that we could probably get the affidavits and statements bearing upon the matter, which statement was based upon a letter from the Eastern agent of the Review, in which he gave it as his opinion that as near as he could ascertain, the expenses incurred in the matter by Mr. Knox would amount to about $125, and that he, the agent, thought if Mr. Knox gave the matter exclusively to one paper, he should be reimbursed for actual expenses. We are pleased to announce to our readers that Mr. Knox has expressed his determination to make public through the columns of the Review the original affidavits, letters and other data pertaining to the matter in question, and upon which he bases his claims to having in his possession newly-discovered evidence bearing upon the breeding of the dam of Arion, the full text of which will be given our readers in the near future. Mr. Knox is to be congratulated upon the course taken, which will make negatory the motives ascribed to him for his silence in the matter heretofore.

The above, which was cut from the Horse Review of June 7th, and to me it appears that Knox is to get $125 for his "affidavits unimpeachable." As has been stated before, there was little chance for misunderstanding in relation to the price that the facts and affidavits could be bought for, and that the price was fixed by Knox, and as nearly as I can arrive at the sense of the quoted paragraph, that is what will be paid. A "bill of particulars" would be a good thing to print with the facts, etc., throwing some light perhaps on the "motives" which incited Knox to make the investment.

It may be that "Mr. Knox is to be congratulated upon the course taken," but to me it appears to be the queerest kind of ratiocination which reaches that conclusion.

Proffered advice is not always received with favor, but I will hazard this much counsel to our friends of the Horse Review. See that the affidavits are subscribed and SWORN to, and insist on proof that letters have been sent containing the information claimed to be embodied, and that copies do not take the place of original documents.

If, as the paragraph copied implies, that Knox is to be paid a contract price, take a look at the goods before the money is turned over. Your liberality deserves recompense, and in paying a man for correcting an error made by himself, and which by all known ethics should be his earnest desire to remedy as soon as possible, are entitled to have credit. And yet when a man has to be paid for doing what is his bounden duty to do without pay—well, yes, Knox is to be congratulated, the mine did pan out dirt which paid.

STALLION PRODUCE STAKES—I look for a larger entry list in the above named stake, than has ever been known in one of like character. Nominations for stallions closed March 1st of this year, and now on the first of next month the colts have to be named. The following are the conditions:

STALLION PRODUCE STAKES.

For two and three-year-olds, the get of stallions named on March 1, 1892, to be trotted at the fall meeting of this association, 1892. Entrance for stallions, the season price of 1889 of stallion named; dead stallions at price of season 1889 or last previous season; private stallions that have not been used for pay, if with record of 2:30 or better, $100; others, $50; lowest entrance $25. Colts to be named July 1, 1892, for $5, $20 additional ten days before the first advertised day of the meeting. One-half stallion entrance for two-year-olds, with all two-year-old payments added. One half for three-year-olds, with all three-year-old payments added. Money divided in each stake 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.

Only $5 to accompany the nomination of the colt, and from now until October to make good the balance. The $25 on each colt will be a small percentage on the amounts to be won and even those who trot second, third or fourth will receive a sum much in excess of their individual stake. As far as can be told from present indications this will be a great trotting season on this coast. A great racing season, too, and by the time that 1892 comes to an end there will be a good showing for California-bred horses. Not so much record-breaking, perhaps, 2:25¼, 2:10¾ for yearlings and two-year-olds at the legitimate gait, and with corresponding big figures from these ages up, and the pacing division also in the front rank, the man who thinks he can honor anyone of the marks is gifted with immense enthusiasm, but "in actual races" if there is not a good exhibition then I will be greatly in fault.

Never before has there been the same support to the stakes and purses of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association as marked the closing of the entries March 1st, and since then there has been a corresponding augmentation of the membership. That it should secure the support of all those who have an interest in or a fancy for the sports of the track "goes without saying." The object is praiseworthy and success means that the breeding interests of the Coast will be benefited. It fills a gap which the fairs leave, and admirable as these California institutions are, the work is more complete when supplemented by the efforts of this society. But it is not my intention to do more at present than to call attention to the naming of colts in the above stake, and to correct a false impression that prevails in some quarters that the owners of the stallions are alone entitled to compete. Any colt or filly the get of stallions named on March 1st, 1892, are eligible. A list of the stallions named in the stake will be published next week and I trust that there will be a full representation, more than full, an overwhelming array that will add to the lustre of their famous sires. JOS. CAIRN SIMPSON.

HOOF-BEATS.

IT IS expected that there will be four running events at the Oakland track to-day. Entries were to close last night at the Galindo Hotel, of which the genial Ben Wright is proprietor.

THOROUGHBRED owners should by all means take in the Eureda (Cal.) meeting, which begins July 4th and lasts five days. A great season of sport is promised, and the interest in the affair is immense.

THOROUGHBRED-OWNERS should by all means take in the Eureka (Cal.) meeting, which begins July 4th and lasts five days. A great season of sport is promised, and the interest in the affair is immense.

W. B. SANBORN, of Santa Rosa, took his speedy gelding Inkerman to Eureka, Cal., this week, in order to have him in good shape for the races which commence there on July 4th. Harry Peyton and The Flood did not go along.

GLENDENNIS, one of the first new 2:20 performers of 1892, died a few hours after taking a record of 2:17¼ over the Fleetwood track. He was six years old, by Hamlin's Almont Jr., dam Black Golddust (dam of Justina) by Hamlin's Patchen.

THE three California-bred mares stinted to Axtell this year are: Myra, by Electioneer, dam Addie Lee (dam of four from 2:17¼ to 2:30); Miss Guy, by Guy Wilkes, dam by John Nelson, and Grace Lee (3), 2:29½, by Electioneer, dam Addie Lee.

YO TAMBIEN, the famous daughter of Joe Hooker and Marion, took her first defeat last Tuesday in the Merchants' Stakes at Latonia, Bashford winning in 1:53¼, the fastest time ever made on that track. Yo Tambien was second and Adalia third.

HARRY STONE, of Victoria, will locate at Salem, Or., where he intends going into the businsss of training horses. Mr. Stone is a first-class handler of colts and an excellent driver, and just the man they need to make things lively on the new race track at that place.

MILFORD, the winner of the English Jubilee Stakes, in which Minting Queen and Royal Harry were beaten the five furlongs in 1:03, is owned by Lilly Langtry, who enters her horse under the name of "Mr. Jersey." Milford is a son of Saraband, and is said to be cheap at 10,000 guineas, should "Mr. Jersey" desire to sell the colt.

THE late Hon. W. L. Scott's entire breeding establishment, known as the Algeria Stud, including Rayon d'Or and some seventy head of mares and weanlings, will be sold during the last week of October. Mr. Scott's family would continue the breeding establishment were it not that one of the terms of the dead turfman's will read that all must be sold in settling the estate.

A FREIGHT train on the Louisville Southern ran over and killed two valuable colts and three broodmares belonging to Bailey Brothers at the Buckrun Stock Farm, four miles from Versailles, Monday night. The mare Agate by Cuyler, dam Bate Patchen, recently purchased for $2,500, was badly injured. The loss will reach $10,000, and will fall on the railroad, as it allowed its fences to remain down.

ALOHA, the sensational performer of the present season, was purchased from J. P. Smallwood, of Decatur, Ill., by J. J. McCafferty, the jockey-owner, for $20,100. Aloha is a brown horse, foaled 1885, by imp. St. Mungo (son of St. Albans and Crochet, by Melbourne), dam Ollie, by Virgil. He has won three races out of seven starts this season, and ran a good second with 128 pounds up to Wadsworth (carrying 106) when he ran a mile and a quarter in 2:08.

KING SPIRIT, a bay colt, two years old, by King Alfonso, dam Sylph by imp. Glenelg, owned by the Ætna Stable, of Chicago, Ill., was shot and killed at Garfield Park last week. The colt was taken sick while in transit from Louisville, and was pronounced incurable. He was a handsome blood bay, and a half brother to Kaloolah. His engagements were in the Hesing Stakes and the Garfield Park Derby of 1893. He was a promising colt, but had never yet faced a starter.

THE colt, Osric, has been entered and run as out of Abbie W., by Norfolk. He is by imp. Cheviot, dam Abbey, by Norfolk; second dam Ada C., by Revenue, out of Sally Morgan, by imp. Emancipation. He was sold in the sale of the late Senator Hearst's horses as by imp. Cheviot, dam Abbey, by Norfolk, out of Ada C., by Revenue. The pedigree then given was correct, his dam being also the dam of La Scala, Porter Ashe, &c. Abbie W., is by Don Victor, out of Mary Chilton.

THE gray horse Cambyses, by Mortemer, out of Lizzie Lucas, bred by Pierre Lorillard at the Rancocas stud in 1884, died ten days ago in Virginia, where he was in the stud. Cambyses was a horse of rare proportions, a very game horse with quite a lot of speed, and one of the greatest weight carriers the American turf ever saw. He ran his best races in colors of Pierre Lorillard Jr. He was being bred to ordinary mares in Virginia, in the hope of securing a high type of hunter and saddle horse.

DIRIGO, the highest-priced animal in Emery & Fasig's late Cleveland sale, that was struck off to John Splan for $10,500, is not standard under the present rules. His breeding is as follows: Sired by Principe, 2:24½, son of Princeps, dam by Belmont, second dam by imported Knight of St. George, third dam by the old four-mile race horse Grey Eagle, fourth dam by Medoc, son of American Eclipse; fifth dam by Sumpter, son of Sir Archy. Dirigo's record is 2:31, but they say he has shown a trial in 2:17.

KENO F.'S 1890 career was a good one. His first appearance was at Dubuque, June 11th, when he won the 2:37 class in 2:28¼, 2:28, 2:29. On the 24th he won the 2:28 class at Cedar Rapids in 2:27¼, 2:20¼, 2:27¾; July 4th, at Minneapolis, he won the 2:27 class in 2:22½, 2:21, 2:21¼; on the 9th, at Hamline, he captured the 2:30 class in 2:19¾, 2:21½, 2:20; on the 15th, at Freeport, he won the 2:22 class in 2:20¾, 2:21½, 2:20; August 12th, at Rochester, N. Y., (his only appearance on the Grand Circuit) he won the $10,000 Flower City Stake, taking the third, fifth and sixth heats in 2:19, 2:19¾, 2:20½; August 19th, at Chicago, he won the $2,000 2:26 class in 2:24½, 2:17, 2:17; on the 28th Mary Marshall defeated him at Independence in the 2:27 class, purse $2,000, in 2:17, 2:17¾, 2:18¼, and October 14th, at Lexington, he was 7, 4, 6, 8 in 2:19¼, 2:17½, 2:15¼. 2:15½, the other brush horse, McDoel, winning the race. Keno F. will probably startle the boys again this year, as he is said to be doing his work well.

AFTER speaking of the intention of the Blood Horse directors to make the grand stand and stables presentable at Bay District track, the Turf, Field and Farm of New York says: "The accommadations that the people once put up with will not satisfy them now. They have been educated beyond the ramshackle grandstand point. Unless you furnish them with comfortable seats in a bright and inviting stand, and throw in plenty of good sport, they will not purchase admission tickets. The experence of San Francisco in this particular is the experience of New York and other Eastern cities."

THE only pools ever sold in America that exceeded the $5,475 one knocked down on the Handicap at St. Louis, won by Wadsworth, were on the Saratoga Stakes in 1867, won by Red Wing, and the Saratoga Cup in 1876, which resulted in a dead heat between Preakness and Springbok. In the former race the total pool was $15,000, and in the latter race $10,000. Springbok sold choice in the cup for $4,500, while in the Saratoga Stakes Ruthless was the first pick at $7,500. The winner of the latter race sold in this pool for $1,500, while Preakness, who ran a dead heat with Springbok in the former race, sold for $325.

THE largest ranch in the United States and probably in the world owned by one person is in Texas, and belongs to Mrs. Richard King. It covers 700,000 acres in extent and 100,000 head of cattle and 3,000 broodmares wander over its different pastures. The ranch if bounded by the Corpus Christi Bay for forty miles and by barb wire for 300 more. It lies forty-five miles south of Corpus Christi. The property is under the management of Robert J. Kieberg, Mrs. King's son in-law, and he has under him a superintendent, or, as the Mexicans call one who holds that office, a major-domo, who has charge of 300 cowboys and 1,200 ponies reserved for their use.

THERE is much food for reflection in the following utterance of Allen Lowe in the Boston Globe: "There is every reason to think that the trotting horse industry, especially that part of it that relates to the breeding farm, is growing to be one of the most important factors of money-making in America. So many millionaires are going into the business that one point should not be overlooked, and that is, the qualifications of men to resume the responsibility of taking charge of these mammoth establishments. This opens the question, is not the horse business offering as good a field for young men of brains and energy as any of the learned professions? A really capable driver, trainer and fitter can make more money than most doctors or lawyers. A young man with a good education, with brains and able to work, could get very little better start in life than good training under some capable man, with the object of attaining the superintendency of some big stock farm. A man with such knowledge, added to a good business education, could make money."

THE Rancho del Paso sale of yearlings in New York last Monday and Tuesday nights, was a grand success, the average for the 111 Haggin youngsters disposed of being $793. Some of the sales were: Chestnut filly by imp. Kyrle Daly—Abra, H. Wood, $1,050; bay colt by Hyder Ali—Aigrette, S. Donovan, $1,300; bay colt by imp. Sir Modred—Aurelia, H. Wood, $2,700; bay filly by imp. Kingston—Bonny Leaf, S. G. Reed, $1,000; bay colt by imp. Sir Modred—Dixianne, Nathan Straus, $1,050; bay filly by imp. Darebin—Fleurette, Charles Smith, $3,250; bay filly by imp. Galore—Glidelia, H. Wood, $3,100; chestnut colt by imp. Kingston—Jewelry, Charles Smith, $1,000; chestnut filly by imp. Midlothian—La Scala (full sister to Sir Walter), $4,000; brown filly by Midlothian—Lima, F. Mechon, $2,100; bay colt by Ben Ali—Parthenia, therefore half brother to Rizpah, $3,500, L. J. Rose, of Los Angeles; bay filly by Sir Modred—Preciosa, $2,500; and a chestnut colt by Sir Modred—Schoolgirl, $2,700. Next week we will endeavor to give a complete list of the animals sold, together with their buyers and the sums realized.

SOME hot, clear days have allowed the hundreds of horses to work out on the track. No one is forcing the pace and outside of Goldsmith, Doble and Dickerson nothing noticeable in spurts and speed can be noticed. Doble's two-year-old Axle, by Axtell, stepped a quarter in 0:34¾ with beautiful style and ease. His rival, Oro Wilkes, two years old, was driven by Goldsmith an eighth in 0:16½, a half in 1:11½, and a mile in 2:34, closing easy. Oro's rubber, who worked on Arion last year, pronounces Oro's the best gait and finish of the two. [BY ED.—Oro Wilkes will not be two years old until June 29th.] Hazel Wilkes trotted a quarter in 0:31½, as half in 1:08, and a mile in 2:24½. Another two-year-old, Sableday, by Sable Wilkes, trotted a half mile in hopples in 1:15. This afternoon, when the track had recovered from a storm of last night, the severest in years, Doble worked Nancy Hanks out in three heats, one mile being in 2:27. She came from the half in 1:12, but under no pressure. Jack trotted a mile in 2:32, the last half in 1:14. Muta Wilkes and Una Wilkes, on the track together, went the half mile in 1:10, with Muta in the lead. The youngsters in Goldsmith's string are trotters incarnate. Dell Barker, of Richlawn Farm, Mo., will arrive in a few days with seven horses.—Terre Haute (Ind.) Cor. New York Spirit of the Times.

THERE is much sympathy expressed among Lexington horsemen for Mr. A. J. Alexander, on account of the serious fire at Woodburn, Sunday afternoon, says the Stock Farm. Among the animals saved from the burning building were the following: Velocidad, bay colt, three years old, by Electioneer, dam Nutula (dam of Maudlen, 2:25¾, and sister to Nutwood, 2:18¾; Cora Belmont, 2:24½, and Nutbourne, 2:26½) by Belmont; second dam Miss Russell (dam of Maud S., 2:08½, and eight others in the list) by Pilot Jr.; third dam Sally Russell. Gratus, bay colt, three years old, by Dido Wilkes, dam Grace Rogers (thoroughbred) by Master Lightfoot, a son of Lexington. Electrix, 2:28½, bay filly, four years old, by Electioneer, dam Lady Russell (dam of Re-Election, 2:27¼, and sister to Maud S., 2:08¾; Russia, 2:28, and Lord Russell), by Harold. Cara Mia, bay filly, three years old, by Electioneer, dam Bicara (dam of Pancoast, 2:21¾; Balzac Chief, 2:26½; Bezant, 2:29½; Monte Carlo, 2:29¾) by Harold. Glenartney Maid, bay mare, four years old, by Shawmut, dam Minnie Brown (dam of Nelly McGregor, 2:25 at four years old) by Dictator. Pacifica, bay filly, three years old, by Electioneer, dam Bicara. Particle, bay filly, three years old, by King Wilkes, 2:22½, dam Belle by Belmont. Queen Susie, bay filly, three years old, by King Wilder, dam Vinette (sister to Vatica) by Belmont. Suffrage, bay filly, three years old, by Electioneer, dam Miss Russell. Yodee, bay filly, three years old, by King Wilkes, 2:22½, dam Yuba, 2:24½ (sister to Yazoo, 2:27½) by Harold. It is a matter of congratulation that the three highly-bred youngsters by Electioneer were saved, as great things are expected of them.

THE next race-meeting of importance in California is the one at Eureka, which begins on the Fourth of July and lasts five days. The track is in splendid shape, and everything points to success.

New Kinds of Stake Races.

The prospect for a long season of good racing in California is a very fair one. All that is required is enterprise and originality. To the various associations that give running races we would make a few suggestions that may not have been considered in the past. It is a settled fact that a certain number of enthusiasts will attend a meeting under any weather conditions or whether the racing is good, bad or indifferent. But that number is not satisfactory to any management that has seen good races given in other part of the world, with large stakes and a big sum at the end of the season on the right side of the association's ledger. The general public must take an interest and show their appreciation of an organization's efforts to entertain them with a high order of sport—the sport of kings.

We would therefore suggest (to our local racing organization, for instance) that a committe be appointed composed of the best talking timber in your association, and men at the same time who command the respect of anyone, to see the leading business men of this city and get as many subscribers to a stake, to be called the Merchants' Stake, as possible. Every large city in the country possessing a jockey club has its Merchants' Stake, and it is always a feature of the meeting, too, with a large field of fine horses contending for the rich plum. It is safe to say that one-half at least of the merchants of San Francisco like to see a horse race, and were they approached would gladly contribute from $10 to $30 each toward a Merchants' Stake every year. Make the amount of added money to such a stake $2,500. Then interview the owners of the leading hotels, and if you cannot get each one of them to contribute enough toward a stake to be named after their hostelry, get them to come together and keep up "The Hotel Stake" every year. The chances are, however, that every owner would be glad to subscribe $500 per year toward a stake to be named after his house. The advertising it would give him would be worth more than that sum, and shrewd business men would be quick to see the benefits accruing from the founding of such a stake

The street railway companies are all benefitted greatly by race meetings, and their managers would in all likelihood come to the center in a financial way were they approached correctly. Then there are the shipping men—sport-loving people all. See them regarding the formation of a Shipping Men's Stake, with $2,000 or more added. Surely a host of men are interested in shipping in San Francisco that would never miss a few dollars. When one comes to look at the matter, there is a fine field to operate on, and the leading clothing firms would be among the most anxious to advertise themselves and help make racing meetings successful in San Francisco.

The committee waiting on the men we have mentioned would not be on a begging tour, and need not be in the least ashamed of their mission, for there would be a hearty response, and the firms would be astonished to think that they had not been approached before. The secretaries of racing organizations should be vigilant and original in their ideas, too, or they will become in time mere machines, and creaking, rusty machines at that. They should have their eyes open to the advancement of the interests of their associations, and "hustle" all the time. The beauty of these stakes is that the subscribers to them would desire to see them run for and to have their friends go, and thus an interest would be awakened that could be in no other way. Races for gentlemen riders are also "taking" affairs, and it would be well to inaugurate a stake of this kind, with a handsome gold cup to go to the winning rider and become his private property when he shall have won the event three times.

Thorough Blood in the Trotter.

Many men that a few years ago would not listen to the theory of infusion of thorough blood in the trotter are now experiencing a complete change. Mr. Salisbury is a notable instance of the character named. He believes "warm" blood mixed with the cold is essential. However, it may be too late in the day to attain the desired result, for the thoroughbred is deteriorating at a great rate in point of stamina. Patrick Henry aptly said many years ago that he knew no way of judging the future but by the past.

Our world-beaters at the diagonal gait trace to long-distance families of thoroughbreds—in fact, are not far removed from them. Maud S. gets the blood of Boston through her granddam. Palo Alto that of Planet through his dam, Dame Winnie, and a little further back the blood of imp. Trustee, which figures in the pedigrees of a large number of our best trotters. Imp. Margrave also cuts quite a figure in trotting pedigrees, as does Grey Eagle, Wagner and Lexington. At present the long-distance thoroughbred families are few and far between, and can be numbered on the fingers of one hand. Longfellow's is probably the best in America at present, and although several daughters of the great brown horse have been mated with "intensely trotting-bred" stallions, nothing worth mentioning at the diagonal gait has resulted, imp. Bonnie Scotland's daughters ought to do well, but they are so highly-prized by their owners that it is well-nigh impossible to secure one of them for a trotting stud.

Speed seems to be the great desideratum of the present. Stamina has not counted for several years past with owners and breeders of thoroughbreds. This being the case, it is difficult to see where the believer in thorough blood in the trotter will turn when he desires to get something that will have a tendency to warm up the cold spots and create a desire in the progeny to trot fast early and late and stay any kind of a route. We have no Lexingtons, Grey Eagles, Planets and Bostons in this age of speed. It is painful to peruse accounts of races run at our leading tracks nowadays. One day this week we read of a supposed royally-bred race-horse (and a favorite, too) that tired badly in the homestretch and lost by two lengths. And the distance of that race was three-quarters of a mile. It is a wonder some of our departed turfmen of thirty or forty years ago do not rise up and split their caskets with laughter when such a message is communicated to the "spirit world."

No, the trotter of the present is doing pretty well, I thank you, and the tardy believers in the value of the blood of sure-enough racehorses will have to scratch their pates vigorously ere they can think of many strains of thorough blood that will benefit the race of trotters of this era. When the distances in running races have been increased 75 per cent. and remain that way for a dozen or more years, perhaps the thoroughbred will be a sturdier and gamer animal and his blood will be valuable in a trotting pedigree. At present, however, there is no likelihood of public trotting events being cut down to dashes of four and five furlongs, and until that is done it is difficult to see where the "blue blood" is going to benefit the "cold-blooded critturs" that can only trot eight and nine mile heats and go the final one a little faster than the third.

Secretaries, Attention!

There have been more inquiries at this office from owners of trotters, pacers and thoroughbreds regarding the programmes of the different associations than have ever been known before. More horses are in training and will be trained in this State from this time on until the fall races than have ever been dreamed of by the most sanguine of horsemen. Every owner is anxious to know how to arrange a programme and select a circuit. They want to know what amounts are offered for the events and what opportunities will be given them to have their youngsters earn money as well as glory.

The attention of secretaries is earnestly called to the fact that they must arrange and send in their programmes as soon as possible—the sooner the better. There will be at least three circuits in California this year—the Northern, Central and Southern—and horse-owners are waiting anxiously to see which offers the greatest inducements. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is read by every horse-owner on the Pacific Coast, and these gentlemen are flooding this office with letters of inquiry upon this subject. We hope we shall be able to answer these letters intelligently some time this month.

Cyrenus Mulkey's Case.

The many friends of Cy. Mulkey, the Santa Clara county turfman, will rejoice to hear that he has been held entirely blameless in the case of the "pulling" of Tim Murphy, the Kyrle Daly gelding. The jockey, Harmon, was ruled off for life for his crooked work, but Mr. Mulkey had no hand in the job, we are happy to state. The following letter, from Capt. C. W. Bellairs, Secretary of the St. Louis Agricultural and Mechanical Association, explains itself, and will be read with interest:

OFFICE OF THE ST. LOUIS AGRICULTURAL & MECHANICAL ASSOCIATION, ST. LOUIS FAIR GROUND CLUB, No. 509 Olive Street.

ST. LOUIS, June 6, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir:—On Monday, May 26th, the California horse Tim Murphy started in one of our purse races, and was pulled by his jockey, Harmon. The pulling was flagrant and caused great excitement, as it occurred immediately in front of the grand stand. Though the owner was sent for, he failed to appear at the judges' stand that afternoon, and the penalty meted out was the ruling off of Harmon, accompanied by a request to Mr. Cy Mulkey to remove Mr. Conner's horse from our grounds. Both of these gentlemen on the next day requested a further hearing, and the case has been inquired into patiently and exhaustively, with the result that they are entirely cleared of any complicity in the case of pulling. Both, therefore, remain in thoroughly good standing with the Association, and, as Rumor has bandied about their names in connection with the offense, it is but right that I should acquaint you of the fact. I am, dear sir, yours faithfully,

C. W. BELLAIRS.

Looking Backward.

The total disregard for the history and breeding of trotters that was so noticeable a few years ago has been the subject of much confusion and trouble, not only to the compilers of pedigrees, but to horsemen in general. The first and only question asked by trainers and drivers in those days was "How fast can the animal go?" It made no particular difference to them whether the trotters' ancestors were draught animals or thoroughbreds. They wanted horses that could trot inside of 2:30 all day. The strange ideas (for they seem strange to us now) that possessed the old turfites have passed away, and with them the desires of horsemen to reduce the trotters to skin and bone before they dared to race them.

The great number of wonderful trotters and more wonderful sires and broodmares that are quoted as "shortbred" is astonishing, and nothing can ever be done to help those great animals in providing for their worthy sires and dams. It is a sad heritage to contemplate, and the lesson should not be overlooked by owners of trotters and pacers to-day. Whenever they purchase a likely colt or filly they should endeavor to get the correct breeding of the animal, and should not leave a stone unturned in their search. The importance of having a good foundation is known and appreciated by all, hence it should be the aim of everyone interested in the business of breeding and developing horses to get the facts regarding the history and breeding of every one purchased and have them inscribed in a suitable book, a duplicate of which should also be kept in a safe, or some other secure place.

There is another important thing that horsemen are apt to be very careless about, and that is in making their entries for different races; they do not think it worth the trouble to give the names of the sires and dams of the horses they wish to have entered. The mistakes that are so glaring in the Year Book can be traced principally to this cause. Secretaries should be very particular to call the attention of the horsemen in their districts to this important item. As it is now, and, in fact, always has been, a man names a horse, for instance: "John Smith, sired by a Messenger horse, out of a Belmont mare." If that horse makes a record, he is placed upon the books as follows: "John Smith, untraced," for no mention was made upon the record sent to the registrar designating which Messenger sired the horse or what Belmont was the sire of the dam, for neither of John Smith's parents were worthy of having a name. To any sensible person this sin of omission on the part of the owner seems unpardonable. Another important item is overlooked by this negligence—the credit of the sire and dam is almost lost, unless the owners of these animals are compelled to send a history of them, furnish affidavits of proof, and wait for years, perhaps, before justice is awarded their stock.

The reporters who are sent to describe races for the daily and weekly journals never consider it a hardship to give credit wherever credit is due, and it is their desire to make their reports as concise and complete as possible. If the secretary never ascertains, nor seeks to ascertain, what the sires and dams of the trotters that are named for the races are, the scribes are not in a position to leave their desks and run over to the stalls to ask the "swipe" or the trainer what is the sire and dam of each and every contestant and furnish the secretary with the information.

The question "How fast can the animal go?" is generally followed by "How is he or she bred?" and these two go hand in hand on every race course in the land. The first question receives its qualification by the second; in fact, the two are inseparable in this era of breeding, hence it is absolutely essential for all horsemen to be able to answer the second if they cannot or do not care to answer the first.

Take Precautionary Measures.

The lack of suitable buildings for the keeping of choicely-bred stock in California has often been commented upon by visitors from the East, but is it not a very singular thing to read of the destructive fires which have occurred on the largest stock farms in the neighborhood from whence these critics came? We read of the great fire at Fairlawn, the destruction of a portion of the Edgewater stables at Cynthiana, and the last conflagration that consumed thirteen very valuable horses at Woodlawn.

The latest investors in trotting stock in the East have given up all idea of constructing wooden barns for their choice stallions and broodmares and believe that even brick buildings are not sufficiently fire proof, so they have the interiors of their stables lined with sheet metal. The loss of a good stallion—one that had sired a family of trotters and whose worth is increasing every year—cannot be estimated in figures; in fact, such a horse is seldom replaced, and the owner forever after believes that if the horse had not been taken from him by the fire fiend at the time he was beginning to make a reputation for the farm, he would be thousands of dollars richer.

Architects are busy making plans of buildings that will be as near fire-proof as possible, and the difficulty of suppressing draughts is gradually being surmounted, for this subject is receiving greater attention. The instantaneous opening of doors to liberate horses in case of fire and the use of water pipes by which the floors may be flooded are among the newest and latest improvements. Water buckets are placed where they can be reached handily, and watchmen are hired to be on duty night and day to see that everything about these buildings are safe.

In California we admit (and it is with reluctance we do so), there are very few brick or stone stables. Some of our greatest and best stallions,—stallions that money cannot buy,—are kept in frame buildings, locked in with padlocks that a battering ram could hardly affect. Water apparatus for extinguishing fires, such as hydrants and hose, is not to be had except in the buildings, and even then the faucets are small and the weakly streams would be almost useless in case of a conflagation. Hay is stowed in the lofts, and this inflammable material may, by some carelessness, take fire, and the labors of a lifetime would then go up in smoke. There are race tracks in this State where the dividing board walls in the box-stalls do not extend to the ceilings, and should a fire get started in one end it would leap with lightning-like rapidity along the whole row. At the Bay District track, some years ago, many valuable animals were destroyed by fire in this way. At Palo Alto, where Rexford, Norlaine and numerous other valuable horses were destroyed, the same cause was found for the spread of the flames.

The time is rapidly approaching when the vacant stalls on our race tracks will be occupied by the choicest horses in the State. Many of them will leave their wooden barns and stables at home to be on the circuit. While they are gone would it not be a very good idea to build brick stables away from the barns for the reception of the horses on their return? Before putting them in the new buildings, however, owners must be careful to see that the mortar is thoroughly dried, inside and out, otherwise colds and pneumonia among the stock may result. The man who spends from $5,000 to $50,000 on a stallion to make a name for his farm as well as to make money should think enough of that horse to keep him in a safe place.

We venture the assertion that nineteen out of every twenty, yes, forty-nine out of every fifty stallions are kept in wooden structures that will burn like tinder, and are every day in danger of being set on fire. Not one of these buildings is provided with sufficient hose and apparatus to quench even a bonfire; not one of them but has a lock big enough for a burglar's cell. Some day we will hear of a terrible conflagration, and a number of grandly-bred horses, mares, colts and fillies being destroyed. Then we will hear theory upon theory as to how the fire originated, but not one word will be advanced as to how the horses—by taking precautionary measures—could have been saved.

The time of year when fire rages across our fields and destroys thousands of acres of stubble is near, and we would advise all owners to take warning by the fires that have occurred in the past and see to it that their stables, barns and outbuildings are protected in every way that can be thought of.

In no other kind of business are such great risks carried as in the horse business. At Palo Alto, small, separate brick buildings or stables are erected to reduce those risks, and the day will come when all owners of stock farms will pursue this wise and precautionary plan.

JOHN SPLAN, the eminent driver and conditioner of trotters, is with us on the proposition that racing yearlings and two-year-olds is calculated to be the reverse of beneficial in its results. In a recent interview he makes a very happy comparison, likening the life of an infant trotter to a watch's mainspring. Pull the mainspring of a watch out to its fullest limit, and let it fly back, and after a few trials of this foolish trick the spring will be either twisted or broken until it is of no practical use, but you can wind the watch for years and the mainspring will do its duty, being affected to no discernible extent until it has been in use for a very long time. In other words, the youthful trotter can be jogged and put through reasonable paces while it is "vealy," but can not have its mainspring pulled out by means of racing at top speed as a yearling or two-year-old without dire results following. It either bends into a hopeless, crippled state or breaks altogether and shuffles off its earthly coil.

Death of Cyrus Holloway.

It is with great regret that we have to announce the death at Denver of the famous knight of the pigskin and trainer of thoroughbreds, Cyrus Holloway. Last Wednesday we received the following dispatch:

DENVER, COL., June 15, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, 313 Bush Street, San Francisco:—Cyrus Holloway died this morning after a long and painful illness. Funeral to-morrow, ten o'clock. MATT STORN.

The deceased was known, liked and respected among racing men in both the old and new worlds. Mr. Holloway was a native of England and about forty years of age. He has been chiefly noted as a rider of thoroughbreds, and has piloted many famous horses to victory, among the best known ones being Molly McCarthy, queen of the American turf in her day, Lucky B. and Gano. He has ridden for the foremost racing men of the country, among them E. Clabaugh, Gov. Oden Bowie and E. J. Baldwin, and in his day was second to no jockey in the country. Holloway was a great judge of pace, and was especially good in races over a distance of ground. His character was beyond reproach. Getting too old to ride with his earlier-day vim, Holloway entered into the business of training race horses, at which work he had marked success. At the time of his death he was in the employ of the well-known turfman, Matt Storn, and the news of Mr. Holloway's demise will be a most unpleasant surprise to the hosts of friends of the honest, straightforward horseman.

San Jose's Fall Fair.

A joint meeting was held yesterday of the District No. 5 Association and the Santa Clara Valley Agricultural Society, President Buckley in the chair and Directors E. Topham, J. W. Rea, George B. Polhemus, William Boots, T. S. Montgomery and Secretary George H. Bragg present.

The meeting was called for the purpose of taking action on the proposition of giving nine days' racing instead of six this fall, and after a full discussion it was decided to do so.

The racing will begin September 26th, and the first six days will be devoted exclusively to trotting and pacing.

The running races will be had on October 3d, 4th and 5th.

This is the best arrangement of races ever made, and there is no doubt it will prove popular. During the first six days the track will be in perfect condition for trotting and pacing, after which it will be put in condition for the running contests.

It was decided to change the admission ticket system in accordance with the plan of the State and Stockton Associations. Hereafter there will be no more annual tickets issued, as usual, and season tickets will be sold to exhibitors for $5, but aside from these there will be no tickets, and all desiring admission will pay the regular price of 50 cents at the gate. —San Jose Mercury, June 16th.

Death of a Noted Horseman.

[Special to BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

PHŒNIX (A. T.), June 16th.—Henry Williamson, one of the most successful horse breeders in the West, died yesterday at the age of seventy years. He brought to California the horse Belmont in 1853, and was the breeder and trainer of the famous Thad Stevens, the long-distance runner, who won the purse of $30,000, the race being open to the world. Mr. Williamson brought the first thoroughbred horse to the Salt River Valley.

HORSEMEN and racegoers in general will be surprised to hear that W. P. Taylor's Mascot, 2:14½, and C. F. Dunbar's Johnston, 2:06½, have been matched to pace at the Buffalo Grand Circuit meeting. The articles were arranged last week, and call for a race best three in five heats for $1,000 a side, and the Buffalo Park Association will add $500, making the total stakes $2,500. The race will be decided on Tuesday, Auguet 2d, the first day of the Buffalo meeting. This match evidently means that Mr. Taylor's challenge of April to match Mascot in a sweepstakes race for all pacers eligible to the 2:15 class was not accepted. Mascot is a much faster horse than he was last year, and with W. J. Andrews behind him it is expected will pace to a faster record. Mr. McDonald last year said Mascot's record of 2:14½ was not the limit of his speed. Johnston also shows an improvement over his form in 1891. He is strong, and Mr. Dunbar hopes to have the ex-champion regain all his speed and still retain his strength. Both horses are owned in Buffalo, and the race will attract more interest in that city than any pacing race that could be arranged. Both horses have a legion of admirers, and the same can be said of their owners. It is needless to say that Buffalo horsemen will turn out en masse on the opening day of the Buffalo races to see the event. With this match and the $5,000 race between Hal Pointer, 2:09¾, and Direct, 2:03, the Buffalo Park Commissioners will satisfy its patrons in the way of pacing races of the first class.

DON'T be afraid to give your horses that are in training grass once or twice a day. It opens the bowels, cools the system and nourishes the body. It is the most perfect food that can be given to the horse, and although not strong enough diet to supply sufficient strength for hard work, yet it is a very valuable and essential diet for horses in training to keep them healthy, their pores open and their bowels in good order. All experienced and successful trainers see that their horses have more or less grass every day, and the man who fails to supply it makes a mistake that his horses will feel and show before the season closes. It is better where it can be done to let horses pick the grass in the natural way. By holding them out every evening they get needed change and exercise, fresh air and good food, and enjoy the change from the stable to the comparative freedom which the grass plot affords.

WE UNDERSTAND that Richard Ten Broeck, the famous horseman, who is now a very old man, is almost blind and in indigent circumstances in San Mateo. Mr. Ten Broeck in his time was a millionaire, and it seems hard to think that in his declining years he is reduced to want.

Queer Running in Australia.

There was considerable excitement in the All-Aged Stakes run over a mile. With four such cracks as Marvel, Bungebah, Strathmore and Tireste in the race, not to mention Lady Edda, no wonder the public felt anxious as to the result. On recent form it looked a fair thing for Marvel, but it was not forgotten that Tireste had won the Nursery Handicap, 5 furlongs, at Flemington Spring Meeting in one minute three seconds, and at the same meeting had beaten Marvel and Bungebah in the Flying Stakes, covering the seven furlongs in 1 minute 27 seconds. With 6st. 13lb. on her back, she looked to have a very good chance of repeating her victory. When the horses went down to the post the public accepted even money Marvel like water, while Trieste figured at 4's, Strathmore at 9 to 2, and Bungebah at 6 to 1. All eyes were fixed on the cracks at the mile post, and Bungebah was quickest away when the flag fell, but Lady Edda soon joined him, and the pair raced on together. At the sheds Lady Edda had a slight lead of Bungebah, with Strathmore and the other pair close up. At the distance it looked to be a great race, and cries went up for Marvel, who seemed to be coming at a great pace on the rails. At the end of the lawn Lady Edda cracked up, and Marvel failed to get through on the rails. Had he been ridden as he easily could have been, on the outside, with a clear course, he would have had a decided advantage. Strathmore fell back at the half-distance, and then a great shout was heard for Bungebah, followed almost immediately by one for Trieste. Liddard had her in a good position on the outside, and had he not made too much use of his whip and bustled her, which caused her to run wide, she might have just won. As it was Bungebah, on whom Gainsford rode a good race, won by half a length, while Marvel was a head behind the filly, and Strathmore a neck away, fourth. It was a grand race, but Marvel's backers had good reason to complain of the way in which he was ridden. The mile was run in 1 minute 41 seconds, which, considering the state of the course, was good, and the last four furlongs must have been done at a great pace. When Marvel won the Epsom Handicap at Randwick Spring Meeting he did the mile, carrying 10st. 2lb. and beating a big field of horses, in 1 minute 40½ seconds, while in the Doncaster Handicap he beat thirty-five horses in 1 minute 41¾ seconds, after having to thread his way through a big field. Under the circumstances he should have been capable, even considering the going, of cutting out a mile with five runners and with 9st. 11lb. on his back, in 1 minute 40 seconds, and had he come sooner in the race and clear on the outside he would probably have done so. Every jockey is liable to make errors, and Harris may have fancied he was riding the best possible race, but subsequent events proved that my contention is correct.

Another puzzle was served up for punters in the Cumberand Stakes, over two miles. On his running in the All-Aged-Stakes, Marvel looked anything but a good thing, so Strathmore was once more fastened on to and made favorite, but why it would be difficult to say, as Highborn had beaten him in the Cup over a similar distance. Stromboli was also started, and he, too, had the credit of having won the Sydney Cup. As they came into the straight for home, Highborn held the lead, with Strathmore hard at it. At the distance, Strathmore had had enough, and Highborn looked like winning, and cries were raised on him; but Marvel, on whom Harris had ridden a good race, came with a great rattle on the outside this time, and at once tackled Mr. Forrester's black. There was a good tussle home, but Marvel passed the post a couple of lengths to the good. Then the public commenced to wonder whether they stood on their heads or their heels, and by the time the horse had reached the enclosure the majority of them had evidently arrived at the conclusion that they had been turned upside down, and, metaphorically, had their pockets turned inside out. A terrific volley of groans, hoots and hisses greeted Harris and Marvel as they came in. This did not seem to disconcert Mat in the least, for he raised his cap in the most polite fashion, and smiled at the crowd blandly. Evidently Harris is a bit of a humorist in his way, and could appreciate the situation. Then Mr. George Hill and Monaghan went to the railings and spoke to some persons there. What they said I know not, but when they turned their backs again to make for the stand there was another mighty howl of wrath. Some of the expressions used were more forcible than polite, so I refrain from repeating them.

As Mr. Clibborn came across the enclosure there was another uproar, and shouts of "Have 'em up, Clibborn?" could be heard. Now, as the matter of "having 'em up" did not rest with the secretary, this was rather unreasonable. I do not agree with those who say the public have no business to show their disapproval of racing transactions in this manner. Whether they were right or wrong in their estimates of Marvel's running on these two occasions, I will not say. I have, however, my own opinion on that point. But surely the public have as much right to express disapproval as they have to lustily cheer a winner. I have seen jockeys severely handled by the people for riding unaccountable races, and it does not do to try the public temper too far. I think the better plan would have been, and is still, for all connected with Marvel, to court the fullest inquiry into his running, and make the whole affair public. Surely in the interests of the turf this would be the better plan. Prove to the people—who, after all, are the great supporters of racing—that they were wrong in hooting Marvel's victory, and on their behalf I feel no hesitation in saying they will acknowledge their error by cheering Marvel heartily the next time he and his rider face the starter. Such an inquiry must not be held in the "Court of Star Chamber" of the A. J. C., but have full publicity given to it in the press. As at present conducted, inquiries into various matters are withheld from the press, or when information is supplied, it is of the scantiest kind. This is not as it should be. The public have a right to know through the press what goes on behind the scenes. They pay to see racing, and pay liberally, and without their support there would be very little racing at all.—Sidney Referee.

The Bakersfield Fair Grounds.

The work on [the new track will be commenced in a few days, when the enterprise will be pushed forward to a rapid completion.

The colt stakes are being prepared by the secretary, J. M. Reuck, and the premium list will be issued on July 20, 1892.

The farmers are urged to raise some specialty to exhibit at the fair, and the ladies are particularly urged to make some special article to exhibit in the fine arts department.

The premiums offered are equal to those offered by any association in the State, and our people are to be congratulated upon the liberality and enterprise displayed by the management.

The merchants are expected to make a liberal display of their goods and specialities at the pavilion.

The racing department will be a special feature for the encouragement of our breeders, and the contests will be arranged for the best results and the reputation of our association for liberality and square dealing.—The Californian.

Did Not Mention Him.

The young minister was looking for material for a sermon on the vices of modern society and had in the course of his investigation drifted into a pool-room in full blast, says the Detroit Tribune. The tumult that smote his ears the moment he entered seemed to stun him for a time. When at last he recovered sufficiently to appreciate his surroundings he was delighted to notice at his side a tall, moody man, who was contemplating the animated scene in apparent disgust. In all the ribald crowd it was the only face which betokened the slightest sympathy with the higher aims of life, a disapprobation of the coarse sensuality exhibited before them.

"Ahem."

The tall man looked even more moody, but said nothing.

"In the stretch," yelled the coatless, disheveled attache at the telegraph instrument.

The tall man's brow contracted in a frown.

"Robbery!" he muttered, fiercely.

The minister beamed. Here in the most unexpected place of all was a pure heart. The man of cloth yearned for communion.

"My dear sir," he observed, very cordially, "I am pleased——"

"Hey?"

The shouts of the eager gamblers pressing about the cashier's window drowned the preacher's voice.

"I am pleased," the latter proceeded, when there was a partial lull in the confusion, "to find one who condemns such a place as this."

"No honest man could do otherwise," was the short rejoinder.

The clergyman mentally congratulated himself upon the discovery of a beautiful character fit to be woven into his next discourse under the simile of an oasis of virtue in a desert of sin.

"It's a shame that such a festering sore is allowed to exist and corrupt the body politic."

The tall man acquiesced.

"Think," and the preacher grew warm with earnestness, "of the homes it despoils——"

The moody party nodded.

"The lives it wrecks——"

The minister was getting a good deal excited and the manner of the tall man was such as to encourage him to proceed.

"And, in my opinion, the authorities should be forced to suppress such an unmitigated evil."

The tall man thought a moment and his lips quivered with anger.

"I agree with you perfectly," he declared at last.

"I am delighted——"

"No condemnation is too severe for such an iniquitous hole."

The preacher fairly beamed. He would have wrung the tall man's hand had it not been in his pocket.

"A pool-room," and the moody look had given way to one of animated passion, "that will offer odds of only 2 to 1 when the odds at the track are 8 to 1 ought to be wiped from the face of the earth."

Thus it happened that the minister in his next discourse made no mention at all of the beautiful character which he had discovered in the pool-room.

Stockbridge Chief Jr.

The following letter was received by a well-known horse-breeder from J. H. Steiner, Registrar, regarding the horse Stockbridge Chief Jr. It is published in view of the fact that the horse was very well known here, and we believe that the doubts regarding his history will eventually be cleared away:

Chicago, Ill., May 24, 1892.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman—Your letter of the 18th inst., inclosing clipping from the Breeder and Sportsman, received.

The statements made by Mr. Williamson that a horse called Stockbridge Chief Jr. was taken to California and controlled by Mr. Howland, of Orange Co., New York, are all correct, and I understand that Mr. Wallace never denied the correctness of these statements, but there appears to be no doubt that the Stockbridge Chief Jr., 672, are two entirely distinct and different animals.

Be this as it may, if you were to fully establish the fact that Stockbridge Chief Jr. which went to California was bred just as claimed by Mr. Williamson, and was also the sire of Abe Edgington, still, the horse would not be eligible to registration as standard under the present rules, unless he has the other qualifications as provided by rule 4.

Our information about Abe Edgington is not very definite, nor do we know that it is reliable. He is reported to be by Stockbridge Chief Jr. 672, dam Dooley mare, not traced; bred in Ohio in 186—, and taken to California.

If the fact can be established that Abe Edgington was bred at San Jose, by Jos. O'Kiel, then Stockbridge Chief Jr. 692, would not be standard.

We have letter from Mr. Holland on file, and have also personally talked with Mr. Holland, who was in California, and he verifies the statements in this letter.

Mr. Williamson seems to have gotten the two horses confounded. If you can get any evidence from Mr. O'Kiel that Abe Edgington was by the California Stockbridge Chief Jr., we would like to have it.

There is another point to which I call your attention—Mr. Williamson says that Stockbridge Chief Jr. was brought to California in the spring of 1858, and stood for mares that spring and the following, and at the fair of Santa Clara Agricultural Society in the fall of 1859, trotted against the horse State of Maine, etc.

The Register, Volume IV., Shows that Stockbridge Chief Jr., 692 was foaled in 1857, hence, he could not have made a season in California in 1858. Yours truly, J. H. Steiner, Secretary.

Electioneer's Grandsons.

Following is the summary of a trotting race that took place at Island Park, Albany, N. Y., on the 7th inst. It will be observed that a son of Albert W., 2:20, got into the list good and strong, and that another grandson of Electioneer got second money:

Etiquette and Harmony.

The following inaugural address was delivered by the President, W. E. D. Morrison, before the State Veterinary Association at its meeting in this city on the 9th inst.:

Mr. President and Gentlemen:—A subject for an inaugural address to a society like ours is not of easy choice. Unless one is naturally gifted with silver-tongued oratory it is a difficult matter to render an address that shall at the same time be pleasing to the animal senses and still contain food for the mind to ponder over and digest, so that the nutrition derived from this mental digestive process may benefit the whole social body. Milton said "that fools rush in where angels fear to tread," but I hope that my precautious folly may partake somewhat of the angelic caution so that my subjects will not offend, but will tend to draw us all together in bonds more fraternally professional for our mutual and professional benefit.

The subjects I have chosen are etiquette and harmony, two, in my humble opinion, of the utmost importance to the veterinary profession. Etiquette should be observed with the nicest accuracy in our dealings one with the other. Each individual should consider the other individual's professional feelings. There should be no trifling with another's reputation, either by direct or indirect imputation. No sneering remarks or half-uttered expressions leading outsiders to draw detrimental influences. It is not always what is said, but what is unsaid, by saying, "I would rather not discuss the matter," thus conveying the idea that there is either malpractice or poor practice exercised by a fellow practioner. So the seeds of doubt are sown in the client's mind, and thus by casting discredit on the one practioner you inadvertently bring discredit on the whole profession. The client will say, "That doctor knows not his business." The one to whom this is said will often answer, especially if he is a would-be veterinary surgeon, or local authority on diseases, equine, bovine and canine, "Oh, they are all alike, they don't know any more than we do. I can cure colic or bots as well as any of them." Thus it goes, as we all well know.

By this simple every-day experience of all of us I wish to demonstrate and impress on you the fact, how easy it is to destroy and how difficult to restore a professional reputation. It is as delicate as the most beautiful hot-house flower. Handle it with care and caution and it lasts its natural life. Give it the least rough handling and its bloom is shed never to return. How many times a competent veterinary surgeon, a man that the profession recognizes as one above mediocrity, struggles along simply because in his first few cases death, unavoidably, stepped in and robbed him of reputation. On the other hand another practitioner who is purely superficial but suave and sweet to every man in his dealings with the public, climbs the ladder of success and falsely wears the laurel crown that belongs in justice to his poorer fellow practitioner. I do not wish to convey the idea that he "falls like Lucifer, never to rise again," but that he whose reputation becomes injured from any cause must of necessity work harder and suffer the taunts of prejudice and ignorance until he regains the height from which he fell. Possessing the merit it is only a question of time when he must succeed and wrest from the pretender his wrongfully obtained laurels. Mr. President, the code of ethics of this association, covers completely the ground that I would have each member stand firmly on. We can in session formulate rules and regulations but they are useless, unless each one truly and earnestly makes up his mind to carry out the code not only in act, but in kindly professional spirit.

It is also essential to the well-being of the veterinary profession that harmony reign in our midst and that white-winged peace prevail in our councils. United in the harmonious bonds of earnest professional sympathy, we can successfully resist our two most baneful enemies—ignorance and its offspring, quackery. We must present a solid and unbroken front to our enemies. There must be no dissensions or traitors in our ranks. If I may be allowed to paraphrase the old Biblical saying, that a profession divided against itself cannot stand. If jealousy and internal quarrels are to prevail, we do but weaken our professional position, and our councils come to naught. Division instead of unity is what quackery and our enemies most desire. It is the only possible method that gives them an opportunity to strike a fatal blow at veterinary progression. This division in the profession in this State has already cost us on two occasions the passage of our bills to regulate the practice of veterinary medicine, and at the same time this division has given birth to another veterinary society which has no real cause for existence, and never had. Instead of this dog-in-the-manger policy, how far superior united policy would have been. Instead of two veterinary committees trying to exterminate each other in Sacramento; bidding against each other for votes; endeavoring to impress their different views on the representatives of this State, how much more professional, with what a stronger and more impressive voice we could have demanded attention to our wants; what greater respect we should have commanded as a united profession, aiming to benefit the health and stock interests of this just State. Instead of two factions striving to obtain what must have appeared to the representatives a slice of spoils. * * Two bills for a State Veterinary surgeon and his assistants, two bills to regulate the practice of veterinary medicine—just ponder over it—and there are so few of us. What conclusions could they draw?—"horse-doctors scrambling for boodle," as I heard a highly intelligent gentleman describe our Kilkenny-cat-like lobbying. It must of necessity have appeared in this light to the public. Mr. President, this endless suicidal strife must cease if we would succeed and raise our profession to the same level as the human profession. It is true that we stand socially higher today than we did ten years ago, but that is no good and sufficient reason why we should relax our vigilance or cease in the good work. Onward and upward must we press our veterinary banner, flinging its proud fold to the winds and inscribing in flaming letters on its broad surface the motto, "Excelsior." Mr. President and brother practitioners, let us each go forth from this meeting with a determination to fight the good fight, to stand shoulder to shoulder in the good cause to help instead of undoing a brother practitioner, and when our little race is run we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that we have been ourselves bravely in the scientific fight against empyrism and that we have left "footsteps in the sands of time" that shall be a warning as well as an encouragement, a warning against our errors, an encouragement to follow our examples.

Matt Storn's string captured the largest amount in stakes and purses at Denver, B. C. Holly's horses won the most races, while Geraldine was first and second more times than any one horse running at the Colorado metropolis.

Mount Shasta Agricultural Society District Fair.

The thirteenth annual fair of the Mount Shasta Agricultural Association will be held in Yreka on Oct. 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th. The Southern Oregon District Fair at Roseburg will commence September 27th, the Jackson County Fair will be held the following week, at Central Point, commencing September 28th, and the Fair in Yreka will be in session the next week thereafter, commencing October 5th, thus enabling horsemen to enter for the various races at each place. Time made at Central Point meeting will not be a bar to any race at the Yreka Fair races.

The speed programme contains a list of several interesting races and good purses, to induce lively competition. On the first day, the races will commence with a 2 in 3 trotting contest, for three-minute class of district horses, comprising Siskiyou, Trinity and Modoc counties, Cal., and Jackson, Klamath and Lake counties, Or., for purse of $200; second race, running, half mile and repeat, free-for-all, purse $150; third race, pacing, 3 in 5; free-for-all, purse $200. On second day, the first will be one mile dash, running, free-for-all, purse $120; second, trotting, 3 in 5, stallions, district, purse $300; third, 2 in 3, trotting, two-year-olds, district, purse $150; fourth, running, five-eighths of a mile dash, free-for-all, purse $100. Third day, grand parade of stock and award of premiums, to be followed by running race, three-fourths mile and repeat, free-for-all, purse $175; second race, 3 in 5, trotting, 2:50 class, purse $200; third race, half-mile dash, running, for horses owned and kept in Siskiyou continuously since Jan. 1, 1892, purse $100. Winner of one race during this meeting to carry 5 lbs. extra; of two races, 8 lbs.; of three races, 10 lbs., and untried horses 10 lbs. Fourth day, first race, 2 in 3, trotting three-year-olds and under, district, purse $200; second, one-sixteenth mile dash, running, handicap, free-for-all, weights to be announced from stand at 6 o'clock P. M., purse $125; third, 3 in 5 trotting, free for all, purse $400; fourth, sweepstake novelty, running, free for all, purse $105, first quarter, $35; second same, and third same.

The stock and pavilion programme has been thoroughly overhauled and will be published in a few weeks in pamphlet form. Among the many other attractions offered will be a brass band contest for two prizes, the first $100, and the second $50 in coin, the band to perform in Yreka twice each day, between 11 and 12 A. M. and 7 and 8 P. M., besides meeting at some suitable place on Thursday evening of fair week, to publicly compete in presence of three judges selected by eaders of competing bands and the directors of the society. During the contest before the judges there will also be choice vocal music, recitations, etc., and a brief address on the resources of Siskiyou by Hon. Geo. Robertson. The admission fee to the Pavilion will be only 25 cents in place of 50 cents, as formerly, and the pavilion badges at half rates of membership badges will be discarded, allowing all pavilion exhibitors to enter articles at 5 per cent of the amount of the premium to be awarded for which articles are entered.—Yreka Journal.

Muffled Wedding Bells.

There was much rejoicing among the horsemen this week over the announcement of the marriage of the veteran horseman, Peter Brandow. Everyone who knew him was eager to tender their congratulations. At the Palace Hotel, Messrs. Spreckles, Burke, Wieland, LaRue, Smith, Lathrop, McKerron, McCarty and a score of other horsemen, wished him joy in his new departure, and hoped that in his journey down the homestretch of life he would distance all troubles, and receive the just reward for his faithful adherence to all the matrimonial rules. Mr. Brandow was very bashful, and received the numerous wedding presents and congratulations with remarkable good grace, and every one was invited to attend the wedding, but, for some inexplicable cause, the happy affair did not take place as announced, and the wealthy widow from Vallejo returned to her home by the catfish-laden waters of the raging Sacramento, and Mr. Brandow once more settled down to wrestle with the cares and troubles of bachelorhood. He is training trotters now, and seems to have given up all hope of ever "being hitched" double. That it was not his fault that the wedding did not take place, everyone believes, but the disappointed gentleman does not desire any letters or expressions of condolence from anyone. He is willing to suffer alone.

The Pleasanton String.

A large number of citizens gathered at the depot at Pleasanton last Monday to wish "Godspeed" to the Messrs. Salisbury, and Starr and the attendants who are to look after the Pleasanton Stock Farm string on its journey throughout the Eastern Circuit. The following is a complete list of those that were seen safely installed in their places on the cars: Homestake, 2:14½; Monbars, 2:16½; Little Albert. 2:17½; Steve Whipple, 2:23; Directum, the three-year-old Director colt, and the three pacers, Flying Jib, San Pedro and Killarney Maid. When the car arrives in the East, Direct, 2:06, Alfred G., 2:19½, Vic H., 2:13½, and possibly others will join the string. The following is the list of engagements: Grand Rapids, July 4—7; Saginaw, July 11—15; Detroit, July 18—23; Cleveland, July 26—29; Buffalo, August 2—6; Grand Rapids, August 9—13; Chicago, August 15—20; Columbus, Ohio, August 22—26; Independence, August 29—Sept. 2; Fort Wayne, Sept. 6—9; Richmond, Sept. 13—16; Cambridge City, Sept. 20—24; Terre Haute, Sept. 26—30; St. Louis, or Chillicothe, Ohio, Oct. 3—8; Lexington, Oct. 11—14; Nashville, Oct. 17—24; Columbia, Oct. 27—31; Birmingham, Alabama, Nov. 9—19.

Death of Nephew 1220.

Last Thursday morning this horse was apparently as well as he ever was in his life as he played around in the paddock at Palo Alto. About 11 o'clock he laid down, in a few minutes then after the attendant noticed that the horse was dead.

Nephew had a four-year-old record of 2:36. He was a big-little brown horse, standing a trifle over fifteen hands. He was very well muscled, and had the best of feet and legs. His disposition was perfect.

He was a well-bred stallion, being sired by Hambrino 820, out of Trotting Sister (dam of three horses that have sired 2:30 performers), by Abdallah 15; second dam, Lydia Talbot (dam of Pacing Abdallah, sire of Bay Mate, 2:30), by Taylor Messenger; third dam by an unknown stallion; fourth dam, Doll, by Yarnall's Virginia Whip; fifth dam, Tip, by Morning Glory; sixth dam, the Gid Houston mare. Hambrino, 2:21½, was by Edward Everett, out of Mambrino, by Mambrino Chief; second dam, Susie, by imp. Margrave, etc. Hambrino had a double cross of imp. Margrave blood in his veins and is the sire of some fourteen in the list, including the wonderful Delmarch, 2:11½.

Nephew was bred by James T. Talbot, purchased by W. H. Wilson, of Cynthiana, Kentucky, and sold as a four-year-old in 1877 to Fred Arnold, of Stockton. He changed hands twice, and was finally purchased by Leland Stanford.

Nephew was the sire of Beaury Mac, 2:19¾; Bracelet (pacer), 2:21; Voucher, 2:22, Ha Ha, 2:22½; Barney Horn, 2:23½, Lottie, M., 2:24; Baby Mine, 2:27; Lucia, 2:28½; Fred Arnold, 2:30¼; Ecru, 2:30; Geneve, 2:26¾, Bracelet (p), 2:21. He also sired the sires of George N. (p), 2:22½, and the wonderful game pacer Gold Medal, 2:14½.

Since he has been in the stud at Palo Alto his light has been hid under a bushel; nearly all of his colts and fillies have been sold in the East.

PIERCE BROS.' Electioneer mare, Lady Fracture, foaled a bay colt the 22d of May, which is called PRINCE ROYAL, being by Dexter Prince. The mare has been bred again to Dexter Prince. She mates so well with him, having three of note, viz., Fitzsimmons, Jessie and Princess McCarty. The same firm's mare Venus foaled June 7th a colt sired by Sidney, and it has been named SIDNEY DILLON. He has a right to be a good one, as he is a full brother to Adonis, 2:11½, Cupid, 2.18, and Lea, winner of all her yearling races, and valued at $10,000 by her owner, Mr. White, of the Two-Minute Stock Farm.

Ripans Tabules cure colic.

A Well-Stocked Farm.

Knee-deep in the evergreen pastures at Bellews' farm, about two miles from San Jose, on the Alviso road is a band of matrons with foals, owned by F. H. Burke, that for individuality and breeding would be hard to excel.

A large number of the foals are by Eros, 2:29½, and the mares are now being bred to him this year. He has never had such a coterie of royal-bred ones since he was old enough to be bred, and if he does not get a large number of race-horse trotters, there will be no need to pursue the subject of breeding to get the best hereafter.

Each of the paddocks contain about fifty acres planted with alfalfa, Australian rye and blue grass. By a system of ditches and flumes each of these fields can be irrigated in a few hours. When the feed becomes short in one field, water is turned into it from the seven artisan wells and that place is flooded. The stock, in the meantime, is driven into an adjacent field where the grass has grown tall and luxuriant, and is now ready for the sleek-looking mares. A large barn capable of holding fully four hundred tons of baled hay is built in the center of this farm, and accommodations for one hundred head of horses are provided around its sides. A careful attendant is employed throughout the year to watch and see that nothing happens the stock.

Wm. Vioget has some twenty-six trotting colts and fillies at his stables at the Agricultural Park. Most of them are by Eros and many of their dams are here in this field. We noticed Algonette, a good sized bay mare by Algona 11,533, with a bay filly at her side. This mare is the dam of Soubrette, the fast little Eros filly at the San Jose track and the lassie at her side is even better looking than she was at her age.

S. W. Herton's sorrel mare by Nutwood is taking good care of her Noonday colt—she has been stinted to Eros.

Nettie Nutwood is a very large, finely-formed bay mare, by Nutwood, out of Lady Scully (dam of Vanderlynn, 2:21), and, like her half-brother, was a very fast trotter; she trotted a mile to see if she could equal his record, and came within half a second of it. She is a grand broodmare and her produce have proven fast as well as handsome. Her first filly by Eros that is called Luck was very promising, so much so, that her owners thought they would breed her to Allerton, 2:09¼, and after she raises the foal, give her a record. Nettie Nutwood has a perfect little beauty—a filly—by her side by Eros.

Ripple (sister to Creole, 2:20), by Prompter 2305, has a handsome bay filly by Durfee, which will be a side-wheeler. Ripple will be bred to Almont Patchen, 2:15, this year.

Rosa Bonheur is a well-formed, stoutly-built black mare, by Ewin Davis, out of Rose Washington, by Washington, pacing record 2:21¾. She is a good type of a matron and the brown Eros colt at her side is evidence of her value in this role.

Stella S. (sister to Alfred S., 2:16¼ to wagon), by Elmo 891, has an Eros colt by her side which should become a most valuable racehorse. He combines the same blood lines as Wanda, that game daughter of Eros and Accident that got a race record of 2:17¾ last fall, and will lower it to 2:14 this year unless some accident befalls her.

Maggie E., 2:19½, the fastest daughter of Nutwood, 2:18¾, is also the proud matron of an Eros filly that should be a record breaker. Her yearling filly is at the track; and it is needless to add that she is a good one. Maggie E. has filled out and grown quite matronly looking.

Lady Alice is another Nutwood mare; she is gray in color, but the brown filly by her side shows what a color controller Eros is. When it is taken into consideration that the dam of Eros and his grandam were also gray, besides, his dam produced seven 2:30 performers and of this number five are gray, it looks very much as though Eros was a strongly-bred Electioneer, to be able to transmit his color when his dam was such a strong producer of grays. He never sired but three gray colts or fillies.

May Queen, by Abbotsford, out of Pacific Maid by Elmo, is a grand-looking broodmare. She has a filly that has the same Eros conformation so noticeable in the balance of the youngsters here.

Lady Pierce is the broodmare that won the premium at the State Fair last fall with her fillies, Donzella and Midnight Belle, and if she appears again this fall in the show ring, she will carry away the blue ribbon also. She is by King William, a son of Hambletonian 725. Her filly this year is called Vesper Bell.

Morna, by Brigadier, 2:21¼, out of Countess (dam of Dawn, 2:18¾, and Strathway ,2:20), would have been a 2:20 performer also had she not met with an accident which retired her to the harem; she is the dam of a very strong-looking Eros filly. All of her colts have sold well. Her daughter Cyrene, by Cyrus R., 2:17¾ (son of Nutwood), is here also, and her colt by Eros is well worth looking at. It seems to have been a preconceived thought of Mr. Burke regarding the value of the Electioneer-Nutwood cross, for long before Arion, 2:10¾, made his phenomenal record, he had purchased a number of Nutwood mares to breed to Eros. He has seven on his place at present, and they are all excellent individuals.

Olita, the dam of Cæsar, 2:16½, is one of the finest-looking Nutwoods in the State, and she has proven to be a producer. Her Steinway foal is a full brother to the above fast pacer and he will have a mark of 2:12 this fall.

My Own is the name of a bay filly out of another gray mare Nellie by General Taylor, that demonstrates the remarkable potency of her sire, for she has not a white mare and is an Eros in beauty and conformation.

One of the best looking youngsters is the bay colt by Eros, out of Sister (dam of Albert W., 2:20, and Bonanza, 2:29½) by John Nelson. This half orphan is being raised by hand, as his dam died shortly after his birth. Many of the best stallions in the land were as unfortunate as he in losing their matrons, but few of them ever received kinder care than he for he is a big, strong lusty fellow and as bold as a "ram."

There were a number of other mares owned by Mr. Burke, such as Nettie Walker (dam of My My, 2:25½), Gazelle (dam of Fowler Boy, 2:19½), by Primus; Bright Eyes (dam of Marvin, 2:28½), by General Benton; Alvaretta (dam of two in the list), by George Lancaster; Lady Stevens (sister to the famous broodmare Minnehaha), by Bald Chief; all bred to Eros.

In these fields were noticed a large number of broodmares owned by different well known horsemen. Messrs. Rosenbaum, J. McCord, McKerron, Vioget, Laveaga, Horton, Weeks, Ayers and others. The mares are all choice individuals and the owners have taken "time bp the forelock" in breeding to this son of Electioneer, for the probabilities are that he will be sold to go East next year. His list of 2:30 performers this fall will be greatly increased if not doubled.

Something New.

The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement of Dr. N. F. Canady's Impregnator. It has been in use but a very short time, yet the testimonials that are being received from those breeders who have used this wonderful instrument demonstrate most clearly that it is one of the greatest inventions of the age, and will be of incalculable value to all horsemen.

ATHLETICS.

EDITED BY AEPHIPPUS.

FIXTURES FOR THE FUTURE.

June 18th—Olympic Club, annual all-event gymnastic competitions, at the club grounds.
June 18th—Cricket match, between the Pacifics and Californias, at the Alameda grounds.
June 19th—Cricket match, between the Oaklands and Alamedas, at the Kinkerville grounds.
July 4th—California Division League of American Wheelmen, annual race-meet, under the auspices of the Bay City Wheelmen and Capital City Wheelmen, at Stockton, Cal.
July 4th—Scottish Thistle Club, annual games at Shell Mound Park.
July 10th—Pacific Swimming Club, opening day, at the Terrace Baths, Alameda, Cal.
Sept.—State Fair Association, amateur games, at Sacramento, Cal.

SUMMARY.

Many of the athletes who took part in the late championship games have gone to the country for the purpose of enjoying a much needed rest. The crack players of the different cricket clubs are just beginning to show good form, and from now on the William Greer Harrison Cup matches will, no doubt, be very exciting. The wee-men are hard at work preparing themselves for coming events, and during the next couple of months it is almost a certainty that the Racing Board will be called upon to alter many of the existing Pacific Coast records. The oarsmen are not doing much in the way of training, and it is very doubtful if any rowing matches will take place before the fall. The swimming season has fairly opened, and the members of the Pacific Swimming Club, the leading organization of the kind on the Pacific Coast, will hold their opening day at their old headquarters, the Terrace Baths, at Alameda, Cal., on Sunday, July 10th. The champion handball players are in good fettle at the present time, and many games are on the tapis for the near future which will prove highly interesting.

ATHLETIC SPORTS IN GENERAL.

The following officers have been elected by the Pacific Swimming Club to serve during the present season: President, George W. Spiller; Al. Rosenberg, treasurer, C. B. King, secretary; Harry Clark, captain. The first exhibition of the year will be given at the Terrace Baths, at Alameda, on Sunday, July 20th. The programme will consist of fancy swimming and diving by members of the club, and several swimming races will be open to all amateurs. Handsome medals will be awarded the winners of each event.

This forenoon, commencing at 11 o'clock sharp, the annual championship all-event gymnastic tournament will be held at the Olympic Club grounds. About thirty of the leading all-round athletes have entered, and the struggle for the championship will be a great one. The tournament shall consist of the following events: horizontal bar; parallel bar; side horse; long horse, back; rings, 100 yard run; running broad jump, pole vault; putting 16th shot. The winners of the late gymnastic competitions at San Jose, Cal., will take part and as they are in tip top condition the members of the other clubs will be obliged to work hard to secure some of the prizes. The price of admission has been fixed at twenty-five cents for gentlemen, ladies free. The entire expense of the tournament will fall on the Olympic Club, and it is to be hoped that the members will be more liberal in patronizing this meeting than they have been on past occasions.

The sixth annual games of the New York Letter Carriers Association will be held at Lion Park, New York City, on Monday, July 4th. Among the events will be a one mile walk to decide the Post Office championship of the United States. There will also be a five mile run open to all runners, to decide the championship of America. The prizes for this race will consist of a fine diamond medal, donated by Richard K. Fox, of the Police Gazette, and $50 in cash to first man, $15 to second, and $10 to third. All the crack long distance runners in and around New York will take part in this event.

The annual out-door championship meeting for 1892 is an affair of the past, and many of the runners and jumpers who helped to make the meeting a success have gone away on their vacations. There will not be much done in the way of out-door sport for a couple of months, and when the next held day is announced it is to be hoped that the Olympic Club boys will get in again with a good will, and continue to uphold the athletic standing of their club. Their late defeat by the students from Berkeley should not in the least discourage them; in fact, it should be the means of prompting them to get into better condition than ever. Between now and next Decoration Day is a long time, and if the O. A. C. athletes will only make up their minds to train faithfully and patiently from now on, they will stand as good a chance as ever of winning back their lost laurels when the next championship day arrives. The victory of the University men will certainly help to boom athletics, for the public were growing weary of one-sided meetings. If both clubs will only turn out their entire force, with every man in good condition, the third championship meeting of the Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union will be one of the greatest out-door athletic meetings that has ever been held this side of the Rocky Mountains. It is safe to presume that over five thousand people will attend the games next year. There is a rumor to the effect that the students are about to withdraw from the association and form one of their own. We hope that this rumor is without foundation, for never before in the annuals of athletics on the Pacific Coast has the public taken as much interest in athletic sports as at the present time. What is most needed is competition, and if the two leading clubs separated, them the boom would suddenly die out again, and public interest would accordingly drop below zero. Before arriving at any conclusion, the U. C. athletes should think seriously over the matter, and they should not lose sight of the fact that when one club alone is represented at a field-day, the contests being one-sided, are not nearly as interesting to the public as if there were two evenly-matched factions in the field.

The place of holding the Cal. Division L. A. W. race-meet has been changed from Sacramento to Stockton, and the races will be held at the Banner Island Park grounds in that city on July 4th.

The members of the Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club will also hold a series of bicycle races on the same day at their grounds at Schuetzen Park, Alameda, Cal.

The new club house of the Olympic Club is almost finished, and members are highly pleased with its fine appearance. As soon as the building is opened, it is probable that the membership of the club will be largely increased.

The Latest Invention for Horsemen.

Full Length 24 In.

DR. N. F. CANADAY'S IMPREGNATOR.

Mares that are difficult and uncertain to get with foal can be gotten with foal with certainty with this instrument. Simple and easy to use. Any horseman can use it. Two or more mares can be impregnated with one service of the horse, thereby saving the vitality of the horse and securing better and stronger colts. The semen can be transferred with my instrument with as much certainty as by the service of the horse. This instrument is the result of several years of study and experimenting of Dr. Canaday, who has practiced medicine twenty-three years, and he places it on the market with full confidence that it will give satisfaction to horsemen. For impregnating "hard breeders" it has no equal, and is the only perfect instrument made for artificial impregnating which CAN and HAS been done successfully, as you can see by reports of horsemen in their papers. Every horseman should have this instrument or fall behind the times. ANY INFRINGEMENT ON MY INVENTION WILL BE PROSECUTED.

Sent by mail prepaid to any part of the United States or Canada, upon receipt of price, $10.00. Send money by draft, money order or registered letter. The money must accompany the order to receive attention.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

(Sire of Silky 2:26,| Anna Belle 2:27½, Oaknut 2:24¼, Dot 2:29½.)

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2.18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood has record of 2:18¾ in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

BOSWELL, JR.

Will stand at the same place at the low price of $50 the season.

BOSWELL JR., sired by Boswell (a son of Almont 33), dam Nellie B., by Kirtley's Patchen; grandam Sophie (grandam of Nancy Hanks, 2:09), by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; great grandam by Parker's Brown Pilot. This stallion Boswell was purchased by King Kalakaua from Gen. W. T. Withers, Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky. Boswell Jr.'s dam, Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, sire of Frank Fisk, 2:29; second dam by Hamilton Chief, son of Royal George 9; third dam the Dooley Mare, MAUDE started in twenty-one races and won eighteen first moneys, and is well known to all horsemen. BOSWELL JR. showed miles in 2:26 and quarters in 35 seconds on two weeks' work.

Mares stabled or pastured (as owners may desire) on reasonable terms. All bills payable before the animal is removed. No liability for accidents. Best fences in the country. Address,

HARRY J. AGNEW, Hillsdale, Santa Clara County.

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

*Balkan.

BALKAN 8848

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000,

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

ABDOL 17,716.

RECORD, 2:28.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16½, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20, dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training or this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud inOregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

DIRECTOR JR.

- Director, 2:17 — Sire of Direct 2:06; Margaret S. 2:12½; Evangeline 2:19; Guide 2:16¼; Emma 2:24¼; and 7 others in the 2:30 list.
  - DICTATOR — Sire of Jay-Eye-See 2:10; Director 2:17; Phallas 2:13¾; Code 2:22¼; D. C. 2:23; Dictator Chief 2:21½ and 22 others in the list.

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

TERMS: $40 FOR THE SEASON.

LIMITED TO FIFTEEN APPROVED MARES.

EROS

5326.

RECORD, 2:29 1-2.

Will make the season of 1892, up to July 1st, at San Jose Track, San Jose, Cal.

TERMS, $250 FOR THE SEASON.

Due at time of service, with privilege of return if mare or horse have not changed hands,

EROS IS

STANDARD BY HIS SIRE, ELECTIONEER, THE GREATEST PRODUCER OF SPEED THAT EVER LIVED.

STANDARD THROUGH HIS DAM, SONTAG MOHAWK, THE GREATEST PRODUCING BROODMARE ALIVE.

STANDARD BY HIS OWN PERFORMANCE, MADE IN A RACE, IN THE FIFTH AND FINAL HEAT, AGAINST A FIELD OF EIGHT HORSES.

STANDARD BY HIS PRODUCE—SIX IN THE LIST, AND INCLUDING HIS ENTIRE FIRST YEAR'S CROP OF COLTS.

Good pasturage can be obtained at $6 per month, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. There are a number of box-stalls, and mares can be kept up and fed hay and grain, if desired, at reasonable prices. Mares can be sent to the track for foaling, and will receive all the care and attention possible. For particulars apply to

The Fast Trotting Stallion

SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list: second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc.) by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾ Harry Clay 2:23¾; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted—so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17½, 2:17½, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

The Best Representatives of the Great Almont Family in California,

ALCONA 730.

Sire of ALCONA JR., record 2:24; FLORA BELLE, record 2:24; CLAY DUKE, record 2:29; PRINCE WARWICK, trial 2:18; ALMONITION, 3-year-old trial 2:22.

Grandsire of SILAS SKINNER, record 2:17; DEL REY, record 2:29; MARK MEDIUM, record 2:24.

"LACONA" made a 2-year-old race record of 2:42½, with 17 days track work. Every one of the above descendants of ALCONA were trained by different men, in different parts of the country, and all made their records in races over regulation tracks. ALCONA is 14 years old and has already two producing sons an a producing daughter. TERMS, $75 FOR THE SEASON.

GRANDISSIMO 14,995. RECORD, 2:27 3-4. (FULL BROTHER TO GRANDEE, THREE-YEAR-OLD RECORD, 2:23½). Sired by La Grande 2868, dam Norma, by Arthurton 365; grandam Nourmahal, full sister to A. W. Richmond 1687.

GRANDISSIMO got his first work last season better than 3 minutes November 11, 1891. Was worked out four times and trotted to a record of 2:27¾ in a race Thanksgiving Day at Napa, finishing the last quarter in 36 seconds. Fifteen days training,—certainly a remarkable showing. I expect him to get a low mark next season. His colts are fine lookers and natural trotters. He will be bred to a limited number of mares at the low price of $50 FOR THE SEASON.

ALCONEER 15120. (FULL BROTHER TO ALCONA JR., 2:24, SIRE OF SILAS SKINNER, 2:17). Sired by ALCONA 730, dam Madonna (dam of Alcona Jr., 2:24, Del Rey, 2:29), by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22); grandam by Joe Downing 710.

ALCONEER is a handsome, good-sized horse, and a natural trotter. With two months training last fall as a 3-year-old he trotted a mile in 2:41; last quarter in 37½ seconds. TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON.

CADUCAS 10,840. Sired by ALMONT MEDIUM 2133, record 2:28½, dam Amelia T. (full sister to Prince Warwick, trial 2:18), by Alcona 730; grandam by Almont Mambrino 761; g g d by Delmonico 110; g g g d by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22. CADUCAS is a handsome individual, and will make a trotter. His pedigree is all one could desire. He will be bred to a few mares at the low price of $25 FOR THE SEASON.

KING WHIPPLETON (Standard). PRIVATE STALLION.

Sired by WHIPPLETON 1883, dam Kate Chapman, by Naubuc 504; grandam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31 g g d by Ethan Allen 2903.

The season to commence February 1st. ALCONA'S season to close September 1st. GRANDISSIMO, ALCONEER and CADUCAS' season to close July 1st, as I expect to trot them during the circuit. Mares can be shipped by rail from any part of the State direct to St. Helena or by boat to Napa City, where they will be looked after. The very best of pasturage at $4 per month; hay and grain $3 per month for mares if necessary. Mares kept same as my own at $60 per year. Mares not proving with foal can be returned the following season free Should any of my stallions die or be sold, mares will be returnable to any of my other stallions by paying difference in service, if any. CONDITIONS.

No horses and colts owned on the Pacific Coast by others than members of the P. C. T. H. B. A. are eligible to the above purses, but horses owned outside of the Pacific Coast are eligible thereto, regardless of membership.

All States and Territories lying in whole or in part west of the Rocky Mountains, are held to be part of the Pacific Coast.

The Directors reserve the right to change the hour and day of any race, except when it becomes necessary to ante-date a race, in which instance the nominator will receive three days notice of change by mail to address of entry.

Entries not declared out by six P. M. of the day preceding the race, shall be required to start.

When there is more than one entry to purses by one person or in one interest, the horse to be started must be named by six P. M., of the day preceding the race.

Five to enter and three to start.

Purses and stakes will be divided into four moneys, viz., fifty per cent to the winner, twenty-five per cent to the second horse, fifteen percent to the third horse, and ten per cent to the fourth horse.

Three horses required in all purse races. The right reserved to declare two starters a walk-over.

Trotting and racing colors shall be named by 6 o'clock on the day preceding the race, and MUST be worn upon the track.

Otherwise than the above National Trotting Association Rules will govern. Suspensions and expulsions of the American Trotting Association will be recognized.

Applications for Membership.

Persons desiring of making entries in purses and who have not as yet joined the P. C. T. H. B. A., should make application for membership to the Secretary, before July 20th, 1892.

Training
The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

A TRAINING AND DEVELOPING FARM.

THE SOUTHER FARM makes a specialty of everything connected with Conditioning, Balancing, Developing, Swimming and Training for Speed. A New Mile Track has just been finished and the plant is very complete.

THE SWIMMING TANK is doing everything that was expected of it, and more. It is simply invaluable in getting horses into condition for fast work, and its use takes out any soreness caused by training for speed. If a horse goes wrong at any point the swimming in salt water does wonders in the way of repairing damages, while the lungs, heart, back and shoulders are developed and no extra flesh is taken on.

MOTIVE POWER HERCULES Gas and Gasoline ENGINES.

Have fewer parts, and are therefore less likely to get out of order than any other gas or gasoline engines now built. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day.

MAKES NO SMELL OR DIRT.

No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark.

For Simplicity it Beats the World.
It Oils itself Automatically.
No Batteries or Electric Spark.

It runs with a Cheaper Grade of Gasoline than any other Engine.

Training and Speeding Carts
TAKE THE LEAD.

The Training Cart Weighs from 55 to 75 lbs.

Price from $60 to $65.

Speeding Cart

Made on the same principal, except that it has no Springs, and is coupled shorter than the Training Cart. A horse can be hitched up as close to the driver as in a Sulky.

The Arms to which the Seat is fastened have just spring enough to relieve the jar.

Weight from 45 to 65 Pounds.

Price from $60 to $65.

These carts can be finished up in extra fine style at an additional cost of from $5 to $10. They are made from the best material, all steel braces and only Dalzell axles used, which are the best axles made.

A Fine Site For a Breeding and Stock Farm,

Situated Among the Most Famous Group of Stock Farms in California.

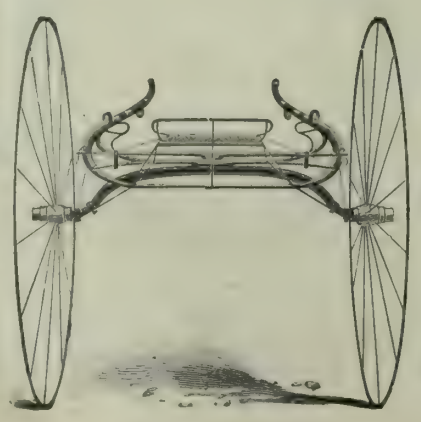
A SPECIAL BARGAIN!

200 ACRES PERFECTLY LEVEL LAND PORTION OF THE FAMOUS SANTA RITA Rancho at Pleasanton, Alameda County, about 50 minutes from Oakland pier, 15 minutes from the local depot, bordering on the County road.

Land perfectly square in form, all well fenced into five fields; good dwelling, large barn, etc.; garden, fine shade trees, plenty pure water in spring and well; good shade for stock. Land all under cultivation except portion used at present for pasture.

The soil is a deep, rich sediment, easily worked at any time, without gravel or adobe, suitable for wheat, barley, alfalfa, vegitables, fruit of all kinds. This is the finest natural grass and alfalfa land in the State—green grass the year round. One hundred acres of this land will keep as many horses as 500 acres of the general run of land. Just the place for a breeding and stock farm. This is evidenced by the fact that Valensin's the home of Sidney, Salisbury's the home of Director, McCarty's, and many others are grouped in the immediate vicinity. Excellent place for a track—no gravel in the soil. Fine view; surroundings very beautiful; climate perfection, being the desired medium between the coldness of the coast and the warmth of localities lying further east. A piece of property which is perfect, and a beautiful home. Schools and churches at hand. Title perfect. Owner about to retire. This property will be sold at a special bargain and on the easiest terms, viz:

ONE-THIRD or ONE-HALF CASH



Balance at 7 per cent. for time to suit purchaser.

☞WILL SELL ONE-HALF OF PROPERTY ON SAME TERMS.

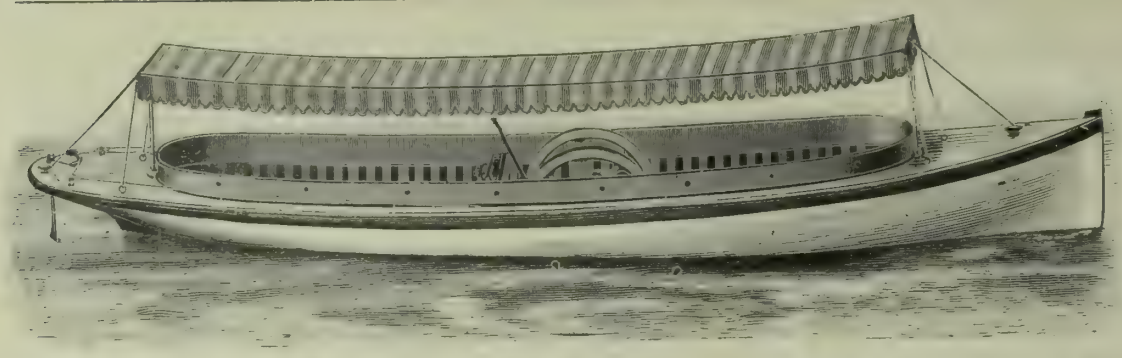
ANTI-STIFF

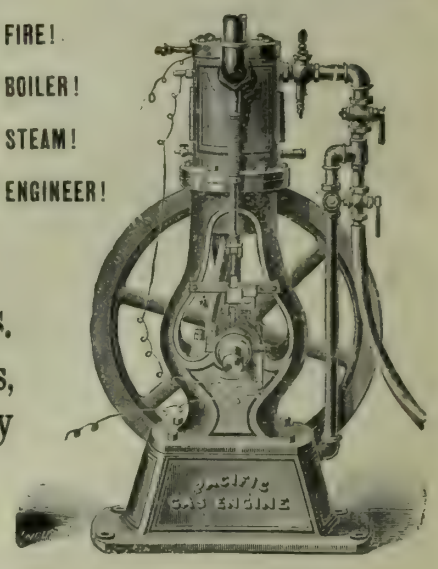
To Strengthen the Muscles.



To Strengthen the Muscles.

It is a marvelous preparation for Strengthening the Muscular System. With Anti-Stiff there is no faith required; it goes straight for the muscles, and you can feel it at work. It has a peculiarly warming, comforting and stimulating effect on all weak or stiff muscles and sinews. Quick in its action, cleanly and pleasant in use. Rub it into the muscles every night for a fortnight, and you will be pleased at its supporting and strengthening properties. There is not, nor has been, anything like it till now. It differs from all Oils, Embrocations and Liniments, both in substance and effect. Some Athletes are so fond of it that they rub it all over them.

Price 20c. and 35c. per box.



Trainers size, $1,00.

CALIFORNIA HORSES IN FRONT.

Last Saturday a Great Day for the Golden Gaters—Montana Wins the Suburban Handicap and Yo Tambien the Rich Garfield Derby.

NEW YORK, June 18—Another Suburban has been run. The first money goes to a Pacific Coaster, Marcus Daly, the owner of Montana, the honors to California.

The result can hardly be called a surprise since Montana's trial Thursday. Then again, the only Garrison wore Marcus Daly's colors.

The threatening weather had its effects on the attendance at the Coney Island Jockey Club's track, though nearly 25,000 people passed through the gates. Suburban day at Sheepshead is called the "Darby day" of America by those who have been across the pond.

The women in smart gowns accompanied by their escorts came in flocks and filled up the front rows of the grand stand, where for hours before the horses went to the post they sat and munched their luncheons, which they had brought with them. And they were not all of the class of women who are constant attendants at races, and who know pedigrees and jockeys as well as any man. Many familiar faces usually to be seen on big days at the races did not materialize, owing to the counter attraction at Chicago. Representative New Yorkers however, were not lacking. Cornelius Vanderbilt jostled shoulders with W. A. Harper of Harper's Weekly. Arthur White and Julius Chambers were on the steps of the club house. Pierre Lorillard, Freddy Gebhard, Secretary Tracy of the Navy and Ward McAllister were mixed up in the throng which hovered between the cafe and the roof.

Well-known Californians were to be seen on the grand stand, in the ring and on the lawn. Harry Keene with his wife and Miss Nevins made a pretty picture in one of the boxes. Then there was Foxhall Keene, with his sedate-looking father, James R. Keene, and T. J. Edmonson, J. G. Follansbee, Henry Janin, A. F. Wolcott, Senator L. J. Rose, Ed. Kelly, the son of Banker Kelly, B. Lande, George McAnaniny, "Jim" Tychnor, Governor Murphy of Arizona, J. B. Haggin, all recognizable by their modest ways as being from the other side of the Rockies.

The event of the day was the fourth on the card. Thousands of dollars poured into the ring. It seemed as if everybody was "playing" Montana. The odds were cut to 2 to 1, though the son of Ban Fox had to contend with such lively ones as Major Domo, His Highness, Pessara, Locohatchee, Lamplighter, Raceland and Poet Scout, with Russell, Tournament and Picnicker thrown in.

The bookies handled lots of money, placed on His Highness, Major Domo, Pessara and the others. Naturally there was no bookmaker brave enough to make a one, two, three bets against Montana, Major Domo, His Highness, Locohatchee, Pessara or Poet Scout. Even the others were odds at a short price.

At 4:20 the horses were at the post. Previous to that they had the usual parade. There were six breaks. Taral, on Pessara, was the first to receive Jimmy Rowe's rebuke. It looked like a fair start, with all of them bunched, but when Taral saw he wasn't to get the best of it he turned around, forcing a new start. "The Snapper," on Montana, sat his mount steadily, watching Fitzpatrick on Raceland and Hamilton on Locohatchee.

Isaac Murphy kept His Highness moving in and out, trying some cute jockeying, but it did no good. "Get back behind that line or I'll give you all $250 apiece." yelled Rowe, the starter. After the sixth false start Garrison began moving up a little, sneaking about here and there, and looking as innocent as a cat, but just as alert as one watching a mouse. Lambley on Major Domo was near the front all the time. Poet Scout kept near the rail in company with Lamplighter and Tournament. Garrison, on the favorite, maintained his place about the center of the group with his head cocked to the right or left.

The horses had been at the post eighteen minutes maneuvering for the best of it. They were in a fair bunch, ready to leap forward in the race. "Now then," some one said. Every jockey bent over the neck of his mount. There was a jumble of color, a muffled thunder of hoofs, and down came the red flag. They were off for good, no one with the best of it, but Picnicker and Locohatchee with something the worst of it.

A roar goes up from the excited thousands in the grand stand. The race for the Suburban had begun. For just one moment they are together; then out from the closely bunched field comes Major Domo, with Lambley digging his heels into the big black horse's sides and urging him onward. The uncertain Russell, bearing the Morris scarlet, is nearest to him, with Pessara and Tournament close behind. Locohatchee is far in the rear, with Raceland by his side.

As they thunder by the grand stand Lambley is still urging Major Domo. There is a glimpse of daylight between him and Russell, the nearest of his pursuers. Pessara is third and Tournament fourth. At Tournament's saddle skirts is His Highness' heels. Far away in the rear, twenty lengths from the leaders, although the first quarter has hardly been passed, is Montana, the favorite, and his backers grow uneasy as they see the big black horse off there in front gaining at every stride. Locohatchee, of all the eleven, is alone behind Montana.

The pace increases every moment and the patch of daylight between the leader and the field broadens. As they swing around the first turn and enter the backstretch Major Domo is three lengths before the field. For an instant Tournament shows a glimpse of his old-time speed, and sweeping by Russell, pushes out for the leader. Pessara is fourth, Taral already wearing an anxious look, with His Highness close up to the rail, the sphinx-faced Murphy biding his time.

Back where a cloud of dust hangs over the supposed beaten ones is Montana; Garrison is bending over his horse's neck and has already begun to urge him up the far-away backstretch the black horse still carries his field, every moment quickening his extraordinary pace, every moment increasing his tremendous lead. Half the journey has now been passed. They are well up the backstretch, and the field, which left the starter in a solid line, is strung along in disorderly array like a shot-swept regiment. Far away in front is Major Domo, with Tournament and Russell lengths behind him. Pessara and His Highness lead the struggling rank behind.

Creeping along close to the rail, sitting so high in the saddle that he seems to be riding on his horse's neck, his head bent low, came Garrison and Montana. Old Raceland is the first they pass, and then Lewis Stewart's Picknicker, and then the Western Poet Scout, and at last the white-starred Lamplighter. They have passed through the dust-laden crowd of the hopelessly beaten, and there is still a chance left for victory. But what a chance!

Major Domo has now increased his lead until nearly ten lengths separate him from the nearest of the field behind. Tournament and Russell, after vainly striving to keep pace with him, have fallen back utterly defeated. The crowd has already begun to shout, "A runaway race; a runaway race."

At last Isaac Murphy calls upon His Highness. For an instant the gallant horse responds, but the awful pace and handicapper's heavy weight have done their work, and the famous colt falls slowly back. In vain Murphy tries whip and spur. His Highness has run his race. He can do no more, and the best-backed three-year-old that ever faced the starter is hopelessly beaten.

There is a movement in the far rear, and a shout goes up that Lamplighter has begun to race. Close behind him comes the ill-fated Locohatchee. The field is shifting and changing every moment, and still the black horse continues his breathless rush as they come around the turn and leave the backstretch. Major Domo is leading his field by half a dozen open lengths. Garrison and Montana are now the nearest to him. Pessara is third, but is tiring fast. Lamplighter is slipping into fourth place, hard-ridden by Bergen. Locohatchee has left old Raceland and Picnicker, whose riders have given up all hope of victory, and is closing on the leaders. Major Domo has now entered the stretch. Victory is now just within his grasp, and he is fully six open lengths away. Lambley looks over his shoulder. There is nothing in that field to trouble him.

All at once Garrison begins to ride Montana, to ride him as only Garrison can ride; to ride with whip and spur; to ride with knees and hands; and Montana responds.

When Lambley turns again in the saddle his six lengths' lead has melted into three. He sits down in his saddle in a frightened way and begins to urge his horse. Major Domo is passing the last eighth-pole. The Judges are just a furlong away, and there are three good honest lengths of daylight between the black horse and Montana. And now Lamplighter, under whip and spur, comes driving through, and when Lambley again looks back Montana is two lengths away, and Lamplighter is at Montana's heels.

The grand stand is mad with excitement. They are within a hundred yards of the finish, and Major Domo is still leading. A mere glimmer of daylight is between him and Montana. Hanging grimly to Montana's side is Lamplighter, with Bergen riding the most desperate finish of his life.

Suddenly a groan comes up from the Major Domo men. The black horse is stopping. The tremendous pace has at last told on him. That resistless speed which carried all before it had left a poor, tired, broken horse. Still he struggles on, but is in evident distress. He is not twenty yards from the finishing line. With every stride Montana and Lamplighter are closing on the faltering favorite.

Lambley gives one last frightened look. Garrison is at his side. For a moment the horses are together. Then, almost as they are crossing the finishing line, Garrison, with a last, supreme effort, in the most stirring finish ever seen on an Eastern race track, lifts Montana in, a winner by a clean neck. Major Domo lasts just long enough to beat Lamplighter out for place by the shortest kind of a head.

Fractional time—Quarter, 0:24; half mile, 0:49 1-5; six furlongs, 1:15 2-5; mile, 1:54 4-5; one mile and a quarter, 2:07 2-5.

Following was the post betting on the Suburban, the weights and the riders:

Betting.	Horse.	Rider	Weight.
2½ to 1	Montana, 4	Garrison	115
6 to 1	Major Domo, 6	Lambley	115
10 to 1	Lamplighter, 3	Berger	104
3 to 1	Locohatchee, 3	Hamilton	102
4 to 1	His Highness, 4	Murphy	112
6 to 1	Pessara, 4	Taral	122
6 to 1	Raceland, 4	Fitzpatrick	124
10 to 1	Tournament, 5	Narvaez	112
15 to 1	Poet Scout, 4	Sims	118
15 to 1	Picnicker, 4	Hayward	117
20 to 1	Russell, 4	Littlefield	116

Montana, the Suburban Handicap winner of 1892, is a big bay four-year-old colt with white around coronet of right hind foot, was foaled February 13, 1888, the property of J. B Haggin at Rancho del Paso, near Sacramento. He was sired by Ban Fox, the sensational son of imported King Ban and Maud Hampton, by Hunter's Lexington, and was purchased on July 1, 1889, at the yearling sale of the Haggin youngsters by Marcus Daly, the Montana copper king. Montana's dam was imp. Queen, by Scottish Chief (son of Lord of the Isles and Miss Ann, by The Little Known), sire of the dam of Common, England's triple winner of 1891; second dam Gertrude (dam of Hollandais), by Parmesan; third dam Tamarind, by King Tom; fourth dam Mincemeat (dam of Tomato, winner One Thousand Guineas of 1864); fifth dam Hybla (dam of Vivode and Kettledrum, latter Epsom Derby winner of 1861); sixth dam Otisina, sister to the great Lanercost, by Liverpool. It will thus be seen that Montana is royally-bred, his sire being a superior race horse and out of Maud Hampton, dam also of King Fox, the best two-year-old of his day. As a two-year-old Montana started but three times, his first essay being successful. It was in the Carteret Handicap, worth $8,760 to the winner, and in that event he defeated Russell, Sorcerer, Correction, Contribution, Captain Wagner and Bermuda, among others, going the three-quarters in 1:12½ with 110 pounds up. Montana then ran fourth in The Futurity, with eleven others behind him, and fifth in the Great Eastern Handicap, and retired for the balance of the season. As a three-year-old Montana won one race only out of nine starts, but was placed in a number of his races. In the Realization he was only beaten a nose by Potamac, and had the race been fifty yards further the Californian would have won it, for he was coming strongest at the finish. His three-year-old win was in the Lorillard Stakes, worth to the owner of the winner $17,255. He won this in a canter by four lengths, Strathmeath, Pessara, Kildeer, Reckon and two others being behind him. His victories this season are too recent to give extended notice. Major Domo, who ran second to Montana, also got the place last year, when Loantaka won the event. Richmond and Terra Cotta also got second money twice in the Suburban during their racing careers.

Following are the winners of the Suburban Handicap in years past, with the second horses, the time and the value of the stake to the owner of the winner:

YEAR.	WINNER.	SECOND HORSE.	TIME	VALUE.
1884	General Monroe	War Eag'e	2:11¾	$ 4,945
1885	Pontiac	Richmond	2:09½	5,855
1886	Troubadour	Richmond	2:12¼	5,697
1887	Eurus	Oriflamme	2:12	6,065
1888	Elkwood	Terra Cotta	2:07¼	6,812
1889	Raceland	Terra Cotta	2:09 1-5	6,900
1890	Salvator	Cassius	2:06 1-5	6,900
1891	Loantaka	Major Domo	2:07	9,900
1892	Montana	Major Domo	2:07 3-5	18,000

It will be seen that this is California's first victory in a Suburban, but Oriflamme was second in 1887. The money was divided this season $18,000, $5,000 and $2,000.

The victory of Montana in the Suburban Handicap over Major Domo resulted in a match race being arranged between these two cracks to take place to-day, Saturday, June 25th, at the Sheepshead Bay track. Secretary C. Fellowes, of the Coney Island Jockey Club sent the following announcement last Monday evening:

"A match race for Saturday, June 25th, at $2,500 each, the association to add $5,000, one mile and one-quarter, Marcus Daly's Montana (115), W. J. Speir's Major Domo (115). Other horses which were entered in th Suburban can enter up to Thursday, June 23d, and make the race a sweepstakes of $2,500 each, and start as originally handicapped for that race, the club to add $5,000, provided that Montana and Major Domo start; if the race be a sweepstake the second to save his stake."

THE GARFIELD DERBY.

Chicago, June 18th.—Yo Tambien, of California, queen among the Western two-year-olds in 1891, and half-sister to the famous El Rio Rey and Emperor of Norfolk, won the Garfield Park Derby to-day. Disputing every inch of the way toward the gool for the $20,000 prize at her saddle in the final stride was Wadsworth, Longfellow's unbeaten son of this year. Four lengths behind him Azra, winner of the Kentucky Derby, gamely finished, while floundering through the deep mud up the stretch nine other three-year-olds straggled in their vain chase for coin and glory. The event was magnetic enough to attract 25,000 persons to Garfield Park, and the vast throng spared no cheers as Tom Britton landed Yo Tambien home after an admirably-ridden race.

Wadsworth's performance proved him nothing short of a horse wonder. Absolutely last at the start, more than six lengths behind his opponent that broke away in front, he plowed through the frightful mud, going with perfect and seemingly a tireless stride, mowed down the flying animals in front one by one, moved in and out to avoid their flying hoofs, and finally, after all the disadvantages under which he labored, he was able to give wonderful Yo Tambien a desperate battle for the money. Wadsworth had all the ill-luck and Yo Tambien carried all the favors. The filly led practically all the way, and when the spurt for the wire became necessary, that one advantage sent her to the paddock a winner.

The green and white of Edward Corrigan might carry in triumph the honors of the finish. It mattered not whether the prize fell to Lew Weir, to Huron or to Cicero. The race as it was showed Wadsworth and Yo Tambien to be the best under the prevailing conditions, but the latter was responsible for much.

Huron's run was surprisingly poor, but Lew Weir's race was little short of marvelous, and Cicero was highly dangerous, indeed, for a maiden. Galindo, too, did better than could be expected of E. J. Baldwin's splendid colt, and Azra, to which little or no thought was given as he sliced off a bit of the stake, was a true and game race horse.

Falero and Wightman were at no time factors. Blitzen and London were only in the way, and Notus, despised by the speculators, flickered prominently for three furlongs, then fell back exhausted.

On a good track the race would have been a grand contest of speed, and while Wadsworth, Azra and Yo Tambien acquitted themselves nobly as compared with their former achievements on the turf, the result would surely have been disputed by the trio of candidates that bore the colors of Corrigan and the hopes of multitudes.

The scene in the paddock before the Derby was an animated one. So crowded was the place, as the Derby candidates followed each other in single file around the pathway, that the horses were forced to walk between two solid lines of enthusiasts, who jostled each other and craned their necks to get a chance to "size up" the condition of the contestants.

Yo Tambien was saddled at her stable, owing to the fact that she is of nervous temperament, and when she was led through the gateway on her way to the post she exhibited a decided aversion to Britton's presence in the saddle and lashed out vigorously. She bucked and jumped several times before she could be induced to go out on the track.

After the race Britton came riding back to the paddock in state, bearing the purse, about as capacious as a salt sack, at arm's length. After dismounting he walked about for a while with it in his hand looking for Chris Smith. Failing to find him, he handed it to his valet, who in turn started on a voyage of discovery with the $17,000 bank roll dangling from his finger tips. Finally Smith came along. He immediately presented the lucky jockey with a crisp $1,000 bill.

Falero got off first, with Blitzen and Notus a head apart. At the quarter Yo Tambien led by a head, Galindo and Notus close up. At the half Lew Weir led by a neck, and Yo Tambien and Galindo lapped. At the three-quarters Yo Tambien was a neck in front, Wadsworth and Galindo third. At the mile Yo Tambien led by a length, Wightman and Huron neck-and-neck and Azra coming fast. Yo Tambien won by a length and a half, Wadsworth second, Azra third. Time, 2:40¾.

Following was the betting on the Garfield Derby at the post, the weights and the jockeys:

Betting.	Horse.	Rider.	Weight.
1 to 1	Yo Tambien	Thorpe	117
2 to 1	Wadsworth	Ray	122
5 to 1	Azra	Britton	127
8 to 5	Huron	Overton	115
6 to 1	Galindo	Barnes	122
8 to 1	Cicero	Barrett	127
20 to 1	Wightman	Francis	122
10 to 1	Notus	Hathaway	121
20 to 1	Blitzen	Anderson	225
20 to 1	London	Jones	122
20 to 1	Lew Weir	De Long	120

Yo Tambien is a chestnut filly with a strip of white in her face and some white around coronet of nigh fore foot. She was bred by Theodore Winters, at El Arroyo ranch, near Sacramento, and is by Joe Hooker out of Marion, by Malcolm, son of imp. Bonnie Scotland; second dam Maggie Mitchell, by imp. Yorkshire; third dam Charmer (the best race mare of her day), by imp. Glencoe; fourth dam Betsey Malone, by Stockholder; fifth dam by Potomac; sixth dam by imp. Diomed; seventh dam by Pegasus. "Yo Tambien" means "I also" or "me too." She comes from the most distinguished families in America. Her sire was a good racehorse and most successful in the stud. Her dam, Marion, bred by Joseph Cairn Simpson, of Oakland, is the most remarkable broodmare that ever graced a stock farm in America, producing no less than nine stake-winners, among them being the unbeaten El Rio Rey, and The Czar and the great Emperor and Duchess of Norfolk. The Duke and Prince of Norfolk are siring racehorses right along, and they also came from Marion, for whom the Nevada turfman is said to have paid $600 upon her breaking down. Yo Tambien and her brothers and sisters have won up to date in stakes and purses, in round figures, $212,000, of which amount $188,826 were captured up to the close of 1891, as follows:

Year Foaled.	Name.	Starts.	1st.	2d.	3d.	Unp.	Amount Won.
1885	Emperor of Norfolk	29	21	2	4	2	$73,730
1887	El Rio Rey	7	7	0	0	0	17,535
1888	Rey del Rey	21	5	4	5	10	31,453
1883	King of Norfolk	39	7	5	5	22	8,377
1889	Yo Tambien	13	8	2	1	2	8,115
1879	Duchess of Norfolk	20	11	0	4	5	7,706
1886	The Czar	4	4	0	0	0	6,455

Total amount won to close of 1891	$188,826

This season Yo Tambien has won four races and run second in one—to Bashford. Her best time in 1891 was in the Lakeview Handicap, six furlongs, which she won in 1:14¼, and defeated a field of eight good ones. At the Blood Horse spring meeting of 1891 she twice defeated the pick of the youngsters out this way, but Herald gave her a mighty close run in the last race she made on the Coast. Yo Tambien's first stopping-point in the country east of the Rockies was at St. Louis, where she ran unplaced in a field of nine, Adalia capturing the stake (The Great Western), with Lew Weir in the place. Then came the Lakeview Handicap, mentioned above. Then she took a couple of beatings, won a $600 purse at Garfield Park from Goldstone, Umatilla and two others, conceding all her opponents, weight, was beaten twice more in a row when giving away weight, and then won a $1,000 purse at Garfield Park, three-quarters of a mile, caarying 118 pounds to Gorman's 112, and the 103 of Sunshine Whiskey. Six others were behind the three mentioned. From this on to the end of the season Yo Tambien was successful three times and did not again taste the bitterness of defeat. Her best performance was when she carried 123 pounds in a three-quarter mile race at Garfield Park and ran the distance in 1:16. In this event she gave away from 10 to 21 pounds to her various competitors. However, her mile in 1:44 with 125 pounds up was little behind the win just mentioned above. At the end of the racing season Yo Tambien passed into the hands of a young "plunger" from Detroit, Mich., named Christopher Smith. For Yo Tambien, Dolly McCone and two more thoroughbreds Mr. Winters received $20,000, of which amount $15,000 went toward paying for the winner of the Garfield Derby of 1892. The Smith horses are entered as belonging to the Kendall stable, and have been signally successful during the present season. Yo Tambien wintered at Nashville, Tenn., and made her first appearance on the turf this season at Latonia, finishing in front hands down. Her winnings this season amount to a trifle more than $23,000, the capture of the Garfield Derby alone being worth $17,000 to her lucky owner. That she will add further laurels to the already heavy crown of the Marion family is pretty certain, as there are no signs of weakening in the sturdy Californian up to the present.

SALT LAKE CITY MEETING.

Ottinger, a "Green" Californian, Wins and Gets Into "the List"—Splendid Racing Witnessed by Large Crowds of Enthusiasts.

[Special Correspondence of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

FIRST DAY—TUESDAY, JUNE 14, 1892.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, June 14, 1892.

The race meeting opened before a happy crowd of from 2,000 to 2,200 people, and those present heartily enjoyed the sport from beginning to end. Favorites were succeesful in both events. W. W. P. won his race, the 2:18 pace, with the utmost ease, going the first heat in splendid time—2:18½. President McIntyre, of the Salt Lake Association, came in for no little censure for his actions with Cognac, his own horse, but the judges were firm, and insisted on the horse starting, as he was not ailing, as far as could be discovered after examination. However, W. W. P. shut them out in the initial heat, and that settled the controversy. Ottinger won the 2:40 trot after a warm struggle in the third heat with Dan Velox, and the former, a son of Nephew Jr., trotted every one of the heats below 2:30.

Following is a detailed description of the two races:

Promptly at 2 o'clock the bell rang for the pacers to come to the front, and W. W. P., Don Angus and Pomp responded commendably, but Cognac, the property of President McIntyre, of the Association, and the last man in Utah one would expect to mar the programme, held his horse until the patience of the judges was exhausted. When he did appear his owner announced that he would not allow him to go, but the judges firmly declined to allow such a procedure, and after examining Cognac informed McIntyre that as the horse was now in their possession he would have to go at least one heat.

First heat—The disgruntled owner demurred, but the judges meant business. Another delay was had in making a start, but when the word was given Angus was in the lead, W. W. P. second, Cognac third, and Pomp, who broke badly under the wire, fourth. At the quarter W. W. P. pushed Angus' sulky, at the half his head was on a line with Angus' flank, and at the three quarters he passed him with ease, and came down the homestretch at an easy gait and under the wire four lengths ahead in the splendid time of 2:18½. Pomp and Cognac, both of whom acted badly throughout, endeavored to reach the red flag before the gong sounded, but it dropped in time to shut them out.

The start in the second heat was as even as any ever had in the world. Nose to nose they passed under the wire, but at the first turn W. W. P. went up. Angus, steady as a clock, soon placed a hundred yards or so of daylight between himself and the plucky chestnut. At the half Angus, who had made a skip, passed in 1:11½, while W. W. P., who was now down to business, commenced to overhaul the favorite. At the half, which was reached in 1:50½, Angus weakened, and in the rush the favorite of the Dubois stable passed him and came down the stretch at a 2:15 gait, passing under the wire seven lengths in the lead. Time, 2:25½.

The third and last heat was a walkover for W. W. P. On the first quarter Angus was slightly in the lead, and passed the quarter in 0:34. Before the half, which was made in 1:11, the Denver favorite had the heat in hand, and at the three-quarters led by at least eight lengths when the pole, which was passed in 1:46, was reached. Down the homestretch W. W. P. was driven at a jog, winning heat and race in 2:27½.

Time, 2:18¼, 2:25½, 2:27½.

Betting, before first heat—W. W. P., $20; the field, $15.

Ham. Hitchcock then drove Jayse around in 2:37, in order to clinch a forfeit of $500 which was up on a bet of $1,500 a side made with the owner of Lady Allen some time ago, but who concluded, for some reason, not to carry out the original programme. A bad break marred what would otherwise have been a 2:26 performance.

The 2:40 trot, in which all the talent were interested, brought out Ottinger, Dan Velox, Dazzle, Scott Ashton and Miss Foxle, and a pretty race it was. Foxie had the pole, Dazzle second, Ashton third, Velox fourth, while Ottinger was placed near the outer circle. A fair start was made, but Dazzle was fractious, and from a batallion front the equines formed in a single file with Ottinger (the occasion being his first appearance in racing company) slightly in the lead. At the quarter (0:35) he commenced to pull out, and at the half, Dazzle, who was pressing him, broke, and the star skipped past the mark in 1:14, Velox third, Miss Foxie fourth and Ashton bringing up the rear. The same tale is to be related of the three-quarters, (1:52), and down the home-stretch they came in the following order: Ottinger, Velox, Dazzle, Ashton and Miss Foxie (in a run). Ottinger came in at an easy trot, the blackboard shortly after recording the time as 2:27½, Dazzle, who came in third, was placed in the fifth position for his breaking performances, which in every tase ended in a run.

The second heat of the trot was won by Ottinger, but not until after a close brush with Foxie. Thirty yards from the wire Velox broke, giving Ottinger the lead, Dazzle second and the others in a bunch when the quarter was reached (0:36). At the half (1:16) Ottinger, who was trotting like a veteran, cut the pace for Dazzle, who was followed by Velox, Foxie and Ashton. An the third turn Velox supplanted Dazzle, and at the three-quarters the race could not have been prettier. Ottinger led, but Miss Foxie paid no attention to him, her meat then being Scott Ashton, who was third. On the homestretch it was a fight for place, Ottinger having the heat well in hand. He passed under the wire in 2:26½, followed in the order named by Velox, Miss Foxie, Ashton, with Dazzle, Dubois's green 'un, in the fifth place.

A wind storm came up at this juncture, and after every grain of dust on the grounds had been whirled a thousand times or more the clouds opened and a heavy shower followed. A delay of half an hour was caused by the playfulness of the elements, and another long and vexatious wait was caused by the inability of the judges to secure a driver to take the place of Hitchcock behind Velox, complaint having been made that he was not driving to win. Hitchcock finally pledged his word of honor that he would act square, and at 5:45 the horses began scoring. Half a dozen "tries" were had before Judge Webb was satisfied, but when the signal was given the sight was enough to warm the cockles of even a tout's heart. At the quarter (0:36) Foxie began pressing Ottinger for the pole, and later Velox took a hand in the same game. At the half (1:15) the trio were in a bunch, while Dazzle and Ashton struggled for the fourth place. At this point Velox went up, but before the three-quarters (1:51) was reach he was again second in the procession, with Foxie a close third. The struggle on the homestrecth was a grand and exciting one, Velox gamely contesting every inch of the ground with the stranger, who beat him under the wire by only a head, Foxie third, and Ashton slightly in the lead of Dazzle for fourth place. Time, 2:28¼.

SECOND DAY, THURSDAY, JUNE 16, 1892.

The enforced postponement of the races until to-day did not have the effect of dampening the ardor of lovers of trotting and pacing in the least, but the uncertainty as to whether or not there would be racing doubtless kept many away. Again were the favorites successful, and several thousands of dollars changed hands. Re-Elect the property of B. F. Sprague, of Lodi, entered the 2:30 list and won in fine style after losing the first heat to Bee in 2:27½. Silver Bow, favorite in the 2:20 trot, also dropped the initial heat to one of his competitors, another Californian, Glendine, and the race was a fast and a beautiful one.

The 2:35 trot, purse $400, was the first on the card, and proved to be gamely, and splendidly contested from start to finish. The starters were Bee, Re-Elect, Ed. Biggs and Scott Ashton, who were placed in the order named. When the word was given all but Re-Elect were abreast, and before the quarter was reached (0:36½) it was a battle royal between the demure and deminutive Bee and Biggs, Brigadier's son Before the half (1:14) was passed Bee and Biggs were neck and neck, Re-Elect a good third and Ashton a bad fourth. Bee made the pace too hot at the three-quarters, and Biggs made an obeisance and two skips and a break before Keating again got him down to business, which placed him third, with Ashton close up. Down the homestretch the struggle was a hard one, but Bee, who was hugging the pole, let out a few ounces of her reserve power and came under the wire a head in the lead of Re-Elect and two lengths in the van of Biggs, Ashton barely saving his distance. Time, 2:27½.

The horses were promptly on hand for the second heat, Bee taking the pole, Re-Elect second place, Biggs, third, and Ashton fourth. At the quarter (0:37½) there was no change in positions, but from there to the half (1:13½) Re-Elect cut sticks for Bee, and at the three-quarters (1:51) passed her, Biggs taking her place a second later, and Ashton, who was trotting hard, threw dust in her eyes before the last turn was made. On the stretch Re-Elect, who had the heat well in hand, saved himself, leaving Biggs two lengths in the rear to successfully contest for second place with the Kansas quitter, the poor little Denver hummer, with tail down, bringing up the rear. Time, 2:28.

At the word go for the third heat Re-Elect was at the pole, Ed Biggs was his near neighbor, Ashton came next and Bee was the other one of the quartette. Before the quarter (0:38) was reached the horses were strung out in the order named, and Bee was guilty of a bad break at the station. At the half (1:16½) Re-Elect was still in the lead, Biggs second, and Scott Ashton fourth. The next quarter Re-Elect and Biggs and Bee and Ashton drove in double-team style, the last pair six lengths in the rear until the three-quarters (1:56½) was passed, when they separated and came down the stretch in a bunch. At the seven-eighths Biggs broke badly, but retained second place, Re-Elect leading him by a length. On the stretch the finish was a fighting one, but the pace proved to be too much for Biggs, and second place was his portion, Scott Ashton being third and Bee fourth. Time, 2:32.

The fourth and deciding heat was also a good one. At the quarter (0:37½) Re-Elect was in the lead, Biggs second, Bee third and Ashton a bad fourth. Before the half (1:15) was passed Biggs broke, giving Bee second place. The hummer then gave Re-Elect a brush for the first place, the flyers being in single file until the three-quarters (1:52½) was reached, when all closed in, Bee securing the pole, with Biggs trotting strongly two lengths in advance of Ashton. On the stretch Biggs, who was in good shape to prove a winner, went up, but before reaching the flag here covered and came in a nose ahead of Bee and a length in advance of Ashton, but not strong enough to overhaul Re-Elect. Time, 2:30.

The first heat of the 2:20 trot was a great one. After considerable trouble in getting an even start the horses came down the stretch, I. J. S. at the pole, Otho second, Crown Prince third, Glendine fourth and Silver Bow on the outskirts. When the word was given Otho disappointed the hopes of the tailenders by going up, but Hitchcock got him in shape at the quarter (0:36), at that mark I. J S. being in the lead, Crown Prince second, Glendine fourth and Silver Bow a bad fifth. Before the half Otho again broke, and was joined in the dance a second later by I. J. S. Silver Bow then commenced to forge ahead, and at the five-eighths passed Otho and I. J. S., while Glendine began cutting the pace for Crown Prince, who had maintained the lead for half a mile, although closely pressed. Down the stretch the pace was terrific (a 1:09 gait), Crown Prince, Glendine and Silver Bow coming in a bunch. A hundred yards from the wire Crown Prince dropped a shoe, and the plum was for Glendine and Silver Bow to fight for, the former winning, Silver Bow second, Crown Prince third, Otho fourth and I. J. S. last. Time, 2:22½.

The stars got a good start in the second, Silver Bow taking the lead from the wire, Crown Prince second, Glendine third, Otho fourth and I. J. S. fifth. At the quarter (0:34½) all were in a bunch. To the half (1:10½) Silver Bow retained supremacy, Prince pushing him hard, Otho closely following ahead of Glendine, who skipped a jig for a yard or so, and I. J. S. a bad fifth. To the three-quarters it was for blood between Silver Bow and Crown Prince, with Glendine sandwiched between Otho and I. J. S., who were placed as named. On the stretch Silver Bow was held in, leaving Glendine and Crown Prince, in a most exciting brush, to contest for second place, the former being successful, while Otho had no trouble in securing fourth place from I. J. S. Time, 2:22.

The third heat of the 2:20 trot was one of the finest ever seen on a track in Utah: At the quarter (0:34½), Silver Bow flirted his tail in the race of Glendine, then came Biggs, Otho and I. J. S. In order to show his contempt for his opponents, the Milpitas stallion danced a jig, but before Glendine could pass him he was again at work. At the half (1:10) Crown Prince was at second, while Otho, I. J. S. and Glendine were in a bunch. Then Crown Prince broke and brought up last, Otho taking third until the three-quarters (1:46), when he again took his proper place, leaving Silver Bow and Glendine to engage in a neck-and-neck contest down the stretch, the bay Californian passing under the wire a half a length ahead of Glendine, I. J. S. third, Crown Prince four lengths in the rear, and Otho distanced. Time, 2:22½.

The fourth and last heat was an enthusiasm-provoker, it being a see-saw race from the wire to the half between Silver Bow and Crown Prince. The pace to the quarter was made in 0:34½, Crown Prince lapping the leader's flank, I. J. S. third and Glendine fourth, and from there to the half (1:10) Crown Prince worried the favorite, often poking his nose in the van, and causing I. J. S. to break and give third place to Glendine. At the three-quarters (1:47) Crown Prince slightly weakened, and was content to let Silver Bow forge ahead, and was also polite in the stretch to Glendine, who took second place; but I. J. S. came down with a rush, passed Crown Prince with ease, and, just as the wire was reached, overhauled Glendine, thereby winning third money. As for Silver Bow, he led the procession at an exercise trot, but his three-quarters had been so hot and fast that he landed a winner in the remarkably good time of 2:23½.

THIRD DAY—FRIDAY, JUNE 18.

The twenty-two hundred enthusiasts that attended to-day's races could not conscientiously ask for a more exciting time than resulted. Two dead heats in one race, and seven heats were required ere a winner was announced in the 2:30 pace, and every mile was made in 2:30 or better, too. The talent took a hard fall in the 2:25 trot when Dr. K. D. Wise's Adelaide McGregor was beaten in three straight heats by the Salt Laker, I. J. S. The assemblage howled itself hoarse over the Maggie H. race, for never had there been seen in Utah a grander struggle for supremacy. The judges properly sat down on the jobbers in the running race, "won" by Barton H., by declaring all bets off. Not a mark of whip or spur could be found on Idaho Chief, who was pulled back third and ridden to lose in the most glaring style. Several holders of Idaho Chief tickets tore up their pasteboards, and afterwards kicked themselves black and blue for so doing.

In the 2:30 pace, purse $550, Mattie H., Lydia Allen, Jayse and Geraldine started, being assigned to positions in the order named. While interesting it was at no time exciting, although Geraldine, the favorite, was beaten with ease by Maggie H. At the first turn Geraldine was in the lead. Jayse, behind whom was "Hoodoo" Hitchcock, broke, and at the quarter (0:37) Geraldine increased her lead, closely pushed by Maggie H., until the half (1:13½) was passed, when Lydia also made a spurt, bunching the two, with Jayse six lengths in the rear. On the last half Geraidine took first place, and the race was then between Maggie H. and Lydia, but the latter went up and passed the three-quarters at a gallop, the Ogden black meanwhile coming down the stretch with the regularity of a machine, passing under the wire first, Lydia Allen second, Geraldine third and the hoodoo outfit fourth. Time, 2:27½.

Another grand "go" was recorded in the second heat of the pace, Maggie H. and Geraldine giving as fine a finish as one could wish for, it being a dead heat between them. From the wire Jayse took a slight lead, Geraldine second and Maggie H. third and Lydia fourth. Before the quarter (0:36) Jayse broke, and on the stretch to the half (1:12) Geraldine forged ahead, with Lydia a close second and Maggie H. in with the play. Jayse was out of sight. To the three-quarters (1:47) it was a grand race between Lydia and Maggie H., who overhauled Geraldine on the stretch, and down the trio came with a rush three abreast, while Jayse, who had crawled up unnoticed, broke badly and came in on a gallop two lengths behind Lydia, who lapped the sulkies of Maggie H. and Geraldine, they passing under the wire, nose-to-nose, in 2:35.

The third heat of the pace was not up to the standard set by the previous heats, but it was sufficiently exciting at the close to offset the defects of the performance on the first turn. From the word, Geraldine took the lead and at the quarter (0:37) she led Jayse by two lengths and Lydia Allen by three, while Maggie H. went all to pieces and came to a walk before getting in form. To the half the order was of a processional nature, Maggie H. bringing up the rear in a tantrum. At the three-quarters (1:45) Geraldine still led, Jayse a close second, Lydia third and Maggie H. close enough to save a distance. On the stretch Jayse and Geraldine made a gallant fight for first place, but the California mare was the pluckiest, landing a winner, Sayse second, Maggie H. third, Lydia fourth. Time, 2:27.

Another dead heat was recorded in the fourth between Geraldine and Maggie H., a most unusual occurrence. At the turn Goraldine was in the lead, Jayse acting wild and taking fourth place. At the quarter (0:38) Geraldine headed Maggie H. by a length and Lydia sawed wood ahead of Jayse. To the half (1:15) the struggle was an interesting one, the black keeping Geraldine down to her work in admirable style. and at the three-quarters (1:52) she was in the lead until the stretch was entered, when Geraldine forged to the front, but was quickly paired by Maggie, who came down at a reckless gait under heavy whipping and touched noses with her plucky antagonist as the wire was passed, Lydia third and Jayse fourth. Time, 2:27.

The fifth heat was a virtual walkover for Geraldine, Maggie H. giving up the struggle for first place at the first turn. Geraldine passed the quarter in 0.36, six lengths to the good, Lydia second and Jayse and Maggie H. going up the backstretch in a double song and dance style, the leaders leaving the half behind them in 1:14. Then "Ham" Hitchcock kindly allowed Jayse to dance a Highland fling, throwing him in the rear several lengths at the three-quarters (1:49). On the turn Lydia also joined hands and circled to the left, and in Indian file the racers came down the stretch and under the wire, Geraldine first, Maggie H. second, Lydia Allen third and Jayse fourth. Time, 2:29.

In the sixth heat only Geraldine and Maggie H. responded to the gong, the others not having won a heat in five being relegated to the stable. At the turn Geraldine took the lead, and at the quarter (0:3 $1\frac{1}{2}$) the California mare led by a length. On the half 1:1 $6\frac{1}{2}$ the black commenced to crawl up, until at the three-quarters (1:53) they were eye and eye. On the stretch, Geraldine, as game a three-year-old as ever dragged a sulky, broke under the fearful strain, and for the remainder of the course galloped in two lengths behind Maggie H. who was going at an easy pace, finishing in 2:28$\frac{1}{2}$.

The seventh and deciding heat was won by Maggie H., but not without a hard struggle. At the quarter (0:37) Geraldine led by a length, but before the half (1:16) was reached the black was on even terms and to the three-quarters (1:52) they paced as one. On the stretch Maggie H. responded nobly to the commands of her driver and skipped to the front in easy style, maintaining that position to the finish, landing at the wire two lengths in the lead. Time, 2:30.

The 2:35 trot, purse $1,000, was a great one for the talent, and the crowd picked out Charley David's Nevada for the winner. At the start I. J. S. had the pole, Red Bird second, Nevada third and MacGregor fourth. The same positions were held around the turn, when Red Bird pushed I. J. S. for the lead, and at the quarter (0:36) I. J. S. was second, Nevada third and the beauty fourth. To the half (1:14) the pace was a killing one, I. J. S. taking the lead and maintaining it to the three-quarters (1:51), when Nevada came to the front like a whirlwind, and a race which sent the people into the seventh heaven of delight followed. I. J. S. still had the pole, while Red Bird sandwiched it between him and Nevada. For a hundred and fifty yards the equines came down in chariot style, I. J. S. with free rein and Nevada under whip, while Red Bird hugged the ground at every step, until the pace became too hot, when, with a leap and a skip, she went to third place, leaving to Nevada and I. J. S. the honor of making one of the most exciting wind-ups ever seen in Utah. Within two lengths of the wire I. J. S. broke, with Nevada at his neck, and a howl of triumph went up from the supporters and admirers of Nevada, but a moment later their delight was changed to chagrin, when Judge Webb announced that I. J. S. was the winner, Nevada second, Red Bird third and Adelaide MacGregor fourth.

The second heat of the trot was another corking finish between I. J. S. and Nevada, the former, although coming in on a break, being given first place because of a most pronounced foul being perpetrated by the latter at the first turn. At that point Red Bird had a slight lead, Nevada was second, I. J. S., who was on a break, third and MacGregor fourth. At the quarter (0:36) to the half (1:13) the quadrupeds cut into pairs until half-way to the three-quarters (1:49), when Red Bird cut the pace, placing I. J. S. in third place and MacGregor two lengths in the rear. Down the stretch it was any one's race, until Red Bird went up, when Nevada took after I. J. S. The latter swerved slightly, but quickly recovered, and under loose rein and whip took the lead by a head, and just before the wire was reached dropped into a gallop, which landed him a nose ahead of Nevada.

I. J. Starbuck, the owner of I. J. S., filed a protest, which resulted in the judges awarding his animal first place, Adelaide MacGregor second, Red Bird third and Nevada fourth. Time, 2:25.

I. J. S. won the third heat in 2:24$\frac{1}{2}$. At the pole Nevada led, Red Bird second, I. J. S. third and MacGregor fourth. Nevada broke early in the fray, and was a bad fourth when the quarter (0:36) was passed, Red Bird being in the lead, but breaking badly on the second quarter, giving I. J. S. first place. To the half (1:13) it was a double team race, Nevada third and striving desperately for place, while MacGregor was held well in hand in the rear. At the three-quarters (1:47) the positions were unchanged, but on the last turn I. J. S. forged ahead, leaving Red Bird in the air, and MacGregor in second place, a position maintained under the wire, Red Bird third and Nevada fourth. Time, 2.24$\frac{1}{2}$.

The day's sport closed with a mile and an eighth handicap dash, for a purse of $600, the starters being Idaho Chief, Barton H. and Dick Wright. The former was ridden by Richards (118), the second by Jakey Jones (112), and the last by Neal (110). The start was a good one, and as they passed the stand Richards pulled the Chief into third place and there held him throughout the dash, the animal's jaws being pulled wide apart, as seen by the judges through a field glass, and on the homestretch the kid pretended that he was making a winning ride by lashing the air frantically with his whip, but never touching the hide. As they passed under the wire (2:01$\frac{1}{2}$), Barton H. first, Dick Wright second and the ill-treated Chief third, Judge Kehoe could hardly contain himself, and declared that the jockey, owner and horse ought to be ruled off the track forever. The trio were sent for, and the jockey and Ed. Williams, the owner, questioned. The boy declared that he had done his best to win, and denied that he had not whipped his horse. Williams stated that the Chief had not won a race this season, that he was out of form in Denver and that Barton H. was too much for him in any kind of a race. The judges next examined the animal, but the imprint of a whip could not be found on his silken hide, but there was one cruel mark of the spur. The judges, convinced that a job had been attempted, declared the dash "no race" and all pools and bets off, a decision which will meet with the approval of every honest horseman.

FOURTH DAY—SATURDAY, JUNE 18.

Three thousand people saw some wonderful racing and a considerable lowering of records to-day. The merchants have concluded to close their places of business next Tuesday, and it was through the untiring efforts of H. A. Fyler principally that the business men acquiesced. Ottinger won the first race easily, as was expected, and reduced his record from 2:26$\frac{1}{4}$ to 2:22$\frac{1}{4}$. Another seven-heat affair was seen in the 2:24 pace, won gallantly by W. B. Richmond's black gelding Nigger Boy. There were five starters in the race, every horse got a heat, and every mile was paced below 2:30 except the last one. The Jew was favorite in the half-mile dash, running, and won all the way in the fast time of 0:49$\frac{3}{4}$.

As predicted by the talent Ottinger had no trouble in winning the first heat of the three-minute trot, Miss Foxie and Dazzle not even having the staying power or energy to give him a brush. At the start Ottinger had the pole, Dazzle second and Miss Foxie, who went off under a strong pull, third. At the quarter (0:37$\frac{1}{2}$) the positions were unchanged, but at the half (1:14$\frac{1}{2}$) Keating's world-beater led Dazzle by two lengths, who in turn showed a clean pair of heels to the local equine. On the road to the three-quarters (1:5$\mathfrak{0}$) Dazzle broke and took third place in a run, Miss Foxie closing up on the leader at the seven-eighths and making some semblance of a race to the wire, Ottinger leading there by a length, with Dazzle close up on Miss Foxie. Time, 2:27.

A good start was made after three scores in the second, but this time Ottinger did not enjoy his usual soft snap, for B. C. York had taken the place of Tom Harris behind Miss Foxie, the imprrssion having impinged on the gray matter of the judges that His Whiskers was not driving to win. At the quarter (0:35$\frac{1}{2}$) Ottinger led Foxie by a length, Dazzle bringing up the rear on a run. On the backstretch the favarite led the mare by a length and a half, with Dazzle ten lengths in the rear. At the half (1:12$\frac{1}{2}$) Ottinger cut the face in the van by four lengths, but at the three-quarter (1:47) Foxie, who was being driven for all there was in her, got action on herself and down the stretch made it interesting for the gelding giving the people a close finish until within twenty yards of the wire, when she threw up her tail ann trailed in second on a gallop, Dazzle distanced. Time, 2:22$\frac{1}{4}$.

Ottinger led from the wire in the final heat and was never headed. The quarter was passen in 0:35, the half in 1:13, the three-quarters in 1:59 and the mile in 2:26$\frac{1}{2}$, the stretch being skipped over in a canter.

Mutuels paid: First heat, Ottinger, $6.40; second heat, Ottinger $6.75.

The Californian, Eastwood, won the first heat of the 2:25 pace in a jog by three lengths, Nigger Baby second, a head in front of Lydia Allen.

Second heat—Eastwood went into the air on the backstretch, Lydia Allen and Nigger Boy passing him. Time, 2:25$\frac{1}{2}$. The latter broke in the homestretch and Harry T. came up with a rush, but breaking could not overtake Lydia, who won by half a dozen lengths, Harry T. second, Nigger Boy third, E. W. S. fourth, Eastwood, the favorite, last. Time, 2:25$\frac{1}{2}$.

Third heat—Harry T. won it by a length after the others had broke and come again like a quartet of cyclones. Eastwood's break near the wire cost him the heat, and he finished third to Harry T. and E. W. S. Time, 2:25$\frac{1}{4}$.

Fourth heat—This was a horse race from the start to the wire, the finish being superb and exciting and sending the spectators into a paroxysm of enthusiasm. It was won by E. W. S. by a head from Eastwood, and every inch of the ground had to be contested. Harry T. was third, Time, 2:26.

Fifth heat—A surprise party. Nigger Boy won under the whip by half a length, E. W. S. second, Lydia Allen third. E. W. S. led at the start, then at the quarter Lydia went to the front, only to lose her place on the homestretch. E. W. S. looked like a winner, but Nigger Boy was too fast and game. Time, 2:27$\frac{1}{2}$.

Sixth heat—Eastwood took the lead, but broke at the quarter, E. W. S. going to the front, with Nigger Boy second, Lydia Allen third. Harry T. paced like a good fellow, and gave E. W. S. and Nigger Boy a good race until the homestretch was reached, when Nigger Boy passed E. W. S. and won after an exciting finish in 2:29$\frac{1}{2}$ by half a length, E. W. S. second and Lydia Allen third. This was a hard facer to the talent.

Seventh and final heat—Nigger Boy led the procession to the quarter, but breaking, Eastwood assumed command, The latter broke on the backstretch and was pulled to a walk, E. W. S. passing to the front, with Nigger Boy second, Lydia Allen third, Harry T. fourth. Nigger Boy soon forged to the fore again, but broke once more and took a rear position, coming again like a demon and striking the homestretch on even terms with E. W. S. and Lydia Allen, all under whip. Again Nigger Boy broke, but it was not a bad one, and overhauling E. W. S. an eighth from the wire, won the race by a neck, Lydia Allen second, E. W. S. third, six lengths in front of Eastwood, who in turn was a length to the good of Harry T. Time, 2:32$\frac{1}{2}$.

In the half-mile dash The Jew, Barton H., Sam Jones and Silkey started. The Jew had what is known in turf parlance as a cinch, he showing a clean pair of heels to his mates throughout, winning in 0:49$\frac{3}{4}$, a good record for travelers. At the quarter The Jew led. Silkey was second, Barton H. third and Sam Jones fourth, the gait being a clipper, and all apparently out for first money. On the stretch The Jew bided his time, and pulled away, leaving Barton H. and Silkey to fight for second place, passing under the wire as follows: The Jew, Barton H., Silkey and Sam Jones. The Jew won by two lengths.

Racing at Portland, Or.

PORTLAND, SATURDAY, June 18, 1892.

Some 5,000 people went out to City View Park to see the greatest race meeting ever held in Portland, says the Oregonian. The half-mile dash was a very pretty race. The horses got well off together at the first flag and made a running race to the wire, Daily Oregonian finishing first by a bare neck. The mile dash was also very interesting, though Misty Morn had been tipped for a hot favorite. Hello set the pace to the quarter, closely beset by Misty Morn. At the half she had to pass him or stand still, and she did the former, leading the way easily to the wire.

The bell then rang for the great special race, three trotters and one pacer, Altao, Susie S., Challenger Chief and Sorrel Frank. The horses all scored well and were sent off at the third score about even. Altao took the pole from Sorrel Frank at the first turn and was never headed, though Challenger Chief made a great finish down the homestretch. There was some delay at the score and Altao had the best of the start. The others were closely bunched, Sorrel Frank a little in the lead. From the half to the homestretch Sorrel Frank was hard after Altao, and finished second by a short length, Susie S. a good third.

The talent continued to play Altao hard, with no hopes except on Susie S., who had been saving herself. It was a great heat. Sorrel Frank had the pole and kept it until the quarter, where Altao passed him. Altao was never headed to the wire, though Challenger Chief made a spurt down the homestretch.

The fourth heat was delayed for considerable time by futile scoring. All the horses were out for the stuff, and anxious to get the best of the start. The sixth score finally sent them off with Sorrel Frank at the rear, Altao a little the best of it. Susie trailed him to the half, the other two close behind. At the head of the homestretch Challenger Chief made a spurt and finished only a length behind the favorite.

Denver Horse Notes.

DENVER, COLO., June 15, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, San Francisco, Cal.

Dear Sir: In the programme of Denver's August meeting it will be noticed that there are fourteen regular and three extra days, and that the amount to be given away each day is $2,700. The club has made everything an over-night event, so that all horses present on the grounds will have an opportunity to compete. If they had open stakes, and they had not filled well, the prize might have gone without a struggle to some particular horse that outclassed all the others. In this case, however, everybody and every class of horses is given chance.

Many of the Californians who have gone from here to Chicago and other points have expressed their desire to come back, and it is thought they will without exception. There are many horses still in California who will probably be put into training now that this programme is out, and it is thought that those horses will be sent on.

The Overland people have made many pleasant acquaintances among the California delegation here, and acquaintances that we think will be lasting. Danny Miller, the owner of Charmion, a San Francisco gentleman, has endeared himself not only to the officials of the Overland, but to many of the citizens of Denver, by his cordial manner and pleasant ways. Mr. Kerr, of your paper, has made many friends. By Holly, Dan Dennison, J. H. Walker and other Californians were much liked here. Matt Storn, of course, is an "old-timer" with us.

We are sorry to say that Cyrus Holloway, Mr. Storn's trainer, died this morning at St. Luke's Hospital. This is a great blow to Mr. Storn, and, indeed, to all those who had the pleasure of Mr. Holloway's acquaintance. He was a sterling man, and knew his business thoroughly.

Phil Archibald, the San Francisco bookmaker, who made a book here, is a very reliable man, and a pleasant and courteous one as well. Our relations with him have been of the kindest, and we shall always hope to see him at our meetings.

FUTURITY.

ROD.

Hunting and Fishing.

He sat down on the river bank, waiting for a bite;
He didn't know the sun was hot, though its rays were white.
I watched him from a shady nook, beneath a friendly tree.
He was a study, that old man, a patient waiter, he.

His rod was held with steady hand—he never moved a muscle—
Saving all his inward strength, waiting for a tussle.
My heart was touched, he looked so sad, sitting there alone:
I tried to say some kindly words—he couldn't hear a tone.

His beard was long and snowy white, emblem of weary years.
I felt his race was almost run—my eyes were filled with tears.
I little thought the old man had a particle of vim;
His hands were lean and I could see the trembling of each limb.

At last there came a "mighty yank," and then a lively run;
It seemed to wake the old man up—and such a string of tongue;
I tried to take the old saint down, but short-hand wasn't in it;
The best of pot-hooks failed to catch three hundred words a minute.

He reeled that fish with all his might, and then he let it go;
He danced about like any kid—his face was all aglow.
At last I saw a gaping mouth, and then a ten-pound cat,
And floating down the stream I saw the old man's summer hat.

He didn't know his hat was gone—he tied his fish fast to a string;
Then down he sat in boiling sun, and I could see him grin.
As I passed on into the wood I left my every fear—
I thought the old man with the rod would live another year.

Brook Trout Fishing.

Brook trout fishing, in the opinion of many anglers, is the very acme of the profession. To them no other kind of fishing can compare with it. The picturesque scenery, ever changing—at one time a broad meadow; again, tramping among the trees of the forest, up in the mountains, down in the valley, all have charms which are not soon forgotten. The lazy man, or the half-hearted fisherman, finds no pleasure in it; but he who is a true angler at heart, and is at the same time a lover of nature, can find nothing so well suited to his tastes, says W. R. S. in Shooting and Fishing.

In no other style of fishing are the chances of angler and fish so nearly equal. The stream trout has many advantages over his brothers of lake and pond; places that are practically inaccessible to this would-be destroyer are easily found. At one time he finds security in the pool, in the midst of a dense thicket; again, an overhanging bank affords him shelter, on which every step telegraphs its warning. These advantages have kept him safer than all the laws enacted for his preservation, and at the same time have added a charm for those who seek his capture.

A few days' experience in this kind of fishing is not sufficient to make perfect those who seek to become proficient in the art. It takes a long time to master the many and varied situations and become thoroughly successful. The benefit derived, from a physical standpoint, is great. The fresh, pure air of the country and constantly-changing scenes, make a wonderful tonic to nerve and tissue, and are far ahead of lake fishing, in the narrow and cramped quarters of a small boat. One may return home at night very tired, but the sleep that follows is sure to be of the restful character, which builds up permanently.

There are many kinds of tackle used in brook trouting, as it is commonly called. The fine split bamboo rod for this work is not always in place. Opportunities for throwing the fly are not always found, and bait fishing (be it ever so distasteful to the angler) is forced upon him in order to achieve success. Angleworms generally give the best results as bait, and care should be taken that the bait be kept fresh on the hook. The brook trout is an epicure, knows a thing or two, and can only be caught by a tempting morsel, placed in a natural manner, within his reach. The kind of rod best to use depends very much upon the character of the ground over which you are fishing. If meadow land of the swampy kind, with overhanging banks, a long, light bamboo, 14 to 16 feet, is the best to use. Approach the shore very gently and stand back 10 or 12 feet from the water. In this position drop your line in slowly and easily. If a trout is lurking beneath the bank he is almost sure to be nicely fooled. Where a brook is wide and flows through high, firm land, the fly can often be used with good success. For this work a light split bamboo fly-rod of 5 or 6 ounces and 9½ or 10 feet, is best. Of course this method of fishing furnishes far the best sport, but unfortunately, the right conditions are not very often found to favor it.

Another kind of brook fishing, often the very best to be had, is found where the stream makes its way, almost hidden from sight, amongst a dense growth of alders and brush. Here the short, stiff rod comes in play; 8 or 9 feet is plenty long enough, and it is often hot work to get to them even them, as many a man can testify. Crawling for 10 or 20 feet flat on the stomach, pushing the rod ahead of you with one hand, the line catching on every twig, and fighting off mosquitoes and flies with the other hand, will put you in a "Turkish bath" condition in short order; but the satisfaction, as you haul out two or three two-pounders, amply repays for all the labor.

The new telescope steel rod is splendidly adapted for this work, as the line runs through the centre, is entirely concealed, and consequently cannot catch on every branch and leaf in its path. Again, if you wish to move on to another place with this rod, you can simply telescope the rod, reeling your line up at same time and thus do away with all the annoyance of moving about in the thick brush with a long rod.

The best line to use for bait fishing is a braided oiled silk, size F. Being well oiled it takes up very little water by absorption, and it is braided quite hard, it possesses a stiffness which makes it run through the guides quite easily. A linen line when soaked with water is sure to swell and always hangs limp and loose on the rod. This makes the line clog at the guides, which is very annoying indeed. For fly-fishing an enameled silk line is the only kind to use; its smooth, hard surface makes it render freely through the guides, and it is in every way far ahead of any other line made for this purpose; 25 yards can most always be counted on a safe length for brook fishing, and, in fact, one rarely has occasion to use even as much as this.

The reel for bait fishing, as a rule, is only necessary to hold the line; it can rarely be brought into play and not be of an especially good quality. Fly-fishing is quite another thing, and for this work you want a good reel. The 40-yard size, which just takes 25 yards of F line, is the best size to use. It should be a single click reel, made of rubber and German silver, with a safety band around the edge to keep the line from fouling with the handle. This style of reel is also made in brass and rubber, but it is not nearly so durable as the first mentioned.

Many kinds of hooks are used for bait fishing, and it is a hard matter to decide which is the best. The Sproat No. 6, or Cork shape Limerick No. 3 (very much like the Sproat in shape) give general satisfaction, and I doubt if any other style is much of an improvement on them. The Kendall sneck hook No. 3 has of late come rapidly into favor and has many admirers. A party of Worcester gentlemen, who use this hook, have great success with is and are loud in its praises. Whatever the style may be it should always be of the best quality, snelled to a strong piece of gut. It is poor judgment to economize on your hooks, as you will find out to your cost should you try it.

In regard to flies, there are certain standard kinds which should be included in every outfit. These are the Brown Hackle, Montreal, Silver Doctor, Coachman, Yellow May, Professor and Grizzly King. Many others can be used to advantage at times, on different streams and under different conditions. There is no infallible rule to go by, and a good assortment is a strict necessity. The season of year, time of day, condition of weather, all have an important bearing on which is the best fly to select. Experience is the only teacher which will master this part of the sport.

A good, strong 3-foot gut leader, or casting line, should always be used on which to attach the hooks. A box of split shot to squeeze on the gut, when you wish to get a little more depth, or to use on a windy day, will be found very handy.

The size of the creel or trout basket depends a great deal on your anticipation Take a big one every time if you think it will be needed. My experience (and I think that of many others) has been that a No. 2 (which is medium size) answers every purpose. A good bait box, which should be red in color, as it is then easily found if lost in the grass, completes the kit and puts you in position to catch the speckled beauties—if there are any to be caught in the stream in which you seek them.

One of the best methods to fish a brook is to wade it; in fact, this method is sometimes a necessity. There are many different kinds of boots used for this purpose, but in my opinion the Mackintosh leggins with stocking feet is the very best. It is as near absolutely waterproof as anything can be made and is light and pliable on the feet and legs. A pair of rubber or stout shoes are necessary to wear with them to protect the stocking feet. A strong canvas and leather shoe, with hob nails in the sole, is made for this purpose, and is the best covering to be found; the hob nails prevent slipping, which is an evil well worth an effort to escape. The same goods are made in the shape of pants, coming well up under the arms. They will allow one to wade much deeper water, but have the disadvantage of being quite warm. The Mackintosh goods, although costing more, will be found far superior to the ordinary rubber boots, being much cooler and far more durable.

For a landing net to use in connection with a wading outfit get a light wood bow, with a 24-inch braided oiled-sick or linen net. This should be attached to a screw-off handle not over twelve or fourteen incees long. Fastened to a strong pin or hook at the shoulder, or hung over the back, it will be found ever ready for business.

A Convert Made.

Sitting on the rocky angle formed by the confluence of a couple of little mountain streams, and listening to the music of the dancing waters as they trip over the pebbly beds, as if in haste to lose themselves in the darkness of the rugged gorge below, my eyes follow the movements of a stealthily moving trout fisherman, as he wades off down stream, and I cannot but wonder where the pleasure, in that kind of performance, comes in. Perhaps it's in the novelty of the thing; or, mayhap, in the sweet consciousness that he is doing it for fun. Carefully, he moves, sometimes scarcely wetting his soles, then, at the next step, in he plunks, almost over the tops of his high-water boots. But nothing disturbs his serenity; his eyes are faithfully fixed upon the seductive fly at the end of his line, as it now and then flicks the surface of the sparkling stream.

The water is clear as crystal, and one can count every pebble lying upon the bottom; yet not a living thing can be seen within its depths. It strikes me that a trout-fisher must of necessity be possessed of a prolific imagination; for I could never hope to get a bite where my eyes tell me plainly, there is nothing to bite. When the water is muddy, or the depth so great that it is impossible to see beyond the surface, it is an easy matter to get the imagination to work sufficiently to keep the courage up; but I cannot understand how they do it in this case.

Presently I hear a peculiar hum on my right, and turning my eyes in that direction I see a pair of quail flitting off into the foliage of the over-hanging mountain-side. But no sooner has my attention been diverted from the patient fisherman, than it is recalled by a lusty shout. And, sure enough, a real live trout is dangling from his line; but unless I am greatly mistaken it is the only one he will hook this day, for that howl he gave just then will certainly clear the stream for miles. After placing the little victim in his creel, he disappears around the bend, and is lost to view.

Naturally, I feel a little strange in the quiet depth of the mountain gorge, and am on the alert at every unusual sound. It was but a few days since that a bear was seen in this locality; and I saw a long streaked creeping thing drawing his graceful length over the rocks and across the stream, but ten minutes ago. Now I imagine he is stealthily crawling up behind me, and I catch myself every now and then casting furtive glances over my shoulder. A cool breeze comes softly stealing down the gorge, and the tops of the overhanging trees are nodding and greeting each other in a very friendly manner, while the gracefully-drooping branches form a delightful arch above the surface of the stream. A few miles down, and this little brook mingles with the waters of Russian river and is hurried on until it enters the restless Pacific.

But while I am dreaming in this lovely spot, my fisher has got away; and now my timepiece tells me he has been out of sight for two long hours. He may have entered Russian river ere this, for all I know. I get up and clamber over the rugged rocks and try to make my way down stream; but I've made but little headway when the truant appears in sight. And he looks so smiling that I know he has been successful. Yes; there are seventeen perfectly beautiful fishes in the creel; and while I stand wrapt in admiration of both the fine catch, and the perseverance of the catcher, another nice trout is whisked from the babbling ripples. Now, I have caught rockcod, bluefish, flounders, smelt, etc., almost by the hundreds, but never in my life have I tried my hand at trout fishing—neither have I ever intended to do so—but this is tempting. Although it looks very diminutive, in comparison to salt-water fishing, I cannot resist the temptation. Besides, I noticed the other day that a writer in Forest and Stream says that our California trout are silly little mongrels that any greenhorn can catch, and I feel encouraged. Taking the rod in my hand I sneak along behind the bushes that hide me from view, close beside a noisy riffle, and cast in the little fly. And before I have really begun to wait, I have treed a "speckled beauty." I say treed, for there he hangs dangling from the overhanging branches; and to get him down without breaking line, hook, or losing the victim, requires a great deal more strategy than it did to get him up there.

Next time the landing is made with more ease, and in a little while I grow to like it, and not until the gathering twilight of the declining day settles around us, can I be prevailed upon to leave the enchanting brook. We have a great mountain to climb, then a gradual descent into Russian river valley, and many miles farther ere we are at home. But we enjoy the drive almost as well as the fishing, for we love to watch the quail that come out of the bushes and run along ahead of our horse. They look so aristocratic at this season of the year, trotting around in pairs; and their very boldness seems to say, "Shoot us if you dare." We also saw a number of doves, and once a great monster of a jackrabbit took a run up the road ahead of us.

We spent a delightful day, everything considered, and reached home with twenty-seven trout; and not a "fingerling" in the lot, if you please. Seven of them were all my own; and when they came to the table, done to a crisp, the next morning, I realized the fact that I've fallen from grace, and resolved to be a trout fisherman till I die. MARION.

GEYSERVILLE, Cal., June 10th.

Carelessness, or Ill-Luck?

Most sportsmen, if cross-examined, will acknowledged that they can cite at least one instance in their career when they were deprived of a good bit of sport by their own carelessness, although at the time the trouble was doubtless attributed to ill-luck. I once lost as pretty a bass as one would wish to kill with a fly-rod, by what may be designated a piece of gross carelessness, or indolence, just as the reader may be pleased to term it, when he finishes the perusal of this sketch.

It was on a dull, sultry afternoon, late in August, in the good old days, before the mill-dam was taken down at Chapinville, on Canandaigua outlet, and when the waters of that stream flowed comparatively clean and pure, which—as every fisherman of that vicinity knows—they do not now. A friend and myself had made our exodus from the hot, dusty village streets, more with the desire to get within hearing of the cool, rippling, running water of the stream than for the sake of securing its finny denizens.

After an hour's hard casting in the riffles, I found myself with a light creel, perspiring and rather unenthusiastic about the divine sport, in the shade of a cluster of willow trees that lined the banks of the outlet in the vicinity of the "short end" of the old double-sided mill-dam. In this sequestered nook I stretched myself on the sward and indulged in a quiet "loaf." My resting place was on a knoll, overhanging the east end of the "short dam," from where, as I lazily gazed into the water, several rather good-sized rock-bass could be seen darting in and out beneath the shelf of the dam. Capturing an over-confident grasshopper that had sought a resting place near me, I dropped him literally into the mouths of the bass, for no sooner did the insect touch the water than it was in a fish's maw. After a little more of this idle sport I secured a huge, lively katydid, resplendent in his garb of Lincoln Green. "Ah!" thought I, "this is food for the (fishes) Gods. It is too bad to waste this fellow!" Placing the splendid bait on my hook, I carelessly twisted a loop of my line about the crank of reel, so that there would be no slack, and using the line as a hand-line, I leaned over the bank prepared to ensnare one of those jolly rock-bass.

Then did the unexpected happen! No sooner had that green, glittering bait struck the water than there was a sound like unto the opening of a bottle of Pomery Sec; there was a "swish," a grand rush, and—I, standing there with wide open mouth and eyes, just managed to grasp my rod as it was being dragged from the bank by a splendid black-bass, which, on feeling the resistance caused by the carelessly locked reel, gave a magnificent leap into the air, fully displaying his beauteous fifteen inches of length, (he weighed three pounds if an ounce), and with one of those characteristic, bass-like jerks of the head, freed himself from my hook, without so much as straining my delicate snell leader.

A description of my emotions at that moment would be superfluous—every angler knows the sensations felt at the loss or a good strike; but I had also the satisfaction of knowing that I, in my own carelessness, or whatever you like to call it, was to blame for this lamentable result. And this satisfaction was not intensified a little later on at learning that my friend had landed a bass that would have been—and possibly was—a mate for the beauty that "though lost to sight" was long remembered. And not even several creditable catches I made during the balance of the afternoon could console me for my disaster.—C. W. Darling in American Angler.

Coins Bearing Dogs.

There is an important group of about forty coins containing outlines of dogs which deserve careful study. The interest of some of them is mainly mythical, as with Lælaps, the hounds of Actaeon presented to Cephalos by Procris, or with the dog of Segeste, which symbolized the river Crimisus. The coins afford no evidence of the development of a spaniel, there being no example of a pendulous ear, or of a mastiff, though bulldogs were undoubtedly known in the arenas of Imperial Rome. But they prove conclusively that the ancients had four kinds of dogs—the wolf dog, the hound, the greyhound and the terrier. The Umbrians had their wolf hounds, the Apulians of Asculum their greyhounds, the more rugged hunters of the Tuscan forests their fox dogs. The favorite dog of Artemis Lephria, as on coins of Patrae and Sparta was a greyhound, while Actæon's dogs must have been half-bred deer-hounds. Qhegium, if the coins may be trusted, had his sheep dogs; the Macedonian city of Menda its terriers and Cumae, just above the bay of Naples, to which all the luxuries of the ancient world were brought, its poodles.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Pacific Coast Field Trials Derby Entries.

The entries for the Derby this year outnumber those of former years by far. The total number forty-six are divided as follows: Pointers, twenty-four; English Setters, seventeen; Irish Setters, five; Gordons, one. If twenty of these run the purse will come close onto $850 counting the added money. The entries are as follows:

SETTERS.

E. L. Craig's black, white and tan dog Dan Ardo (Luke—Dido), June 28, 1891.

A. H. Haggin's red dog Irish Cob (m. Elcho Jr.—Kate IX), June 18, 1891.

R. K. Gardiner's orange and white bitch Estrella Monk of Furness—Minnie Noble), October 6, 1891.

R. K. Gardiner's black, white and tan dog Al Ki (Major P.—Lucy), June 22, 1891.

George Crocker's white and orange bitch Daisy (Jim Phelan—Buck's Nellie), April 12, 1891.

Frank Lathe's black and tan dog "Gordon" (Van Dan—Jess), February 2, 1891.

C. S. Sargent's red dog Irish Sidney Mike T.—Lady Elcho T.), June 6, 1891.

Wakeman & Handley's black and white dog Merchant of Venice (Monk of Furness—Knight's Belle), March 30, 1891.

Linville & Harvey's lemon and white dog Count Kern (Donald Bane—Mia R. Mack), January 11, 1892.

Edw. Fay's black and white dog Wooff (Outlaw Dick—Mountain Queen), July, 1891.

L. L. Combs's Bay View Kennels' red Irish bitch Miss Mercinty (Dan II—Lady Josie), October 11, 1891.

F. L. Wooster's red (Irish) dog Don't Care (Dan II—Lady Josie), October 11, 1891.

Frank Maskey's blue belton dog Bogie Man (Rover II—Beasy), October 1, 1891.

H. M. Tonner's liver, white and tan bitch Molly Stark (Roy F.—Lilly C.), January 20, 1892.

California Kennels' black, white and tan bitch Jacomet (Gladstone II—Janet), July 25, 1891.

California Kennels' black, white and tan bitch Johanna (Gladstone II—Janet), July 25, 1891.

W. H. McKittrick's black, white and tan dog Javelin (Gladstone II—Janet), July 25, 1891.

California Kennels' orange and white dog Mercury (Dick Boucher—Sunlit), January 26, 1892.

California Kennels' black, white and tan bitch No Name (Dick Boucher—Sunlit), January 16, 1892.

L. H. Clement's black, white and tan dog Bart (Gladstone II—Janet), July 25, 1891.

H. T. Payne's white and lemon bitch Countess Noble (Stanford—Lilly C.), March 11, 1891.

H. T. Mann's red (Irish) bitch Ruby M. (Mike T.—Lady Elcho T.), June 6, 1891.

J. Downey Harvey's white and black dog Duke of Laurel (Luke—Dido), June 28, 1891.

POINTERS.

Important to Breeders.

Last week we endeavored to show breeders the best method of treating the brood bitch before and just after the production of her pups. The latter when their eyes are once well opened upon this world of trouble, unless very delicate in constitution, soon begin to look out for themselves, so far as food and exercise are concerned. It is never a good plan, however, to overfeed the youngsters, for it must ever be borne in mind that a puppy exercises no discretion whatsoever over the control of its appetite. A good stomachful about four times a day is amply sufficient for them when first weaned, and, of course, their food should always be of a sloppy nature.

At about six weeks old the whelps may be removed from the mother, but the exact date of the separation must depend very much on the conditions which govern each individual case. A strong dam with a bountiful yield of milk can carry her pups longer without injury to herself or them than a weakly one; and, on the other hand, a thriving, lusty whelp will be able to stand by himself sooner than if he were a sickly or delicate little thing. The beginner must rather be prepared for trouble when the time for weaning arrives, and it is well to effect the operation gradually by removing the bitch from her whelps for a few hours at a time and then prolonging the period of separation until she only is returned to them at night. After this she can be compelled to bid them a final adieu, and it is remarkable how soon the youngrters get over their bereavement.

The bitch, as a rule, requires no very special treatment when removed from her offspring, but a dose or two of cooling medicine will always be to her advadtage. It occasionally happens, however, that there is a trouble in drying up th milk, and that the teats swell and become sore; in fact, a similar occurrence sometimes takes place whilst the pups are suckling their dams. Rubbing the stomach with camphorated oil very frequently brings relief, and the application of vaseline to the stores will also do good in an ordinary case. In cases of severe milk fever, of course, the advice of a qualified practitioner must be sought, but we have known the following practice succeed when a single teat has become swollen and clogged with sour milk. Take an ordinary sodawater bottle and rinse it out with water as hot as it will stand. When the water has been poured out, and before the steam has escaped from the bottle, press the mouth of the latter gently over the inflamed teat, so that the pressure is placed equally all round its base. By doing so it will often be found that the steam and pressure combined have the effect of softening the obstruction, and then when the bottle is removed after a minute or so, it is possible to draw off by milking a few drops of the greenish-looking fluid which is causing the suffering. Under any circumstances the camphorated oil may be applied, as prevention is always better than cure.

Most puppies lose condition pretty fast when first separated from their dam, but if treated properly they are by no means slow in picking it up again. At this period of their existence they are almost certain to be troubled by worms, and therefore should be subjected to a course of physic after a short, though judicious, period of starvation has been inflicted, so as to ensure their bowels being empty when the medicine is administered. Small does of freshly-grated areca nut—stale stuff is of very little use—or of santonine may be given them in order to remove the parasites from their insides, but the exact amount of each dose must depend upon the size and strength of the pups.

Of the two remedies we incline to areca nut, for although it is a dirty physic to administer it is not so likely to upset the whelps, and, unfortunately, santonine is apt to produce fits; otherwise the latter is a good remedy, and being a crystal it is very easy to give, the more so as the dose for a young dog would be very minute. Such remedies as oil of male fern, turpentine, ground glass or Indian pink should never be applied to whelps for they are too powerful in their effects and, in fact, Indian pink, though a certain cure for worms, is far too dangerous to be administered in any but the most dangerous cases, being quite a kill or cure remedy in most hands.

Assuming that everything has gone on well with his litter, the beginner should see that the youngsters comprising it are comfortably and warmly bedded in a roomy kennel that is free from damp and draughts. Fresh air is a necessity for pups if they are to do well, and they flourish amazingly if they are blessed with sunshine to bask in. A yard is therefore a grand addition to their kennel, and the question of plenty—not too much though—of good healthy exercise is one that must not be lost sight of. Puppies are mostly very shy when in the presence of strangers or away from their own especial domain, and consequently no opportunity should be lost for getting them accustomed to the outside world. Then there is a splendid opportunity provided for the attendant to exercise the golden gift of patience, as the youngsters at first are often very trying, but a modicum of firmness, combined with a great deal of kindness, should soon have the effect of getting them over their timidity.

The youngsters generally get their second mouth at about nine months old, but long before this age is reached they begin to shed their milk teeth. These should sometimes be removed when they are clearly interfering with those that are coming up, for many a mouth has been spoiled entirely by the neglect of the owner to attend to such details. At the same time there is no necessity for inflicting unnecessary pain upon the puppy by prematurely extracting a tooth, and therefore the beginner should not be in a hurry to operate upon his pets' mouths. Teething troubles may always be mitigated, if not actually avoided, by keeping the juveniles' blood in good order, and therefore they should be well supplied with green food, and, what is more, it should be so mixed up with their food tthat they are compelled to eat it. A little milk of sulphur in their dinners now and then will also have the most beneficial results, but the presence of a great lump of sulphur in the water is of no service whatsoever; in fact, so far as medicinal purposes are concerned, half a brick would be almost as efficacious.

Every pup should be taught his name as soon as possible, and he will soon answer to it if encouraged to do so by a little petting or a morsel of sugar or biscuit when he comes up in reply to a call. Above all things, the beginner must be advised not to knock his puppies about, and to avoid crushing their spirits in any way, for a cowed puppy means a cowed dog, than which a sorrier spectacle could not exist.

Finally, let us observe that a puppy should never be chained up if it can possibly be avoided, for if he is he not only loses a great deal of exercise, but he is very apt to drag his shoulders and other joints out of shape in his struggles for freedom. At the same time let him get used to wearing a collar and being lead about. It frequently takes a long time and many lessons to get dogs to lead properly, more especially so away from home, and therefore a few minutes a day bestowed upon this portion of a whelp's education will be well spent. Many and many a good dog has lost a prize owing to his nervousness in the show ring and disinclination, through timidity, to show himself. Therefore we counsel you, Mr. Beginner, to bring your dogs up in the way they should walk.—Stock Keeper.

Dogs In Labrador.

Dogs are an important and interesting element of Labrador life. A horse would be of little use in this country, made up in summer of unscaleable rocks and water, and in the winter of deep untrodden snow; and he would cost in feed more than he is worth. Dogs here live on the product of the sea-fish and can travel over snow and ice. A hogshead of herrings per dog is either salted down or else protected from the flies and air by a layer of cold blubber—the liver after the oil has been extracted; in the fall the salted fish are freshened by soaking ten days in water, and then piled on a scaffold to freeze and keep all winter. Sometimes the flesh of the seal and the whale is used for dogmeat. The dogs are fed but once a day, in the evening, when some of this frozen fish is choped off and thrown to them. In the summer they shift for themselves by hunting along the beaches for fish and refuse. With wolfish heads, bushy tails, and rough ragged coats, they have a wild and mournful look, hungry and sneaking; they seem to be a cross between the wolf and the Esquimau and Newfoundland dogs. They generally are treated as beasts of burden, not as domestic pets; and when you are not afraid of them they appeal to your sympathies as the dumb class of Labrador victims. Their ferocity, however, keeps your sympathy within bounds; they cannot be left in freedom, when a family leaves them unwatched at their home they are hoppled by passing one fore foot through a loose collar. The kennels are log huts so low that they cannot stand up straight to fight. In some places the kennel is under the house; when two or three teams are confined there the floor often shakes, and the night is a season in Pandemonium with their fighting or their wolf-like howling. Notwithstanding all these measures of safety, they sometimes kill and devour one another. The jealousy and hatred of rival dogs can never be subdued, and I should add that they form also very loyal alliances for defense and amusement.

When you see the vital need of mastering such animals at once you almost approve of their brutal treatment. All teams of course, are not bloodthirsty; but some caution is required in handling even the best. The usefulness of dogs in such regions as Labrador makes it impracticable to do without them; they are the horse of the Arctic regions, and life itself often depends upon their services. A team of from three to six dogs will draw two or three people twenty leagues per day. In spring, when the show is covered with a good crust, they can go from 90 to 100 miles a day, and six dogs will haul a cord of green red spruce.

The words of command are "Ra-ra," haw; "Ak," gee; "Ha," ho; "Puit," get up. The harness consists of a collar and a girth connected by horizontal straps, and the trace starting from the girth on the dog's back. Each dog pulls the sled by his own trace; that of the "leaders" is from forty to sixty feet long, the others are successively a few feet shorter. When the snow is covered with a sharp granulated crust the dogs wear boots made of sealskin. The whip is a formidable object. The lash is about fifty feet long, thick as a broomstick at the upper end and the handle is only a foot long. Some skill is needed to whirl this above your head without cutting off your own ears. The crack of this whip, like the shot of a small rifle, makes the entire pack tremble. But even this weapon is not always effective in keeping order.

As soon as two teams see each other on the road they break forth in wolfish howls and fly outward to meet is a fight. The drivers shout, "Ak, ak!" and crack their whips, but often the brutes rush pell-mell at one another. The sleds run into them, there is a general roar of the canine "mill," and shouts of men pulling, beating, swearing; someone may be bitten; at last the teams are separated and anchored at a safe distance apart by turning the sled over and sticking the points of the runners into the snow. Thus every meeting on the road is interesting. Their cometek is a sled about ten feet long and two and a half wide, with low, broad, pointed runners, rising in front, and having shoes made of the jaw bones of a whale. The floor consists of narrow cross pieces fastened to the tops of the runners with rawhide thongs. For long journeys a coach-box is lashed to the cometek. In this, two passengers may sit facing each other and enjoy the protection of furs, while the driver perches on the front end of the box and holds on to his long whip trailing on the snow. A winter journey in this clear, bracing air, and among these picturesque rocks decked with flashing ice, is an interesting experience; and if a storm comes on the sagacious leader of the team will win your gratitude and admiration by taking you to some house. But the dogs are not always successful. The cold sometimes is so intense that it freezes the stomach of a dog, where the hair is short, and even kills him. And if they are not properly fed they may give out on a hard journey.—Harper's Magazine.

English Setter Type.

Mr. R. L. Purcell-Llewellin's letter in a recent issue of a contemporary in regard to English setter type, upsets some ideas which admirers of Llewellin setters in this country have since these dogs, which originally sprung from his stock, have been winning both on the bench and in the field.

It has been generally believed that although he bred more for field quality than for bench show purposes, that he, like most of our own breeders, desires to continue if possible both beauty of form and practical field qualities.

There certainly were dogs bred from stock imported from his kennels, that were strong in bench show qualities. And if there had been an equal amount of care taken in breeding for a combination of these qualities, as there was for field requisities alone, there would have been more good field dogs of correct English Setter type to-day.

It may have been necessary at that time to make a cross between two extreme types in order to get a practical good, as well as handsome dog. But thanks to the happy combination that Mr. Llewellin made when he bred his "barbarians" to Mr. Laverack's "quality and refinement," and to some blood that has been received from other sources we have in this country sufficient stock to go on breeding and producing dogs of English Setter type that can "go."

We can get along without the "barbarians," although Mr. Llewellin says that he agrees with Mr. Tracy in his "Note of Warning" in a previous issue of the same journal, there is plainly a radical difference in their ideas. Mr. Tracy advocates a return to the Stonehenge standard, and Mr. Llewellin infers that any standard is ruinous to the breed. Mr. Tracy thinks that there are certain anatomical formations that are absolutely essential to an animal's make up in order that he may be capable of speed and staying power as well as stylish and graceful action.

Mr. Llewellin says, "Dogs and horses, contrary to locomotives, go in all shapes."

Whatever may be the state of affairs in England, and, however, the breach may widen between the bench show dog and the field dog in that country, there will in this country be more dogs in the future that can win both ways than there have been in the past. A majority of the best field dogs that have been produced in this country have won on the bench.

Certain breeders, who have bred without regard to anything but field qualities and were evidently of the same opinion as Mr. Llewellin, that "they go in all shapes," have by accident produced dogs that were of good type and that have won and that are winning on the bench. It is also a fact that some of the dogs that have been considered the most phenomenal performers in the fields are the ones that most closely conform to what has been recognized as the standard.

With these and some of the so-called bench show stock that have also, we will allow by mistake, developed field qualities, we have foundation upon which to breed English setters that combine beauty and usefulness. If this breeding does not produce the desired results, it will matter but little, as we have enough dogs of recognized field trial breeding that are of the right type to go on with the good work.

If bench show judges in England favor setters of the same formation that is required in pugs, it is no wonder that practical men are down on bench shows. Although there is a deplorable difference in the type selected by our judges, it is seldom that a dog is selected for bench show honors that on account of his formation is useless as a field dog.

It is hoped that these extremes in the types selected by our judges will result in a happy combination as did the breeding of Mr. Llewellin's Dan, "who stood nearly twenty-eight inches at the shoulder, with legs like a dray horse and a great back, big enough to carry a firkin of butter," and that "would have been turned out of any bench show in the world," to the elegant little bitch Petrel, who was full of quality and refinement.

By the way, the above description of Dan shatters an image that is indelibly impressed on our vision by a picture in colors of a beautifully formed setter, one that would not only have stayed in a show, but would in all probability have been one of the last to leave the ring under most of our judges.

This picture was said to be a likeness of the sire of Gladstone. To be told at this late day that he was the descendant of dogs of that description is rather shocking, but we may feel proud to know that from such a source we have produced such good results, and that the necessities of resorting to such extremes in breeding is no longer necessary.

Another thing that we may be proud of is the fact that although Mr. Llewellin let us have "only inferior specimens, as he never parted with any of his best," we have to-day direct descendants of these same inferior specimens that are an improvement upon them and that are probably the equal of any that he has produced from those he reserved.

We, in this country, have been taught to have great respect for English judges and English ideas of doggy matters generally; but now we are told that they judge setters on the same lines that they do pugs, and that our best dogs are the descendants of "Newfoundland looking things with legs like dray horses and backs big enough to carry a firkin of butter."

It would seem that we should, from past experience, do well to go on in the same lines that we are pursuing; but we can do even better if we take advantage of what progress we have made and work intelligently together for what we all desire, a combination of field trial and bench show qualities in our setters and pointers.—Shooting and Fishing.

A Timely and Pointed Challenge.

SAN JOSE, CAL., June 15, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir: This letter is for the purpose of explaining an enclosure of $50. When I was in attendance at the last bench show, Mr. A. B. Truman took occasion to speak disparagingly of the field qualities, intelligence, nose, etc., of the Pat O'Moore dogs as compared with the transcendant excellencies of the progeny of his red setters, Mike T. and Lady Elcho T., et. al. I, as the owner of Pat O'Moore and his merry little daughter, Dora O'Moore, immediately challenged him to produce any son or daughter of either of his red dogs, or of both of them, of any age or sex, who could, at the next field trials, successfully contend under field trial rules with my Dora O'Moore. I did not even bar the two old ones themselves. At that time I was much averse to running any of my dogs for money. Subsequent consultation with Mr. Allender, my trainer, and my friend, Jas. E. Watson, owner of Fawn, Dora O'Moore's dam, have induced me to alter my determination, therefore I now boldly send in the following:

I will run Dora O'Moore, under the field trial rules, against any red Irish setter ever bred by Mr. Truman from any of his stock. I do not except Mike T. or Lady Elcho T. from this challenge. The purse to be run for to be $250 each. Enclosed is $50 forfeit money, the same to be forfeited if the balance is not paid in twenty days before the match, and this same $50 to be covered within thirty days from the publication of this challenge; Mr. Truman to handle his dog, Mr. Geo. T. Allender to handle Dora O'Moore.

If Mr. Truman desires to add to or change the terms of the match, let him do so either in a letter to you or to me. If Mr. Truman should choose to ignore this challenge, then I am, I assume, at liberty to claim that he fears to pit his stock against mine. In conclusion, I will say that I desire the match to take place, and if Mr. Truman was sincere in the professions of not only willingness, but of actual anxiety to bring about the same, in which he indulged in our conversation at the bench show, there will be no difficulty in coming to a practical conclusion. Very respectfully yours,

JOHN H. YOELL

MR. WATSON BACKS DORA.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—GENTLEMEN—As the owner of the Red Irish Setter bitch "Fawn" and the breeder of Dora O'More, I naturally feel an interest in Mr. Yoell's challenge, so to make it worth A. B. Truman's while to accept the challenge, I will bet him $250 or $500 on "Dora," on the same conditions as Mr. Yoell's offer. I enclose my check for $100 as forfeit money to be covered within 30 days.

The principal reason for this offer is that A. B. T. has had a good deal to say derogatory of "Fawn."

Yours truly, JAMES E. WATSON.

[The forfeit money mentioned in each of the above letters has been received by this paper and will be held in accordance with conditions mentioned.—ED.]

It would appear that in discussing questions of the above nature that Mr. Yoell is in earnest and has the faith of his convictions strong within him. Mr. Watson's offer brings the question of amount of stakes up to that point which would make a very interesting contest. We are glad that a portion of our Irish setter men are disposed to bring needless discussion to an end and let their dogs prove their merit by actual work in the field. It would seem that the above challenge is broad and liberal enough to suit even the most captious. We sincerely trust that it may be covered by Mr. Truman once at in order that the best dogs may receive the honors to which they are entitled.

The Southern California Kennel Club have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: J. F. Holbrook, President-Tony Bright, J. H. Keefer, Frank W. Ingalls, John Schumacher and T. S. Casey, vice-presidents; E. K. Benchley, Treasurer; C. A. Summer, Secretary; Jas. Watson, of Philadelphia, delegate to the American Kennel Club.

Southern California Sportsmen are agitating the question of organizing a Southern California Field Trial Club. A more liberal support of the club now existing would be more to their credit. A large purse would draw more entries and the larger the entry, the larger the purse.

Kennel Notes.

The organization of the Pacific Fox-terrier Club has excited renewed interest in this breed of dogs on this coast. The owners of well-bred bitches are breeding to the best dogs here, and the puppy classes next year will be well filled with the choicest specimens, and the competition will be of the keenest kind.

Last week while J. B. Martin was exercising his dogs close to Golden Gate Park, his fox-terrier bitch, Golden Chip, struck a gopher hole and persistently dug away until at last her efforts were rewarded, as she caught a gopher, and killed it and retrieved to Mr. Martin, who had walked on about a block.

The entry of pointers in the Derby of the Pacific Coast Field Trial Club outnumbered the English setters. This is something unusual, as the setters have heretofore been to the fore. This speaks well for the pointer interest on this coast.

Mr. Fred Talbot has quite a collection of dogs on his ranch near San Leandro. He has no choice as to breed, and mastiffs, Irish setters, bull-terriers, fox-terriers and great Danes are well represented in the kennels.

Messrs. Smith & Baker, of Leeds, England, the well-known St. Bernard fanciers, will shortly bring out on the show bench the dog Le Premier, by Scottish Prince, who is thought to be the tallest dog yet bred, and will, it is expected, develop into a crack.

Collies are coming to the fore in England. Just think of an offer of $3,000 for one. That is the amount that has been offered for Ormonde and declined.

The entries for the United States Field Trial Club's Derby number 106, which is the second largest entry received by any club, the Central Field Trial Club's Derby having 115 entries in 1890. Pointers have forty-four entries, English setters sixty-one entries.

The Eastern papers are taking notice of the kennel club war on this coast, and, as was expected, condemns the California Kennel Club for its high-handed manner in expelling members who have joined the Pacific Kennel Club.

Sales.

Bay View Kennels sold to Mr. Jas. Treadwell, Irish setter dog by Dan II. (Elcho Jr.—Brownie) out of Lady Josie (Bell C.—Pat O'More), whelped October 11, 1891.

Bay View Kennels sold to Jos. McVey, English setter bitch pup Lee R. (Rodney—Phyllis II.) out of Bell Gladstone (Ch. Gladstone—Zell), whelped May 21, 1892.

Mr. J. B. Martin, San Francisco, Cal., has sold white, black and tan fox-terrier bitch pup, whelped May 11th, by Woodale Rustic—Blemton Rapture, to Mr. Geo. Debenham, San Francisco, Cal.

Also white and tan fox-terrier dog pup, whelped May 1st, by Frisco Joker—Queen, to Mr. Geo. Fox, Angels Camp, Cal.

Whelped.

B. Dow's Pointer Bitch "Queen Croxteth T." (Rush T.—Patti Croxteth T.) whelped on June 14, six puppies, five dogs and one bitch, to Henry Huber's "Duke of Vernon."

The Wing Club Shoot.

The weather was simply perfect last Sunday for the medal shoot of the California Wing Club at the Oakland race track. It was a twelve-bird contest with a thirty yards' rise, and some splendid shooting was witnessed. Messrs Robinson, Golcher and Haas tied for first prize, killing all their birds, Haas being in especially fine form, killing the last eight birds with the first barrel. When the tie was shot off at six birds Mr. Haas came out on top, killing all his birds, which were good and strong, with marvelous accuracy. Robinson was second, killing all his five birds with the first barrel, and Golcher took third medal with a score of five. The medals were elegantly designed in gold.

After the main event of the day seven sweepstakes were shot off. In the first pool Haas and "Slade" divided first and second prizes, each killing all six birds. Robinson captured the second pool with a score of six. Robinson, Golcher, Haas and Ned Fay tied with a score of six birds each in the third match, and agreed to decide it by their scores in the fourth pool. Robinson and Haas scored six each in this, and consequently divided both pools.

Robinson killed all his birds in the fifth match. Haas and Fay divided second prize with five birds each. Robinson and Haas divided the sixth match, neither missing a bird. The seventh sweepstake was at 12 birds. Robinson, shooting in splendid form, carried off first honors, Fay and Haas tying for second prize.

The following is the official score for the medal shoot:

Robinson	1	1	1	2	2	1	1	1	1	1	1	2	--12
Slade	0	0	0	1	0	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	-- 7
Golcher	1	1	2	2	2	2	1	2	2	2	2	2	--12
Liddle	1	0	1	2	1	1	0	2	1	2	1	1	--10
Pelton	0	0	1	1	2	1	1	2	1	2	0	0	-- 9
Haas	1	2	1	2	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	--12
Schroder	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	0	2	1	--10
Randall	0	1	0	0	1	1	1	2	1	2	1	2	-- 9

Robinson, Golcher and Haas shot of their ties at six birds, Haas winning with a score of 6, Robinson second with 5 and Golcher third with 5.

Ben Wright is about to add to the accommodations for the shooters. He provided an elegant luncheon and the club highly appreciates his energy and untiring efforts to make all the arrangements as perfect as possible. Pat Murphy had thirty-seven dozen birds on the grounds, while "Daddy" Rice and his retrievers were, as usual, "right there."

A Bout With a Katty War Boar.

A correspondent of the Asian gives the following graphic account of a boar hunt on the banks of the Bhadur river. He says:

I sent my shikari to look for pig amongst the tamarisk jungles and irrigated jowari fields along the banks of the Bhadur river below Kutiana, when he saw a scene not often witnessed, I fancy, by ordinary sportsmen. This was a skirmish between a panther and three full-grown pigs who were trying to guard their little ones in an open space close to a jowari field. The pig chased the panther three or four times back into the field, whilst the little ones made for the river, which they eventually crossed. There were only two little ones, so the chances are that the panther had breakfasted off that family pretty frequently before, and will probably do so again, as I arrived upon the scene too late to find him but polished off one of their protectors. He gave me a long but uneventful run through old cotton fields where my fall amongst the gaping cracks was the only chance in his favor, and that did not come off.

Next day I found his grandfather, and his death is better worth describing. He broke out of a thick jowari field after a good deal of beating in company with a portly sow, and as I was mounted on a very fast horse I gave him plenty of law before starting. I had to cross a quarter of a mile of waste land full of water holes first, and I wanted to do so gingerly, but the chestnut was too fiery for that, and sighting the pig himself took me across it at full gallop, star-gazing along in a way which ought to have brought us down in the first hundred yards. We cleared every thing, however, and very soon parted the old couple. The boar headed for the next turn in the river as a matter of course, but I was up to him in no time, when he jinked me cleverly. My horse was so impetuous that this happened twice more before I got my spear into his back, and, alas! broke it there. I had two native horsemen with me with spare spears, but they were nowhere to be seen, so I could only badger the boar away from the cover as much as possible until one of them might come up.

The boar now made his way into another jowari field where he tried circling and doubling like a sow, but I stuck close to him and presently became aware of a hoarse voice proceeding from the roofless mouth of one of my two followers, proffering a spear. Whilst I was snatching this the boar slipped out again towards the river, but I caught him just short of it and rolled him over with another breaking spear. He seemed to be pretty well sickened then, but reached some tamarisk and stole along until he got to some water in a nulla. There, to my surprise, I found my other arrant horseman, named Salu, who had shamefully pursued the lady-pig instead of coming to my assistance, and had brought her up to the same pool by a different route. To abuse him and take his spear did not take long, and then I galloped back to finish off my friend. Refreshed by a bath, however, he suddenly charged out behind me and slipped across into a field of high jowari. I galloped throught and no sooner reached the far side than I was waved off to the left and then across the river which had high banks on both sides. To scramble down one and to rush up the other, a la Dholpur Raja, only took a second or two, and I landed on the far edge just in time to see a black stern disappear into the next jowari field. Wonderful pig, I thought, to be going so strong, and as I cleared the field I saw him plunge into another well ahead. That was a low field, however, and the chestnut flew with me across the intevening space, an old sugarcane field full of pits and graves so quickly that I caught him at the far end of it. Two grunts and a side charge, and there to my disgust lay Salu's sow!! I had been waved off into the wrong pig after all, and had still to account for my old love.

I went back, and after a little beating found him of course where I had left him fresh as paint. Again, however, he broke where we least expected him. He had a long start and I only reached him just as he plunged into more jowari. D—n! It was so high that the heads of the jawari banged against my topi as I galloped through, but I reached the far side first and waited for my friend to try the river. Down he came sure enough, but seeing me, bundled back again. Soon afterwards he made a second attempt, and I nearly got a charge out of him, but eventually we had to beat him out. He got away on the far side unseen by me, and I had to ride nearly a mile before I more viewed him. He then came glistening out of the water in a branch mullah, and directly I came up he turned on me and bravely met his fate. He very nearly reached some cotton pickers in his last charge who happened to be close to the nullah, but I dropped him dead amongst them, and neither they or the other villagers who saw the fun that day are ever likely to forget it.

TURF AND TRACK.

Send in your lists of foals.

Racing at Oakland this afternoon.

Nelson Stockton has a very fast Steinway pacer.

Five yearlings by Allerton have gone quarters better than 50 seconds.

Thos. McCloskey has a number of good colts at the Hollister track.

Rosa Sprague, dam of McKinney, 2:12½, has a filly at foot sired by Sultan.

California horses carried off almost all the coin at the Salt Lake meeting.

James Dustin arrived safely at Terre Haute with the Valensin string of trotters.

Thirty-five horses from the McCarty Stock Farm are in training at the Oakland track.

Susie S.'s mile in 2:22¾ at Portland is the fastest made during the present season on the Pacific Coast.

Up to date just a dozen California-bred trotters have entered the list during the present racing season.

The Warwick-Lady Middleton colt won a fine race at Morris Park on the 11th inst., running five furlongs in 1:01¼.

Another grandson of Electioneer got into the list last week. It was at Salt Lake, and his name is Re-Elect by Elect.

Robert Bonner says that both Rarus and Dexter were more nervous than Sunol when he first began to drive them on the road.

It is feared by the owners and trainer of Pessara that the strain of the Suburban race upon him had broken him down. He is in a bad way.

The Northern California Racing Circuit has always been a success. It embraces four meetings—Willows, Red Bluff, Chico and Marysville.

It is said that his old trainer, Matt Brynes, has prevailed upon Haggin to permit Salvator to be put in training again for the Columbian stakes.

Mayor Baskin, of Salt Lake City, requested the merchants to close their stores last Tuesday, it being Derby day in the Utah metropolis. They acquiesed.

The horsemen of Lakeport are taking a very active interest in trotting horses this summer. ilburn Boggs has a number he will soon have in training.

Silver Bow won the 2:20 trot at Salt Lake last week, beat Glendine and lowered his record to 2:22. The slowest heat was 2:23½. And the track was slow.

Geraldine will summer at Overland Park, Denver, where later in the season she will be joined by three others of the Ashe stable and race in the August meeting.

Snowball, a son of Joe Hooker, won a mile and a furlong race on the turf track at Coney Island last Monday, defeating Gettysburg and Cold Wave, among others.

The pacer Albert D. drew a peculiar sulky at the recent Worcester (Mass.) meeting. It had the ordinary sulky body, but was mounted on fifty-eight-inch bicycle wheels.

James G. Berryman, a well-known horseman from Pittsburg, Pa., has taken the position of head trainer for A. T. Hatch, owner of Guide, 2:16½, and other good trotters.

Ben Wright, lessee of the Oakland track, has just completed the best press stand in the State, and is daily making some changes in the old place that will please the public.

Three horses died on the Eastern circuit last week with "thumps." What a pity the horse is unable to transfer the "thumps" to some of the heartless fellows who overwork them.

The thirteen Darebin yearlings from Rancho del Paso sold at New York this month averaged $1,002; the twenty-five Sir Modreds, $975; five Ben Alis, $1,020, and five Midlothians, $1,900.

Direct is being given regular work every day, although he has never been asked to go fast thus far. It is believed at Creighton farm that he will be as fast as he was last year, if not faster.

H. H. Stover, head center of the Orange Grove-Arkansaw-Stover-Rice combination, has purchased from Charles Fleischmann the chestnut colt Ronald, three years, by imp. Rossington, dam Secret.

The Midlothians are apparently well thought of by racing men, judging from the prices realized at the recent Haggin sale in New York. The Darebins and Sir Modreds hold their own well in the horse market, too

Wilber Field Smith's horses, as well as those in the stables belonging to McCarty, Baldwin, McCormick, Stemler and Garland are all short of work in Chicago. The tracks have all been quagmires until lately.

Among the good yearlings in the string of Miller & Sibley is Duet, brown filly by Legal Test, 2:29¾ (son of Electioneer ond Maria), out of Dauphness by Dictator. She acts as if she would be able to beat 2:30 this season.

At the Hollister race track the other day C. J. Cox's fine stallion, Bay Rum, trotted a quarter in 0:34, a 2:16 gait. Pat McCartney will take this promising horse, with his stable partner, Lucky Jim, through the circuit.

The Blood Horse Association have not made any more progress toward fixing up the Bay District track, consequently the managers of every other race track are getting the stalls filled with horses—pacers and trotters.

"Sandy" Smith, who was Charles Marvin's right bower at Palo Alto for so long a time, is doing well in Oregon. He drove in but two races, and won both. Sandy has many friends here who hope to see him keep up his good lick.

The Ascot Derby, one and one-half miles, was won on the 15th inst. by Sir R. Jardines' chestnut colt Llanthony, by Ormonde—Alice Bentwick, beating Prince Soltykoff's Curio.

Thoroughbred-owners desiring programmes of the Overland Park meeting at Denver can procure same by applying at this office, or they will be sent by mail to any applicant. This meeting begins August 2nd and ends on the 20th.

The Petaluma track is beginning to put on its regular working clothes, and the way the trainers drive their youngsters over its smooth surface there will be few chances for seeing any wrinkles in it when the bell rings for the fall races.

Charles Kerr and S. G. Reed bought more yearlings than anybody else at the recent Haggin sale in New York. We trust that these genial gentlemen will get a number of crackerjacks out of the lot purchased. Mr. Reed left for Liverpool last week.

P. J. Williams, of the firm of Williams & Moorehouse, Milpitas, had his pocket picked of $300 at the fair grounds in Salt Lake City on the 17th inst. Marion Conrad and John Morris were arrested on suspicion of being the lifters and lodged in jail.

In the list of entries to the stakes of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association that closed June 1st, it is noticed that the following stock farms are named: Pleasanton Stock Farm, San Mateo Stock Farm, La Siesta, Palo Alto, H. I. Thornton and G. Valensin.

Henry Scudder, the young man who has been confined in the jail at Chicago awaiting trial on a charge of murdering his mother-in-law, the wife of Frank H. Dunton, editor of Dunton's Spirit of the Turf, committed suicide last Tuesday by taking a dose of morphine.

The Board of Directors of the Yolo Agricultural Association have decided to have no fair at Woodland this fall. The circuit will open at Willows on August 9th, instead of at Woodland on August 2d. This change will bring many from Yolo county to our Fair.—Marysville Appeal.

Martin Bulger sent two very promising fillies to Peter Brandow on Monday last; one is by Saladin, the other by May Boy. If the veteran driver and trainer has a fair show with them he will get both inside the 2:30 list, as they are "gifted with speed," and are bred to trot all day.

B. C. Holly of Flosden, Cal., has bought the horse John Winfield from W. J. Kilkenny of Leadville, for $500. John Winfield is by John W. Norton, dam Retribute, by Enterprise. This fine grandson of Bonnie Scotland has gone east to enter a number of races at Chicago this summer.

Frank H. Burke is gradually increasing his stable of trotters; his latest purchase is as handsome as a picture and as fast as a bullet. She is by Anteeo 2:16¼ out of Abbotine, by Abbottsford 2:19½, second dam that famous prize-winning broodmare Lena Bowles, by Vick's Ethan Allen Jr.

The result of the Jewett Farm sale shows that the trotting horse market is in a healthy condition and that men will pay all that stock is worth when it goes under the hammer, so long as they are positive that there is not a by-bidder behind every post and that the management winks at this mild style of robbery.

The Duke of Beaufort won the Triennial Stakes at Ascot, Eng., on the 15th inst, with his son of Petronel and Thona, by Son of a Gun. The old Duke was delighted at the success of a son of his Two Thousand Guineas winner of 1880. The colt is engaged in next year's American Derby at Washington Park, Chicago.

There ought to be a rule fining the judges $100 each for permitting any one to occupy the judges' stand during the races excepting those allowed there by the rules. Lawyers and clients don't belong up in the bench with the judges. No gentleman will go into the judges' stand unless invited.—American Horse Breeder.

On July 4th, Col. Pat. McCartney is to be tendered a benefit at the race track. There will be "hoss," racing, bicycle racing and foot racing. Several of our speediest and gamest animals are entered, and good racing may be expected. McCartney has been a good hand at the track, and deserves a rousing benefit.—Hollister Free Lance.

The bay horse Templeton 2:25½, by Warlock, which fell dead on the track at Belmont Park June 1st while being worked, was one of a once famous family. His dam, Princess Royal, by Happy Medium, was out of Queen's Daughter, by imp. Leamington, she in turn being out of the celebrated Flora Temple 2:19¾, the first 2:20 trotter.

Last Monday M. F. Dwyer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., bought of John Hunter the good three-year-old colt Dagonet, by Tremont—Fair Lady, and a two-year-old colt by Tremont—Echoless, paying therefor $10,000. W. O'B. Macdonough, the young San Francisco millionaire turfman, owns Fair Lady, the dam of Dagonet and Bermuda. The mare is still in Kentucky.

The sale of fifty-nine Belle Meade yearlings took place last Monday in New York. There was a large attendance and high prices were paid. P. Lorillard gave $8,600 for a brown colt by Iroquois out of Brunette (full brother to Huron). A chestnut colt by Iroquois out of Satinet brought $3,900. The total amount of the sale was $110,050, an average of $1,864.40—the best of the series.

Over $335,000 worth of thoroughbred yearlings were sold in New York in three weeks, as follows: Woodburn, $40,126; Springland, $16,600; McGrathiana. $53,750; Ellerslie, $20,500; Williamette, $14,600; Swigert, $31,375; Balgowan, $17,000; Nantura, $13,700; Patmos Stock, $10,950; Dixiana, $29,825; Iroquois, $14,295; Kingston, $26,325; Beaumont, $4,500; Spendthrift, $9,475; Hartland, $1,800; other owners, $32,825.

R. P. Rithet, President of the Victoria Jockey Club, and one of the foremost owners of bloodhorses in British Columbia, is following the example of Senator Stanford and having a horse farm with a half-mile track equipped upon the lines and in very much the same manner as the famed Palo Alto. The location is about two miles from the city, on the Sadnich road. where the level land makes a good track. Considerable Eastern, Californian, Irish and Australian horse blood will be introduced, and an experienced Eastern horseman will manage the farm and track.

The United States Court at Cincinnati has dissolved the injunction obtained last fall by John B. Brannon restraining the Latonia Club from ruling him off the turf for being implicated in the Polk Badget ringer case. Brannon is now ruled off. It is now settled that the horse Warbler, that performed at the recent Toronto meeting, is Post Odds, alias Caddo.

J. B. Ross's favorite sprinting mare, Kitty Van, by Vanderbilt, out of April Fool, by Waterloo, died at Passaic, N. J., June 8th, of liver complaint. Kitty Van was a good winner, and was beaten a nose in a three-quarter mile dash, by Fitz James at Morris Park in 1:10½. She ran five furlongs in the mud in 1:02, said to be the fastest on record, condition of the track considered.

By a letter received from John A. Goldsmith, it is learned that his health is improving and he is able to ride behind some of the trotters in his string. They are doing as well as he could wish for, and he feels sanguine of the results. The weather at Terre Haute is very warm; in fact, it is "hot," and he thinks of taking a little trip to Cleveland, O., next week, where it is cooler.

L. Swan, the veteran horseman of Yreka, Cal., owner of Georgie Woodthorpe, has leased the mare to S. S. Benton, of Colfax, Wash. She will be driven by Lee Shaner, and will go along with Almont Medium, Mark Medium, Sidmoor, Nubia and others. This stable will take in the Kent meeting (if races fill), Spokane and Montana circuits, and back to the Portland in the fall.

On looks, the great bargain of the Haggin sale was the chestnut colt by imp. Kingston—Peoria, by imp. Mortemer, secured by H. Hewitt at $550. The imp. Galore—Prude colt was also cheap at $1,800. W. L. Powers secured him. The Tyrant-Shena Van colt is almost sure to be a race horse of a high class, and was a wonderful bargain at $1,000, W. Rollins being the lucky purchaser.

A well-known horseman, of this city, has received a letter from a well-posted Chicago man relative to the merits of the different jockeys now at the big city by the lake. The Chicagoan pronounces E. Stanford, the Australian rider, now with Santa Anita, far and away the best horse pilot there. He has a capital seat, uses his hands and feet to good advantage, and finishes with the best of them.

From the time breeding assumed the dignity of a science the gospel of the teachers has been the gospel of purity of blood. You cannot build up a breed by systematic destruction and mongrelization of the type sought, but by the refining and purifying of blood. That is an historic and scientific truth. Breeds must be established by strict adherence to strictly-defined standards of blood.

Hermitage, a son of imp. Friar Truck, has been winning at Denver, Colorado. Friar Truck is one of the only three sons of Hermit ever imported to this country. By the death of Mr. Pickwick he is now the only other representative here of that great strain of English blood that produced St. Blaise. Friar Truck is owned by Mrs. Langtry, and is quartered on her beautiful ranch in Lake County, this State.

Major Domo's loss of the Suburban Handicap last Saturday can be attributed to the "looking-back propensities" of Master Lambley. He was beaten a neck by Montana, but had Lambley kept the Major going and never turned to the right nor to the left, but kept on in the even baritone of his way, that the result would have been different we doubt not. It is all bosh to talk about pace, for that is Domo's style of winning.

A number of horsemen at Walnut Creek, consisting of Messrs. W. A. Rogers, W. S. Burpee, M. Kirsch, Fred Kirsch, F. E. Moreno, J. E. Worden, Henry Eichers, V. Martinez, Frazier Ridgway, Dr. Hook and W. Rankin held a meeting in that pretty little town Tuesday and resolved to get up a series of trotting meetings in the near future. The horses they have are all very well-bred, and the people of Alamo and Danville will join with them in their new organization.

Rufus Murphy has at his stables on Sonoma avenue five mares with promising colts by their sides, two of which are by Redwood and three by Lock, says the Sonoma Democrat. The Redwood colts are especially handsome, and prove their sire, now in Kentucky, to be a "producer." They are the best colts we have seen this season. One of them has been named Redleaf, and the other a horse colt of remarkable points may be called Redbud. The mares will be taken in a day or two to the Guerne & Murphy ranch at Guerneville.

Mark Twain once told a story of a minister who had a call in the country. He had to ride nine miles over a rough road. The horse was skittish and the cart had no springs, and the poor dominie was jolted up and down until he almost wished he was dead. The horse ran away at last and threw the minister out in the road. When found, he was asked if he was hurt. He said he did not know, but he felt as if his collar bone was broken. "If he ever went to hell," he said, "he wanted to ride there over that road, because he would be glad when he got there."

There are lots of great-lunged, game trotters in California at the present time. It would be well for the various associations to arrange for two, three, four and five-mile dashes, and that some records would be shivered we firmly believe. As drawing cards, these trotting events would be immense. Balkam, 2:15; Silas Skinner, 2:17; Wanda, 2:17¾; Guide, 2:16½; Advertiser, 2:16; Ladywell, 2:16½, and many other stars would probably compete for the coin and glory in races of this description, to say nothing of the "unknowns" that might spring up to make matters more interesting.

In an old Turf Register (1854) kindly loaned us by George Bement, the oldest trotting horse driver in California, we find an advertisement in which it was stated that the trotting stallion Hambletonian would stand at the stable of William Rysdyk, in Chester, Orange county, N. Y., at $25 the season. Further down the same page of the Register we find Vermont Black Hawk advertised to make the season at $100 per mare at Bridgeport, Addison county, Vermont. It shows what changes come over the spirit of trotting horse men. There has been a mighty flop in favor of the Hambletonians since that day, and a grandson of the Hero of Chester has just made a season at $2,500 per mare. The Black Hawks, game, stylish little horses that they were, have passed down the stairs of popularity into the dark depths of the cave of the Have-Beens which leads on to the Land of the Forgotten.

COL. H. I. THORNTON has decided to sell every trotting horse, mare, colt and filly he possesses. The stallion James Madison that got a record of 2:17¾ would have made a heavy season in the stud if he was kept in California; as it is, his book has been filled in Kentucky. His progeny are all pure-gaited and good-looking. He will be heard of as a sire of early and extreme speed if his present crop of colts are examples of his prepotency.

J. L. MCCORD has nine of the progeny of his stallion Tom Benton at the track at Sacramento, and all that have been harnessed show they inherit great speed. Tom Benton will figure in the ranks of great sires before many years if these youngsters are any criterion. We understand that Mr. McCord has about fifty head of mares, colts and fillies to sell, all of them are standard; for size, good color, disposition, gameness and speed they would be hard to equal on any stock farm in the United States. Every man who owns a Tom Benton is proud of being so fortunate.

THE food of colts should vary. If they are to be broken and used daily, good, sound oats should be the main food. If not to be worked, give winter wheat bran and one-tenth in the bulk of old process linseed meal. Carrots or the red mangold beets should be fed daily. The amount of food should be carefully looked to, as any food in excess of the amount digested is not only wasted but an injury promoting indigestion, colic and worms. A good magnifying glass will, by an examination of the droppings, show if the grain is all assimilated or not. You can keep the colt in good health and fine condition with a little care, and not be crowding him with grain and then condition powders to try and counteract the over-feeding.

IT SEEMS as though the thoroughbred horse is to become a product of Colorado. It is reported that S. Z. Dickson, A. M. Pryor, A. S. Tooke and George Voorhees of this city are about to start a thoroughbred breeding establishment in Colorado. They will commence with twenty-six imported English mares and four imported English stallions. Mr. Voorhees is one of the best judges of thoroughbred breeding now in America, and his theory is and always has been that English racing stock is far superior to ours in breeding. This is the reason that these gentlemen start with an outfit composed entirely of English mares and stallions.—Denver Field and Farm.

CHARLES KERR, of Bakersfield, had an eye on that sister to Tournament at the Haggin sale, and got a bargain when she was knocked down to him at $1,800. Others that he bought were: Ch f by Hyder Ali—Attraction, by imp. Kyrle Daly, $375; ch f by imp. Sir Modred—Echota, by Enquirer, $700; b f by Joe Daniels—Guilia, by imp. Kyrle Daly, $350; b f by Hyder Ali—Lorilla, by imp. Mortemer, $475; b c by Florentin—Maid of the Mist, by Norfolk, $300; b c by imp. Darebin—Millie, by im. Billet, $400; ch c by Joe Daniels—Miss Hooker, by Joe Hooker, $350; ch c by imp. Sir Modred—Mollie Walton, by imp. Mortemer, $800; ch f by Tyrant—Premium, by Craig's Castor, $425.

THE greatest misfortune of the season, or indeed of many seasons, to W. P. Ijams, proprietor of Warren Park, Terre Haute, Ind., was the death last week of Electell, yearling son of Axtell and Myra, a daughter of Electioneer, from paralysis resulting from an injury not clearly defined at this time. Electell was a beautifully-finished brown colt, showing the perfect gait of his sire and some af the fine points of his dam, which was bred by Ariel Lathrop and has shown a trial in 2:21. It seemed a certainty that he would be the first of Axtell's foals to enter the list as a yearling. His value is a matter of conjecture, but it must have been equal, if not more, to that commanded by any yearling trotter ever sold, judging from his breeding and individuality.

THE carpenters and laborers at the Melrose track are doing excellent work, and every day's progress is easily noticed. When they first commenced it was ascertained that every thing about the place was even worse than it appeared; the track especially was almost ruined, but by filling up the low places and building levees along the banks it will be unequalled as a training track by any other in the State. The Alameda horsemen are taking a great interest in it, and in a quiet way they are getting their trotters in from pasture and preparing them on the well-kept highways for the time when they shall drive inside the gates of this racecourse and meet in friendly rivalry down the springy stretches or jog in front of the new stand.

HE—"Congratulate me, Miss Bella. In a few days Miss Goldthwaite will be mine." She—"I am glad to hear it, but I didn't know you were—" He—"Of course you didn't nor anyone else. Didn't want any competition; see? But it's all fixed now. She'll be worth $10,000 a year to me." She—"Really? The name's unfamiliar. New York family?" He—"No; Kentucky family, and one of the best. Sired by Bang Up, dam Queen Elizabeth—why, you must remember her. She made 2:13 last season and not half trained at that." She—"Oh, I thought you were speaking of a marriage engagement." He—Now, Miss Bella, that's pretty hard. I know I spend half my time in the stable, but that's no reason you should take me for an ass."—Life.

NEAR a pretty little town called Alamo, in Contra Costa County, William Reis has two choice thoroughbred mares and their colts. One of the mares is called Clytie, by Wheatley, the other is Orinda, by Monday; both are out of the game race mare Lilly R., by Longfellow; second dam Sally Travers, by J. C. Breckenridge (son of Lexington and Minnie Mansfield, dam of Katie Pease and Hubbard); third dam Itaska, by imp. Hootan, etc. Clytie is the dam of Castro, the two-year-old winner of the California and Racine stakes. She has a full sister and brother to this young horse that are better-looking and more promising than he. Orinda has a filly by Mariner and a brown colt by Sobrante that are as fine looking as any thoroughbreds in the country.

THE handsome Almonta has been placed in charge of Charles Schlutius by her owner, General Hart. Mr. Schlutius will condition her for the fall circuit, and her many admirers may expect to hear favorable reports from her work. Hodson's trainers were out with Bay Frank and Bracelet. Mr. Hodson says Bay Frank will trot better this season than ever, and thinks he can get close to 2:20 Charley Lowell had Don Marvin out for exercise. Dave Grum and Falrose were noticed by all the lookers-on this morning. Each succeeding time I see Falrose I think him a better horse than before. Dave is going to let up on his work for awhile and give him a chance to rest and get into shape for speedy miles. He worked out last Saturday in 2:23, and a few weeks' let up won't hurt him.—Sacramento Evening News.

TWO remarkable cases of prolonged periods of gestation have lately been reported. The first was that of a mare owned by Dr. Howard, of Boston. She was bred last season to Sir Walter Jr., and did not drop her foal until twelve months and twenty days afterwards. The second was that of a young mare owned by Felix Conlan, Esq., East Cambridge, Mass. She is by L'Empereur, 2:26, out of Constellation. Last season she was bred to Alectus, and carried her foal twelve months and five days. The average period of gestation is 340 days, or about eleven months and seven days.

A CHICAGO dispatch of June 17th says: Carlile and Shields, of Pueblo, Col., and B. C. Holly, of Vallejo, Cal., arrived with their stables at Hawthorne, from Denver, to-day. Carlile and Shields have eight—Dungarvan, Brookwood, Prince Henry, Governor Adams, Parson Crooks, two-year-old Dr. Tom, and an American Derby candidate, Robert Weitbrec. The latter colt has not done much work recently and may not go to the post. Holly has four in his string, Montana, Revolver, El Rayo and John Winfield. Dennison & Son's stable from California is also at Hawthornewith McGinty, a three-year-old colt, and Tigress, Grandee and two other two-year-olds.

MR. ALFRED H MOORE, of Philadelphia, lately paid $69,850 for five mares for breeding purposes. Lou, the dam of Axtell, 2:12, cost Mr. Williams $75. Will either of Mr. Moore's six produce a $105,000 trotter or one that will get a three-year-old record of 2:12? The chances of the poor breeder are not all knocked out yet. Did a millionaire breeder of the bluegrass region breed Ralph Wilkes, 2:18, or was it a poor dentist? What did Mary Mays, the dam of Ralph Wilkes, sell for? How about the dam of Allerton, 2:09¾? Dr. Talbot gave an old barn worth about $300 for Alma Mater. Yet Axtell, Ralph Wilkes, Allerton and Alcantara, are worth to-day about $300,000. Three of the four were bred by poor men, and two of the four were bred by doctors.

A HORSE is a great deal like a man. Let him get overworked, over-starved or abused, and particularly for the want of sufficient drink in warm weather, and the consequences will always be injurious. Sensible hostlers in large cities are awakening to the advantage of frequent watering. Street car horses are watered every hour, and sometimes while at work. It is plenty of water that supplies evaporation or perspiration, and keeps down the temperature. What old fogy methods amount to may be seen by the change in medical practice to man. Twenty years ago a person having a fever of any kind, or pneumonia, was allowed but little water to drink, and then it had to be tepid. To-day practioners prescribe liberally iced water, and in addition cold bandages are applied to reduce and control the temperature of the blood. What is applicable to a man will never injure a horse.

THE chief reason why a mule can nearly always wear out a horse, when it comes to a trial of endurance, is that the former always lie down to sleep, and the latter in a large number of cases stand up. The habit seems to have come to horses which have been hurt, especially when in the stable, and they cannot be broken of it. Besides the absence of proper rest and the constant danger of a heavy fall and consequent injury this habit of standing up to go to sleep results in the giving way of the front knees, and gives the animal a prematuredly aged and crippled condition. A walk through any large stable at night will show a number of horses standing up, but fast asleep, and whether these use three or four legs to stand upon, the knees of the fore legs are all baggy. With a mule, of course, it is quite different, for "Jack" lies down the moment he knows work is really over, and a somnambulistic mule is seldom, if ever met.

IF IT should turn out that Manette, dam of Arion, 2:10¾, is from Emblem, instead of from Addie, this is the way the pedigree would read: Manette, by Nutwood 600 (sire of 67 in the list), dam Emblem, sister to Voltaire, 2:20¼, by Tattler 300, record 2:26 (sire of Gossip, p., 2:18; Rumor, 2:20; Voltaire, 2:20¼; Indianapolis, 2:21, sire of 8 in the list; Slander, 2:28½, sire of 2 in the list); second dam Young Portia (dam of Voltaire, 2:20¼, and the dams of Connaught, 2:24; Yuba, 2:24¼; Yazoo, 2:27½; Sylvan, 2:27¼; Yuletide, 2:28¾); third dam by Gridley's Roebuck; fourth dam by Blackburn's Whip; thence into thoroughbred families. According to the Palo Alto catalogue, Manette's breeding is as follows: By Nutwood 600, dam Addie (dam of Woodnut, 2:16½, and Manon, 2:21), by Hambletonian Chief; second dam Manton, by Harry Clay 45, record 2:29 (sire of dams of St. Julien, 2:11¼, and Bodine, 2:19¼); third dam untraced. It certainly looks as if the former pedigree is preferable.

LEE SHANER goes to Kent, but most of the horsemen seen do not think it will pay him. Shaner takes eight—Almont Medium, Mark Medium, Nubia, Sidmoor, Treasurer, Georgia Woodthorpe, Kitty B., and a two-year-old. Al Mott goes direct to Spokane. John Green will go in person, but not take his string. This includes Prince H., Sorrel Frank, St. James and Daily Oregonian. Green has started out in good shape this year, winning the only two races he has started in with Prince H., and lowering the horse's record from 2:33 to 2:29, and only a spring meeting with short work at that. Prince won his races easily. Considerable interest attaches to Georgia Woodthorpe's season under Shaner. She has disappointed us in not showing the speed she has been credited with, though 2:29 is not a bad mark for a green mare. She ought to get a record of 2:20 this fall. Shaner will either give it to her or kill her. He is about as liable to kill her as the other; she don't seem able to stand up under heavy campaigning; isn't healthy and strong as she ought to be, and don't eat well enough.—Oregonian.

W. O'B. MACDONOUGH, the popular San Francisco patron of the turf, purchased the pick of the yearlings at the Haggin sale in New York, through his agents. Next year, therefore, we can expect to see Mr. M. with about the best lot of thoroughbreds in the country gracing the principal tracks of America. Among Mr. Macdonough's purchases were: Chestnut filly, sister to the great Sir Walter, by imp. Midlothian—La Scala, by Joe Hooker, $4,000; brown filly by Hidalgo—Sister to Jim Douglas, by Wildidle, $1,500, and bay filly by imp. Darebin—Fleurette, by imp. Glenelg, $3,250. The selections are about the best that could have been made, for on a trip to Rancho del Paso a representative of this paper picked these out as among the very best ones in the large consignment. The agents of Mr. Macdonough bid on the sister to Tournament, but she fell to the nod of Charles Kerr, of Bakersfield. At $1,800 she is a rare bargaain. The young San Franciscan believes in securing the best horses in the market and paying a fair price for them. He deserves success, for this is the right way to go about matters.

OVER one hundred horses are at present at the Napa track being prepared for the fall campaign. This track is recognized by all horsemen as one of the fastest, and with the strings of good horses that are speeded over it daily we can look for a number of "good old Napa's" equine flyers to enter the charmed circle. Fred W. Loeber has a string from Vineland that he need not be ashamed of and as he always manages to keep his stock looking exceedingly well; there are few better looking ones anywhere. This remark about the appearance of horses in Napa can be applied to all of them, for the climate and natural grasses of this valley are great promoters of good looks. The visitor to the stalls will not see in that 100 stalls a single measly-looking animal, or a horse with ribs plowing. H. W. Crabb, of To-Kalon, has some good-lookers. J. Corcoran has a number of young trotters and pacers. John Mccord has six likely candidates for low records. E. Jennings has his quota of stalls full. T. Kinney is also in the swim, and T. Smith, of Vallejo, is also here, and is destined to meet with greater success this year than he had last. He has some A No. 1 horses in his string.

CORRESPONDENCE of Rider and Driver: "Neither of the above highly-named associations (New York Shows) ever thinks of offering a prize for the foremost of American horse families. I mean the descendants of such horses as old Justin Morgan, imp. Messenger, or imp. Bashaw. The latter gave the Clays their trotting action and assertional ability. The former breed is the greatest family of road horses the world has ever seen. I venture to say that if $1,000 was hung up for the best representative of the typical Morgan horse, to be shown at One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street or at Madison Square Garden, New England would be astir, and when the fair opened the air would be pretty full of horses. It would not be necessary for them to wear a girth and gag-line so that their agony might be mistaken for elegance. All that would be needed would be a neat bridle, leaving the animal free to show himself. We think the Morgans the highest type of animal that combines worth with elegance. Many of the imported Hackneys would look very awkward if their gag-lines were taken off. No stylish horse can be counted great unless able to do the lofty act unaided."

AMONG the trotters at the Helena Mont., track is Scotch Chief, Ben Hur and Jack Dempsey, the property of Dr. E. L. Kellogg. In the same stable is Lady Flash, a pacing mare, owned by G. B. Diehl. Hugh Kirkendall and Harvey Barbour have a strong stable, including Montana Wilkes, who will pace or trot in 2:25 this season, and Florida who will trot in 2:18. Gregory, Bessie K., Eagle Wilkes and Carrie C. are also in the stable, as are Huntley & Clark's colt Valula, and E. W. Knight's colt, Maximilia. W. R. Rice has in training Halifax, owned by William Brickett. Irwin and Wilk Don, two colts that have shown fine bursts of speed, are the property of T. H. Kleinschmidt. Ashby, a five-year-old stallion, is owned by Thomas Smith, of Philipsburg, and will be put in the list before Rice returns him to his owner this fall. Forrester, owned by Court Sheriff, Polena, owned by Huntley & Clarke, Hillbury, owned by M. A. Witmer and Lady B., owned by Col. E. D. Bannister, complete the stable. C. H. Bartruff has in training his 2:30 stallion, Black Pilot, Benteer and the colt, Venus, owned by W. S. Spalding. William Pigeon has in training Lady Ban, a green one, also William Sim's Black Tom, a pacer, and Nettie C. The runners in training include Dot, Assiniboine and Clara Porter, in the stables of Hugh Kirkendall and W. G. Preuitt. Nevada and Montana will be in the same stable.

THERE is a young business man of this city who has a peculiar way of playing the races, but it is one that won upwards of $7,000 for him last season, and one that has been so profitable to him that the well-kept account book that he carries shows that he is $1,600 ahead of the game this year. He attends the races every day, and he plays every horse that Taral has the mount on, no matter what the odds are, and even if there are no possible chance for the horse to win according to all sorts of calculations as to form. He never plays the horse, and he does not care what its name is. He simply backs Taral to win the race. Our systematic bettor begins with a bet of $20 on Taral, and if he loses the race he bets $30 on his next mount and if that loses $40 on the next one, and keeps on until he does win a race. Then he begins again with the twenty-dollar bet and follows up the losses by the addition of $10 until he strikes another winner, and keeps the game up, over and over, never on any account missing a race. No one, no matter how much of a friend he is, and no matter how much he may know about some horse that Taral does not ride, can get him to bet on the horse. His invariable answer is, "I am not playing the horses, but am playing Taral's mounts, and if I knew he would be beaten a quarter of a mile I would play him just the same, and will play nothing else under any circumstances, even if I knew I was going to win. The young man has enough nerve to stick to this plan, and the result is that he fares much better than most of the people who try to "beat the horses."—New York Times.

A PARTY of horsemen had been discussing in our office, fast men, fast horses, fast quarters and fast tracks, and had nearly run out of material, when to give them a chance to stock up, we remarked that we had seen the duffer Joe Green trot a quarter in twenty-nine seconds on the old fair ground track at Independence, Iowa, when it was a little more than a cow path. That was enough to start the ball rolling again, and one of them spoke up as follows: "Gentlemen, you remind me of the old fellow we heard of, who had listened to a couple of young liars with marked attention, until at last becoming tired he said, "These times is suttenly not what they used tubbe. You see I cum from Tennessee and we ain't up to this way er doin' things. Why, I'm playin' a hand yit thet wuz dealt to my pap in '57. Him an' ole Jedge Dubbin, of Murfreesboro, they set into a game one night in September of '57, and they bet, an' bet, an' bet. An' when they run outer cash they bet mules, an' then horses, an' then niggers, an' at last they they run outer everything an' it was agreed that the han's shud be put in sealed envellups an' marked an' kept in the vault of the bank till both on 'em got more stuff. Well, it went on that way off an' on till the war cum, and the old Jedge had died and pop was killed at Seven Pines, an' then young Jim Dubbin he tuk his ole man's place an' I tuk dad's. Well, gen'elmen, we're jest bettin' yit winever we git the cash and there ain't no signs of quittin'; but I wud suttenly like to see them han's of pop's and ole Jedge Dubbin's afore I die," and he sighed a long sigh of patient resignation, while the two youngsters and the other man in the smoking compartment regarded him as one worthy of veneration, even if it was only as a liar."—Spirit of the Turf.

Santa Rosa Scintillations.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—There are lively and exciting times at the track here. The boys are getting down to business in fine style and there is good work done every day on the course.

The season has been so very backward, that but little work could be done before June 10. Now it is warm and the drivers are making every lick count.

Now and then the boys have a smart brush for an eighth or a quarter. Such a one occurred Saturday morning between Guerne's Graceful George and Silas Skinner. Both are sons of Silas Skinner. George was receiving his regular work out. He was coming home faster than he ever came before. "Mc" collared him with the "Cyclone" at the last eight and thought he could beat him home.

But "Mc," in the expressive phraseology of the hour, was not in it. Silas tangled up and, to the great amusement of the copious spectators who sat near the wire, Graceful George beat the Cyclone in. To this day they have not let up on "Mc" and he takes it all complacently, but shakes his head in a way which implies that he was only toying with the side-wheeler.

And while speaking of the "Cyclone" it is not out of place to repeat what a well-known horseman, who has no interest in him, says of Skinner. He says Silas is in better shape than he ever was before and will go into the campaign fit to compete and conquer. Whatever his enemies think he is a better, gamier and speedier horse than he ever was before, said he, in conclusion.

Mart Rollins has a new addition to his string. It is Illustrious, George A. Stone's Happy Medium. This horse is showing great excellence as a breeder and some of his colts are unrivalled in form and movement. He is rather too fat but Mr. Rollins is reducing his weight pretty rapidly and will soon have him in trim for hard training. This horse has never been extended and there is a good deal of interest felt in regard to what there is "in him." His admirers think he will show himself worthy of his proud ancestry.

Dan P. Carter's mare, sired by Launcelot, has a promising colt by a grandson of Anteeo. A son of Redwood got to the mare and a splendid colt is the result of the accident. She has been stinted to Illustrious this season.

There are a number of new horses in town and among them is one owned by W. H. Byington, which is said to be one of the swiftest horses in the town. A man who saw him out for exercise Sunday morning said he trotted so fast that all he could see was a long black mark left in the air.

W. P. Fine's horse, Poco Tempo, is at St. Helena and making a very successful season. There are a great many good colts from this horse in that section, and stockmen desire more of them.

W. B. Sanborn has had his promising runner, The Flood, by Flood, changed. Mr. Sanborn evidently thinks that Sonoma county stock is multiplying rapidly enough to justify him in reducing the surplus of stallions. If one-half of the stallions in the county were converted into first-rate farm horses their owners would make just as much money, and the trotting-horse industry would not sustain an irreparable loss.

A number of horses have been found in Sonoma county suffering with the glanders during the past year. There is no scare here over it, for in nearly every case the animals have been killed as soon as it became known, beyond the possibility of doubt, what was the matter with them. Dr. Davenport was sent out to a farm about ten miles northwest of here last week to examine some horses, and found one in a far advanced state of glanders, while two others have almost unmistakable symptoms. The first was promptly shot, and the others were put in strict quarantine. Not long since a team was shot that had glanders in an advanced state.

Sonoma county is one of the healthiest counties in the State for horses, as well as for men and women. There is very little sickness among horses. Had our Board of Supervisors used even an ordinary amount of common sense, there would have been no glanders here. Months ago a man drove into Santa Rosa with a glandered horse. The matter was laid before the Supervisors and they imposed the exorbitant fine of $5 upon the man who endangered the lives of all the horses and human beings his animal came in contact with, even when he knew what was the matter with his horse. This same man sold his farm and stock to a gentleman from Oregon, and it was on this farm Dr. Davenport found the glandered horses last week. A stallion belonging to the man betrays unmistakable signs of glanders, and the doctor ordered him put under strict surveillance by the constable of the township. The District Attorney proposes to see that the law is rigidly enforced. The stockmen are entitled to protection from glandered horses, and any man who deliberately flies in the face of the law should feel its force severely.

Guerneville is fast assuming importance as a racing center. It is safe to say that if that town was one-half so large and wealthy as Santa Rosa it would outstrip us a hundredfold in organized turf enterprise and activity. There may be a time when our horsemen will all pull together, but we fear it will not be until Gabriel blows his mighty horn.

Santa Rosa, June 20th. "Publius."

Items From Siskiyou.

The Board of Directors of the Tenth Agriculture District held a meeting in Yreka Saturday, June 4th, and adopted the newly revised premium list and speed programme.

The Annual District Fair was set for October 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th, to follow Roseburg, Oregon, September 20th and Central Point, Oregon, September 28th. The speed programme giving over $2500 in purses consists of seven running events, six trotting races and one pacing. See advertisement in another column. The pacing and two of the trotting races are free-for-all. Six of the running races are free-for-all, and are so arranged as to give a very small stable a fine chance to start in all of them. The Association's track is in excellent condition and the racing prospects were never brighter than at present.

Shasta View Stock Farm has in training several well-bred colts, and the chief of Siskiyou, Grand Admiral, by Admiral, is doing miles close to 2:30.

J. M. Walbridge's stables consists of the standard mare Wanda, 2:36; the pacer, Lady Hogan, and a number of fine colts by Mr. W.'s Kentucky-bred stallion Roscoe.

Dr. G. W. McDonald, the Siskiyou veterinary surgeon, has in hand Farichild's Royal Allegretta, who won sixteen heats in nine days last September, getting a record down in the thirties. Doc also has ten or twelve others whose names I have not been able to get, most of them youngsters of good type.

L. Swan's stable, under the management of George Woods and the white-haired veteran, Al Peacock, has just returned from Portland, Oregon. It consists of the bay stallion Ante-Echo, by Antevolo, dam by Echo—the best bred, if not the fastest horse in Northern California; the bay filly Zephyr, pacer, by Antevolo, and several two and three-year-olds from Swan & McDonough's Stock Farm in Rogue River Valley, Jackson county, Oregon.

Besides those in training there are many good colts in this vicinity belonging to James Vance, W. S. Stone, J. E. Harmon, Dr. Robertson, Antenruth and others. Among the runners are Jos. Stephens, Wild Oats, by Wildidle, Jas. Keirnan's Scampaway, by Scamperdown.

The Howard Bros. have the fleet Bessie Burk whose grand sire was old Gladiator, and whose dam was by Glencoe Chief; they also have Jambouree, Hansena, Phœbe Shsw, Red Rug, and others by Keystone and some fine two-year-olds by Heilborn & Co.'s Bazaar colt.

Jim Muse is quartered at the track with the sprinter Tammany and a number of untried horses and colts belonging to J. Cavanaugh, of Edgewood.

Santa Barbara and Ventura Horse News.

Santa Barbara, Cal., June 13, 1892.

Now that the Santa Barbara track has been leased to E. R. Den and Williams, the course has all the semblance of a properly-kept race track. F. Menchaca, who trained and raced El Rayo so successfully, has the general supervision of the track, and it is safe to predict that this course will be the fastest regulation track in the State. Although E. R. Den sold the famous El Rayo (Grinstead-Sunlit) he has in his string of racers some that will make Santa Barbara famous in the eqine world. Prince's First, under the careful care of F. Menchaca, is doing good work, and with such tracks as he will run on in the Southern district, he will give any horse in the State a great race. E. R. Den's two-year-olds by Birdcatcher, are training well, and they will surprise even their admirers.

Harry Stamboul, by Stamboul 2:11, dam Carrie B., by A. W. Richmond, is as handsome a three-year-old stallion as ever we looked upon, and if he does not trot this fall close to 2:20 he will disappoint us, for he trots like a race horse and will stay all day long. Harry Delaney will handle him in his three-year-old form. As a yearling Harry Stamboul won the Yearling Stakes of this district. As a two-year-old he won at Hueneme, and at San Bernardino he trotted a full mile in 2:36. E. R. Den is very proud of Harry Stamboul, and although he is inclined to favor the runners, it would take a very long price to induce him to sell Harry Stamboul. Mr. Den has also a very handsome two-year-old filly out of Carrie B., by Alcazar, and a suckling out of the same mare by Commodore Nutwood, and this year Carrie B. is stinted to McKinney 2:12¼. Speaking of McKinney reminds us of a letter we read last week from Mr. Willits, in which he says that $1,000 are deposited to trot his pacer Silkwood against McKinney. This match will be a sensational one, as the admirers of Silkwood insist that he can pace in 2:10 or better and that McKinney is not in it.

Mr. Willitts also says in his letter that he will bring his stallion Silkwood to the Santa Barbara races this summer, and will pace him in races, and if there is nothing here to go against him, probably the association will give him a good purse to trot the horse against time to beat 2:18.

Mr. Brastow, our secretary, is doing his mightiest to arrange the greatest meeting that Santa Barbara has ever seen. Liberal purses will be given.

At Hueneme, Henry Delaney has seventeen trotters in his string, among them Leon, 2:22½, Wilkes Moor, John Thompson, Stanley and others. Mr. Delaney has some trotters with no records that will surprise the people and encourage his admirers. He is a young trainer that will make a name. McCoy's Ben Corbitt, 2:30 as a three-year-old, is going fast, they say, and there are those who predict that this year Ben Corbitt, as a four-year-old, will lower his record five or six seconds. If he can beat Harry Stamboul, three years old, this fall, John McCoy can pack more Santa Barbara money than he will know what to do with. It seems that a three-year-old should easily defeat a four-year-old, but is Ben Corbitt made of the "right stuff" to trot with Harry Stamboul?

The people from Lompoc declare that their new track is the greatest of the great, and they say that they have more horses, and faster ones, than any town in the county of Santa Barbara.

James Mack, from Santa Paula, Ventura county, will bring his string of trotters to the Santa Barbara track in two weeks. James has a lot of promising youngsters.

John G. Hill, of the famous Los Palmas stock ranch, near Hueneme, has a long string of trotters and runners on the Hueneme track.

The genial president of the Ventura Agricultural Association is a lover of well-bred horses, and he takes a great interest in well-equipped race courses.

H. W. Lawrence and Mr. Pinkham, of this city, sent their famous broodmares this spring to Silkwood. "Farmer."

Terre Haute Notes.

There was life and action at the race track yesterday morning and many, not knowing of the distinguisaed visitors, turned naturally toward the track when the bright sun made the first good racing day of the season. Mr. Jeffers had been at the track bright and early and had put it in excellent shape. Near the horseman's gate a canopy had been spread, under which the visitors sought comfort in escaping the rays of the broiling sun. In the grand stand there was also a large number of sight-seers. The noted visitors present were: Colonel J. W. Conley, of Chicago; Colonel J. H. Steiner, secretary of the American Trotting Association; Mr. S. T. Harris, of Cincinnati, who is a noted writer and recognized authority on turf matters; Colonel E. C. Long, of Minneapolis, owner of a number of finely-bred horses, among them Lee Russell; Mr. A. C. Bruce, of St. Paul, owner of Axle, two-year-old, by Axtell, and many other richly-bred ones; Mr. Jackson I. Case, of Racine, and Mr. J. H. Oglesbo, of Kansas City, awner of McDoel, 2:15½. McDoel was first driven an easy mile but no attempt made to speed him. Then Mr. Bruce's great two-year-old Axle, by Axtell, was brought out and after a preliminary warming up he was sent a mile under the matter rein of Budd Doble and accompanied by Lea Girl, driven by Charles Doble. The youngster has much the same movement as his great sire, traveling close to the ground and has the same stride as Axtell. There are many other characteristics that go to indicate the wonderful prepotency of the sire. Axle made the mile in 2:35½, the last quarter in 0:34¾, which was considered a remarkable performance for a young star with so little work. In fact, it was his coltish ways that seemed most troublesome but a few weeks of work will do away with that, and everyone predicts he will lower the two-year-old record of his sire, Axtell, 2:26, before the season is far advanced.

Nancy Hanks was given two working-out miles, the second time accompanied by a runner, doing the mile in 2:19, the middle half in 1:06. This is the first fast mile Nancy has been worked this season, and everyone present pronounced her movement more perfect and, if possibly, more smoothly-gaited than last year when she had such wonderful performances to her credit. Goldsmith drove Vida Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, a quarter in thirty-three seconds. She caught the multitude by her smooth action. Orrin Hickok gave several of his string easy miles, and Sam Fleming's great yearling, Dr. Knowles, by Jersey Wilkes, paced an eighth in nineteen seconds and demonstrated that Jersey is a great sire of speed.

Budd Doble leaves for Philadelphia on the 30th inst. with Nancy Hanks. She will trot at Belmont Park July 7th for a special purse of $5,000 against her record of 2:09, to which $1,000 will be added if she beats Sunol's time, 2:08¼. Mr. Doble has not determined what others of his string will be taken along, it all depending on how they show up in the next two weeks' work. Should the weather continue pleasant, rare sport is in store for those who visit the track and see the greatest lot of fine horses ever together at the opening of the season. The track is now all that could be asked for, and the horsemen will make up in a measure for the many weeks lost by bad weather. Colonel Conley, Colonel E. C. Long and Mr. J. H. Steiner returned to Chicago last night.—Express, June 14, 1892.

"Pa" Hamlin's Opinions.

C. J. Hamlin, Buffalo's veteran breeder, says "predictions are dangerous," yet he is the man who makes more prophesies than any man in the United States interested in the development of the light-harness horse.

It was but a few years ago that people heard him say he would breed, raise and drive a team of horses to a faster record than that ever scored by another team. The statement was swallowed with more or less salt, for the greatness of such a statement could only be realized when it was considered that such men as Frank Rockefeller, Frank Work, Major Dickinson and Robert Bonner had not been able to publicly beat the 2:15¾ of Maxie Cobb and Neta Medium after they had bought the fastest trotters in the universe. Mr. Hamlin lived not only to drive the team two and one-half seconds faster than the record, but he lived to see three of his teams beat any team record ever made by horses other than his own. This is but one of his predictions, but his other prophesies have been realized. Now they are coming so thick and fast that one can hardly keep a record of them. The principal ones are that his stallion Chimes will surpass all stallions, living or dead, as a sire of fast and extreme speed, and that there are foals in the paddocks of Village Farm that will score lower records in a contested race than was ever made by a trotter.

Mr. Hamlin was at the Buffalo Driving Park yesterday. He had returned from the East and felt jubilant over the victories his horses had scored in the Southeastern Circuit. When asked by an Enquirer representative if he still hoped to see his predictions come true, he tersely replied, "Just as certain as anything in this world, but death and taxes."

He further replied that the horses in racing form had shown unlimited speed, while those at the Driving Park receiving their initial work were still faster.

"I know that the blood of Chimes crossed upon that of Mambrino King will produce horses of strength and extreme speed. I have made the test, and the result is satisfactory."

Perhaps for the first time in his life Mr. Hamlin yesterday said the Electioneers of the first generation are not racehorses—that is not when crossed upon coarse and cold-blooded mares.

"Rysdyk's Hambletonian and George Wilkes were not, for for that matter," said he, "unless they were bred to warm-blooded mares. Of his own power of transmission, no stallion will sire racehorses when crossed upon mares of cold blood, which they also possess. Electioneer's success when Senator Stanford bred him to thoroughbred and part thoroughbred blood that the American Stars possessed gave the progeny of Rysdyk's Hambletonian strength and stamina. So also with George Wilkes.

"Everyone knows he was a success when his blood intermingled with that of Mambrino Patchen. But had George Wilkes stopped on his way from New York to Kentucky and exchanged places with Wood's Hambletonian in that sap-bucket country, where there were not good mares, George Wilkes would never have been heard of as a trotting sire. It was so with the condemned Almonts, and who does not remember the hue and cry when Gen. Withers began to boom that family? But when Almont was bred to the thoroughbred daughter of Wagner he produced Fanny Witherspoon, the champion two-miler to this day, and little was heard of their being quitters.

"So by crossing Chimes with the daughters of Mambrino King, who possess the blood of Mambrino Patchen and Edwin Forrest, the last-named family being noted for their clean and strong legs, the result will be a family of race-horses of extreme speed and stamina.

"In the test I have made I have a colt by Chimes, dam by Mambrino King, second dam a daughter of the mare that produced Fanny Witherspoon. He is the two-year-old Ed. Easton, that with little training has trotted quarters in 35 seconds."

Regarding the double team performances, Mr. Hamlin said he would not be surprised to see Belle Hamlin and Globe trot in 2:10 this year. "They are full of trot," said he, "and are going much better than in previous seasons. They may beat 2:10, and there's no knowing what the trio will do. I have always contended that two horses could go faster than one, because the weight of the driver and wagon is divided. Belle Hamlin, whose record is 2:12¾, and Globe's, whose record is 2:19¼, proved it, and three hitched together ought to go faster still."—Buffalo Enquirer.

FAMILY TRAITS.

Characteristics of Two Great Trotting Families. What Made Hambletonian Greater Than all Contemporaries—The Influence of His Dam Fully Demonstrated.

The imported horse Messenger is generally credited with being the fountain-head of the American trotting horse simply because he was owned and stood in a section of country that was then about the only place where trotters were bred. Messenger was a gray horse, 15¾ hands high, and he had run a number of creditable races on the other side, although he had by no means ranked high in racing circles. It was just the blood though, as would have been any warm blood, to cross on the native mares and work improvement. A thorough cross upon a cold cross is always an improvement to each, speaking in the sense of harness horses, and while the blood of Messenger proved beneficial upon the blood of the mares bred to him, this colder blood was also of benefit to Messenger in assisting the founding of a family or type of trotters. Does any reader suppose that if Messenger had been bred to thoroughbred mares only he would ever have been credited as a founder of a family of trotters? Does any reader suppose that if any other thoroughbred horse of average trotting action had been imported instead of Messenger and had passed the years under exactly the same conditions he would not have won the same distinction as a progenitor of trotters? Was there anything in the blood of Messenger contrary to the general laws of nature? If not, then we must assume that his blood, like that of any thoroughbred, had a tendency to raise the standard when crossed upon cold blood, and that the natural pure trotting action of the thoroughbred was quickened and intensified by the action of colder-blooded trotting mares.This would give an improvement, as a harness horse in the first generation. Messenger passed twenty years of his life within one hundred miles of New York, in a radius that comprised Philadelphia, New Jersey, Dutchess County and Long Island. Of course he founded an extensive family, as he got upward of thirteen hundred foals. So great was the demand for his services that Mr. Wallace states in Vol. 1 of the Register that Messenger was farmed out during the last years of his life at one thousand dollars per annum. A horse would indeed be lacking in merit not to get some good results from all these opportunities.

The direct descendants of Messenger had more speed undoubtedly at the trotting gait than did the sire, because the trotting instinct was developed and thus intensified. We find the sons of Messenger founding trotting families. Mambrino sired Betsy Baker from a mare of untraced breeding, and we must assume that such a mare had more or less cold or trotting blood. Betsy Baker could trot close to 2:40, and she beat Top Gallant, then one of the most famous trotters. Top Gallant was sired by Coriander, another son of Messenger. Winthrop Messenger was a son of Messenger, out of a mare of untraced breeding. He was bred in New York State and was taken to Maine, where he sired Witherell Messenger from a Morgan mare, and he founded a noted family. And so we might continue the list, but it does not seem necessary.

None of the direct descendants of Messenger had or sired extreme speed, but in the evolution of the trotting horse each generation played its important part. By this we mean that the present type of trotting horse is only a natural outcome of evolution from Messenger, or the pure thoroughbred horse, in accordance with the laws of nature. As cold or trotting blood was bred in, and this trotting instinct intensified by development, a type of trotters began to assume fixed characteristics; just as if Messenger had been bred to draught mares, and the progeny developed to draw weight, he would in time have figured as the fountain-head of a family of draught horses.

Mambrino also sired Abdallah from the cold-blooded or trotting mare Amazonia, and Abdallah very properly stands 1 in the trotting Register, as he was the first in the direct male line from Messenger to sire a 2:30 trotter.

From Mr. W. H. Vancott, a well-known horseman of this city and a gentleman of undoubted veracity, we have gathered many facts that have greatly assisted in the preparation of this article. He knew Abdallah well, and also his breeder, Mr. Treadwell, and Amazonia, the dam of Abdallah. Mr. Vancott's father, who owned imp. Bellfounder at one time, and young Vancott frequently rode the horse; in fact, there was scarcely a trotter of note at that time that Mr. Vancott did not see, as Long Island was the cradle of the American trotter, and his father being a noted horseman and keeping a public house where horsemen gathered, young Vancott was continually thrown into their society, and his inclinations all tended toward acquiring these facts from personal observation. Amazonia, the dam of Abdallah, was a light chestnut or sorrel mare, 15¾ hands high, with light or flaxen tail and mane. She was a plain mare, blocky built, with no style or speed, and did not resemble or have any characteristics of any prominent family. Her breeding was absolutely unknown, nor was there anything about her upon which a reasonable opinion could be founded as to her breeding. She was bred to Mambrino, son of Messenger, a large, coarse bay horse, and the produce was Abdallah, a typical Mambrino or Messenger in every essential particular. Abdallah was a light bay horse, 15.3½ hands, with a coarse head, long ear, good neck and shoulder, good barrel, the best of legs, and large but very substantial feet. His mane was light in texture, and his tail —well, he had only an apology for one. The influence of his dam was not perceptible in his make-up or character, unless, indeed, some of her ancestors had been noted for a rat tail; but the influence of the sire and the Messenger family was all apparent.

Abdallah for his opportunities was a fast horse, and he sired speed and a family of game race-horses, but all wilful, unsafe to be driven except by an expert, plain in appearance and inclined to interfere from the size of the feet and the family way of trotting. Abdallah himself was a leggy horse, and this was characteristic of his family. He sired three 2:30 performers and one son that has made his name famous, this being Hambletonian.

The question is now very pertinent, why did Abdallah excel all other descendants of Messenger as a sire of trotters, and why in turn did Hambletonian so much excel Abdallah? We may also ask, why among all the sons of Abdallah did Hambletonian alone become famous?

All these facts are but the natural working of the laws of nature or evolution. In Hambletonian the blood of Messenger was first united with the blood of a fixed type of trotting horses. And now let us see what the fixed type was.

Imp. Bellfounder was imported, or at least brought, to New York by a Mr. Mead, an Englishman that later on was connected with the Custom House. This was about 1831. The horse was taken to the stable of Harry Vancott, at Jamaica, L. I., and after making one or two seasons there he was taken to Orange County, where he remained several years, and was then returned to Jamacia, where he died, the property of Samuel Davis. During the last sojourn at Jamaica the elder Vancott became the owner of the horse, and upon his death the son, Mr. W. H. Vancott, bought the horse. He was presented to Mr. Davis, and died from an attack of lockjaw resulting from a quittor.

Bellfounder was a seal brown horse, 15.1½ hands high; fine head, with star; beautiful ears; fine neck; slightly hollow in the back; blocky built, with heavy mane and tail and the best of legs and feet, the two hind feet being white. He was a very showy horse, with considerable action, pure trotting gait, and could trot a mile in three minutes, which was then considered fast. To use Mr. Vancott's own words, "he was really a high-class Morgan in every respect, only he had more size and a longer neck and body."

A peculiarity of his white marking behind was the mottles or dark spots that interspersed the white, and which was transmitted to his daughter, the dam of Hambletonian, and also to Hambletonian, at least it has been often a distinguishing feature of his descendants. The perfect hock and hind leg that distinguished Hambletonian was equally prominent in Bellfounder.

Here, then, we have a complete and authentic description of Bellfounder. He was described in his pedigree as a Norfolk trotter, a distinct type of horses in England, and he was credited with having trotted over seventeen miles in an hour. Be this as it may, we know he had pure, round trotting action which he imparted to the Charles Kent mare, and she in turn imparted it to Hambletonian.

Bellfounder did not sire any extreme speed, although he had many of the best mares in the section sent to his embrace; but he founded a family of fine road-horses noted for more than average speed, beauty, fine trotttng action and pleasant dispositions. These were his distinct traits, and he imparted them with great uniformity.

It will thus be seen that as a horse and as a family the type and every characteristic was entirely opposite to the traits of Abdallah and the family he founded. When the two component parts were blended the speed, strong will and courage of the Abdallahs, united to the pure trotting action and pleasant disposition of the Bellfounders, it made what Hambletonian was—the nearest to a perfect trotting horse or sire up to that time produced.

Now a word as to the breeding of these Norfolk trotters. It is a law of nature that the strongest force will prevail, and a horse of pure and strong family blood lines or characteristics will transmit these points over a horse of short pedigree or with family characteristics less strongly implanted.

Up to Hambletonian, the blood of Messenger seems to have been most potent. Abdallah was a typical Messenger, and so was his sire, Mambrino.

Hambletonian, however, was a typical Bellfounder, with the better qualities of the Messenger strain added, and this would imply that Bellfounder must have been a strongly-bred horse, especially when we recall the fact that the dam of the Charles Kent mare was by a son of Messenger, and her dam was Silvertail, by Messenger. Counting the Messenger blood on both sides, then the quantity was sufficient beyond doubt to influence any blood lines not firmly established, and to control or obliterate any other family traits that did not rest upon a long and strong foundation. This is an axiom everywhere accepted by breeders and students.

When the blood of Bellfounder, therefore, bred to a granddaughter of Messenger, out of a daughter of Messenger, asserted itself and made the Charles Kent mare a typical Bellfounder, it must have been strong in family heredity, and this is still emphasized and strengthened by the fact that the same blood bred to Abdallah, a typical Messenger, again asserted itself and gave in Hambletonian a typical Bellfounder in size, conformation, disposition and trotting action. It was the strongest blood wherever it came in contact with the Messenger blood at all diluted.

This Norfolk trotting family was a breed of road-horses, noted in England for driving qualities, and very similar to our Morgans. The trotting gait had long been cultivated and thus intensified, and a fixed type of breed had been established with strong family characteristics. The origin of the family was probably just like the origin of our own trotting families —a thoroughbred horse crossed on native mares, perhaps draught mares, and the progeny trained by being used exclusively at the trotting or road gait. These Norfolk trotters are very common in England, in fact they are the only type of business and road horse. The Norfolk trotter of former years and the hackney of to-day are nearly identical, and both are similar to what we once termed cobs.

In Hambletonian then we have a well-defined type of a trotter or a fixed and established family of trotters. The nerve, force, courage and desirable qualities of the thoroughbred or Messenger family were united with and neutralized by the blood of the English trotter, making a happy combination, a nearly perfect whole, and this was what made Hambletonian superior to all that had preceded him, and superior to many that came after him. These then are the characteristics of the Hambletonian family.

The two families, Hambletonian and Mambrino Chief, both trace to one common source, viz., Messenger; but the characteristics of the two families are as entirely different as any families could well be.

If we except the occasional coarse head and large ear, there is little, if anything, of the Messenger type remaining or cropping out in the Hambletonian family, but the Mambrino Chief family retain many Messenger characteristics.

Starting from Messenger we find his son Mambrino got Abdallah,and thus founded the Hambletonian family. This same Mambrino also got Mambrino Paymaster out of a mare by imp. Paymaster. From a large, coarse mare of unknown breeding Mambrino Paymater got Mambrino Chief, the head of the family that bears his name. Mambrino was a strictly thoroughbred horse, coarse in appearance and a typical Messenger in everything but color, which was bay. Mambrino Paymaster, however, got an infusion of cold blood through his second dam, at least the breeding on the maternal side could never be traced beyond the first cross to imp. Paymaster. This horse was blind, and this defect has frequently reappeared in the Mambrino family.

As the dam of Mambrino Chief was also a cold-blooded mare, it really gave this horse a much larger infusion of cold than thorough blood, although the blood of Messenger is shown plainly in the conformation of Mambrino Chief. Unlike Hambletonian, none of the blood lines in Mambrino Chief were strong enough to overbalance this Messenger blood, but only to dilute it, and while the Hambletonian family has always been more Bellfounder than Messenger, that of Mambrino Chief has been, and still is, distinctly Messenger.

The superiority of Hambletonian over Mambrino Chief is very largely, if not wholly, due to the superiority of the dam of Hambletonian. Mambrino Chief seems to have nicked well with warm blood. His best son, Mambrino Patchen, was from a mare by Gano, son of American Eclipse, and his next best son, Woodford Mambrino, 2:21½, was from a mare by Woodford, son of Kosciusko. This latter mare also produced Wedgewood, 2:19. So in getting extreme speed the same warm blood played an important part, Lady Thorn, a full sister to Mambrino Patchen, being the only trotter by Mambrino Chief that ever beat 2:20, and Woodford Mambrino, mentioned above, ranking next in speed with his record of 2:21½.

At no time or place in the Mambrino family do we find a distinct type or marked family characteristics such as is shown in Hambletonian himself, and is retained in the family through the influence of the blood of Bellfounder.

The sons and daughters of Mambrino Chief were influenced strongly by the blood of their dams and families. Mambrino Patchen was a horse of high finish, although his sister, Lady Thorn, was plain. Woodford Mambrino was a plain horse, and it was extended to his descendants, the coarse Mambrino head being frequently seen. This coarseness, a distinctive Messenger or Mambrino characteristic, abounds throughout the descendants of Mambrino Chief. In Mambrino King it is obliterated by the blood of the handsome Edwin Forest, probably the most beautiful horse ever seen in this country, but the descendants of Mambrino King are not all handsome. In Kentucky Prince the Mambrino blood really forms but a small proportion, he being by Clark Chief, who was out of a mare by Downing's Bay Messenger, and she out of a mare of untraced breeding. The dam of Kentucky Prince was a Morgan and all other dams thoroughbred.

So, too, Princeps gets only a moderate infusion, the dam of Woodford Mambrino being by a thoroughbred horse, and the dam of Princeps being by Alexander's Abdallah, grandam Black Rose, by a pacer. The Mambrino family has become more noted in the female than in the male line, and this arises from the fact before mentioned, that the family type has never been strong enough to carry its influence against other strong blood. Bred to the blood of Hambletonian, the daughters have thrown speed. Especially is this true of the daughters of Mambrino Patchen, it having been termed the "golden cross" for George Wilkes.

We find then the Mambrino family characteristics to be of rather a plastic nature, owing to a lack of family strength of blood. What we term strong points in the family are points distinctively Messenger, coarse heads, and often the entire conformation more than average size, a low gait with much less action than distinguishes the Hambletonian family. As a family, however, all the descendants of Mambrino are noted for courage, but many have not pleasant dispositions, and few have qualities that make them pleasant road or family horses. Mambrino Chief was foaled in 1844, five years before the Hambletonian bred by Richard Eldridge, in Dutchess County, New York, and after passing through the hands of several owners, he was purchased by Mr. James B. Clay, of Kentucky, where he died in 1862, being comparatively a young horse. As compared with Hambletonian, his opportunities were few, and it is not probable that he sired more than one-half as many foals. Of the merits of the two horses, there can be no difference of opinion.

Each had sires about equally well-bred, but one had a dam descended from a long line of ancestors that were trotters, and her influence was the distinguishing feature that marks the superiority as a trotting progenitor of Hambletonian over Mambrino Chief.—New York Spirit of the Times.

Ferguson's Flag-Wielding.

Starter J. B. Ferguson accompanied by his son Garnet and the ever faithful "Pat" left Lexington recently for other points where the popular starter will wield the flag. Garnet will drop the first flag and clever boy that he is will be of great service to his father. The newspapers in New Orleans and in California lauded him to the skies. After seeing the good work done here by Jack Chinn, I was over to Louisville to witness a few days of the racing. I watched closely the starting because so much blarney had been written about him that I was suspicious that a great deal of it was newspaper flattery. In his palmiest days Caldwell handled the flag no better than did Jim Ferguson during the meeting of the Louisville Jockey Club.

Next place I saw horses at the post was Latonia, where Sheridan sets them going. His method differs from the others, and of the three starters. I give what I observed of their tactics and leave my readers to draw their own conclusions.

Jack Chinn sends them away in a hurry, never having many breakaways. This, of course, has the good effect to keep the jockeys alive to their business, but too frequently in his hurry more than one horse's chance of winning is set at naught in the same race by getting too much the worst of the start. Chinn starts, however, without regard to horse, be he favorite or long shot, and if the boy on the horse that is carrying the money of the talent and the public is caught napping at the post he is just as apt to be left as if he were a rank outsider. Ferguson is more patient and insists on the boys getting off together, and won't let them off otherwise; and while does not give the favorite the best of it, he is careful not to give him the worst of it. But Sheridan invariably starts the favorite in front, and frequently as they pass the starting point there is daylight between the favorite and his field. This, of course is popular with the betting public, but owners of other horses with money bet on them should be taken into consideration.

I am not writing this to disparage anybody's work, neither have I an axe to grind: but good as Chinn and Sheridan most certainly are, either has a superior in Ferguson.—Lexington, Cor., Nashville, Breeder and Turfman.

THE meeting of the New York Jockey Club which ended last Saturday continued seventeen days. There were 102 races run, of which two were dead heats. The money added by the club amounted to $138,200, with a total, including stakes, entrances and surplus in selling races, of $217,582 for the meeting. The leading winners were as follows: J. A. & A. H. Morris, $26,095, Oneck Stable, $17,750; Wolcott & Campbell, $17,145; Marcus Daly, $12,445; M. F. Dwyer, $11,995; Gideon & Daly, $11,320; F. A. Ehret, $9,910; Umpire Stable, $7,650; Rancocas Stable, $7,420; Louis Stuart, $7,220; W C. Daly, $7,190; Brown & Rogers, $5,333; J. R. Keene, $4,870

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

EDITED BY

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

Stamina in the Trotter.

The following article from the Breeder and Sportsman, the leading California turf paper, will be read with interest by the gentlemen who think it good policy to breed trotting horses to thoroughbred mares in order to get stamina and race-horse quality. The Breeder and Sportsman is devoted fully as much to running horses as to trotters, and is published at the home of Palo Alto.

The above was cut from the Kentucky Stock Farm of June 9th; then follows the article, but as will be learned from the paragraph copied, the position is not endorsed. The article is based on false premises, and, consequently, the deductions are not sound. The following is the opening of the editorial which appeared in this paper:

"Thoroughbred is sought to last a long time on the race track, said a veteran trotting-horse man to some friends the other day. "How is that," asked some one in the assemblage. "Did you ever think how much more stamina a trotter has to possess than a thoroughbred to be a successful campaigner?" They had not thought of that, but on pondering over the matter, it was a fact. It is all bosh to talk about the superior strength and gameness of the thoroughbred of the present. A few years ago there might have been something for lovers of the long-drawn-out gallopers to boast about, but there has been a mighty change within the past twenty years.

It is acknowledged to be a much easier task for a horse to gallop a mile with 120 pounds on his back than to pull a sulky with a 150-pound man in it and its trotting harness besides.

Our editor was evidently misled by the dogmatic assertion of the man who proffered the information that a trotter—a "successful campaigner" had more stamina than a thoroughbred, and without giving the subject careful study accepted it as an axiom. Had he recalled to memory an adage which, doubtless, he has heard and read a great many times, "That it is the pace that kills" and added to the last sentence I have copied, provided the mile is galloped at the same rate of speed which the trotter has shown; then there would be a general acquiescence in the principle formulated. But as it stands in place of being "bosh" to claim that thoroughbreds as a race or breed, have more stamina than trotting-bred animals, when the test is capacity to go a distance at a high rate of speed, the boot is on another leg, the ridicule in the opposite direction. There is one test which can readily be made. Take a purely trotting-bred horse and put him in condition to run a distance giving him all the time that is necessary, select a thoroughbred that has no more speed than the trotter shows from a short brush, say a couple of hundred yards, and stretch the route anywhere from a mile to four miles, and it will be any kind of odds that he will be left so far behind in the longer course that there will be at least a quarter of a mile between them. By purely trotting bred I mean one which has not been "tainted with the pernicious influence of the thoroughbred," as one of the most violent opponents of near crosses of racing blood termed it, as some, who have been forced by the stern logic of events, are fain to claim now that Trustee, Boston, Bonnie Scotland, Lexington and others are "potent" trotting mixtures. But there has been one experience which our editor must surely be familiar with and that is the part which "teasers" play in a well-regulated trotting stable. Hickok has a son of Luke Blackburn which fills that important position, and La Siesta has also a thoroughbred to stimulate and encourage the trotters tn their exercise. No matter how many trotters were worked out on the same day, then one galloper had to accompany them, and if on consecutive days for the greater portion of the week that soft, staminaless fellow had to stand the brunt of the frequent battles. The number of heats which it is claimed the greater stamina of the trotting-bred enables them to accomplish, is duplicated again and again, and the care that is lavished on the trotter between the heats is not vouchsafed to the teasor. He is not taken out of the harness and if the work be sandwiched, two trotters alternating heats, the runner goes with both. Messrs. Burke and Hickok were so thoroughly impressed with the stamina shown by their teasers, that a match was made, both arguing that though the other might have "the foot" when it came to a distance, something that would try the bottom, their favorite would be the victor. The match came off during the Golden Gate Fair, Hickok's "teaser" proving the better, and as the time was some seconds faster than two minutes it was evident that stamina was not wanting.

One of the arguments advanced to defend the position was that more racehorses were laid up, retired at an earlier age than trotters. "'Tis the pace that kills" has been forgotten again and in addition to that there is far more danger to the legs from the weight being carried than when it is pulled. Then the action in the fast gallop is far more trying to joints ligaments and tendons than it is in the fast trot.

The feet of the racehorse strikes the ground in succession; first one hind foot, then the other hind foot, one fore foot and then the other from which the body and weight of the rider receives its final impulse to carry it through the air-flight. That foot and leg have to support the whole of the weight until the body is carried over it, some distance beyond a vertical line projected upwards from the foot, and then the supreme effort to hurl body and rider forward. And that with a velocity at least 25 per cent faster than Sunol can show at her most rapid trot. Fast-trotting action (when the gait is square) is a regular cadence, one fore foot and the hind foot on the opposite side striking the ground so nearly together that the eye and ear fail to detect any difference. In place of one long air-flight in the stride there are two in the trotter, while the stride is much shorter, and in lieu of 120 pounds to be carried there is ten pounds in the harness and that is all provided the weight of the driver is equally balanced on the axle. Then again, the trotting track from its firmer surface is not so trying on the tendons and ligaments as the deeply-harrowed race course, though harder on the feet, and sprains and lesions of tendons and ligaments are the main source of trouble, the chief cause in retiring racehorses. That is when ailments are the cause. "Youth will be served," has been a proverb for a century or more when pugilists and pedestrians were the themes of discussion. It has a still more forcible application when applied to racehorses. When a colt was learned to carry the weight to the best advantage and been put in condition to continue his best pace, or nearly his best pace, for the distance, he is educated, competent to perform up to his standard of maturity.

It may be called a settled principle in racing that if a colt does not show well in his two-year-old form there is little hope of him thereafter. Failure at that age consigns the filly to the breeding paddocks, the colt to selling races and handicaps if the failure is not too great; to domestic uses if there are no hopes of racing. Few of the good ones can meet the young division with success, and so the actors on the racing stage are the stars (and even Salvator was retired when sound as a dollar) and the younger division with hundreds of recruits in every year. Trotters are not thrown aside, although they may prove backward pupils in their colthood, and "hope tells a flattering tale," in many instances to the serious detriment of the optimistic owner.

The argument based on the different methods of training racehorses and trotters is manifestly unsound, though I must say that the trotting-horse trainer who "gives ten miles a day, seven of them "jogs" and three of them at nearly top speed," is not following the most approved system now in vogue. But if numbers of miles covered in a day are a true test of stamina then stage, horse car and even work horses are superior to the trotting-bred. I quote again. "Therefore, the trot being a harder gait on a horse" etc. Take the trotter out of the shafts put 120 pounds on his back, run him a mile at his best, and if he does not show more distress than with three miles of fast trotting I will agree to "acknowledge the corn" and admit that the thoroughbred is inferior in stamina.

'Tis the pace that kills, and this will answer the homilies on the deterioration of the thoroughbred. A thoroughbred may "give it up" in a dash of three-quarters of a mile, and yet have the capacity to go four miles in good time. One of the reasons given for the defeat of Grey Eagle by Wagner was that the bay horse could hold his brush for 600 yards and this broke the heart of the "gallant grey." The power to come again and again after a short respite, to brush and brush when the steadying hand of the jockey has given some relief is alone found in horses of good breeding, and no matter how good the part-bred competitor, when stamina was the test, victory crowned the purple banner. Were the inducements sufficient I have not the least doubt that the best marks for heats of four miles would be lowered. In the 'good old-days Wm. T. Porter wrote that whenever the forties were reached it was a good performance. Even the forties have been put in the shade for a mile; two miles low down in the thirties," three miles in the twenties and four miles in the teens. And all of these not so very far back in the shadowy past, as to preclude a repetition in the not distant future.

"INDISPUTABLE AFFIDAVITS."

Clark's Horse review of June 14th, containing the affidavits of Charles W. Allen and W. L. French in relation to the dam of Manette, reached me on Saturday afternoon last; these, and J. W. Knox's statement, being appended to this article. While I fully expected there would be enough weak points to invalidate the testimony presented, I did not anticipate such a complete refutation of the claim that Emblem was the dam of Manette. Had W. L. French's evidence been made public at the first notice of the dispute, that and facts which have never been called in question would have settled the matter withoutout further contr oversy. By referring to the affidavit it will be seen, that after giving a list of the stock which had come into W. L. French's hands, the property of J. W. Knox, he testifies:

"Early in 1878, the bay mare Addie foaled a chestnut by Nutwood. August 7, 1878 the brown mare Emblem, by Tattler, foaled a bay filly, by Nutwood." This is to the point, although it would have been more satisfactory if the date had been definately fixed in the case of Addie as it was with Emblem. That there was a purpose in this is evident and that intention will be considered hereafter. Definite enough, however, as it is, "early in 1878" cannot be construed to mean anything else than previous to the middle of the year, in fact, before one-third of it had passed away. Manon was foaled July 14, 1877. She was by Nutwood, her dam Addie; date of foaling and pedigree given by her breeder, J. W. Knox. It thus appears in the Matadera Stud Book, kept by James Taylor, whose letter to Mr. Forbes appeared in tnis paper last week, and has thus been given in all the yearly catalogues issued from Palo Alto.

In that stud book, and in the catalogues of Palo Alto, the birth of Manette is given August 7th, agreeing with the date in the affidavit. Now, for a mare which had a foal on the 14th of July, 1877, to have another living foal "early in 1878" is so nearly impossible that there is not one chance in a hundred thousand, not one in a million for it to occur. Addie, therefore, could not have been the dam of a foal which came early in 1878. By referring to the French affidavit it will be learned that Addie and her "bay filly, yearling, by Nutwood, now Manon" came into Mr. French's posession. Then also came "brown mare, by Tattler (sister to Voltair) in foal to Nutwood," and "bay filly, two-year-old (now Middletown mare) by Middletown, dam Emblem."

There is no entry of a yearling from Emblem; it has never been claimed that she had produce in 1877, and consequently, it is a fair inference that she, Emblem, was barren in that year. Which then the most likely to have a foal early in 1878?

It is customary if the mare is doing well to breed her on the ninth day after foaling, and that would bring the date of the first service to Addie on July 23d. An average from the time of conception to foaling is eleven months and eight days. Some close observers say that eleven months and so many days as the mare is years old is a close calculation.

Addie was ten years old when Manette was foaled, so that the most likely time for her would be the first of July, provided conception had taken place at the first service. 1878 would be just half gone at that date, and even June first, when five-twelfths of the year had passed away, would not be classed as early in the year.

Emblem, in all probability, barren in 1877, would be in position to have an early foal, and that she was the dam of the chestnut colt is too plain to warrant occupying more space to prove it; a "self-evident" proposition.

Plain as that two and two are four, and Mr. French did not "Carelessly mix the two mares Emblem and Addie, reading brown for bay" as Mr. Allen testifies, but placed a correct interpretation of the invoice received, and the letter he wrote Mr. Knox gave the true information.

I will now turn to another phase in this question, and one which, though alluded to last week, is clearer from the publication of Knox's statement and the affidavit of Charles W. Allen. Mr. Allen testifies that he withheld the knowledge he possessed from Knox to "save him possible annoyance, and, perhaps, expense." That was his acknowledged motive for his silence, and his conversion came slow. His conscience was working, and he was on the "anxious seat." Quoting his own words he says: "But since Arion has shown such great speed, I thought it but right that breeders should know the families it came through, and Mr. Knox being here on a visit I have given him the above statement."

The first motive was not altogether creditable as the correction would have been made before the stock was delivered—or soon after, as Mr. Allen states that he "discerned the mistake some little time after," that was after the arrival of Knox in California, and by the way the horses had left Wisconsin before Mr. Allen discovered the mistake! But his last motive, or the last that he mentions, seems to have been somewhat slow in conception. That may have been owing to a struggle between a desire not to have his brother-in-law subjected to "possible annoyance" and "but right that breeders should know the families it came through" i. e. Arion's great speed, at all events, Arion won the two-year-old record, 2:15¼, Oct. 6th, 1891; he lowered that on Oct. 21st to 2:14¼, and on Nov. 10th, raised the greatest excitement in the trotting world by making 2:10¾. Mr. Allen affirms that "Mr. Knox being here on a visit I gave him the above statement" that being a part of the sentence in which he explalns his change of heart. That affidavy was signed and sworn to on the 29th of February. Mr. Knox states that on the 26th of February, 1892, he received a letter from Mr. Allen notifying him of the mistake. It was then three months and sixteen days after Arion had got his biggest mark that Mr. Allen took the first steps to enlighten breeders about Arion's granddam, and it was surely a singularly roundabout way of making the announcement. Knox lost no time in paying the visit and obtaining Mr. Allen's affidavit. Eight days elapsed before that of Mr. French was secured. The 22d of March is the date of the letter which was sent Mr. Forbes, and as was shown last week more tact was displayed in not giving information than is usually the case in correspondence of like character. A student of Machiavelian tactics could scarcely have bettered it, but it failed to effect the object. The papers got an inkling of the plot, Mr. Allen would not enlighten the breeders when requested by the Horse Review, and when there is further stir and Mr. Knox wants to set himself right he sends a note to The Horseman that he is not ready to make it public. But "the hour and the man' was approaching. From what was published in the Horse Review there can only be one conclusion that Knox was paid for the information he had obtained, and there was no protest on the part of Mr. Allen against losing valuable time to acquaint the breeders, etc. There might be a search for Hambletonian Chief crosses, under the false impression that the gradddam of the phenomon was of that tribe, whereas Tattler strains were the right ones, all owing to withholding the information. June 14th was the date of publication, six months after the mark was made. Not so long, however, after the purchase of Arion by Mr. Forbes, and from the first intimation being given to him, for even accepting the statement that a letter was sent Governor Stanford, Knox testifies that he wrote to Gov. otanford after Mr. Forbes had declined to negotiate, he was the breeder it was sought to enlighten. I do not feel like criticising Mr. Allen very harshly for avoiding the snbjecting of his brother-in-law to "possible annoyance, and, perhaps, expense," but I certainly would commend the action if he had taken earlier steps and when he acquainted Knox with the situation and insisted on straightforward publicity. By giving Knox the full power to act as he chose, and refusing to impart the knowledge he possessed, when that would have served the purpose he claimed to have in view, he is, in a measure, a party to the strange proceedings which have followed his actions in the premises.

Although Mr. French has played the role of leading actor In this "comedy of errors" as his affidavit is entitled to more weight than the "statement" and other affidavit, inasmuch as he had the mares in charge when the foals came, I am inclined to think that his good nature has been imposed upon. Under the head of Kenosha Investigations the Horse Review publishes something over a column of matter. Miss French, a sister of W. L. French, has charge of the farmwhere the mares were kept, was interviewed by the managing editor of the Review and this much is copied. "When questioned as to her brother the fact was elicited that French was a big, good-natured, easy-going man, who at that time attached no especial significance to the stock beyond seeing that they were well taken care of." Now one of the strangest features to me in this queer business is that Mr. French has been ignored further than to obtain his affidavit. Knox visited Mr. Allen, he writes "I have never seen that gentleman (W. L. French) from the time I left the mares in his possession until this day. And here let me note that Knox saw Mr. French when he left the mares with him, so that Freuch's knowledge was not confined to the written description of the stock sent to Mr. French and from which Mr. Allen claims that he discovered the mistake.

To resume the strange features, whatever the motives which governed Knox in not visiting "that gentlemen," a lack of acumen in not sending to East Jordan, Mich., in place of of Kenosha, is all that can be charged to the Review. The statement and affidavits were before them, and by far the most important witness lived there. The farm on which the foals gamboled had "no story to tell." Mr. Allen was only second, and it was positive that from their own knowledge of the man Mr. Allen would come under the tongue of good report when his neighbors were questioned. But valuable explanations could be looked for and his good-nature ensured a response to every query, if the principal witness, W. L. French, were interviewed.

Let me present a few questions which assuredly would not be impertinent, and to which a good-natured man would surely reply:

There are two affidavits, Mr. French hearing on the question of Manette's dam; that of Mr. Charles W. Allen, dated February 29th; yours of March 8th. Please state at whose instance you made the affidavit?

Who wrote the affidavit or the draft from which it was compiled?

The list of the stock, received from Mr. Knox and shipped to California embraces the following horses, did you see these animals in the presence of Mr. Knox and did he tell you their names and their breeding?

You testify that Addie had a chestnut colt early in 1878, and that Emblem had a bay filly on August 7th of that year, can you fix the exact date of the birth of the chestnut colt?

If unable to fix the exact date of foaling of the chestnut colt, give it as nearly as you can remember.

Did you keep a record of the birth of the three foals belonging to Mr. Knox? Emblem you call a brown mare and Addie bay. What were their shades? If Addie was a dark bay and Emblem a light brown, might not the colors become confused in your mind, and after the animals went away might not there be another mistake?

Addie had a foal July 14, 1877. Can it be possible that she would have another early in 1878?

With the information that Addie had a foal so late as July 14, 1877, are you satisfied that you had the mares properly classed at first, and that you were justified in writing Mr.

Knox that the chestnut colt was Emblem's and the bay filly Addie's?

Did Emblem have a foal in 1877, and if she did, what was the date of foaling?

Did Mr. Knox inform you when the mares were "due" to foal, and if so, what were the dates given?

From the character given Mr. French by his sister, and the Review says that his neighbors said "that he was just such a man as could be depended upon to make a blunder of the nature described in the affidavits," a "good-natured, easy-going man, his pliant disposition and propensity to blunder would be just the man to innocently further a scheme of this character.

The statement of Knox contains the following sentence: "Since then, however, through the associated press and through the turf papers, Senator Stanford, Mr. Simpson, Mr. Sibley and Mr. Forbes have questioned my motives and preferred charges against my character which were wholly uncalled for, and which, I think, will not be sustained by breeders in general when the evidence has been placed before them."

The evidence is now before them, and it is certainly of a nature to justify the charges made. Before seeing the letter which Knox wrote on March 22d and sent to Mr. Forbes, I could not imagine what Knox was trying to do. That letter convinced me that the motives could not be good, for even if the claim that "Manette was not out of Addie" was true, there was an evident intention to make something out of it. Were the claim false, it was easier to understand the peculiar tactics, and on that hypothesis I began the research. The only escape now is for French to swear that he made another mistake, and that in place of "Early in 1878 Addie foaled a chestnut colt by Nutwood," change the phraseology to midsummer or a little after. Would that change be accepted any more than the one already claimed?

The following is the testimony relied upon by J. W. Knox:

STATEMEMT J. W. KNOX.

TRENTON, N. J., June 11, 1882.—EDITOR HORSE REVIEW—Dear Sir: A few months ago I was informed by a letter from Mr. Charles W. Allen that the breeding of Manette, the dam of Arion, was not as I had always supposed it to be, and after a trip to Wisconsin, in which I verified the statements that he made to me and secured undisputed evidence that a mistake had been made, I wrote at once to Mr. Forbes, stating that there had been a mistake made and expressing a desire to meet him in New York. My object in writing him and my desire to meet him was that I might explain to him all of the circumstances connected with the mistake, and to advise with him as to the best course to pursue in making the matter public. I received a telegram and two letters from Mr. Forbes, in the last of which he said, in effect, that it was a matter of indifference to him what the breeding of the dam of Arion might be, inasmuch as he had trotted as fast as he had. I then wrote to Senator Stanford, at Washington, D. C., and stated to him the substance of my information. He did not even give me the courtesy of a reply. Since then, however, through the Associated Press and through the turf papers, Senator Stanford, Mr. Simpson, Mr. Sibley and Mr. Forbes have questioned my motives and have preferred charges against my character which were wholly uncalled for, and which, I think, will not be sustained by breeders in general when the evidence has been placed before them.

Their actions and the false position in which I have been placed leaves me but one course to pursue, which I now take in presenting to the breeding public all of the facts in my possession regarding the mistake which occurred. I bred the mares Emblem, Addie and East End to Nutwood in 1877 and shipped Nutwood to California in the fall and went myself to the Pacific Coast in September, the same year. The mares spoken of were left at Ennon, Pa. I returned to Pennsylvania in the spring of 1878, settled my business matters and shipped the mares and stock, that I decided to keep, to Mr. W. L. French, Kenosha, Wis., and have never seen that gentleman from the time I left the mares in his possession to this day. I returned to California, and after the mares had foaled, Mr. French wrote me that Emblem had a chestnut colt and that Addie had a bay filly. I afterwards sold five of my horses to Mr. Coutts, including Emblem, Addie, Fidelia, Manon and Manette, stipulating that they should be sound and all right upon their arrival at San Jose, Cal.

I gave the breeding of Manette as out of Addie, as reported to me by Mr. French. It was not until February 26th of the present year, at which time I received a letter from Mr. Allen, that I had the slightest suspicion that Manette was not out of Addie. The mistake, it appears, was made by Mr. French, and both he and Mr. Allen have been aware of the fact during the years that have passed. It would have been much better had they notified me as soon as the mistake was discovered; but while their silence may be criticised as a matter of judgment, their motives can certainly not be impugned in the least. Inasmuch as Arion has become the greatest of all trotters, I can appreciate the infinite harm it would do the breeding interests to allow such an error to stand. Whether the blood lines of Emblem are better or worse than those of Addie, cuts no figure whatever. What they are, is in reality the question of vital importance, and I have never for an instant considered any other course than that of making them public. Mr. Allen was the first to discover that a mistake had been made. It was he who informed Mr. French that he had reversed the names of the mares, and it was he, also, who finally wrote to me first upon the subject. I furnish you herewith the affidavits of these two gentlemen, and trust that the statement of the facts as they occurred, in connection with these affidavits, will satisfactorily settle the question of the breeding of Arion's dam. J. W. KNOX.

AFFIDAVIT CHARLES W. ALLEN.

STATE OF WISCONSIN, } ss.
COUNTY OF KENOSHA. }

Charles W. Allen, being duly sworn on oath, says he is a resident of the city of Kenosha, county of Kenosha, State of Wisconsin, and that early in the spring of 1878 J. W. Knox, then of Pittsburg, Pa., sold his farm, and, being about to move to California, shipped to his brother-in-law, W. L. French, then of Pleasant Prairie, Wis. (now of East Jordan, Mich.), the following mares and colts for keep:

Brown mare Emblem (sister to Voltaire), by Tattler No. 300, dam Young Portia; by Mambrino Chief No. 11. Bay mare Addie, by Hasbrouck's Hambletonian Chief. Light bay mare East End, by Scott's Hiatoga. (Above three mares were in foal to Nutwood.) Bay mare filly, two years old, now known as Dido, by Scott's Hiatoga, dam Columbia. Bay filly, two years old, not known as Middletown Mare, by Middletown, dam Emblem, as above. Bay filly, one year old, now known as Manon, by Nutwood, dam Addie, as above. Chestnut horse colt, three years old, now known as Nutwood Chief, by Nutwood, dam Fidelia, by Volunteer. Bay gelding, four years old, known as Gyp, by Belmont, dam by Hambletonian 10.

None of above stock had ever been seen by Mr. French prior to his unloading them here, and in reading description of the stock Mr. Knox sent him by letter, he carelessly mixed the two mares Emblem and Addie, reading brown for bay, and always while here called the brown mare Addie and the bay mare Emblem. And when early in the summer of 1878 the bay mare Addie had a chestnut horse colt, and August 7, 1878, the brown mare Emblem had a filly, now known as Manette, the dam of Arion 2:10¾, he wrote Mr. Knox at San Jose, Cal., that Emblem had a chestnut horse colt and Addie a bay filly. East End had a chestnut horse colt which only lived three days.

Early in 1879 Mr. Knox ordered all his stock shipped to California except Nutwood Chief, sold to Mr. French, and East End, bought by the writer. With the above stock Mr. French also sent the bay mare Fidelia and bay suckling colt, now known as Hawthorne, for which he went to Pittsburg; also the bay mare Eudora, by Volunteer, for which he went to Alexander Farm in Kentucky, both mares belonging to Mr. Knox.

Mr. Knox disposed of most of this stock on his arrival in California, and, of course, sold the bay filly out of Emblem as Addie's, and the chestnut colt out of Addie as Emblem's, according to the report made to him by Mr. French. I discovered the mistake some little time after in reading the description of the stock sent Mr. French by Mr. Knox. I was trying at the time to find out all I could about the mare I bought —East End— and called Mr. French's attention to the fact. As Mr. Knox has sold the colts I thought the best way to save him any possible annoyance, and, perhaps, expense, was to say nothing about it, and I did not let him know the mistake my brother-in-law, Mr. French, had made.

But since Arion has shown great speed, I thought it but right that breeders should know the families it came through, and Mr. Knox being here on a visit, I have given him the above statement. I saw the colts by the mares' sides while on the farm in Pleasant Prairie, Wis., nearly every day, and helped to load them for California.

AFFIDAVIT W. L. FRENCH.

This is to certify that I received at my place, near Kenosha, Wis., in February, 1878, from J. W. Knox's farm, at Ennon Valley, Pa., the following trotting stock for keep until shipment to California:

Brown mare Emblem, by Tattler (sister to Voltaire). In foal to Nutwood.

Bay mare Addie, by Hasbrouck's Hambletonian Chief. In foal to Nutwood.

Bay mare East End, by Scott's Hiatoga, etc. In foal to Nutwood.

Bay filly, two years old (now Middletown mare), by Middletown, dam Emblem.

Bay filly, yearling, by Nutwood (now Manon), dam Addie.

Bay filly, two years old, by Scott's Hiatoga, dam Columbia (now Dido).

Chestnut stallion, three years old, by Nutwood, dam Fidelia (now Nutwood Chief).

Bay gelding, three years old, called Gyp, by Belmont, dam by Hambletonian 10.

Late during the summer of 1878, I brought from Pittsburg, Pa., bay mare Fidelia, by Volunteer, etc., with a bay colt, suckling, now Hawthorne, by Nutwood. Also, in spring of 1879, Eudora, from Kentucky, by Volunteer.

Early in 1878 the bay mare Addie, foaled a chestnut colt by Nutwood. August 7th, 1878, the brown mare Emblem, by Tattler, foaled a bay filly, by Nutwood. In 1878 East End foaled a chestnut colt, by Nutwood; died the third day.

All this stock (except East End sold Mr. C. W. Allen, Kenosha, Wis., and Nutwood Chief, purchased by myself) was shipped to Mr. Knox, San Jose. All the time this stock was in my possession, and until some time after, I thought the brown mare Emblem was Addie and the bay mare Addie was Emblem, and I reported the chestnut colt of Addie's as Emblem's, and the bay filly out of Emblem as Addie's. This error was first called to my attention by Mr. Allen in reading the description after the stock was shipped, to the fact that I had mistaken the "br" in Mr. Knox's letter of description as the stock when it came into my possession for "bay," and therefore designated her as Addie in reporting their foals to Mr. Knox in California.

Now, as the stock had passed out of my hands and I did not see Mr. Knox for a number of years, and Mr. Knox had reported the stock sold to Mr. Coutts, Mayfield, Cal., and others, I thought I might complicate matters by making this explanation, and the mistake remained known only to Mr. Allen and myself until February, 1892, when Mr. Knox was informed of it by Mr. Allen.

THE STALLION PRODUCE STAKES.—I am much gratified to make the announcement that in response to requests from many, and in which I earnestly joined, Mr. Ariel Lathrop withdrew the nomination of Electioneer from the above stakes. With Bell Bird, the ex-champion yearling in the two-year-old, and the two-year-old Electioneers which showed so fast in 1891, there was little enconragement to name colts from other stallions when the entries closed, July 1st. Then the public will take far greater interest in the contest, for sanguine as owners usually are, those who are guided by public performances would see a little chance to beat a two-year-old which had trotted when a yearling in 2:26½—and with four two-year-olds with records 2:10¾, 2:22, 2:26½ and 2:28½, eligible for the three-year-old class; not much show in that.

As it now stands there is more equality. Plenty of prominent names in the list, which is published in another part of this number, of stallions, quite a number who occupy a prominent place in the "Great Table," and others who are sure to get there at no very distant day. Twenty sires of grand breeding, and so far as I can judge from personal inpection the majority of them, with higher qualifications than the possession of blood lines, adding form and performance to make a complete whole. The magnanimity of Mr. Lathrop cannot be too highly commended, and on the part of the Association, as well as for myself, return thanks. JOS. CAIRN SIMPSON

FIFTH DAY—MONDAY, JUNE 20.

There was not such a large crowd present at this afternoon's races as on preceding days, but they were enjoyable in the extreme, just the same. In the 2:40 pace Jennie McCoy won, the first two heats, making a record of 2:22 in the second one but losing the race to Charley Ford, by Dexter Prince who also got into the list with a record of 2:23½.

In the first heat of the 2:40 pace Jennie McCoy and Charley Ford paced head-and-head to the three-quarters, where the latter broke and Jennie McCoy won in a jog by two lengths, Charley Ford second, Dick Kitchen third and Stonemount last. Time, 2:25¾. By quarters, 0:35¼, 1:11, 1:46.

Second heat—Another hard fight from start to finish resulted. Ford led Jennie a trifle till the homestretch was reached, when the Denver mare got up and won by about a length in the rattling time of 2:22, Kitchen third, several lengths off. By quarters—0:35½, 1:11, 1:46¾. The final quarter was thus accomplished in 0:34¼, a 2:17 gait—hot time for "2:40 hosses."

Third heat—Jennie McCoy broke badly at the start, and was soon ten lengths behind. Kitchen then went up to Charley Ford, and they paced together to the half. Here Ford went to the front. McCoy was making up lots of ground, and the cheering for her caused Ford to break, and Dick Kitchen assumed command, not to be headed. They passed under the wire with Kitchen first by a length, Jennie McCoy second, Stonemount third, the favorite last. Time, 2:27½. By quarters—0:36¼, 1:13½, 1:47½.

Costello, driver of Charley Ford, was reprimanded severely.

Fourth heat—It was faster, but the horses appeared quite tired. Charley Ford won from Dick Kitchen by two lengths easily, he three lengths in front of Jennie McCoy, who ran in. Time, 2:26. By quarters—0:34¾, 1:10, 1:47.

Fifth heat—Charley Ford led throughout in a painfully slow heat, winning easily from Dick Kitchen by two lengths, who in turn was six lengths from Jennie McCoy, Stonemount a bad last. Time, 2:31. By quarters—0:36, 1:12, 1:53.

Sixth heat—Jennie McCoy broke up badly at the first turn, and lost a sixteenth of a mile. It was a pretty heat, Charley Ford and Dick Kitchen keeping close together throughout. The former won handily by about a length, Dick Kitchen second, Jennie McCoy distanced. Time, 2:23½. By quarters—0:36, 1:10½, 1:47.

In the four-year-old trot for a purse of $1,000 Emin Bey Electricity, Coxcomb and Marcus Daly started after seven at tempts, Emin Bey winning the first heat in 2:40½. On the first turn Marcus Daly led, but was easily passed by Emin, and at the quarter (0:37½) the latter playfully tossed his mane, shot away from the Wyoming pet, and on the backstretch led by six lengths; Daly in turn led Electricity by about four lengths, while away to the rear Coxcomb and his driver were vainly attempting to imagine they were in it. Around the upper turn to the three-quarters (1:59½), the positions remaining the same, Emin Bey slowed up and came into the stretch safe from successful pursuit, landing under the wire first by three lengths in 2:40½, Daly second, Electricity third on a run and Coxcomb fourth, who kindly danced a schottishe for the grand stand.

The second heat was as unsatisfactory as the first, Emin Bey having a snap from start to finish, a fact that York, who was behind Marcus Daly, evidently realized, for at no time did he attempt to give the Californian a brush. At the quarter (0:38½) the latter led by a length, Daly second, Electricity third and Coxcomb, who left the wire on the run, fourth. On the backstretch Emin led Daly by three and a half lengths, Electricity by ten lengths and Coxcomb by twelve lengths. At the half (1:18¼) Emin increased his lead to five lengths, and Coxcomb surprised the talent by passing Electricity, who broke into a run when ten lengths behind the leader. At the three-fourths (1:59) Connolly pulled Emin to an easy jog and came down the stretch at a gait which enabled Daly to be within a length of the wire when time was called. Coxcomb came in third and Electricity brought up the rear in a run. Time, 2:39½.

Third heat—From the start Emin Bey led, passing the quarter in 0:38½, the half in 1:18¼, and the three-quarters in 1:57¾. On the first turn Hitchcock attempted to land Electricity as a trailer, but, failing, was ten lengths to the rear in the backstretch, Emin Bey leading Daly by four lengths, who in turn showed his shoes to Coxcomb, who was going easy. On the upper turn Electricity, who was a distance out, broke and was jogged in, while Coxcomb and Daly surprised and pleased the people by forcing the favorite into a driving finish, sending him out of his class. When within twenty yards of the wire McIntyre, who was evidently exhilarated by the rapidity with which he was passing through the ozone, used his whip justily and the black broke, but was near enough to the goal to pass those in third place, Daly second and distancing Electricity. Time, 2:33½.

A special trot brought out Crown Prince, Scott Ashton, Nevada, Re-Elect and Otho. Crown Prince led in the first heat all the way. It was a pretty race for place. Re-Elect got it, Ashton a close third, Nevada fourth, Otho a bad last on account of breaking. Time, 2:29. By quarters—0:35¾, 1:15, 1:52.

Second heat—Crown Prince led at the start, but at the quarter Otho was to the fore. At the half Crown Prince got up to Otho, but broke, and was passed by Re-Elect and Nevada. At the three-quarters Otho began to weaken, and Crown Prince won handily by a length, Nevada second, lapped by Re-Elect, Ashton fourth, Otho last. Time, officially announced, 2:24¼; unofficial, 2:23½; afterward changed by judges to 2:24. By quarters—0:33¼, 1:09½, 1:46¼.

Third heat—Driver T. R. Jones told the judges that he desired to lay up a heat with Crown Prince, and the judges, under the rules, announced his determination from the stand. Otho was first to the quarter by three lengths, Nevada and Crown Prince head-and-head. At the half Otho's lead was two lengths, with Nevada coming up fast and leading in another eighth. Otho weakened for a moment and Nevada came in a winner by two lengths, Otho second by less than a length, Ashton third. Time, 2:27½. By quarters—0:34¾, 1:11½, 1:49½.

Fourth heat—Re-Elect being lame, the owners were allowed to withdraw him. Otho led once more to the half, Nevada close up and coming like a whirlwind again. Crown Prince went up fast, too, but broke, and Nevada won easily. Crown Prince ran considerably down the homestretch, and just managed to get the place by a half length from Otho. Time, 2:26½. By quarters—0:34¾, 1:11½, 1:50.

Fifth heat—Otho led off and gained steadily until he had put four lengths between himself and Crown Prince. Nearing the half the latter gained rapidly, and was only about two lengths to the bad passing the pole, Ashton third, Nevada last. Coming around the final turn Crown Prince caught Otho, and the clip set had taken the wind out of Otho's sails to such an extent that Crown Prince captured the heat and race in a jog by three lengths, Nevada second, Otho third, Ashton last.

G. W. NORWOOD, of Lebanon, Ind., has sold his pacing stallion Hambrino Boy, 2:27, to Guy Doremus, of Alexandria, Ind., for $1,500, which is very, very cheap for the kind of goods delivered. I don't think there has been a gamer or richer-bred horse sold this season than this fellow, and will prophesy for him a record low down in the 'teens before the snow flies. Hambrino Boy, as his name implies, was sired by the great Hambrino, 2:21¼, dam Linda G., by Pacing Abdallah, son of Alexander Abdallah, second dam Jennie Withers, by John Edsall, son of Alexander Abdallah, fourth dam Lizzie Peebles, by Wagner, the great race horse. The horse is very closely related so the great stallion Nephew, who died recently at Palo Alto—in fact the sire and dam were from the same families.

A representative of one of the leading breeding farms was overheard to say the other day that he knew that Welch's Palo Alto Inhaler would cure distemper and that he would not be without it for double its price. For sale at J. O. Kane's. See advertisement. *

Seretaries, Attention!

SECRETARIES are again notified to send in the copy of their programmes for publication. They should be inserted in the columns of this journal in time. Horsemen are anxiously inquiring for them.

Appreciation.

It is disgraceful to see the feeling expressed by many correspondents regarding the work done by Charles Marvin at Palo Alto. It is an outrage. No horseman can agree with such writers, for no one has ever made such a study of training and balancing trotters as he, either as a conditioner, trainer or driver, and the way he worked on that farm for thirteen years should be held up as an example for others to follow, rather than one to be depreciated by those who are unworthy to tie his shoes. It would be well for those who are seeking in this strange but inexplicable manner to make light of his great work to pause a little and remember the "Golden Rule," for some day they may, perchance, wish they had shown a little more charity.

Credit should be given where it is due, and to Mr. Marvin no language can be strong enough to express the acknowledgment of every fair-minded horseman in the land for the work he has performed at Palo Alto, and for the wonderful success attending his individual labors. When he went to Palo Alto on April 11, 1878, a little over fourteen years ago, he found the track just being built, new buildings were being planned, and only about a dozen men were employed on the farm. The stud consisted of Electioneer, then ten years old, without one in the list; Mohawk Chief, a failure, being twelve years old, and without a representative (and he has none yet); General Benton, ten years old, and unrepresented, and about twenty-five broodmares. Electioneer's first colt did not get into the list until late in the season of 1880; this colt, Fred Crocker, was foaled the year Marvin arrived there, and went into the list as a two-year-old, getting a mark of 2:25½. Mr. Marvin believed implicitly in the value of Electioneer, and every one who knew him at that time remembers how sanguine he was regarding the future of this horse. He did not come to Palo Alto to make a reputation as a driver and trainer; his fame was world-wide before he ever touched the green sward of that farm.

His experiences, as told in his book on "Training the Trotting Horse," do not embrace all the inner workings of his training methods, for he was known to be laboring at the break of day and long after the shades of night had fallen, in the sulky or cart, supervising the shoeing, looking after the attendants, advising the young men or teaching the young colts and fillies what he expected them to do. Whenever any of these youngsters were sick he was by their side, and by his example showed the men around him that he had the afflicted one's welfare at heart, and never left until the change for better or worse took place.

His work on the Eastern tracks with the Palo Alto strings is well known. All of his labors for years were devoted to one great object, and that was to place the name of Palo Alto on the highest pinnacle of fame. Faithful and conscientious, untiring and intelligent, he worked on, loyal to his employer at all times. No man can truthfully say he ever drove a race except to win every heat. In his labors he always displayed the same patience, modesty and generosity that endeared him to all with whom he came in contact. He never decried the efforts of others, nor did he strive, by crushing other aspirants for fame, to raise himself.

This lack of appreciation of a man whose name will forever be inseparably connected with that of Palo Alto, is uncalled for, because no sensible reason can be found for it. The work he did for that farm, can never be repaid, for by it we have been taught that money cannot buy honest fame; if it was so, brains would never be in demand. Mr. Marvin worked for a very low salary for ten years. He never murmured nor complained; he took the Palo Alto colts, developed and drove them to their wonderful records, and taught many of the prominent trainers and drivers of to-day new ideas regarding the booting, balancing and handling of trotters. If he was not a valuable man, would not Senator Stanford have let him find another place years ago? Would he not have refused to raise his salary? We believe that Senator Stanford, and every one connected with the farm, considers he was worth every dollar he received, if not a great deal more.

Mr. Marvin's methods of training were a revelation to trotting-horsemen, they were far in advance of the old way of training. He had no books to study but those of personal experience, and no path to follow but that of good common sense and cool judgment. His worth was recognized by other trotting-horse breeders years ago, but he stayed at Palo Alto until he had driven the greatest trotter the world has ever seen in the fastest time ever made; he gave the "king of stallions" his mark, and Arion, the greatest two-year-old—a record that will stand for years before it will be lowered.

It will be well to note here that any horse with fairly good action and natural speed may be easily driven in from 2:25 to 2:30, but when it comes to drive one from 2:20 to 2:15 it takes an artist, but from 2:15 downwards, it calls for a genius.

We do not wish to speak disparagingly of the young men who are now at the farm in their meritorious work of getting trotters in the list; we believe they are all very capable and will do much toward building a superstructure of records on the foundation already laid. These men were all, with perhaps one or two exceptions, pupils of Mr. Marvin and are following out his theories and instructions. They are almost like a family that has been left a system of training as a heritage from one who had devoted the greater portion of his life to its perfecting. These men cherish a warm spot for him and they, as well as every unbiased mind, do not like to see every scribe that visits the farm write articles reflecting in any way upon the work done by tireless Charles Marvin.

California owes much to this gentleman, and this lack of appreciation on the part of those who know better will do more toward keeping the best trainers and drivers from this coast than any other. Jealousies may arise between trainers and drivers, but the race track will be found the greatest arbitrator. Let justice be done every man according to his due. Time, the greatest judge, will decide whether the trotters on this farm driven by any one man will be as successful in the future as it has been in the past. Until then, justice commands that tongues should be silent and pens be not dipped in gall and no honest man should ever grudge Charles Marvin, the high place he has won in the estimation of every liberal-minded lover of trotting horses in America.

A Glorious Future for Trotters.

"The year 1892 will eclipse all others in the number of horses, trotters and pacers that will enter the list." The ball that has already been started augurs well for the success of this prediction. As far back as January 20th, two entered the charmed circle and they were from the "City of Angels," and after these two (Bric-a-Brac, 2:28¼ and Fred Drake, 2:26), got their records, a stillness hovered over the equine world until four months had passed, then on that charming course at the Capital City, Col. McNasser made a record of 2:27, and James L. got inside the limit by making a mark of 2:29¾. The seat of operations was now changed and the Garden City was selected by our horsemen to have a battle against Father Time. The fates were against the hoary-headed gentlemen for the trotters. Orphina, 2:26½; Paola, 2:30; Laura R., 2:28½; Wavelet, 2:28 and Wild Bee, 2:27, a quintette of trotters that trace their lineage to the dead hero of Palo Alto, came in as a delegation of representatives of the great farm by the lone tree, and were only a little advance guard, for upon the leafy-shaded tracks are fully five score royally-bred ones getting their preparatory work for the fall races. Many of them are neither sons, daughters grandsons nor granddaughters of Electioneer, but nevertheless they are trotters whose lights have been darkened by the effulgent rays of that illustrious family, and their names will shine resplendent on the roll of fame before the gentle rains of winter fall and long before the beautiful snow leaves its mantle on the crests of the Sierra Nevadas. In the "City of the Latter Day Saints," on the fourteenth of this leafy month of June, Ottinger, by Nephew Jr. got a record of 2:26½; this mark he lowered to 2:22½, just four days after, Re-Elect, by Elect (a son of Electioneer) got his record of 2:28, and his dam was by Nephew, a horse whose name should appear in a score of 2:30 performer's pedigrees this year.

The chestnut pacer Charley Ford, by Dexter Prince, out of Nelly, by Corsair, got a record of 2:23½ in the sixth heat of a race at Salt Lake last Tuesday.

In Albany, New York, on June 7th, another California colt Dudley Olcott, by Albert W., out of a daughter of Poscora Hayward, won the three last heats of a five heat race and got his present record of 2:26.

From reading the above list it appears that the blood of the Palo Alto stallions predominate; yet there are others that are not of that royal line which will make some great strides inside the charmed circle this fall.

The pilgrims, under the care of John A. Goldsmith, Orrin A. Hickok, James Dustin and Geo. Starr will soon be beating time on the tracks in the East, and the records they will make will be telegraphed to California in such a way that every horseman's blood will tingle with pride at the thought that the horses we sent from the land by the "sunset sea" were able to show the people of the East that campaigners, as well as record-breakers are raised here.

The various tracks throughout the State are beginning to present an animated appearance, and long before the fall races commence there will be matinees given on many of the most prominent ones, notably Oakland, San Jose, Sacramento, Napa, Petaluma and the Bay District, at which numbers of trotters will get inside the charmed circle.

On the Fourth of July a delegation of horses from Vina will appear at the track at Sacramento; a number of exceedingly well-bred ones from Palo Alto will make their debut at San Jose, and some good ones will be seen at Oakland track. We might go on enumerating the different places at which the many are knocking at the gates and only waiting for the opportunity to get in and have their names placed upon the roll of honor.

Many breeders who have colts and fillies that are now showing very fast trials may not be able to get them in the list this year. This is the experience of every horse-owner in the land. It is one of the things about breeding and raising trotters that makes the breeder place a high valuation on the more fortunate ones that he sends out. People talk about 2:30 as if it were but an easy task to get their colts and fillies (that are showing fast trials) inside that mark, but when the watch is held over them and two or three other youngsters equally as fast are "bothering," the one they they rely so much upon, it is a far more difficult matter to get the coveted record.

If the number of trotters that get into the list in California is greater than it was last year,—we are sure there can be no reason to doubt such a result,—there will be a large number of Eastern people here next winter to inspect our trotting stock and make their selections to take back. Many of the most prominent breeders will be inclined to bring their extensive stables of trotting stallions and broodmares here and raise horses cheaper than they can in any part of the world. We will be glad to extend the right hand of fellowship to all who come, whether their mission may be to inspect our stock, to purchase our trotters or to make their home with us. We are out for business in California, and will show to the people of the East that while there are a few of our good trotters and pacers among them battling for supremacy, there are hundreds of others that will get into the list and place the reputation of California as a horse-breeding State on even a higher plane than it has been heretofore.

March of the Californians to Victory.

To every fair-minded man it has been amply demonstrated that California raises the best horses in the world. Outnumbered thirty to one, the richest stakes of the young season have gone in almost every instance to a representative of the Golden State. At the far East, Sir Walter has started in three stakes and won them all, one of them alone (the Great American) being worth $17,000 to the lucky owner, Dr. Knapp, of New York. In all, the three events were worth to the winning owner something like $23,000. At Latonia, Yo Tambien captured the rich Merchants' Stake and other races, and added the brightest laurel of all when she placed the Garfield Derby to her credit, at Chicago last Saturday. Dollie McCone, her stable companion, has won a couple of creditable races, too. At St. Louis, Sir Carr, Guido, Oregon Eclipse, Nero, Gracie S. and Tim Murphy have proved victors over many high-class horses, while at the Chicago tracks Ormonde, Borealis and others have been highly successful thus early in the racing season. Montana's win of the Suburban Handicap is an event that will never be forgotten by lovers of game race horses.

Among the winners at the far East hailing from California worthy of mention are Tournament, Lawless, Tyrant–Bettie colt, Snowball and Gold Dollar. At Denver, Geraldine, April Fool, Acclaim, El Rayo, Hermitage, Honshell, Centella, Grandee and Tigress won handsomely, while during the past ten days our trotters have been adding to the great reputation of our State by carrying off the choicest plums in the trotting pie at Salt Lake City. Ottinger, a son of Nephew Jr., and a "green" horse, has not only won two races, but has made a record of 2:22½ in the bargain, while Re-Elect, son of Elect won a good race at the Utah metropolis and gained a record of 2:28 in so doing. The success of Dudley Olcott, son of Albert W., 2:20, at Albany, N. Y., was noted in our columns last week, and altogether the racing season of 1892 bids fair to give additional luster to this great horse-producing State. The future of California will be a brilliant one, or the signs of the times count for naught.

P. C. T. H. B. A. Entries—Payments Due July 1st—Don't Get Left!

Name your colts on July 1st if you have any two or three-year-olds eligible for the Stallion Produce Stakes, to be trotted at the Fall Meeting of the P. C. T. H. B. A next October. You can enter for $5, which is to be paid on the 1st, and start them for $20 more, payable ten days before the meeting. As all the entrance fees from the stallions go to the colts, it will make two "big, fat purses" to get into for a mere nominal sum, that is, providing you are lucky in having colts by the sires entered last March. These stakes are new on this coast, and, properly conducted, they will be a grand feature for the breeding and racing interests, as they will benefit the stallion-owners by making it an inducement for owners of colts sired by the horses entered to work and train the youngsters to compete for such rich rewards. Anyone having a colt two or three years old by the stallions entered can make a nomination.

Payment is also due and must be made July 1st on the stallions.

The following is the list and conditions:

STALLION PRODUCE STAKES.—One for two and one for three-year-olds, the get of stallions named on March 1, 1892, to be trotted at the Fall Meeting of this Association, 1892. Entrance for stallions, the season price of 1889 of stallion named; dead stallions at price of season 1889, or last previous season; private stallions that have not been bred for pay, if with record of 2:30 or better, $100; others $50; lowest entrance $25. If the stallion entered has only two-year-olds, entrance to be one half of the season price as stipulated above. The Directors reserve the right to settle all questions concerning stallion fees as seems best. Stallions to be named March 1, 1892, and entrance payable July 1, 1892; colts to be named July 1, 1892, for $5, $20 additional ten days before the first advertised day of the meeting. One-half stallion entrance for two-year olds, with all two-year-old payments added. One-half for three-year-olds, with all three-year-old payments added. Money divided in each stake 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.

California State Fair.

The programme of racing of the coming State Fair at Sacramento, published in another portion of this paper, is at once a pleasing and liberal one. Owners of trotters, pacers and gallopers all have a chance to win a goodly sum, and the conditions in the various events should be carefully noted and entries made wherever possible without delay. There will be nine days of racing, commencing on the 8th of September and ending on the 17th. On the first day there will be the contest in the Occident Stake, entries to which closed in 1889; a purse for 2:20 pacers, $800, and a trotting purse for the 2:22 class, $1,000.

On the second day, Friday, September 9th, is devoted to the gallopers—a scramble, sweepstake, for two-year-olds, six furlongs, $300 added, $25 entrance; Sunset Stake, three-year-olds, closed 1890, mile and an eighth; Rosemeade Handicap, $400 added, $50 for starters, all ages, mile and a quarter; selling sweepstakes for two-year-olds, $250 added, $20 for starters.

The third day, September 10th, is devoted to the trotters—a two-year-old stake; the 2:27 trot, purse $1,000; 2:18 trot, purse $1,000.

On the fourth day, September 12th, there is the Fairy Stake, six furlongs; free handicap, for three-year-olds, mile and an eighth; Sunny Slope Stake, for two-year-old fillies, five-eighths of a mile; Capital City Stake, for three-year-olds, $25 each, $350 added, mile and a sixteenth; $400 purse, three-year-olds and upwards, mile and seventy yards; all this day's races of course are running events.

On the fifth oay, September 13th, is the three-year-old trotting stake, entries closed; two-year-old pace, entries closed; 2:15 stallion pace, closed; 2:25 trot, purse $1,000, entries close August 27th.

On the sixth day the runners take up the attention of the public again. There is the California Annual Stake, two-year-olds, $50 for starters, $350 added, six furlongs; three-year-old purse, $400, $15 for starters, mile and a sixteenth; Fall Stake, all ages, $50 for starters, $400 added, mile and a half; Orange Stake, three-year-old handicap, $350 added, three-quarters of a mile; selling purse, $350, one mile.

On September 15th, the seventh day, there is a four-year-old trotting stake, entries closed; three-year-old pace, closed; 2:20 trot, purse $1,000; 2:30 trot, purse $800; free-for-all pace, purse $800.

Friday, September 16th, is the eighth day, and on that date the Autumn Handicap, running, for two-year-olds, is contended for, the distance being one mile, $50 for starters, $400 added; The Del Mar Stake, all ages, one mile, $50 for starters, $300 added, $200 additional if 1:41½ is beaten; President Stake, $750 added, entries closed; two races, the conditions in which will be posted September 15th; a free purse, $350, for non-winners, mile and a sixteenth.

On the last day comes the 2:40 trot, purse $800; free-for-all trot, purse $1,500; four-year-old pace, entries closed.

Whoever got up this programme displayed admirable judgment. It will be observed that the distances in the running events have been increased. In no other way can the thoroughbred be improved in point of stamina. Edwin F. Smith is the secretary, and will look out for the comfort of visiting horsemen in his usual pleasant way. Enter liberally, horsemen, for there is much glory and coin to be won at the State Fair of 1892.

Imp. Idalium Sold.

Last Wednesday night Adolph B. Spreckles purchased of R. E. de B. Lopez, agent for B. de B. Lopez, of London, the black Australian-bred stallion Idalium, full brother to Sir Modred and Cheviot, wonderfully successful sires of race horses in this country. Idalium, consigned to Spreckles Bros., with a reserve price of $15,000, arrived in this country on the 26th of last December. Brought over to be sold, a number of offers were received for the horse, one of $7,500, another of $8,000, and finally an offer by telegraph of $10,000. The great success of his brothers in the stud and the refusal of $50,000 for Cheviot warranted Mr. L. in holding off for the sum he finally secured. Late advices from Australia are to the effect that the get of Idalium are winning in the land of the kangaroo with astonishing regularity, and as the black horse is a fine individual, he should prove fully as successful as his distinguished brothers.

Idalium is thirteen years old, stands 15.3 hands in height and weighs 1,100 pounds. He has a most beautiful head and neck, a long body of great substance and powerful limbs, is clean-cut at the throttle, unusually deep through the heart, has a chest full and prominent, long, springy ribs, a well-rounded barrel, short, strong back, and is about the same height at the withers and highest point of the rump. He has the regular Australian quarters—muscular, but sloping sharply—short cannon bones and medium-sized feet.

Idalium's breeding is as follows: By Traducer (son of The Libel and Arethusa, by Elis), first dam Idalia, by Cambuscan; second dam, Dulcibella, by Voltigeur; third dam Priestess, by The Doctor; fourth dam The Biddy, by Bran; fifth dam, Idalia, by Peruvian, and so on into the great Eclipse, Herod, Godolphin Abrabian and Childers families to the fifteenth dam, Byerly Turk mare. The much-prized cross all over the world is "Pantaloon on Touchstone," and this is found close up in Idalium, The Libel being by Pantaloon out of Pasquinade, own sister to Touchstone.

It is hoped that Mr. Adolph Spreckles, now that he has secured such a valuable horse, will enter the ranks of thoroughbred-breeders and join hands with such popular gentlemen as W. O' B. Macdonough, Colonel H. I. Thornton and Charles Kerr in the enchanting business of rearing blue-blooded thoroughbred horses.

Trotters Under the Hammer.

F. J. Berry & Co. announce that their immense breeding and speed sale, October 24–29, is already an assured success. This sale is limited to four hundred horses and restricted to high, standard-bred stock and developed speed, and will comprise the most select collection of horses ever catalogued in a combination sale. Every popular trotting family will be represented, and a large amount of extreme speed will go to the highest bidder. Here is the opportunity of the year for owners of rich-bred stock or horses that can show fast trotting under the watch to place them on the best market in the world. Write for entry blanks and particulars to

F. J. BERRY & Co.,
Union Stock Yards, Chicago Ill.

DR. WM. F. EGAN met with a severe accident last week by which he broke one of his fingers on his right hand and badly injured the index finger of his left hand, therefore he has been unable to answer a number of queries that have been forwarded to him. We hope to have them by next week's issue.

You can not only save money but get the best of anything in the way of horse boots or harness at J. O. Kane's. He is also agent for the Foster Patent Track Harness, something that will win a race for you; see it before buying any other kind.

Rancho Del Paso's Yearling Sale.

Notwithstanding the excessive heat of last evening, a large crowd of turfmen assembled at Tattersalls' Sale Repository to bid upon the choice consignment of yearlings from Mr. J. B. Haggin's Rancho del Paso Stud, says the New York Spirit of the Times of June 14th.

The highest price of the evening was realized by the chestnut filly by imp. Midlothian, out of La Scala, the full sister to Sir Walter, who was knocked down to H. Wood (for W. O'B. Tough Horses.

It is not infrequent that a horse is found that has outlasted two or three generations of horses and practically worn out half a dozen other horses that seemingly were as tough as he was. Nearly every farm has an old stand-by that has taken his turn at all the hard knocks of farm work, has had the same usage as any of the other horses, and has stood a full share of the ills and mishaps consequent upon a farm life and still hale and hearty and able to wear out lots of the younger horses. Why one horse will out-live, out-work and be more serviceable than another is a question that is sometimes hard to answer. There are several things which may have a bearing upon the answer of this question. First, a horse with perfect conformation is not liable to wear out soon. Second, a good quiet disposition in a horse prevents worry and fretfulness and thus prolongs life and usefulness. Third, good digestive organs go a long way toward maintaining the "bones and sinews" of an animal and thus add to both utility and longevity. Fourth, good breeding. There is nothing which guarantees the qualities in a horse which are conductive to long life and usefulness as good breeding. The staying qualities of most horses consist of the good blood they carry, although they may inherit it from remote ancestors.

These points may well be worth remembering when the purchase of a horse is contemplated, or when the breeding of a horse is being considered. A horse that is good for twenty years of hard service, barring accidents, is worth more than the horse whose possibilities are not seemingly so great.—National Stockman and Farmer.

When to Sell.

About the hardest thing for some people to do, is to decide when to sell a horse, or for that matter, anything else they may have to dispose of in the market. About as many other people, who never have anything to sell, are engaged in the laudable business of advising the other people when to sell. To be a good seller is no less important than to be a good buyer. The two go together, and the person who fails to use good judgment at either will never grow rich by following the advice of others.

Special high prices for special horses, now and then, cut no figure, neither do they form any safe basis to govern the average breeder of trotters, nor for the average farmer for the sale of farm horses. The first thing to do when stock is for sale, is to put it into the best possible condition. The next thing is to find a buyer, and then comes the most difficult part of the transaction, to make the sale. Closing the sale is where the test comes in, and right here is where too many people make a mistake. As soon as a buyer turns up they forget that they want to sell, and instead of seeing an opportunity to sell, they see an opportunity to raise the price just a little, and lose a customer and a sale. Sometimes a few dollars may be made in this way, but nine times out of ten, the seller keeps his horse several years, and then takes less than he was offered.

When you are ready to sell do so. Don't begin to work yourself up to a point where you think the horse will bring more money by keeping him awhile. The feed, time and care, given to other stock will make up the difference.—Kell's Iowa Turf.

A Great Trio.

The following articles are copied from our esteemed contemporary, Dunter's Spirit of the Turf:

GOV. SPRAGUE 2:30½.

As you used to own Gov. Sprague, and have always been his stauncbest admirer, permit me to ask you to tell your readers what particular thing, in your opinion, made him the great trotter and sire of trotters that he was.—JOHN PELTON.

Answer.—We believe in ancestry; and Gov. Sprague possessed a remarkable one. For example: Whitehall, his grandsire, was a wonderful horse. Of him, John P. Williams wrote: "My father kept Whitehall several years: he then lived in Middleton, Vt. The horse stood the first season, and perhaps two or more seasons in Massachusetts, say in Adams, Lenox, Lee, Pittsfield and Barrington. I remember one season he was at home. We then li ed in Tinmouth, Vt., but think he served no mares except two of our own, and the mares both slipped their foals. We used him on the farm and road; he was a powerful horse. A. J. Newton, a neighbor, worked for us; Moscow, as he was then called, was hitched to a horse-rake. We had much hay to handle, and father said to the boy holding the rake (it was one of Hayne's man-killers): "Don't stop the horse when you are tired; let some one take your place, you can't hurt that horse." Newton says: "Jack, I can kill that horse in two hours if you will let me hold the rake;" father assented. Newton sent home for a little black bottle. The hay was raked, but the horse was not hurt, and A. J. Newton went home sad, lame and sore, but I think a wiser man. Father stood Whitehall in and around Baltimore, Md., several seasons, and sold him to a man in Chillicothe, O. I think Otis Hamilton had American and perhaps bred him; afterward owned by George Adams, then of Whitehall. I remember several stallions father had when I was young, but none of them could touch Whitehall at anything we asked him to do." And North American, the sire of Whitehall, was by the thoroughbred horse Sir Walter out of a fast pacer; Barney Henry, the sire of Whitehall's dam, was a thoroughbred, no doubt, and certainly was a fine horse. Then again the first and second dams of Rhode Island were by Davy Crockett and Bald Hornet, respectively. And when we come to the dam of Gov. Sprague, she tells her own story.—Dunton's Spirit of the Turf.

PRUDEN'S BLUE BULL.

Can you tell me anything of Pruden's Blue Bull, sire of Wilson's Blue Bull.—Subscriber.

Answer—In a few days we shall send you our Turf Register of 1892, in which you will find the pedigree of Pruden's Blue Bull. In the mean time we will tell you what James K. Pruden, of Harrison township, Ohio, says of him: My son, William H. Pruden, traded for the stallion in Elizabethtown, Ohio, about the time of the Morgan raid, which was July 12, 1863. Sam, as we called him, was a natural pacer, blind in one eye when we got him. I lived then in Logan township, Ind. Old Sol. Bedinger raised the horse, I think, or was foaled his. He gave him to a hired man, Mike Little, who knocked his eye out with the end of a halter. Think he was seventeen or eighteen years old when we got him. I traded him to Abraham L——, of Harrison who traded him in Cincinnatti when he died. I sold him for $65. The horse was rather short, good height, sorrel, bald face, white legs, stripe over shoulder and line on back; was a fast pacer. The sire of this horse came from Pennsylvania, on a four-horse wagon. Joe Cooper got the sire. My son got Sam, near Rising Sun, Ind., of a man named Lawton or Lawrie or some such name. The old man Bedinger and Mike Little both recognized the horse. I understood he was sired by the old horse got out of a team from Pennsylvania. My son William went over to Old Sol. Bedinger's with the horse, and he recognized him. They called him the old Blue Bull Sam. Michael Wilkins, an intelligent farmer, seventy-one years old, Crosby township, said that John Merring kept the original Blue Bull the first season he was there. He was a blue horse, black mane and tail, bald face, some white feet, black stripe over shoulders, one glass eye, if not both, about 15¾ hands. Don't think he was 16 hands; had big head, but was a good stallion. Grisley had the old horse I think after he was old, some time after Merring had him.

FLAXTAIL, 8132.

As we remember him, the ears were fine, large, long, erect and most always turned back, as though they swung back upon a perpendicular pivot. The crest crescent shape like that picture we have seen of the Godolphin Arabian. The neck had wondrous depth where it joined those great, broad, backward-sloping shoulders, that lay so completely wedge-like. The forelegs set wide apart, with a backward slant, broad knees, short cannons and pasterns, and good-sized, tough-looking feet. The withers rise above the spine which goes arching wonderfully and gracefully into a pair of quarters that defy comparison. The hips are neither too rough nor too ragged, but had a pleasing compromise between the two extremes. Quarters passibly sloping, and very long. If we could have had our way, his stifles should have been made with more fullness, and at the hocks not quite so sharp an angle. Then two, we would have put on him four white legs, instead of only the two behind, and for the beacon star in front we should have set a blaze in the face. When at rest, his four good feet were close companions. His sides a little flat, but very deep, with uncommon long-hanging flanks. Back unusually short, body long, head carried at an angle of forty-five degrees. His motion as smooth as the flight of a swallow, and as swift as a pheasant's. His disposition as harmless as water, and his colts bear his own type, almost to a line. A better tempered horse it would be hard to find; and his colts possess much the same disposition, and are large also.

Bad Habits in Horses.

Mr. John Keese has issued a treatise on "Bad Tricks in Horses and How to Cure Them," from which we extract the following:

To train a horse that would not permit anyone to mount him Mr. Keese has this to say:

"At the first attempt to go upon his back he made a plunge that took him far out of the reach of the would-be rider, or sent him flying if he succeeded in getting partly upon the horse. After all had given up and gone to their work I went to the stable, filled my pockets with oats, and began feeding the horse from my hand on either side; then got a box to stand upon (not too high at first), still feeding from my hand, reaching carefully over his neck as he began to look for the oats, then leaned upon him, and finally sat upright on his back, causing him to turn his head as he could reach on either side for the oats. Then untying the halter so he could turn round, he worked his way out of the stable, and in perhaps three-quarters of an hour he would go without the oats, when I put on the saddle and bridle, got on without difficulty, only taking care to move slowly and not frighten him, rode three or four miles, after which he gave no more trouble in riding."

"In order to stop a runaway the following method is recommended:

"If a single horse attempts to run, and you cannot pull him in, give a quick, sudden jerk on one rein, slacking the other, and bring his nose round to his shoulder. Then in like manner with the other rein bring it to the other side. The pull being sudden and without warning, he cannot stiffen his neck against it, so that no great strength is required to turn his head from side to side, which will prevent his running. Should this fail by excitement in the driver or other cause, hold his nose tight to his shoulder with one rein, which will be likely to throw him down with some risk, but not so much as to let him run."

Pulling horses are quite common, and Mr. Keese suggests a remedy that is very simple, and at the same time very effectual:

"For a puller, or one who has the habit of bearing too hard on the bit, start him slowly with a loose rein, talk coaxingly to keep him going slowly as long as you can. When his pace gets too fast pull him in gently, whether you have gone a rod or a mile, and if he will not go on more moderately bring him to a stop and keep him there till he gets quiet. Then go another rod or mile, but never hold with a heavy hand while driving, for the harder he is held the more he will pull. If he is restive and nervous at being hitched up and in a hurry to go, back him out and drive in two or three times, then tie and let him stand an hour or two, then drive to the door and tie, leaving him awhile, then drive back to the stable and take him out."

Many horse-owners abominate blinders, and will not use them. The subject is touched upon by Mr. Keese:

"Always study the comfort and cheerfulness of your horse if you would have him do his best. Let no part of the harness chafe or hurt. Keep the blinders well open in front, so he can see where he is going and what is coming. If a check-rein is used, see that it is not too short, and have it unhooked to rest his neck as soon as he stops. Beside the pain it gives, I have seen the back injured and the horse made worthless by the constant use of a short check rein. Let the man hold his head for an hour, as a horse must with a short check-rein."

Balking, says the Long Island gentleman, is always the fault of the trainer or driver. To cure the evil he says: "A colt in training or a young horse that has lately contracted the habit can be trained so as to do their best at any load they can pull, but if unkindly treated, and they have a load beyond their strength, they will be likely to remember the old trouble and not try. But young and old, good and bad can be taught to go well in driving or doing light work, as follows:

"Put the balky horse (young and old) with a good one, have a strong harness, a good neck-yoke to hold them together, leave the check-rein unhooked, and drive around till he will stop and start. Then hitch to a light, strong wagon, where it will go easily, with plenty of room to turn. Have the wagon cramped to the side of the good horse, get in and start the good horse with a pull toward the other to push him off his feet, and if he jumps or plunges give him a loose rein, and let him go his own way as much as possible till he can be coaxed into moderation."

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department MUST be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, as proof of good faith. Write the question distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Postively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

M. K., Haywards.—Would you be kind enough to inform me through your paper how many Direct fillies there are in this State? I am under the impression that I have the only one in the State. Answer—J. C. Smith, of Oakland, has one, and there are severel others around Pleasanton, we believe.

W. T., City.—What was the dam of Elma, that got a pacing record of 2:24? Answer—She was out of a mare called Orphan Girl, by Canada Jack, sire of the dam of Alexander, 2:19, and Woolly Jim, 2:29¼. This mare was brought here from Missouri, and was sold to Mr. Banks, of Redwood City.

F. M., Wright's—Please give pedigree of Signal Chief, by old Signal, of Marysville, also that of Jack Trimble. Answer—We find neither horse's breeding, but Jack Trimble was probably by Trimble's Eclipse, who was owned by Governor Trimble, of Ohio. Trimble's Eclipse was by American Eclipse, first dam by Tariff; second dam by Virginian, etc.

J. N., San Francisco.—I seek imformation through your valuable paper regarding a stallion owned by C. H. King, of King City, called Mozart. I would like the breeding of this horse; by so doing you will confer a favor on a constant reader. Answer—The only Mozart we know of is a thoroughbred by Flood, dam Camilla Urso, by Lodi. He was gelded, however.

S. E. L., Deer Lodge, Mont.—You say Washington, son of Geo. M. Patchen Jr., will be registered. Please give me through your valuable paper the breeding of Washington's dam. I suppose that you are aware that he has a record of 2:30. I own Alaska, whose dam is by Washington. Answer—The breeding of Washington's dam is not known. Two Washingtons have records of 2:20 and 2:21¾, respectively, both made in California and both pacers, but the horse we referred to (the sire of Fred Ackerman, pacer, 2:23¼, and Laura M., trotter, 2:27) had no record that we have any trace of.

Secretary, Napa, Cal.—Will you please tell me through your columns if the bay mare Regia, foaled June 1, 1875, bred by Theo. B. Ross, is registered, as follows: Sired by Echo 462, first dam Jennie Arlington, by Alexander 490; second dam Nellie, by Whipple's Hambletonian 725; third dam Gypsey Queen, by McCracken's Blackhawk 767. Answer—We know that a Milpitas gentleman formerly interested in Regia sent on the registration papers a few months ago to Registrar Steiner, but whether she was registered or not we cannot say. We suppose she was, for the necessary papers—statement of breeder of two or three dams—was forwarded along with the registration papers.

F. E. S., Albany, Or.—Please state in your next issue, how to start a running race. Does not it take two men, each with a flag, one at the pole and the other about fifty yards from it? Which man with flag has the say whether it is a go or not. Answer.—The starter has an assistant, and both drop flags as a general thing. The assistant stands about 40 yards ahead of the starter, on the track, and when the former drops his flag the assistant, who has been keeping his eye on the starter's bunting, drops his flag also, so that the jockeys can all see that it is a "go." However, while the starters always have assistants, Statter Ferguson stands on a portable platform the height of the inside fence, and nearly in front of the horses (on the inside training track), and he only drops a flag in token of a start. I like his way best. The starter has "the say" always.

Names Claimed.

I claim the name of SIR NORFOLK for my bay colt by Prince of Norfolk, dam by Wildidle.

Also the name of LADY NORFOLK for sorrel filly by Prince of Norfolk, dam Katie A., by Bullion.

June 26th Cricket match, between the Oaklands and Californias, at the Klinknerville grounds.

July 4th—California Division, L. A. W., annual race-meet, under the auspices of the Bay City Wheelmen and Oak Leaf Wheelmen, at Stockton, Cal.

July 4th—Scottish Thistle Club, annual games, at Shell Mound Park.

July 4th—Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club, race-meet, at the Schutzen Park grounds, Alameda, Cal.

Sept.—State Fair Association, amateur games, under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. U., at Sacramento, Cal.

SUMMARY.

In the athletic line there is nothing of importance on the list for the future. The wheelmen are training hard for coming events. The Acme Athletic Club of Oakland is fast becoming a first-class club, and the members will make a good showing at all future athletic and bicycle meetings. The swimming season opened last Sunday, when some good exhibitions of swimming were given at the Terrace Baths, at Alameda, by the members of the Pacific Swimming Club. Two good games of cricket were played across the bay last Sunday.

ATHLETIC SPORTS IN GENERAL.

An excellent group picture of the University athletes who were successful in defeating the Olympic Club athletic team on Decoration Day appears in the Overland Monthly for July.

It is thought that if the championship meeting was held on either July 4th or on Admission Day the attendance would be much larger. Out of respect for the dead a good many persons remain away from sports of all kinds on Decoration Day, and the delegates to the Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union should talk the matter over seriously, and try, if posssble, to change the date of their annual out-door championship meeting.

Since the holding of the championship meeting the cinder track at the Olympic Club grounds has been almost entirely deserted. The handball and tennis players, however, still practice daily, and Superindent Peter McIntyre is kept busy looking after the comfort of the visitors to the grounds.

It is rumored that young Henry, the champion hurdler of the world, will take a flying trip back East for the purpose of competing in the championship games of the United States.

The third tennis tournament of the Olympic Club for the Hammersmith Field trophy was held at the out-door grounds last Sunday. In the first class Stetson defeated Cade with a score of 7—5 and 8—6. In the second class Carrigan won over Allison, the score being 6—3 in favor of Allison and 6—5 for the winner. In the third class Levy won over Sanderson—6—3, 7—5. Wilber won easily over Quinan—6—1, 6—0. Levy defeated Larkin by a score of 6—3, 6—2. In the final Levy won. In the fourth class Durbrow won over McCarthy—6—3, 6—0. In the finals Fernald defeated Durbrow—6—5, 6—1. But very little interest was taken in the tournament, as scarcely fifty people were present to watch the games.

A large crowd of people were present at Golden Gate Park last Sunday to witness the foot-ball match between two teams from the Robert Emmet Club. The match was highly exciting and was finally won by the team know as the Whites. The score was 1 goal 3 points against 1 goal. The teams were made up as follows: Whites—T. Hughes, Jeremiah Walsh, F. Creede, M. Galvin, T. Driscoll, P. Moore, C. Ryan, D. Buckley, D. Mulcahy, P. Cavanagh, D Hannifan, M. C. Callaghan, T. Daly, Jerry O'Doud, M. Dwyer, R. C. Malone, M. F. Ryan, J. E. O'Connor and David Russell. Greens—F. Palmer, J. C. Nealon, T. Fitzgerald, M. F. O'Doud, S. McInerney, F. J. O'Keefe, P. Power, P. Desmond, S. Walsh, H. Walsh, J. Cronin, T. Hobe, H. O'Hare, D. Hagerty, J. D. Carmichael, M. McCarthy and J. McCann. D. L. Flynn and J. M. Sullivan acted as goal umpires. On July 4th the Robert Emmet Club will play a friendly match with a team from the Sarsfield Club, at the same place.

Monday, July 4th, will be a great pay for the wheelmen. A meeting will be held at the grounds of the A. B. and A. C. in Alameda, and several of the crack riders have already entered for the different events. Good prizes will be given, and it is expected that some more records will be broken at this meet. The track is one of the finest in the State, and many of the cyclers prefer to ride on it in preference to going to Stockton to attend the League tournament The following will be the programme: One-mile, safety, novice; two-mile, safety, Pacific Coast championship; one-mile, safety, handicap; one-mile ordinary, handicap; five-mile ordinary, championship; five-mile safety, scratch; half-mile boy's race.

The programme as arranged by the Bay City Wheelmen and Oak Leaf Wheelmen for the Stockton tournament is as follows: One-mile safety, novice; one-mile ordinary, championship; half-mile safety, scratch; two-mile safety, handicap; half-mile ordinary, scratch; one-mile safety, handicap; five-mile safety, State championship. The races will be held at Goodwater Grove, just outside of Stockton.

The Native Sons are co-operating with the Bay City Wheelmen, and two steamers will be chartered to carry spectators from this city to Stockton and return.

The Pacific Road Club will hold a road race at San Leandro, tomorrow morning. The race will be started at 9:30 o'clock from the junction, on Haywards Avenue, the finish to be in San Leandro. The first prize will be a handsome gold medal. All wheelmen are cordially invited to witness the race.

Peterson, the oarsman, is going to challenge McKay, who recently defeated McLean in a two-mile race at Vancouver, B. C.

About half a hundred people attended the second annual all-event gymnastic tournament which came off at the Olympic Club grounds last Saturday. The first event was called early in the morning, and it was late in the afternoon before the last event was decided. The programme was very monotonous, and a great error was made when it was decided to hold the sports in the open air. Such a tournament is better appreciated when held in a gymnasium. The turning was particularly good, and Al. Lean made fine records in the long jump, putting the shot, and in the 100-yard run. The day was very bright and warm and it was a great pity that more people were not in attendance to encourage the ambitious athletes who had trained very faithfully beforehand. The tournament resulted as follows;

A. Hoffman of the Olympic Club first, with 41.84 per cent; A. Kelter second, with 41.46 per cent; Louis Hinz third, with 36.43 per cent; Paul Ottman, of the San Francisco Turn Verein, fourth, with 36.03 per cent; C. Steinbeck, of the Oakland Turn Verin, scored 23.03 per cent; H. M. Alpers, of the San Francisco Turn Verein made 29.43 per cent; Al Lean, of the Turn Verein Eintracht made 30.62 per eent; Julius Pflug, of the Oakland Turn Verein, made 30.95 per cent; O. Hausser, of the San Francisco Turn Verein made 33.32 per cent; Charles Jacobs, of the San Francisco Turn Verein, made 25.86 per cent; M. Lehmann, of the Turn Verein Vorwarts made 32.95 per cent.

The members of the Acme Athletic Club, of Oakland, will hold a tramp to Laundry Farm to-morrow forenoon. It is expected that a large crowd of athletes and wheelmen will attend, as the members of the Olympic Club have been invited to take part in the walk. The members of the O. A. C. bicycle annex, will also attend. During the day a baseball game will be played between the Acme and Olympic teams. Dinner will be served in the hotel, and a general good time is looked forward to.

Al P. Swain, the champion wrestler of the Acme Club, and his club mate, H. D. Swales, returned early in the week from a hunting and fishing trip. They report that during their two weeks' stay in Mendocino county they had all the fishing and hunting they could attend to. Messrs. Dowdle, Hanifin, Maxwell and several other members of the Acme Club have also just returned from an extended tour through Lake, Sonoma and Mendocino counties on their wheels. They were treated in first-class style all along the route, and enjoyed themselves thoroughly from the time they left Oakland until their return. The Acme Club has the greatest number of crack wheelmen of any other club on the coast. Among its members are the following well-known champions and record-holders: Lund, Bell, Waller, Rickard, Neece, Maxwell, Dowdle, Bouton and several others who are coming to the front as champions. The initiation fee of the club will be raised to $10 after July 1st. This is an excellent sign of prosperity, and it is only a matter of time until the Acme Club will own one of the finest club houses and out-door grounds on the Pacific Coast. The performance of young Frank Waller, of the Acmes, who recently lowered several bicycle records, was remarkable, and it is a great pity that his records were not more extensively commented on by the papers. In his great ride a couple of weeks ago he broke the Pacific Coast records for ten, twenty-five, fifty and one hundred miles, and the world's record for twenty-four hours. He is a phenomenal rider, and his clubmates should well be proud of him. Mr. Waller expects to go East shortly, and during his visit he will make some of the Eastern crack wheelmen feel that Californian has just as good men as any other State.

The Californians easily defeated the Pacifics in a game of cricket at the Alameda grounds last Sunday. The match was one of the Harrison Cup series. The score was (with five men to spare), 154; Pacifics, 120.

A Horse As a Witness.

The first case on record in which a horse was placed on the witness stand came up in Essex Market Police Court recently. George Huber, the proprietor of a dime museum, had been charged with violating the Sunday law in keeping his museum open on the Sabbath and giving a "circus." When Mr. Huber was called before Justice Kilbreth he offered to prove to the Court that the exhibition was in reality of an intellectual character. His chief witness, he told the Justice, was a brown mare, and he begged that the mare be placed on the stand. The Justice consented to allow the mare to appear. She could not get into the courtroom, however, so Justice Kilbreth, followed by members of the bar, the defendant and court attaches, with a large audience, went down to the yard back of the courtroom, where the mare was brought in and the usual questions asked.

"How old are you?"

The mare gave five distinct strokes of her fore foot on the ground and looked as unconscious as feminine witnesses usually do when answering this query. In a like manner she signified that she had been three years in the business as "an educated horse." She also assisted by a glance at the Justice's watch, told what time it was, and in answer to questions on cross-examination said that Roundsman O'Brien had five brass buttons on his coat and was chewing tobacco.

Although the Justice seemed to be of the opinion at the close of the examination that Huber's exhibition was not an infraction of the law, he felt constrained to hold him for trial.—N. Y. Cor. St. Louis Republic.

THE trotting turf is booming. Between January 1 and April 1, 1882, the total amount of trotting stakes was only $13,000, while between the same dates in 1892 they figure up close to $300,000. The total amount of trotting stakes for 1892, which have been announced and not yet decided is close to $800,000. To this amount must be added the regular class races, which bear the same relation to the trotting track which the ovornight purses bear to the running turf. This marvelous array of figures amply demonstrates the popularity of trotting sport, as well as its enormous and steady growth.

Stallions, Brood Mares, Colts, Fillies, Young Breeding Stock, Trotters and Pacers with Low Records, and Fast Green Performers with 2:20 to 2:30 Speed.

Come to headquarters with your stock, as Chicago is acknowledged the leading market of the world for the American trotter and the grand center for combination sales, while our long and successful experience of thirty-seven years in the horse commission business, our extensive acquaintance with breeders and dealers, the vast amount of trade controlled by us, selling over 17,000 horses annually, in connection with the splendid record of our seven former sales, should be a sufficient guarantee to owners of of high-bred stock that we thoroughly understand the art of placing choice animals on the market, and know how to bring buyers and sellers together. A number of gilt-edged consignments are already pledged to the sale, including the get of Electioneer, the leading sons of George Wilkes, Nutwood and other best sires, and in the amount and rate of developed speed and the high quality of the offerings it promises to be the champion sale of the year. No inferior stock will be catalogued, as it will be a sale of strictly high standard-bred horses and developed speed. ENTRIES CLOSE SEPTEMBER 24. For entry blanks and terms address

A TRAINING AND DEVELOPING FARM.

THE SOUTHER FARM makes a specialty of everything connected with Conditioning, Balancing, Developing, Swimming and Training for Speed. A New Mile Track has just been finished and the plant is very complete.

THE SWIMMING TANK is doing everything that was expected of it, and more. It is simply invaluable in getting horses into condition for fast work, and its use takes out any soreness caused by training for speed. If a horse goes wrong at any point the swimming in salt water does wonders in the way of repairing damages, while the lungs, heart, back and shoulders are developed and no extra flesh is taken on.

Visitors Welcome Any Day Except Sunday.

BALKAN 8848

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1½ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000,

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.

This horse can be seen at The Oakland Track, in charge of A. L. HINDS.

Trotting Purse for Green Horses that have never started in a race for money or against time		600

CONDITIONS.

No horses and colts owned on the Pacific Coast by others than members of the P. C. T. H. B. A. are eligible to the above purses, but horses owned outside of the Pacific Coast are eligible thereto, regardless of membership.

All States and Territories lying in whole or in part west of the Rocky Mountains, are held to be part of the Pacific Coast.

The Directors reserve the right to change the hour and day of any race, except when it becomes necessary to antedate a race, in which instance the nominator will receive three days notice of change by mail to address of entry.

Entries not declared out by six P. M. of the day preceding the race, shall be required to start.

When there is more than one entry to purses by one person or in one interest, the horse to be started must be named by six P. M., of the day preceding the race.

Five to enter and three to start.

Purses and stakes will be divided into four moneys, viz., fifty per cent to the winner, twenty-five per cent to the second horse, fifteen percent to the third horse, and ten per cent to the fourth horse.

Three horses required in all purse races. The right reserved to declare two starters a walk-over.

Trotting and racing colors shall be named by 6 o'clock on the day preceding the race, and MUST be worn upon the track.

Otherwise than the above National Trotting Association Rules will govern. Suspensions and expulsions of the American Trotting Association will be recognized.

Applications for Membership.

Persons desiring of making entries in purses and who have not as yet joined the P. C. T. H. B. A., should make application for membership to the Secretary, before July 20th, 1892.

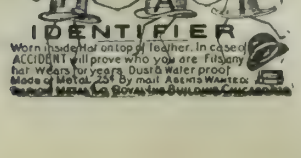
Training
The Trotting Horse.



BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, galting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

No. 39. FOUR-YEAR-OLD PACING PURSE Closed March 15, 1892, with 5 nominations.

REMARKS AND CONDITIONS.—TROTTING AND PACING.

All trotting and pacing races are the best three in five, except the two-year-old, unless otherwise specified; five to enter and three to start, but the Board reserves the right to hold a less number than five to fill, by the deduction of the entrance money from the purse for each horse less than five.

In the 2:30, 2:40 and 2:27 trots, and 2:20 pace, five entries are required to stand after the horses making records under conditions are barred, and their money returned. But the Board reserves the right to start a less number by deducting the entrances same as in other classes.

Entrance fee, 10 per cent. on purse, to accompany nominations. No entry will be received without it unless satisfactory security is given. Trotting and pacing purses divided at the rate of 50 per cent. to first horse, 25 per cent. to second, 15 per cent. to third, and 10 per cent. to fourth.

In the two, three and four-year-old sweepstakes, unless otherwise provided, moneys are divided as follows: To winning colt, all the stakes and 50 per cent. of the added money; second colt 33 1-3 per cent.; third colt 16 2-3 per cent. of added money. In all stakes, payments not made as they become due forfeits all money paid in and declares entry out.

The National Association rules to govern trotting; but the Board reserves the right to trot heats of any two classes alternately, if necessary to finish any day's racing, or to trot a special race between heats. A horse making a walk-over shall be entitled only to the entrance money paid in. When less than the required number of starters appear, they may contest for entrance money paid in, to be divided as follows: 66 2-3 per cent. to the first, and 33 1-3 per cent. to the second.

In trotting and pacing races, entries not declared out by six p. m. day before must start.

In the races drivers will be required to wear caps and jackets of distinct colors, which must be named in their entries.

RUNNING.

The State Agricultural Society's rules to govern running races except when conditions named are otherwise.

Please observe that in the foregoing stakes declarations are permitted for a small forfeit.

In all the foregoing stakes declarations are void unless accompanied by the money.

Starters in stake races must be named by six p. m. of the day before the race. All entries in purse races not declared out by six p. m. day before must start.

Allowances must be claimed at time starters are named, as owners and trainers are responsible for same.

Racing colors to be named in entries.

Non-winners are horses that have started and not won.

Final settlement of all purses and stakes won will be made on Saturday, September seventeenth at the office of the Secretary.

EDWIN F. SMITH, Secretary. FREDERICK COX, President.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

(Sire of Silky 2:26, Anna Belle 2:27½, Oaknut 2:24¼, Dot 2:29½.)

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2:18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood has record of 2:18¾ in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

BOSWELL, JR.

Will stand at the same place at the low price of $50 the season.

BOSWELL JR., sired by Boswell (a son of Almont 33), dam Nellie B., by Kirtley's Patchen; grandam Sophie (grandam of Nancy Hanks, 2:09), by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; great grandam by Parker's Brown Pilot. This stallion Boswell was purchased by King Kalakaua from Gen. W. T. Withers, Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky. Boswell Jr.'s dam, Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, sire of Frank Fisk, 2:29; second dam by Hamilton Chief, son of Royal George 9; third dam the Dooley Mare, MAUDE started in twenty-one races and won eighteen first moneys, and is well known to all horsemen. BOSWELL JR. showed miles in 2:26 and quarters in 35 seconds on two weeks' work.

Mares stabled or pastured (as owners may desire) on reasonable terms. All bills payable before the animal is removed. No liability for accidents. Best fences in the country. Address,

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

FOR SALE.

A Fine Site For a Breeding and Stock Farm,

Situated Among the Most Famous Group of Stock Farms in California.

A SPECIAL BARGAIN!

200 ACRES PERFECTLY LEVEL LAND—PORTION OF THE FAMOUS SANTA RITA Rancho—at Pleasanton, Alameda County, about 50 minutes from Oakland pier, 15 minutes from the local depot, bordering on the County road.

Land perfectly square in form, all well fenced into five fields; good dwelling, large barn, etc.; garden, fine shade trees, plenty pure water in spring and well; good shade for stock. Land all under cultivation except portion used at present for pasture.

The soil is a deep, rich sediment, easily worked at any time, without gravel or adobe, suitable for wheat, barley, alfalfa, vegitables, fruit of all kinds. This is the finest natural grass and alfalfa land in the State—green grass the year round. One hundred acres of this land will keep as many horses as 500 acres of the general run of land. Just the place for a breeding and stock farm. This is evidenced by the fact that Valensin's (the home of Sidney), Salisbury's (the home of Director), McCarty's, and many others are grouped in the immediate vicinity. Excellent place for a track—no gravel in the soil. Fine view; surroundings very beautiful; climate perfection, being the desired medium between the coldness of the coast and the warmth of localities lying further east. A piece of property which is perfect, and a beautiful home. Schools and churches at hand. Title perfect. Owner about to retire. This property will be sold at a special bargain and on the easiest terms, viz:

ONE-THIRD or ONE-HALF CASH

Balance at 7 per cent. for time to suit purchaser.

☞WILL SELL ONE-HALF OF PROPERTY ON SAME TERMS.

ABDOL 17,716.

RECORD, 2:28.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¼ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¼, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training or this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud inOregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON, LIMITED TO TWENTY APPROVED MARES.

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

TERMS: $40 FOR THE SEASON.

LIMITED TO FIFTEEN APPROVED MARES.

The Fast Trotting Stallion

SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681,

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list: second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc.) by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾ Harry Clay 2:23¾; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted -so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17½, 2:17½, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Eyery attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to GRANDISSIMO 14,995. RECORD, 2:27 3-4. (FULL BROTHER TO GRANDEE, THREE-YEAR-OLD RECORD, 2:23½). Sired by La Grande 2868, dam Norma, by Arthurton 365; grandam Nourmahal, full sister to A. W. Richmond 1687.

GRANDISSIMO got his first work last season better than 3 minutes November 11, 1891. Was worked out four times and trotted to a record of 2:27¾ in a race Thanksgiving Day at Napa, finishing the last quarter in 36 seconds. Fifteen days training,—certainly a remarkable showing. I expect him to get a low mark next season. His colts are fine lookers and natural trotters. He will be bred to a limited number of mares at the low price of $50 FOR THE SEASON.

ALCONEER 15120. (FULL BROTHER TO ALCONA JR., 2:24, SIRE OF SILAS SKINNER, 2:17). Sired by ALCONA 730, dam Madonna (dam of Alcona Jr., 2:24, Del Rey, 2:29), by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22); grandam by Joe Downing 710.

ALCONEER is a handsome, good-sized horse, and a natural trotter. With two months training last fall as a 3-year-old he trotted a mile in 2:41; last quarter in 37½ seconds. TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON.

CADUCAS 10,840. Sired by ALMONT MEDIUM 2133, record 2:28½, dam Amelia T. (full sister to Prince Warwick, trial 2:18), by Alcona 730; grandam by Almont Mambrino 761; g g d by Delmonico 110; g g g d by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22. CADUCAS is a handsome individual, and will make a trotter. His pedigree is all one could desire. He will be bred to a few mares at the low price of $25 FOR THE SEASON.

KING WHIPPLETON (Standard). PRIVATE STALLION.

Sired by WHIPPLETON 1883, dam Kate Chapman, by Naubuc 504; grandam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31 g g d by Ethan Allen 2903.

The season to commence February 1st. ALCONA'S season to close September 1st. GRANDISSIMO, ALCONEER and CADUCAS' season to close July 1st, as I expect to trot them during the circuit. 1000 POUNDS OF VALUABLE HORSES and Cattle are annually lost, simply because their owners have no proper instruments to administer medicine. An experienced Veterinary Surgeon recognized this fact and invented a combination of Instruments which are indispensable to all owners of horses and cattle, and will do the work to perfection.

With The Ideal Horse and Cattle Injector you can give a pill or ball, an injection or a drench and spray a sore throat. It operates by compressed air and never fails. Just the thing you need. Price complete $5.00. We pay expressage.

Send postal card with your address and we will mail circular giving full description.

Pickering's 'Blanco'

TRADE P MARK

For whitening all articles of Buff or Buckskin Leather, such as Military Equipments, White Helmets, Gloves, Cricket and Tennis Shoes, Tennis Balls, Hunting Thongs, Whips, and a multitude of similar articles.

Just read the testimonials. CAPT. CHAS. W. HOBBS, Third Attorney, U. S. A.

I very fully and gladly recommend "BLANCO" as an admirable article for whitening Helmets, Buff and Buckskin leather Gloves, and for all the uses for which it is offered.

LIEUT. WM. WEIGLE, U. S. Infantry. The "BLANCO" is A No. 1.

LIEUT. GEO. A. THOMAS, Cin. Light Infantry. "BLANCO" has met with royal success in this Village.

SERG'T H. R. SCHUEBELY, U. S. M. C. The "BLANCO" cannot be beat by White Lead or Pipe Clay in price or quality.

SERG'T GEO. W. TILLOTSON, N. G. of N. Y. I tried "BLANCO" on one of our Helmets very much soiled; it brought it out very nice and white.

HUGH SWANTON, Sioux City. It is the best stuff I ever used.

To Athletes, Cyclists, Baseball & Footballists, Horse-back riders, Boxers and Oarsmen; when you want to ride, run, walk, row, skate or swim a long distance, USE

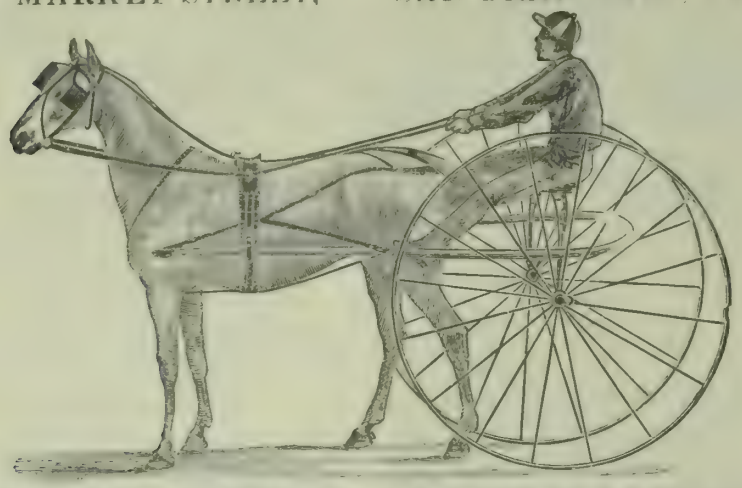
ANTI-STIFF

To Strengthen the Muscles.

To Strengthen the Muscles.

It is a marvelous preparation for Strengthening the Muscular System. With Anti Stiff there is no faith required; it goes straight for the muscles, and you can feel it at work. It has a peculiarly warming, comforting and stimulating effect on all weak or stiff muscles and sinews. Quick in its action, cleanly and pleasant in use.

Rub it into the muscles every night for a fortnight, and you will be pleased at its supporting and strengthening properties. There is not, nor has been, anything like it till now. It differs from all Oils, Embrocations and Liniments, both in substance and effect. Some Athletes are so fond of it that they rub it all over them.



Price 20c. and 35c. per box.

Trainers size, $1,00.
